"George Thimble had charge of passing the cake and sandwiches. George wore a checked suit so he wouldn't be mistaken for one of the hotel waiters. No one could say there was not enough to eat. George believes in making people satisfied so they'll come back the next time. When he passed the salmon sandwiches he urged guests to take a couple because it might be a long ride or walk home and he didn't want them to feel hungry. He told them too it would be quite all right by him if they wanted to dunk their crusts in the tea. He said for them to act just like they did at home. There was a large crowd present and a good time was had by all."

NOTE AND COMMENT

And now another thing wrong with radio is that it is being operated on daylight saving time.

Now that the baseball season is on we suppose this hit-and-run business will be worse than ever.

The annual hobby show shows that there are at least some of Peterborough's youngsters who have discovered useful and interesting means of using their leisure time.

Casa Loma, the Pellatt castle in Toronto, is to be operated as a tourist showplace by the Kiwanis Club again this summer. Possibly the Rotarians might be able to run a similar show at Chorley Park.

HE ASKED FOR IT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Jim Knuckle was a husky jay, he grew some more most every day, and he was broad and long; when but a lad 'twas plain to see, when he grew up why he would be, a good deal over strong.

¶ When he first started off to school, his head was neither fair nor cool, he bullied boys more slight; and any argument he had, with any other little lad, he'd double up and fight.

¶ And when his schooling days were through, defeat was what he never knew, he took them large and small; he used to boast much now and then, and mentioned it to older men, that he had licked them all.

¶ When he grew up 'twas much the same, new village chaps he'd quickly tame, for he'd just knock them down; he rather gloried in his strength, and he got known there at length, the bully of the town.

¶ A stranger drifted in one day, and quietly went about his way, and he was tall and slim; Jim Knuckle saw this pleasant gent, and straightway picked an argument, then took a swat at him.

¶ The fracas didn't last so long, though Jim was very big and strong, the bully of the town; Jim swung but could not land on him, the stranger popped him on the chin—and straightway he went down.

Japan Controls Eastern World

RECENT JAPANESE attacks on British and American vessels in China were acts of deliberate warfare and definitely marked the end of white control in Asia, according to Jim Marshall, Far Eastern correspondent for Collier's, who returned to this country after being seriously injured in the bombing of the U. S. S. Panay.

"Mid-December, 1937, marked a turning point in world history," Marshall writes in an article called "Farewell to Asia." "What the world heard about and talked about was the bombing and sinking of the U. S. S. Panay and three American merchant ships; the shelling and bombing of three British river gunboats and several merchant ships on the Yangtze.

"But these acts of deliberate warfare—for that is what they were—really marked the end of white—American and British — dominance over one-third of the world's people, and the definite triumph of Japan's long fight for the rulership of Asia and nearly one billion Asiatics.

"The attacks on British and American war and merchant vessels were nothing less than cold-blooded, calculated actions, designed solely for two purposes: to destroy the remnants of white prestige in the Orient, and to demonstrate to all Asia that America and the British Empire are 'afraid to fight Japan'."

MARSHALL STATES that in keeping with this policy of "humiliation" Japan allowed Americans to visit the Hongkew section of the International Settlement only at stated hours, and required that even then they must not smoke while passing a Japanese sentry, but must bow to him and say "Good day!"

"Even in the main settlement," he adds, "which has been international property for decades, American women are shoved off the narrow sidewalks by strolling Japanese soldiers and civilians, while mobs of Chinese look on and laugh."

Marshall makes it clear that he does not believe the United States should fight either for its rights or its commercial stake in Asia, the great body of American public opinion undoubtedly being against such a course, and soundly so.

"But on the other hand," he says, "we ought to stop talking about 'upholding American rights' in China—first, because we haven't any left and, second, because the only way to win back our former rights is by war. Being firmly against war, we must realize that, as Americans, we have fewer rights in Asia than the Japanese have on the North American continent."

Taking up the territorial question, Marshall say that "having been blasted out of China," the United States retains its few Oriental possessions, temporarily, by permission of the Japanese. He states that the Philippines could not be successfully defended and that Guam, Midway and Wake Islands, vital trans-Pacific airline bases, could be taken by Japan in 24 hours.

Hawaii, however, he believes to be impregnable, and a guarantee against American invasion by Asiatics, as no attacking fleet or army in transports would dare leave on its flank or in its rear the Hawaiian squadrons of the world's fastest fighting planes.

"But today ," Marshall says, "and for as long as she is entagled in China, Japan's last wish is for war with America. Without the United States as a great storehouse of cotton, lumber, copper and oil, Japan cannot operate an Oriental war. A war with us would wreck her within two months and she knows it. We must, for cash, furnish her the sinews not only for her Chinese conquests but for—ironically enough—blasting us completely out of China, morally and commercially."

DEANNA THANKFUL.

(Leonard Lyons, in New York Post)

WHEN WALT DISNEY first decided to do "Snow White," he auditioned a number of singers—including a very young girl who possessed an unusual voice and who resembled Disney's depiction of Snow White. . . . The applicant studied the songs, appeared at the auditions—but for some unexplained reason she wasn't selected for the job . . . The young girl now is thankful that she didn't get that coveted assignment. Because she then devoted those years—during which she otherwise would have remained anonymous—to other pursuits which have become more profitable . . . Her name is Deanna Durbin.

BY COMMISSIONS.

(Hamilton Spectator)

THE OTTAWA Journal laments the now familiar orgy of royal commissions which has marked our Canadian political scene in the past few years. . . .

What is possibly the most dangerous side of these commissions is that they take upon them an aura of expertness and perfection that the ordinary functions of government do not. Accordingly, a good many dangerous generalizations can be floated around to suit the sectional politician's game and justify his clamoring. What is said about one section of an industry is applied by them to the whole; any information garnered up can be used to fill the need of the moment. It has happened a good many times of late, and most of these probes have been distinguished by partisan persecutions and a stirring up of prejudices.

But it is a splendid way for a government to skate around responsibility.

A PERMANENT PROBLEM

(London Free Press)

Whether we like it or not we may as well take it for granted that the relief problem is a permanent one and some solution will have to be worked out. The Rowell Commission is studying this as well as other financial problems involving federal, provincial and municipal governments, and it is not likely that Ottawa will take any action until this report is received. But in the near future Canada must work out some system. The present hit and miss plan cannot continue.

Do Things Better in England.

(Howard Vincent O'Brien in Chicago Daily News)

Drifting about Washington, as I have been for the last week or so, I am tremendously impressed by the amount of brains, character and experience that the American people have working for them. There are plenty of crooks in Washington, plenty of starry-eyed crackpots. But in the various departments of the government there are some very sober and capable citizens, working overtime as a matter of course, many of them for less pay than they could command in private enterprise.

The pity is that government jobs are so uncertain. A family man, with people dependent upon him, takes a big risk in accepting a federal appointment. A shift in the political administration, and lo, he finds himself looking for work. He lacks the one thing that can compensate for the lower wage scale of public service, which is security of employment.

Public Service

The backbone of the British Empire is its civil service. Men are trained specifically for it, pass severe examinations for entrance, and once in are there for life. Statesmen may come and go, making speeches as they fly briefly across the backdrop of history, but the civil servant goes on forever.

The British civil servant doesn't quit his job when he is offered a better one in private life. The reason? Well, it simply "isn't done." The tradition of the British civil service is that when a man has consecrated his life to public work he must "carry on."

In return for accepting this obligation, he is given a considerable amount of security, and a considerable amount of public esteem. The English don't treat the civil servant as a necessary evil. They respect him for what he is—the man who keeps the wheels of government turning.

Changing View

Happily, there is a growing tendency in this country to regard public service of enough importance for us to train men in it, and, having trained them, to give them jobs and advancement and assurance of permanent employment.

Not only is this tendency apparent in Washington; one encounters it in states and cities. As government invades domain hitherto considered sacred to private enterprise the importance of an expert bureaucracy more evident. More and more we are discovering that we can't afford the expensive inefficiency of the spoils system. Even the strictly political organization is beginning to discover that efficient government is a political asset.

Increasingly, we think, we shall see governments, large and small, providing opportunity for the "career" man. As it becomes clearer that politics is merely another word for collective housekeeping, we shall have a higher type of citizen going into politics.

Can't Vote Against Billions.

(St. Catharines Standard)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S new "recovery" program, involving national expenditures which approximate seven billion dollars, is obviously to play a major, if not controlling, part in next November's Congressional elections. For the entire membership of the House of Representatives, as well as a third of that of the Senate, will be chosen by the ballots of the nation in those elections. That the President hopes the borrowing, spending and lending of these additional billions will improve the business situation and help pull the whole country back to economic normality, goes, of course, without saying. Nevertheless everyone realizes that the big spending scheme he asks Congress to indorse has been worked out and timed for election purpoes. And it certainly is a gigantic program. It will swell the national debt of the United States to more than 40 billion dollars—a total which baffles the imagination, which is 20 times the whole outlay of the Dominion of Canada on the Great War.

Every press correspondent at Washington, every great newspaper in the United States, is convinced that Congress, despite its growing distrust of Mr. Roosevelt's business sense will vote approval of his scheme, even though it may insist on some changes in detail and possibly on some restriction of the President's control over this colossal "recovery" appropriation. And this because every member of the House who wishes to remain in public life, as well as some thirty-odd Senators, must face the people at the polls less than seven months hence. To vote against these billions would be to write their own political extinction.

Few can now have any confidence in President Roosevelt's idea that he can buy prosperity for the United States like an ordinary commercial commodity. Those who thought the country could borrow its way out of a world-wide economic depression, experienced a sharp disillusion when the billions he spent on his New Deal produced nothing but increased debt, a short-lived artificial flurry in business, and a new descent into the slough of economic despond. If experience means anything, similar portentous results may be expected from the dissipation of these additional billions. But elections are necessary and they come high.

Have You Lost Your Tonsils?

(Brantford Expositor)

THE MEDICAL RESEARCH Council of Great Britain is a strictly professional, properly conservative, thoroughly cautious and quite unemotional kind of body. It deals, for the most part and in an indubitably dignified manner, with cold scientific facts.

Old Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, must have done at least a hand-spring in his Grecian grave, therefore, when, this week, that eminent organization issued a report announcing that it now "gravely doubts" whether the majority of tonsil operations is any more than "a routine prophylactic ritual for no particular reason and with no particular result."

The public, of course, will be well advised to note that phrase "the majority of." Because sometimes removal of tonsils is unquestionably indicated and serious harm may result if they are left in.

But, for the rest, just think of the shock it will be to thousands and thousands of people, in Great Britain and all over the world, to realize that they have had their tonsils snicked—at a cost ranging from so much up—when maybe they could have kept both the tonsils and the fee.

Time was when a sovereign remedy for all the ills wherewith human kind is plagued was to pull out all a fellow's teeth. That technique has subsided almost to the vanishing point within recent years.

And now this latest Medical Research Council report gives rise to other alarming possibilities. Perhaps—who knows?—the appendix may be next on the list. One shudders to think what would be the result if the savants were to decide that a majority of all the appendectomies of the last couple of decades had been in the nature of a "routine prophylactic ritual." If this sort of thing goes on, it soon won't be safe to talk about one's operation at all.

FAMILY TREE.

(Edinburgh Scotsman)

THE ASYLUM inmate was forever looking in the mirror addressing his mirror image as "Grandfather," and speaking of himself as the image's grandson. A fellow resident asked him how it came about, and received this reply:—

"I married a widow with a grown daughter. My father soon fell in love with my stepdaughter and married her, thus becoming my son-in-law. And my step-daughter became my step-mother because she was my father's wife.

"My wife had a son, who was, of course, my father's brother-in-law, and also my uncle, for he was the brother of my step-mother. My father's wife became the mother of a son, who was my brother and also my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter.

"Accordingly, my wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I AM MY OWN GRANDFATHER!"

MUST PAY $728,709.

(Lemuel Parton, in New York Sun)

THE SUPREME COURT rules that Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City Bank, must pay an income tax deficiency of $728,709, in addition to a fraud penalty of $364,254. It has to do with his 1929 income and stock transfers to his wife.

There was a time when this approximately $1,000,000 was something that Mr. Mitchell might find in an old vest. His lawyers have contended that he tossed in $30,000,000 of his own money, trying to put out the fire in 1929. Varied and venturesome have been his moods and his deals and he has had little in common with the coldly acquisitive New England financiers of Wall street tradition.

Big, handsome and genial, he walked five miles to his office every day for years. Skipper of a score of golden argosies, he surrounded himself with nautical gear, swam lustily in the open sea, or, in another mood, became a country squire or grand seigneur, with blooded horses and prize winning chrysanthemums. A Wall street reporter remarked to this writer today, "I wish all this hard luck had hit somebody less human and likable."

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

FEAR NONE of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. . . .

And I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred and forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps: and they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth. . . . And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God. . . . And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, said the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours: and their works do follow them.—Rev. ii, 10, 11; xiv, 1-3, 5, 13.

AN OLD GLASS FACTORY.

(London Observer)

FEW PEOPLE realise that just outside London is a factory where glass is blown in substantially the same way as it was three or four thousand years before Christ.

Until fifteen years ago this ancient glass works was in Tudor street, close to the Observer office, where it had been since the year after the Great Fire.

When, fifteen years ago, the Whitefriars—so called from the London neighborhood to which they belonged—moved to the suburbs, they took with them a cutting from the fig-tree at the old factory.

It grew and flourishes now outside a structure which resembles those described in sixteenth and seventeenth century treatises on glass-blowing.

DON'T BE DAFT.

(London Sunday Dispatch)

WHEN A MAN went into a little cakeshop at Leeds, pulled out what looked like a revolver, and said, "Stick 'em up! I want all that's in the till!" the 60-years-old proprietress, Mrs. Rollinson, said, "Don't be daft!"

She picked up a paperweight and said "Get out!" and the bandit very promptly got out.

Mrs. Rollinson, of course, might have fainted — in which case she would have lost her money.

It is possible, too, that she was much more disturbed than her curt "Don't be daft!" suggested.

But next time you are faced with an ugly situation it might do you good to remember Mrs. Rollinson; you might keep calm and say "Don't be daft!" and save the day.

EXCUSE FOR RAKE-OFF.

(Sarnia Canadian Observer)

THERE ARE those who say that the welfare of hospitals is not the paramount consideration in the minds of those who want sweepstakes. They charge that it is a desire to obtain a medium whereby someone may have a rake-off from a popular racket and that only an insignificant percentage of the takings would reach the hospitals. If sweepstakes should ever become legal anywhere in Canada, the question as to what levy is to be expected for operating them ought to be thoroughly discussed. If hospitals are to provide the excuse for an enterprise that is regarded with distavor by a considerable element of the population, they ought to get adequate assurance of a full share of the returns.

Legion Holds Church Parade To St. Peter's Cathedral

Rev. P. J. Kelly, Chaplain Of The Legion, Preaches The Sermon

Accompanied by the band of the Prince of Wales Rangers, ex-service men of the Canadian Legion held their annual church parade on Sunday at St. Peter's Cathedral. Ernest Abraham was the acting marshall of the parade and leading the one hundred and thirty members were the president, Chief George Gimblett of the Fire Department, and the first vice-president D. J. Loomis. They were ushered to front central seats by one of their members, John P. Legros.

The sermon was preached by Rev. P. J. Kelly, rector of the Cathedral, and himself an overseas chaplain. He read the epistle for the first Sunday after easter from the fifth chapter of St. John, 4-10, and the gospel was from St. John's twentieth chapter, verses 19 to 31. On behalf of Bishop O'Connor who was present in the sanctuary, and of the congregation, Father Kelly expressed appreciation to the president and members of the Legion for their presence. The theme of his sermon was the vurtue of gratitude to God for His great gifts to man. "Almighty God has done a great deal for man," Father Kelly said, "and He does not wish to be forgotten. So we find that when our Lord was on earth He fulfilled that obligation to His Father, for we know that before He died, on Thursday evening, He celebrated the Paschal feast, which was a commemoration of God's liberation of the Israelites from their enemies. On the occasion commemorated by that feast God had sent His angel to destroy the first-born of the Egyptians. Pharoah had been warned, but refused to listen to the warnings. So, God told the Israelites to mark the lintel of their doors with the blood of a lamb so that the angel with the flaming sword would not enter to destroy. Then, the Israelites, after partaking of the lamb, were to set out for the Promised Land.

Our Lord was a Jew and followed the laws of the Jews until the time came when He changed them. On that Thursday night he followed the example of His Father and observed the Paschal feast. When He had finished commemorating the goodness of His Father, a thing so strange that we will not know the fulness of it until we die., He said of the bread and wine, "This Is My body and blood", gave them to His disciples to eat, and then said to His apostles, "Do this in commemoration of Me". He wished them to continue that commemoration, just as He had commemorated the goodness of His Father to the Israelites."

Father Kelly said that during the early part of Christ's life on earth, when He was a simple laborious citizen of Nazareth, He attended the meetings in the Synagogue, recited the psalms of David and the canticles of Solomon. The scriptures were also read, the book of Moses and the Prophecies. When Christ was twelve years old He explained them in the Temple to the doctors of the law. The book of Moses was the whole history of the human race from its source in innocence to the time when sin wrought havoc among men. In Genesis and the Pentateuch and other books there was the history of man down to that time. In the Prophecies He read the description of the Messiah that was to come, which was in reality a description of himself. Isaiah portrayed the Messiah so clearly that one of the Evangelists could hardly have done better. Father Kelly explained, follows that old form of worship by the priest's recital of psalms and his reading of the epistle and gospel for each Sunday. The gospel for Low Sunday, the first after Easter, related his meeting with and revelation of Himself to St. Thomas, after His resurrection from the dead. In the consecration of the bread and wine the sacrifice of Jesus on Calvary for mankind was commemorated.

"The purpose of our Lord was to offset the terrible social vice of ingratitude. He knew men would forget Him, but He wanted to be remembered, and that is why He instituted the Mass. You men know what it is to be forgotten. You might be patted on the back and cheered before you went away and those who fell did what Christ did, give up their lives for others. You know when ingratitude is returned to you. The Legion is called upon to bear ingratitude. It is a splendid character that can do that. There was a Sunday when people lined the streets and three palm branches before Christ, and then on the following Friday it was so different. You might say they took the branches from one single palm tree to throw in his path before Him, and then went back and made a Cross of that tree. Such is fickle human nature.

Christ standing before the Pharisees, those men who had fattened on the things of wealth said: "Which of you will accuse Me of sin?" He knew even in His weakness that He was supreme. So a man who has fought for his country, who is sometimes passed by without kindness because he is lame, such a man can hold his head up, for those who have taken the risk and had the will to die for their country, have indeed given up their lives for that country. The Scriptures tell us: Greater love hath no man than this, that he gave up his life for his friends."

Irish President?

One time connected with the University of New Brunswick, Dr. Douglas Hyde, poet and leading Irish historian, will be the first president of Ireland under the new constitution. Dr. Hyde, 78, was assured of election after a conference between representatives of Prime Minister de Valera's government and William T. Cosgrave, leader of the opposition. The election, which will be held May 31, will probably be held without contest.

15 TROOP TRAINS RUSH JAP ARMY AID IN SHANTUNG

SHANGHAI, April 25.—(AP). — Fifteen Japanese troop trains rolled southword to-day from Tientsin to reinforce the army fighting to conquer Central China.

A new battle for possession of Taierhchwang, war-despoiled South Shantung city where the Japanese suffered a disastrous defeat early in April, appeared imminent as the invaders struggled to reach the Lunghai railway.

The Chinese, seeking to check the Japanese offensive along the South Shantung border, declared Japan soon will have fully 300,000 soldiers engaged in the revitalized drive to capture Suchow.

This strategic city, scarcely 40 miles southwest of Taierhchwang, is the junction point of the east-west Lunghai line and the Tientsin-Pukow line, running southward from Tientsin into the heart of Central China's rich agricultural region.

Japanese reported advancing to Szechuchen, northeast of Taierhchwang, and 24 miles north of the Lunghai railway, and to Tancheng, walled city only 23 miles from the Lunghai.

Thief Abandons Car Tags It "Stolen"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Tweed, April 25.

"THIS car is stolen, notify the police." This was the note attached to the handle of an abandoned car in the village of Tweed late Saturday afternoon. The car was noticed parked on a side street by a passing resident, who investigated and discovered the note.

Constable Hayes was notified, and on Sunday afternoon the car was identified as belonging to a resident of Picton, County of Prince Edward, who recovered his property.

Jack Tinney Will Coach Scout Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25. — Jack Tinney was appointed coach of the softball team which is being organized by the Campbellford Boy Scout Troop. The boys, who held their first practice on Thursday afternoon, expect to draw up a schedule which will include the Scout Troops from Frankford, Norwood, and Trenton. The games will be played on the High School lot, and although there will be no admission charge, a silver collection will be taken at each event. On Saturday the Scouts held a sale of homemade candy, from which they derived a fair profit.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

12 Blonds Answer Call For War Duty, Hope To Stare Enemy Down

New York, April 25 (AP). SUMMONED BY the music of one accordion and marshalled by three press agents, the "Little Women's League for Peace" assembled yesterday to end war.

"That's their oficia little," one of the P. A.'s said, "but we're going to make this movement known as 'the blond brigade.'"

With one exception, the 12 girls assembled were blonds; the stray was a redhead, Miss Jan Colwell, listed as national commander-in-chief of the organization, explained just what it was all about.

"I plan to organize thousands of beautiful blonds," she said. "Then, if war comes, we will stand in front of the trenches and look at the enemy. How many of us will emerge from the front lines alive is dubious."

The gathering was described as "the first national conference of blonds to end war."

FIVE HURT IN SMASH

MONTREAL, April 25 (CP)—Five persons were injured, one seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding left the highway at Dorion, Que., 25 miles east of here yesterday, and crashed into a tree. Joseph Fiorentine, 33, was taken to hospital with a probable skull fracture and other injuries. The accident occurred as the party was returning to Montreal from Cornwall, Ont.

CUTS IRON WITH WOOL

DENVER, Ajril 25 (AP).—A one-inch iron bar neatly sawed in two is why federal prisoners wear cotton socks now. A. V. Anderson, former Leavenworth Penitentiary warden, showed the bar to the Denver federal business Association and said Ralph Evans, a life-termer, sawed through it with yarn from a wool sock in seven hours.

"Since then," Anderson said, "federal prisoners get cotton socks."

Why Concentrate on Beer?

Opponents of Government Control concentrate their attacks on our industry. This alone, to any thinking man, is enough to throw doubts on their wisdom.

If the cause of true temperance is their object, rather than a tactical advantage, they surely should not devote so large a part of their time to attacking the mildest of alcoholic beverages, and one which is not habit-forming.

But because a democratic law makes our product available by the glass to working men, under Government Control, the opponents of the present system seek to drive drinking underground—where they do not see it. The truth is, that the individual is less likely to commit abuses in public, and the abuses are more easily correctable.

In fact, licensed hotels are very seldom the scene of excess. Because an intoxicated man is seen near a hotel—it does not follow that he acquired the means of intoxication in a hotel. But it does provide the unthinking people with a useful text . . . if they do not bother to prove their conclusions.

We find no definite evidence to support the theory that satisfying the taste for beer develops a craving for whisky. On the contrary, we believe that if beers . . . are more easily obtainable than distilled liquors and are sold in different conditions, there is reasonable ground to expect that the taste of those who wish to drink will be diverted to the lighter and less harmful beverages.

POLLY AND HER PALS — By Cliff Sterrett

ST. PAUL'S CAGERS WIN ONTARIO INTERMEDIATE "B" HONORS

LOSE SECOND GAME 41-37 WIN ON ROUND

St. Paul's cagers of Peterborough won the Ontario Church Basketball Association intermediate championship for 1938 when they emerged from the final round with Brampton having a 69-65 edge. The Saints lost in Brampton on Saturday night by 41-37 score, but took the round due to their lead of 32-24 in the first of the finals here the week previous. It is a Provincial intermediate "B" championship.

Only seven of the St. Paul's team made the trip, having a little trouble arranging transportation at the last minute. They arrived tired and had to step onto a strange floor. Added to that, they lost two of their players during the contest for drawing four fouls. But the scrappy Saints showed their stuff by battling away hard to eventually gain the title. Five players turned in a sparkling iron-man performance to outlast their rivals.

Down eight points from the first playoff tussle, the smart Brampton squad turned on the heat to have an edge in play through the first half. At the rest period, the homesters were leading 26-20, just two points down on the round. But the St. Paul's gang of Peterborough fought back doggedly through the even,exciting second stanza. The score see-sawed and, with but two minutes of play left, Brampton needonly one more basket to tie up the round. However, Don Sedgewick shot in another field basket for the Petes to definitely clinch the series. A tired but happy squad of St. Paul's basketeers were congratulated by the Bramptonites at the finish.

All the champions turned in a grand performance. Till they were ousted for too rugged checking, Weir and McIntyre were going great guns. Sedgewick led the scorers with some first-rate sniping, as Marsh and Pulkinghorn proved strong checkers and dangerous on the attack. Gemmell and Ascott aided a great deal all the way through with good all-around work. The gallant losers also turned in a nifty performance and never quit trying, the whole team dividing honors in a losing cause. The teams:

St. Paul's: McIntyre, Sedgewick, Pulkinghorn, Weir, Marsh, Gemmell and Ascott.

Brampton: Moorhead, Langdon, Grogan, Hooper, Long, Woodell, Patterson, Copp, Ridley and Hore.

Referee—Lorne Gillespie of Toronto.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

OUR COUNTRY cousins, that is our Old Country cousins, seem to go for the professional brand of hockey. The touring Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings played to 8,500 fans at the Empress Stadium in London the other night, turning fans away, and they put on a real show. Went overtime with Canadiens getting a 5-4 nod, and the English sports writers went into a rave. Used the words hypnotic, miraculous, and dazzling, while calling Gagnon "elusive as an eel" and saying Cude "produced marvels of acrobatic dives to save stinging shots that defied anything ever conceived by the average supporter in England." Hm. they run to adjectives in the sports scribbling game there, too, it seems. The fans liked it a lot and felt it was much better than amachoor hockey. Informed folks said it would have drawn boos from Toronto fans, but 'twas new in the Old Country. But the customers didn't like Hec. Kilrea arguing over a penalty, feeling that it was scarcely cricket.

NEXT MEETING of the men's Softball League will be held on Wedne sday e'en at eight tinkles of the timepiece in the Duffus' Board Room. All those interested are invited. Two teams have entered already, and it is hoped that at least two more will join up this week. Games will be at the Bowl, meaning more revenue, and also the loop is likely to financially aid the squad which goes into the O.A.S.A. playdowns. With the wealth of softball material in the city, coming from School League, Church Loop, Southend Circuit and factory leagues, there is certainly no dearth of capable performers. And the cost of running a softball team is a fraction of what it takes to operate baseball, lacrosse, hockey or rugby crews. We imagine a good four-team or six-squad loop will be lined up shortly.

CHURCH SOFTBALL League re-organizes for the season this eve at seven in the "Y" and all church groups should have delegates on deck to do business. The circuit will get going right smartly as it finishes around the end of June. Election of officers, entry of teams, schedule, grounds and a flock of other business will come up. Just because this loop has been running smoothly for several years is no reason why teams should not take a definite interest in the organization work. A big turn out at the initial session will start things off with a biff and a bing and a bang.

ABOUT 15 ball players attended the first open-air workout in Riverside Park on Saturday. Half of last year's senior Petes, several former juniors, a couple of strangers, and several hangers-on. They took part in a light drill, playing catch, roping in flies, and batting practise. Big Joe Jakafby looked in fine form after a heavy winter of basketball. Gunner Whitehill was chucking 'em in for a time, too. Cy Whatley had the old gingerino, and Chuck Kearns was hitting them a mile. Bun Kingdon and Les Burton loosened up, and Leo Deadey looked like a natural fly hawk. Others looked promising, too. However, it's too early to figure the flock yet, and when they all get out and are at it for a couple of weeks, we'll get something of a line of the summer-time Petes.

SOME ALLEGED bowlers had themselves a time Saturday night at Duffus', following a banquet in the Empress for the Kingston Whig-Standard and the Examiner trundlers. Some 50 ladies and gees took it in and had themselves some fun. Over on the field (or floor) of battle the local lasses got it where the Thanksgiving turkey takes the hatchet, losing three straight to the Kingston damsels. Whereas our men upheld the old Examiner tradition by knocking off the Kingstonites in five out of six games. Bill Steer surprised himself and astounded the whole crew by blasting the pins left and right for a high of 327 in one game, but next time out he was back in our own class with a 135. Mrs. Bailey was high lady witha neat 243. It was a good evening all around, and we trust those cocky Limestone City newsies will take this lession to heart and not go around challenging their superiors in future!

THE CANADIAN Bowling Association titular tourney was run off last week in Toronto with a Toronto likker company team rolling 3,899 to win. A Hamilton duo took the doubles with 1,787, with an Ottawa guy getting 943 for high single, and the same lad won high aggregate with 2,498. Three teams from here took part with K. of C. being highest with 3,381, as a Brinton-Duffus gang rolled 3,084 and Anthony's had 3,073. A. Cremasco and V. Anothony went doubles for 1,407, with Fred Martin taking high single with 836 and high aggregate with 2,312. Personnel of the local teams: K. of C.—F. Martin, T. Miller, W. Martin, G. Gimblett, W. Weese; Brinton-Duffus—W. Firth, R. Gerrard, G. Corbett, C. Shaughnessy, L. Martin; Anthony's —A. Cremasco, L. Anthony, N. Anthony, R. Lewis, V. Anthony.

AT THE P.W.S.U. annual convention Sunday in Toronto, 40 gals' softball teams were affiliated, including four from the Peterborough area. Nora Seddon gave way as president to Hilda Thomas of Toronto, and our own loop secretary, Gladys Mortimer, was voted in as third vice-prexy. And so Peterborough is finally represented on the Provincial Women's Softball Union executive. Teams entered from here were Keene, Lindsay, C.G.E. and Westclox. Haven't heard anything further from Brintons or Cobourg. P.W.S.U. starts the season with $140. They nearly started a riot by suggesting a new classification for 1940 whereby juniors would be 15 years old, intermediates 21 and under, and seniors over 22. In the first place, intermediates are never ranked according to an age limit and in the second to fifth places inclusively, after all these eons, it would be an absolute impossibility to get the gals to admit their ages! That's what drove Diogenes nuts by lantern light! Anyway, the suggestion was dunked like used linen on wash day.

ANOTHER ONTARIO championship comes here, St. Paul's copping the Ontario Church Basketball League intermediate finals in Brampton on Saturday when they dropped the final playoff game by a 41-37 score but took the serial by a 69-65 count. Only seven of the Saints made the jaunt from here and they had to hustle to hire a taxi themselves at the last minute. They lost two of their players via the four-foul route and it was closer than love birds in springtime before the windup. Brampton had the round score whittled to 67-65 just before the last whistle blast when Sedgewick, who shone for the victors, hooped another field basket. Our hearty congrats to the scrappy St. Paul's for their fine work this year. Team included, at various times: Manager George Broadley, Coach Don Crowe, Jim Thorburn, Ross Pulkinghorn, Gord McIntyre, Don Sedgewick, Orm Weir, Harry Marsh, Les Ascott and Jack Gemmell.

GRAB-BAG: Manager Frank Randle wants a full turnout for a lacrosse practise tomorrow eve at the arena; all prospects invited. . . . . The box will be ready by Tuesday, an exhibition game may be arranged within two weeks, so players should hurry and get in shape . . . . General meeting of lacrosse players is set for tonight at 8.30 in Duffus' . . . . Russ Kitchen and Len Hollingsworth were two of last year's seniors we forgot to mention as being at Riverside Saturday. . . . . Outdoor ball practises will be held Tuesday and Thursay evenings at six in Riverside; no more indoor drills . . . . Soccer re-organization session tonight at eight in the Chamber of Commerce . . . . Umps, caretaker and score-boy for Girls' Softball League should apply to Gladys Mortimer by mail at 551 Weller St. . . . A minor baseball meeting is called for tonight at seven in the Parnall St. ball field . . . . Kingston's junior "B" puck champs have received gold rings from the Council . . . Seems the E.O.B.A. got highly indignant at the C.O.B.L. for inviting Smiths Falls and Perth in; they yelled to the O.B.A. about it on Sat'day . . . . Been averaging from two to three sports' banquets a week for a month now—beginning to look like a plate of turkey, so we are!

NEWSIE BOWLERS BATTLE IT OUT

Bowlers of the Kingston Whig-Standard and the Peterborough Examiner sat down together at a banquet, tendered by H. L. Garner, in the Empress Hotel Saturday evening. Following the repast, the gathering of approximately 50 girls and men adjourned to Duffus' Bowling Alleys to resume their bowling feud, begun in Kingston several weeks ago.

At the banquet, Fred Scates was toastmaster, while Mr. Garner welcomed the Kingston contingent. Some of the ace bowlers of both shops were introduced. Songs composed for the occasion were sung by the assembly, led by John Anderson with H. L. Garner at the piano. It was an enjoyable affair marked with much merriment by the staffs of the sister newspapers.

Over at the alleys, the local male trundlers went to town at the expense of their rivals to win five out of six games, but the local ladies lost three out of three to their opponents. Mrs. Bailey of Kingston rolled the highest score for the ladies with a mark of 243, while Bill Steer of the Examiner crew knocked off a 327. Following are the results:

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The list of activities, in connection with our lawn bowling club, for this week-end are as follows:

Monday night—Games committee meeting.

Tuesday night — Membership committee meeting.

Wednesday night — Board of directors meeting.

Thursday night — The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association to be held in our club rooms. All interested lawn bowlers are cordially invited to attend. There are one or two items that are very vital to lawn bowling in this district.

We just publish all this news to let the rank and file of our members know just how much work must be done by somebody before the opening day.

In less than two weeks our schedule book will be in the printer's hands and there are still some rinks not completed. We cannot impress upon the skips the importance of having these rinks completed by Saturday night. Should help be required if they will only phone Howard Clegg or any member of his committee they will be only too glad to give assistance.

BAD DECISION PROVES COSTLY

JERSEY CITY, April 25. — An umpire's decision can be more potent than the mightiest home-run wallop ever handed an unsuspecting baseball when it comes into contact with a chunk of wood swung savagely by a husky athlete. The two of them made un unbeatable combination, as Dan Howley's Maple Leafs discovered here on Saturday as they lost their second successive overtime decision to Jersey City Giants. The score was 11 to 7, after fourteen innings.

You hear talk around and about that Tuck Stainback and Clyde Shoun, who went to the Cards in the Diz Dean deal, may wind up at Columbus...Marv Ferrell, brother of the Senators' brothers, does his stuff for Trenton in the Eastern League this summer...Which means he'll probably wind up with the Nats, too.

WELL HITCHED

DENVER, April 25 (AP)—This time a locksmith laughed at love. Donald Palik, 22, heard his friends planned to "kidnap" his pretty blond bride, the former Miss Adalena Toff, 19, so when the couple walked out of the church after their wedding yesterday he fastened her to his wrist with a pair of rented handcuffs. When they were safely away, the bride couldn't find the key to the handcuffs but a locksmith released them.

KILLED IN SMASH

MONTREAL, April 25 (CP)—Paul Robertson, 32, of Tonawanda, N.Y., was killed Saturday when his automobile collided with a truck driven by Frank Allen of Hudson Heights, Que. The accident occurred at Bale D'Urfe, 18 miles east of here.

NOTHING WRONG DEAN'S FLIPPER SAYS HARTNETT

That was the opinion of Charley Grimm, manager of Chicago Cubs, and Charles Leo Hartnett, the Cubs' great catcher, as they watched Ole' Diz with apparent ease mow down his former companions 5-0 on a yield of only four hits.

Dean pitched against the Cardinals with a loose, free motion, giving no indication there was anything wrong with his arm that was supposed to be injured last season and which has been employed in only 17 innings of spring games.

"There is nothing the matter with that guy's arm," Hartnett said. "He pitched just like I told him to, throwing the ball just where I wanted it, and he will get better right along. He is bound to improve with more work. When the warn weather hits us Mr. Dean will really do his stuff. He didn't cut loose only three or four times. He had to pitch to Johnny Mize when he made him pop out in the sixth with two on."

Grimm said Dean's performance of turning in two victories in five days had convinced him. "He looked like $1,000,000," Grimm said.

Conquering the Cardinals was of tremendous importance to Dean.

"That was one I just wanted to get over," Dean said after the game. "And a shut-out too."

"My arm feels just swell. I was throwing my fast ball all the time, first a little then pretty hard. I was loosened up from the start."

TORONTO, April 25.—The Canadian Bowling Association's twelfth annual Dominion championship five-pin tournament wound up on Saturday night after sixty-four teams from out of town had made their bids for money positions. Final statistics showed that titles in three of the four events went to the visitors, with Seagram's No. 2 team of Toronto capturing the big event with their score of 3,899.

Fred Wilks of Ottawa won the singles with 943, and also walked off with the aggregate with 2,498, while Rowell and Lawson set a new record for the C.B.A. classic when they scored 1,787 to win the doubles. Ottawa Hookers, besides capturing second place in the team event, also took the special prize for the highest out-of-town team.

Lakeside ladies won the team honors with 3,242; Annie Miller and Olive Miller the doubles with 1,503; Ev Lyons the singles with 783; and Olive Miller took the aggregate with 2,222.

Three hundred and twenty teams, 395 doubles, and 624 singles competed, and President George Weale expressed gratification at the big turnout before the large gathering assembled at the closing ceremonies. Controllers Hamilton and Conboy assisted the President in the presentations, while Past Presidents George Grinyer, Tom Simpson, Dick Mansell, the officers and executive also took a hand in the proceedings.

EDMONTON GRADS DEFEAT TORONTO

EDMONTON, April 25 (C.P.). — Edmonton Grads' continued superiority in Canadian women's basketball seemed established to-day although they must defeat Toronto Consols twice more to retain the Dominion title they have held since 1923.

Coach J. Percy Page's latest Grads team displayed all the power of its predecessors here on Saturday night in whipping the Eastern champions 72-28. By dominating play completely Grads gave promise of a three-straight victory in the best-of-five series. They play again tonight and Wednesday.

Toronto Leafs Lose Out 3-2 In Extra Inning At Newark

Caldwell Yields Eleven Safeties—Reiber Homers Again

NEWARK, N.J., April 25. — The Maple Leafs proved formidable enough to carry the champion Newark Bears into an extra inning here Sunday, but the final result was no different than in the first two games at Jersey City, the men of Howley bowing by a score of 3 to 2 after having put up a great ball game over the regulation distance before a chilled crowd of 9,193.

Although nicked for eleven hits by the Newark sluggers, Earl Caldwell scattered them well enough to win most ball games. Fate, however, was against him in the tenth when a waste ball to Buddy Rosar grazed the shirt of the Newark catcher and give him possession of first base.

Scarsella Scores Winner.

That in itself wasn't important, but the fact that the hit batter advanced Scarsella, who had opened the extra heat with a single, to second, was disastrous. After watching Ted Petoskey pull down Blair's fly, the former Leaf scored the winning run on Merrill May's single to centre, just making it with a beautiful slide under Mayo Smith's perfect peg to the plate.

The Leafs didn't give Caldwell very much assistance with their sticks. To be sure, they were limited to three hits by big Jack Lindell, a Newark rookie from Binghamton. And although he also passed three batters, the large right hander was accorded such perfect support that he pitched to only thirty-two batters and not a single Leaf was left on the bases.

One of the Leafs' hits was a prodigious home run smash by Frank Reiber against a strong wind in the third. That tied the score, for Bob Seeds, who had opened the Newark second with a base on balls and got around to third on Scarsella's first single and an infield out, had scored on Lindell's puny bounder, far to Caldwell's right.

Bourbon King Wins Chesapeake

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 25 (A.P.). — Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King, Kentucky Derby candidate, raced to victory on Saturday in the $15,000 Chesapeake Stakes. Mythical King and Blind Eagle, also Derby candidates, were second and third, as Sun Egret, the favorite, ran out of the money.

It was the second consecutive defeat here for Sun Egret, A. C. Compton's colt which won two straight at Bowie.

The 1 1-16-mile Chesapeake is known as a "Derby test,' 'and the first three horses are regarded as likely entries for the Kentucky classic.

Bourbon King's time was 1.45 1-5, and he paid $18.40, $6.70, and $4.50 for $2 00.

WINGS CAPTURE DOUBLEHEADER

SYRACUSE, April 25 (C.P.). — Rochester Red Wings, who weren't expected to go far in the International League race until St. Louis Cardinals marched a few more players down the "chain gang" to bolster up the weak spots, may do all right just as they are.

The Red Birds, after losing two games and tying one in their opening series at Baltimore, teed off against the previously unbeaten Syracuse Chiefs yesterday and won both ends of a double-header to move up into a fourth-place tie in the standings.

Given a little concentrated hitting and some highly effective pitching, they won 7-4 and 8-1 to reach the .500 mark. Although Oscar Judd failed to retire a man in the opening inning when the Chiefs tallied their four runs, dishing out three walks, making an error and then retiring, his three successors gave up only six blows and a four-run rally in the eighth won the game.

Nubs Kleinke, the veteran who was knocked out of the opener ,followed up with a four-hit masterpiece and missed a shutout when errors gave the Chiefs their lone run in their first. Young Paul Gehrman made the victory easy by mixing in seven walks with the nine Rochester hits.

OTTAWA LOSES CAGE OPENER

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP). — With a one-game advantage, Vancouver Westerns clash with Ottawa Glebe Grads here to-night in the second game of their best-of-five series for the Canadian senior basketball title. But there was a possibility Wally Mayers, Westerns' captain and ace guard, would not be playing.

Mayers injured his shoulder in the first game on Saturday night which the West Coast team won 36-33. His shoulder will be X-rayed to-day to determine the extent of the injury. Doctors will decide if he will play.

Without Mayers, Vancouver would be seriously handicapped. In the first game he was a tower of strength and pulled his team together when Ottawa rallied in the last five minutes to wipe out a 12-point lead and nearly grab off a victory.

Last Act In The 1937-38 Hockey Drama

The curtains have closed on the professional hockey play for the 1937-38 season, but here's a bit of the last act. The leading man in the cast, Bill Stewart, who led his strange collection of hockey players to the heights, is seen bestowing a kiss on the object of his season-long affections, the Stanley Cup. Three members of the sterling supporting cast can be seen as they gaze on the touching scene. LEFT to RIGHT: Doc Romnes, (old standby); Alfie Moore (man of the moment); William and Jack Shill.

ROSS WINDSOR TAKES HONORS

TORONTO, April 25. — Ross Wilson of Toronto won the Eastern Canada indoor men's singles tennis title here on Saturday night with a five-set victory over Gordon Robinson of Stamford, Ont. Scores were 7-5, 7-5, 5-7, 3-6, 6-4.

Wilson, a former Montrealer, who was chosen recently as a member of Canada's Davis Cup team, also shared in the doubles title, when he paired with Don McDiarmid of Ottawa to win 6-1, 6-4, over Robinson and Ned Stafford of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The lanky Wilson, rated second in Canada, had to be right on top of his powerful game to win over Robinson, who is a student at University of North Carolina. One of the hardest hitters in Canada, Wilson used his forceful play to take the first two sets, but was outsteadied in the next two by his smaller opponent. Robinson dropped behind in the final set, which he dropped after squaring it at 4-4 in games.

O.B.A. Secretary Denies Eastern Association Charges

Hinted Western Ontario Body Trying To Invade Eastern Territory

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., April 25.—(CP).— Charges that the Ontario Baseball Association sought to invade territory of the Eastern Association were brought before the annual meeting of the eastern body here Saturday.

Letters from a Belleville, Ont. officer of the O.B.A.A., suggesting that teams in the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley District affiliate with the Western Ontario body, were brought before the meeting. It was not disclosed who sent and received the letters.

President-elect E. V. O'Meara of Ottawa promised a warm fight to protect rights of the Eastern Association and called attention to an agreement signed by the two bodies in May 1934 in which they agreed to respect rights of each other in matters of territory.

"The action of the O.B.A.A. may be construed as an unfriendly gesture," said O'Meara. "I will certainly take the matter up with the officials of the O.B.A.A. and if it is the intention of that body to interfere in our district, they will have a fight on their hands."

Following officers were elected for the 1938 season: President, E. V. O'Mera, Ottawa; vice-pjresidents, I. A. Solomon, Schumacher, G. E. Fitzpatrick, Prescott and J. H. Lowry, Ottawa, who was also appointed secretary-treasurer. Junior E.O.B.A. officials elected were: President, W. A. P. McLean, Ottawa; vice-presidents, Bert Fleming, Prescott, and Lou Irvine, Kirkland Lake; secretary-treasurer, Sam McLean, Ottawa.

Denies Charges.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 25. — (CP).—W. J. Snyder, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association, said here Sunday night "we are not attempting to interfere with any of the clubs in the Eastern Association and are not invading their territory."

The statement was prompted by Charles voiced at the annual meeting of the eastern body in Smiths Falls Saturday that the O.B.A. was attempting to have teams in the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley District affiliate with the Western Ontario body.

"We have not heard from them for so long we were not sure whether they intended to function and if they did not we would have been willing to invite in any clubs if satisfactory arrangements could have been made," said Snyder. "It was our intention to talk over the matter and consider residence rules."

Snyder said there would be no attempt to proceed with the plan if the eastern organization proposed to carry on. Any letters sent were forwarded, he said, because it was considered advisable to have more teams in the playoff series.

Representatives from as far east as Kingston and Belleville had in the past competed in the O.B.A. playoffs, Snyder added, but he said he thought it would be more interesting and prove a better test if teams from Ottawa and Smiths Falls district were entered.

NEW YORK, April 25 (CP)—National league pitchers evidently are beginning to take a liking to that new ball with its slightly raised seams. In four games yesterday they turned in a series of remarkable performances, Hal Schumacher of the Giants showing the way with a one-hit, 1-0 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers.

The only hit off Schumacher was by "Goody" Rosen, Brooklyn's Toronto-born rookie and the first man up for the Dodgers. His hit was a dinky roller past first base. Thereafter only three reached first on the Giants right-hander, all on walks. Meantime, Van Mungo of the Dodgers was doing all right, himself. He gave 10 hits, but it took Mel Ott's home run in the second inning to beat him.

Danny MacFayden of Boston Bees produced a three-hit gem in blanking the Phillies 2-0. Just before game time he had been advised of the death of his foster father, but insisted upon pitching.

Dean Blanks Cards

Dizzy Dean gave a little additional proof that he isn't going to do Chicago Cubs any material harm as he shut out his old chums, St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 on four hits. The great one had only a single strikeout, but he looked a lot like his old self.

Chicago fans to the number of 34,520 turned out to see their new $250,000 beauty, and Dizzy didn't disappoint them. His curve, which is wider than in other years, had the Cards swinging frantically. To top it off he singled for one of the Cubs' eight blows off Max Macon, a youngster making his first big league start.

Cubs players rushed to congratulate Diz after the final out, and thousands of fans waited outside the gate to glimpse him. He told autograph seekers, modestly: "Only 28 more wins to go."

Jim Tobin kept the undefeated Pirates at the head of the procession as he bested Peaches Davis of Cincinnati 2-1. He allowed five hits; Davis six.

Tops American Race

Cleveland climbed into the American League lead with its fifth straight triumph and third in a row over Detroit 9-4. Bob Feller, who hurled a one-hit shut-out in his first start of the season, came back to hold the Tigers to three safeties and no runs for the first eight innings. They popped him five times in the ninth to break his scoreless string.

With Joe DiMaggio still out of the line-up, the Yankees showed some of their oldtime spunk in beating Washington 4-3. Trailing into the eighth, they filled the bases and scored the tying and winning runs on a lazy grounder that the Senator infield failed to convert into a double play.

St. Louis Browns nosed out Chicago 4-3 in the last of the ninth after the White Sox had rallied in their half to score three times and chase Jim Walkup from the hill.

Athletics Get A Win

Philadelphia Athletics finally broke into the win column by lacing four Boston rookie pitchers for 14 hits and a 10-4 victory.

Wes Ferrell pitched Washington Senators to a 7-4 victory over New York Yankees on the American League front Saturday while St. Louis Browns defeated Chicago White Sox 5-4 and Boston Red Sox gave Philadelphia a 10-4 ...ncing in the Athletics' home ...ening. Cleveland won 6-3 from Detroit Tigers to complete the American League Saturday bill.

Giants scored an 8-5 win over Dodgers in the National League and Boston scored three runs to defeat Philadelphia 3-1. Larry French shutout St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 for Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh turned back Cincinnati 6-2 for their 20th straight win from the Reds on their home field, since August 1936.

San Romani Edges Out Cunningham

LAWRENCE, Was., April 25. — (AP).—Archie San Romani, former Emporia, Kas., Teachers' College athlete, won the special mile race at the Kansas relays Saturday, edging out Glenn Cunningham in a photo finish in the comparatively slow time of 4:23.

Don Lash, former University of Indiana star, finished third ten yards behind the leaders, and Gene Venzke was last. Cunningham, expected to shoot for his own meet record of 4.12.7, and possibly for the world mark, never held the lead until a brief period on the home stretch. It was Cunningham's first defeat in his last twenty-two starts.

PLANES SURVEY

Will Use Vertical Method.

Last year owing to pressure of time the oblique method of aerial photography was used in the drought area. This year the pictures will be taken by the vertical method and will show somewhat more detail. In the oblique more ground is covered on each flight as the camera is pointed out from the rear of the plane at the horizon, in the vertical method the camera points straight down.

Survey maps in the northern mining areas have been made from aerial photographs for many years but last year was the first time the air force was called upon to map an area for agricultural purposes.

So successful was the work last year it has been decided to continue it and also to collaborate with United States government agencies which are carrying on similar work.

After a trip to Western Canada for the start ofoperations, A. M. Narraway, consulting aerial surveys engineer, Department of Mines and Resources, will go to the United States to observe work being done there and compare notes with American officials.

The United Staes government has already photographed some 300,000 square miles in connection with farm rehabilitation work in the Western States which suffered from drought conditions similar to those on the Canadian prairies.

Four airplanes will spend the first part of the season in the Canadian drought area and will then move northward into the North-west Territories for summer operations. When they leave, however, two machines which will be employed on the coast of British Columbia for the first of the season will be brought to the prairies.

Late in the summer when operations in the north country are no longer possible the four machines which start the work will be brought back and, towards the end of the season, six planes will be operating on the drought survey work.

Oldest Merchant On George Street Was Wed In St. John's Church

Two of Peterborough's most widely known citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hooper, 181 Dalhousie Street, are today (Monday) celebrating their golden wedding anniversary with a host of friends.

A confectioner at the same location for half a century all but a few months, Mr. Hooper is the oldest merchant on George Street, and is known to nearly every Peterborough resident. He was born in Devonshire, England, and came to Canada in early youth.

It was fifty years ago today that Tom Hooper married Charlotte Wilkinson in St. John's Anglican Church here. Mrs. Hooper was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkinson, pioneer settlers of Emily Township. They were married by the late Rev. Mr. Beck, then rector of St. John's Church.

Peterborough citizens joined in large numbers today to pay tribute to the popular couple. Large bouquets of flowers adorned the home, and from the roof of J. J. Turner's flew the largest flag in the city. A reception will be held this afternoon and evening.

The couple have two daughters and two sons. The daughters are Mrs. A. R. Deyell of Toronto and Mrs. H. K. Thompson of Toronto. Both sons, Perce and Fred Hooper, are in their father's business here. There are 10 grandchildren.

CAGE FOR DRUNKS VETOED BY TOWN

WOBURN, Mass., April 25 (AP).—Mayor William E. Kane today abandoned a plan to "cage drunks" after "America's first plebiscite" in which the city electorate voted against it, but overwhelmingly expressed confidence in his administration by approving other proposals.

The vote on the proposal to cart drunks about the city in a lion's cage —already purchased and ready for action—was: Yes, 1,896; no, 2,456.

"It is clear," the lawyer-mayor said, after receiving returns, "that the voters do not approve of the cage. I am naturally disappointed that the merits of the cage did not impress them. Nevertheless, I humbly submit to the will of the people."

He expressed pleasure a majority of voters favored 13 other proposals.

Approval was given, 3,640 to 946, to a plan to stage municipal bingo games to obtain funds for relief purposes.

AUDIENCE PLEASED WITH PROGRAMME OF LIONS' BAND

If the audience that greeted the Lions Club Boys' Band, filling the entire floor of the Regent Theatre, and part of the gallery, in their first concert Sunday night, could have heard them one practice evening last October, they would have had a clearer understanding and sharper appreciation of what these teenage boys have accomplished under instruction and direction of their leader, William Stuart and his assistant, Henry Parnell.

The boys, with one or two exceptions, had to learn all the mechanics of their instruments, after acquiring a working knowledge of the essentials of music its notation, and time, how to read the printed music, note values, scales and all the rest of the groundwork. Obviously there was the problem of getting instruments, a major contribution by the young men of the Lions Club, and there was the slow and patient process of learning, which the boys already done so commendibly and with fine promise for the future. Finally in their first concert their premiere, it would be impossible to assess the degree of satisfaction of all the members of the Lions Club, of the boys themselves and their parents and friends, as the first milestone in their musical progress was passed in full stride.

Personnel of Band

The personnel of the band follows:— cornets Earl Johns, Don Dorsett, Lawrence Outram, Robert Milburn, James Webb and Hugh Brightman; trombones John Taylor, Roy Foster and Ken Mills, Ken McIntyre was absent; basses, Henry Clapham and Bernard Hamblin; reeds, Max Doughty, Robert Crowe, Ernest Martin, Arthur Church, Reg Burns and Walter Hully; horns, Don Johns and Ray Kearns altos, and Garth Parnell mellophone; percussion Don DeNoble, bass drum, Willie Brown, side drum and triangle. Robert Rook, saxophone, missed the concert on account of illness.

Lieutenant P. C. Cox, conductor, and Millen Dobbin, president, of the Lindsay Boys' Band came down for the concert, with four of their boys who brought their instruments and assisted the Lions' lads. They were Willie Forman cornet, Oscar Skitch trombone, Junior Scott baritone Willie Morrison baritone.

The program was as follows:—

Trumpet fanfare and prelude.

Overture "Goodfellowship" Nyles.

Cornet Solo—"Let Me Call You Sweetheart" Friedman, Don Dorsett, soloist.

Request hymn "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord."

Trombone solo — "Londonderry Air" (Sabin). Jack Taylor, soloist, with piano accompaniment by his sister Eleanor Taylor.

Valse lente "Dream Castles", Thornton.

Piano solos by Eleanor Taylor "On Wings of Song" and Gavotte in F.

Fred Cripps, president of the Lions Club thanked the large audience for their attendance and also for their warm approval of the work of the boys in their first concert. "We have to allow for a few mistakes, partly because it is the first appearance of the boys in public, but they have done exceedingly well. We owe a great deal to Mr. Stuart and Mr. Parnell, and we feel confident the boys are going on to better things." Mr. Cripps mentioned the Eaton Operatic Society's production of "Iolanthe" under the auspices of the Lions Club in the Collegiate Institute auditorium next Thursday evening. The proceeds are to be used in assisting the band's progress.

Miss Eleanor Taylor substituted at the piano for Victor Cremasco, whose illness prevented him from taking part as vocalist, in the boys' program. Her two numbers were played with appreciation of their sentiment, the flowing melody of Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" and the animation of the Gavotte being sharply contrasted.

The cornet section of the band was given an opportunity to make a little dramatic bow with their introductory fanfare of brass preceding Mr. Stuart's arrangement of the march "Church in the Wildwood," and they improved that very favorable first impression with their longest number the overture "Goodfellowship". When it is remembered that the band was organized only eight months ago, and some of the boys are of more recent tuition, they and their Lions Club sponsors have every reason to be proud of their present accomplishment. Some of them are such little fellows that their instruments seemed magnified in their hands, especially the trombone section. They have already instrumental harmony and a strong tone. Their march was spirited, their hymns well balanced. "Abide With Me" especially well played with precision and fullness of tone. They were equally at home in the waltz time, and their overture was quite an achievement for a company of small boys who have shown their many companions and their seniors in Peterborough that such things can be done, even if the quick results seem little miracles. If Jack Taylor's trombone solo was played "non legato" that was hardly a matter for surprise. The real surprise that a mere boy could blow any sustained notes on the instrument. And the four lads in the quartette may some day make sounding brass a thing of great beauty.

The large audience gave the boys every encouragement with applause for their first program, and incidentally conveyed their compliments to the members of the Peterborough Lions Club in the reward the boys have already returned to them for their most deserving effort to add substantially to the musical background of the city, and particularly to afford to their young musicians a splendid opportunity in musical culture that will remain with them all their lives. For some of them it may be the discovery of a special talent, and in most instances it will be the developement of an interest that will enrich their future associations. Lieut. Cox of Lindsay told the Examiner that many of the boys who originally joined the Boys' Band of that town have graduated to senior bands in many parts of the country, and others comprise a majority of the regimental band in Lindsay.

Dummer Stream Open For Trout

LIFT QUARANTINE AT COUNTY JAIL

The quarantine at the county jail, imposed last Monday when an inmate was discovered to be suffering from scarlet fever, was lifted this morning and as a result it was possible to proceed with the cases of a number of police court prisoners under remand.

The quarantine was a break for one man, Jack Wood, 26, of Trenton, who had been remanded last week on a charge of stealing a spray pump and a number of automobile parts from Charles Petherick of Rush Point. Wood should have been tried last Tuesday but was caught by the quarantine and was not allowed out until this morning.

When he pleaded guilty this morning Crown Attorney McElderry recommended that he be sentenced so that the time spent in jail would bring his sentence to an end today.

Accordingly Magistrate Langley sentenced Wood to eight days in jail which meant that he was returned to the Bastille and was immediately released.

EXHIBITION PARK DAMAGE

Another crop of damage to the buildings at Exhibition Park is reported from a survey of the grounds. Many windows have been broken, locks pried off, and apparently it is not entirely the work of young boys. Every foot of electric wire in the manufacturers' building has been torn off and carted away, suggesting that some adults have had a hand in the destruction.

NO EVIDENCE OFFERED.

No evidence was offered by the Crown in the case of two young lads charged in police court this morning with stealing a quantity of scrap iron from the G. Walter Green Company and the cases were dismissed. The boys had pleaded not guilty.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend, Natalie, who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbaa about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. He was to meet Barbara at the theater that night He had failed to appear.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 19

Basil was coming, and the older girl spoke more hurriedly, but with amusement in the rich currents of her voice. "I know you can't hand me your blessing, Barbara. Basil's bald, expanding in girth, twice my age. But I'm fond of him, and this is a safer fay for happiness than . . ." She decided not to complete the comparison.

"Safer?" Barbara insisted, though.

"The display view doesn't attract as much attention as your handsome Garry. Basil has his town car. Can't we drop you?"

But when they were ensconced in the car and Barbara said that she wanted to go home, Natalie shook her head. "Take a hint from me. Don't be sitting on the doorstep waiting for him. Come with us and hear some music."

"I couldn't. I like sitting on the doorstep."

"Don't be a goose," Natalie talked on. "Nobody can keep up excitement about an umbrella that's always behind the door waiting for a rainy day. Let yourself get borrowed sometimes. Don't spoil a man too much. It makes him to—expectant."

Basil roared with laughter.

"Who taught you so much?" he asked.

"A man, a handsome dark man, who knew every kind of torture in the game." Her tones were light but a thread of bitterness ran through them.

"Tell the chauffeur I'm going home, Basil," Barbara said. "It isn't a tall, dark man for whom I'm waiting."

Her telephone was ringing as she fitted her key into the latch. It jangled with a prolonged insistence as though the caller had been on the line for some time.

WHEN BARBARA picked up the telephone that was ringing as she entered her apartment after the theater, Garry said: "Barbara, I just missed you. The doorman said the house hadn't been dark 10 minutes. I'm so darned sorry — My column wouldn't flow."

"It's all right. Not much of a show, but your actress is good. Want to come down for a while?"

"Of course I want to, honey." There was the barest perceptible hesitation in his voice. "I'm tied up for a little while, though. When I couldn't find you, I went backstage to Wenda Ayer's dressing room and Hadley was there. He suggests we go out and talk things over. Will you meet us at Sardi's?"

Barbara watched herself in the long mirror across the room. She saw a slender figure in a yellow frock whose velvet was as warm and mellowed as the petals of the roses she had bought from the corner flower vender that evening. Garry liked yellow, she had learned, so her wardrobe was now punctuated with a range of shades that ran the shining color scale from lemon up to gold. Garry liked caramel pies, too. There was one in the cupboard now with as nice a meringue as the corner bakery had ever supplied. There were logs on the hearth ready to flame at a match's touch—

She answered Garry lightly. "You'll be talking business and I'm sleepy, darling. Won't you count me out this time?"

She knew that the memory of Natalie's words prompted that remark. Don't be an umbrella—

"Not on your life! I'll grab a cab and be right down for you! Babbs, you little goof, you aren't hurt, are you?" His voice was boyish in its surprise.

The band that had been circling her heart relaxed, became fluid, melted away. "Of course not! But I'd hold up your conference and honestly I'm sleepy.

When she had replaced the telephone she sat still, wondering why she hadn't gone. She wasn't tired at all, and all evening she had been waiting for Garry's coming. She reached impulsively for the phone, to tell him she had changed her mind, then stopped. After all, this was a business conference in which she had no real part. There would be others, many of them. Garry's work was important. She had better grow accustomed to that fact.

The door bell wakened her a couple of hours later. From three flights below, Garry spoke through the speaking tube. "May I come up?"

"Come ahead!"

A moment later he called cheerily from the dark canyon of the hall: "Why don't they put in an elevator?"

"Sh-h-h! I've been complained about for calling down the stairs. I'll go get dressed while you're climbing."

When she came from the bedroom, in her new lounging pajamas whose trousers were brown and whose blouse was yellow, Garry sprang to kiss her.

"I couldn't go home without saying good night," he confessed. "I felt rotten about missing you. I do love you so. You know that, don't you? You won't let me go, will you?"

"Not unless you want to go," she answered. "What made you ask?"

"I don't know." His eyes were puzzled. "Standing up a lady at the theater isn't conducive to high romance, is it?"

"You are a darling idiot. Want a piece of pie?"

Sitting contentedly in a corner of the divan, cushions all around her, the fire burning low, the winter snowlight shifting throught the rose-red curtains, Barbara was happy. She wanted to reach out, take that moment, put it away forever. She had a sudden feeling that everything that mattered to a woman was there: love, firelight, contentment. They made fast walls that shut away all other things.

"Why do you love me?" Garry asked suddenly, intercepting her eyes on his lean face. "Because I keep such regular hours?"

"No, darling, you'll always be late for dinner. Maybe because you have a nice grin. What do you like about me?"

"Well," he began lazily, "you fry a perfect steak, you swim half a mile without growing winded— remember the September day at Jones' beach?—and you have good looking ankles." Then he put down the pie plate, came over to the divan. "I love you because you're you. We've found something pretty special together. Let's keep it."

"Garry, what's the matter? Is something wrong?"

He hesitated a second. "No—no, of course not."

Still unsatisfied, she mentioned the play.

"Wenda seems to be a real find," he explained as he put on his overcoat. "She likes the script, and she's a good critis. She seemed interested in what I'm trying to do in the theater, too. No reason why she should be, either."

Oh yes, there is, Barbara was saying, but she said it to herself. You are a good-looking young man with a play in which she wants a part. And Garry, my love, she will want you to write more lines for her, give her a better spot. But don't do it, Garry, don't!

Garry was speaking again. "You'll like Wenda. She's so late in joining the cast that I'm seeing her at tea tomorrow to help her. Why can't I bring her down here and we all can get acquainted?"

"It would be nice," Barbara agreed, and knew that she didn't think it would be at all. Still, in his newspaper barging, Garry had brought many people there—people who would be good copy for his plays: taxicab drivers who had material for a story about Manhattan in transit, poets, artists, a policeman who had arrested him for speeding and then torn up the ticket and come down for a hot sandwich. Anybody.

Wenda Ayer was one of these. But Barbara knew all of the time, with an inner sense that comes to the surface only when it is needed, that Wenda was none of these.

Maybe if she had been able to manage the tea, Barbara thought later, everything would have been different. She wasn't. The proofs were late in coming from the printer the next day, and she had to telephone Garry that she would be working until eight or nine. She reminded herself, when the next few days were interspersed with one luncheon date and a few telephone calls, that Garry was busy with his out-of-town opening so near, and a new actress in the cast. A new actress—yes, that was it.

Garry called to ask her to go to dinner that night. She was tired. She wanted to see him alone. If they went out, there would be theatrical people — talk and more talk of the play. Always before, these last few weeks, it had been fun. Always before she and Garry had stayed in a little world of their own, in the midst of the larger drama. Nothing had happened to destroy that world she tried to tell herself. Yet she heard her voice suggesting that Garry come down to her apartment for dinner, heard him accepting and explaining that he would have to run along early.

That night when she and Garry had stood on the Junction platform came back again. Then Julia and Marie and their friends had taken him away from her. Now the theater and its people would do that, too. That hour when he had come to her newspaper office was lost in time. The little Martinsville station, where he had missed his train and stopped her, was miles and miles down a distant railroad.

She must stop brooding and get dinner.

Garry was on time. He was talkative and quiet in turn, not a restful quiet which bespoke contentment, though the wood fire burned brightly and the lamps made lambent shadows on the walls. He wasn't eating, and that wasn't like Garry, who usually interrupted himself to say: "If you had a pin cushion waist, my sweet, I'd love you for your apple dumplings. Darling, don't lose the recipe."

Barbara wanted to say: "Is something wrong, Garry?" but the words stayed in her heart. She was so desperately afraid that there was.

Then suddenly Garry flung down the yellow linen napkin, walked to the window and stood looking down into the quiet street. It was very still — just the ticking of the clock, the snap of a twig as it caught the blaze.

Embarrassing Moments? Etiquette Rescues You

Smooth Manners Always Win

Stop frowning, Betty. Accidents will happen. And etiquette says, 'Make light of them—smile!"

And your part, Bill, is just to apologize sincerely for jostling Betty, try not to be so awkward the next time.

Be sure! Don't guess about etiquette. In a bridge game, don't whistle or drum on the table while another player debates which card to play. Don't stand behind your partner and give advice when you're dummy. Sit quietly, be gracious to all players and a good loser.

Inviting a man to the club dance, don't say, "Are you busy Friday night?" Say correctly, "Our club is giving a dance this Friday. Will you be my guest?"

Invited to go dancing some new place, don't guess at clothes. It's proper to ask your date, "Do we dress?"

Accepting a compliment gracefully, making introductions click—our 32-page booklet is full of tips that give you social poise at parties, restaurants, movies, teas.

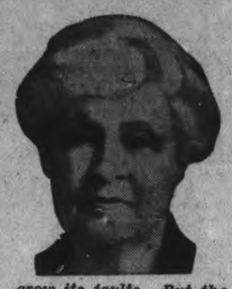
Elderly Parents Are Static in Their Views and Frequently Cannot Change Their Opinions to Meet These Pliable Times, Thus Endanger Their Children's Welfare



We hear a great deal nowadays about problem children. Very little is said about problem parents. Yet there are as many parents with mental quirks who are anti-social and cantankerous and who do not fit in with the pattern of modern life as there are children. Just as often the children are as much at a loss to know how to deal with Father and Mother as the parents are as how to handle John and Jane.

Indeed the problem parents are an even greater heartache and headache to their families than the problem children, because youth is more or less pliable and there is always hope that it may develop and outgrow its faults. But the old are static. They are set in their ways and opinions. Their brains, if any, are solid concrete and there is no possibility of ever changing their attitude toward life.

I get thousands of letters from desperate men and women, whose lives are being ruined by problem parents, who vainly seek a solution of their dilemma because, in reality, there is no answer to it. There are Father and Mother, who are narrow, prejudiced, impregnable in their self-righteousness, absolutely certain that what they are doing is for the children's good. And there are the children who love Father and Mother, who are grateful to them and who cannot bear to hurt them. So what can they do?

Take the case, for instance, of the parents—and there are many of them—who have the I-am-going-to-keep-my-daughter-unspotted-from-the-world complex. They assume that every little high-school boy is a deep-dyed villain who has nefarious designs upon their daughter; that every frat dance is an unspeakable orgy, and that their own Sallies and Mamies are so weak in moral stamina that they can't be trusted out of their sight.

In order to protect their little lambs from the ravening wolves in sheep's clothing, that they conjure up out of their imaginations, they refuse to let their daughters have dates until they are so old they would have to totter out on a cane if they had one. If a boy does come to the house, they give him a frosty welcome and sit within earshot so they can hear everything he says. If the girls go to a party, Papa takes them. They are not even allowed a girl friend unless the parents are certain she has no attraction for the opposite sex. And they are segregated from the young people of their age as completely as if they had the leprosy.

The result is, of course, that the girls who are victims of their overstrict parents are not only deprived of the pleasures that belong to their time of life, but they are doomed to old maidenhood. They never even get to know a boy. So what chance have they of getting a husband? The girls realize this. They know that they are being cheated out of the best things that life has to offer a woman—love and marriage and home and children—but they are powerless to make their parents change their moss-grown point of view.

The most tragical of all the problem parents is, however, the old mother who must go to live with her children when the husband dies, and who wrecks their homes by not being able to adjust herself to a new way of living. She meddles in everything. She tries to boss everything. She criticizes everything that is done differently from her way. She fights with the grandchildren and promotes friction between the husband and wife until she sends the daughter-in-law to the divorce court, or the son-in-law to philandering and the grandchildren to the streets.

And what's to be done about it? Nothing. You could change the Rock of Gibraltar sooner than you could an old woman's habits. Whatever harm she does, Mother can't be disciplined or turned out of the house she is destroying. And there you are with the greatest mystery on earth unsolved: What to do with a problem parent?

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PLAY HOUSE

Uncle Wiggily was hopping around his hollow stump bungalow, whistling merrily and making his pink nose twinkle so brightly that Nurse Jane hurried into the room to see it.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily, stopping his whistling to talk, as he had to do, of course. But his pink nose twinkled brighter than before.

"Oh," said Nurse Jane, "excuse me. I thought it was an electric light I had forgotten to shut off."

"What's an electric light?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Excuse me for saying so," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper. "But I thought your nose was; it's so very bright, you know."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I see. Yes, it is bright," he went on looking down one side of his nose and up the other. "It shines so bright because I am happy."

Like the Radio.

"You must be when you whistle so merrily," squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, that being her manner of talking. "I thought for a moment it was the radio."

"I'm glad you liked my whistling," spoke Uncle Wiggily as he began again and he also kept on twinkling his pink nose brightly and hopping around the bungalow.

Mrs. Longears hearing him and having also heard what Nurse Jane said to Mr. Longears, the rabbit lady wife asked:

"What is Wiggy going to do now, Janie?"

"Why, I don't know that he is going to do anything," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Oh, yes he is!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "When ever my rabbit husband goes hopping around the bungalow on one paw and when his pink nose twinkles extra bright and when he whistles so merrily I know he is going to do something."

"Go adventuring, perhaps," suggested Nurse Jane.

"More than that!" said Mrs. Longears solemn like and full of foreboding which means sort of suspicious. "There's more than meets the eye when Wiggy does those things. He must be watched closely, Nurse Jane."

"Watched, Mrs. Longears?"

"Yes, we must keep an eye on him."

"Which eye, Mrs. Longears?" asked Nurse Jane sort of funny.

"It doesn't matter which eye, as long as you sort of notice what he is doing. I will notice, too. I don't wan him going off on some dangerous adventure. And I think he has that in mind because he is so very jolly.

Building.

"Perhaps," said the muskrat lady. "He is always having adventures, though, and many are dangerous, with the Bad Chaps."

"I think this is going to be very different," said the rabbit lady wife. "Where is Wiggy Now?" she asked.

"Out in the yard," answered Nurse Jane looking from a window.

"What is he doing, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy."

"He is building some sort of a little house out of boards and old pine tree cones. I think it must be for Tootsie and Wootsie; though I don't see your cute little twin rabbits in the yard."

"Hum!" said Mrs. Longears still apprehensive and full of forebodings. "Wiggy never made all that fuss because he was going to build a little house for Tootsie and Wootsie. I must see what this means."

So he hopped out to the yard just as her husband finished building the house. He twinkled his pink nose at her and said:

"There you are, my dear!" Mrs. Longears read the sign!

"The Authority on Authorities"

EIGHT CARDS SAFE

BIDDING THE same suit three consecutive times usually betokens a six-carder at least. Two cards are all you require to support it, as your side then has eight and the opponents not over five. That is what ordinarily is classed as a safe trump suit. But even half a dozen trumps in your own hand are pretty sad opposite a void unless your suit is solid, for there are seven against you.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

After a pass by South, West opened the bidding on this deal with a call of 1-Heart. North overcalled 1-Spade, East passed and South bid 2-Diamonds. When North rebid his spades, South called 3-Diamonds, but North persisted with spades, even though South went to 4-Diamonds, and the contract ended in 4-Spades. Three spades and two hearts had to be given up to the opponents at that contract.

East felt he could safely have doubled 4-Spades, but feared South would go to 5-Diamonds, which as it happens could have been made. North's bidding was bad. His partner's 2-Diamonds bid, after a pass, merely indicated that he did not like spades. The repeated diamond bids indicated his hand was useless to North. North should have heeded this warning and let the 4-Diamond bid stand. Because of the distribution of the adverse diamonds, five could have been made, although the bidding would not have indicated that such would have been the case.

Tomorrow's Problem

If South bid 1-No Trump and West doubled, what action would you take in the East position?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, April 26

According to the lunar aspects influencing this day, there may be very exciting developments of a sudden and surprising nature, probably in connection with the breaking up of some stagnant situations or frustrating circumstances. These may entail travel or change, with certain hidden or secret factors. It might be well to be alert to confusing factors that demand very wise decisions as they may have vital reactions on the future. Confer with elders.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very important year, in which wise decisions on suddenly-presented problems may have critical bearing on future welfare. Take counsel with elders. Change, travel or removal loom. Complicated or chaotic conditions call for vigilance and wisdom. Old, stagnant and impeding matters may break up.

A child born on this day may be fond of change, travel and adventure, although it may be practical, industrious and trustworthy. It may have much originality and constructive ability in unusual lines.

SHIP IN DISTRESS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP). —The Emsley City, a freighter of the Ishtmian Steamship Company, radioed last night its propeller shaft was broken and the ship was in distress in the Pacific Ocean, 2,000 miles southeast of Honolulu. The 3,801-ton vessel, bound from Baltimore for Honolulu, passed through the Panama Canal April 11.

52 SAILORS RESCUED

HALIFAX, April 25—(CP). — A message from the Belle Isle, Nfld., Radio Station received here by the Radio Branch of the Transport Department reported to-day the 52 crew members of the sealer Ora had been picked up by the steamer Eagle after the Ora sank off the east coast of Newfoundland.

Nipped by the heavy pack ice off The Funks, the Ora, a Norwegian wooden vessel, went down after the crew took to the ice.

"WORN OUT" AND WORRIED

Dragging around each day, unable to do housework — cranky with the children — feeling miserable. Blaming it on "nerves" when the kidneys may be out of order. When kidneys fail the system clogs with impurities. Headaches — backache, frequently follow. Dodd's Kidney Pills help clear the system, giving nature a chance to restore health and energy. Easy to take. Safe.

White—Bateson

In George Street United Church parsonage, with the Rev. M. C. Parr officiating, a very lovely spring wedding was solemnized when Helen Ilene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bateson of Water street, became the bride of Leonard White, son of Mrs. White of Bonaccord street and the late Noble White.

The bride was charming in a floor length gown of forget-me-not blue sheer over taffeta. She wore a braided blue turban and shoulder length veil, matching blue gloves and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Isobel Wray attended as bridesmaid, wearing a lovely blue and pink flowered chiffon gown, pink roses in her hair, blue gloves and a corsage of roses and sweetpeas. Reginald White attended as best man for his brother.

Following the ceremony, a reception for about thirty immediate relatives and friends was held at the home of the bride's parents. Pink and white decorations were effectively used in the rooms, and with flowers to decorate the bride's table, where the handsome wedding cake held a place of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard White left later to spend a short honeymoon in Toronto and points west, the bride wearing for travelling, a navy coat, navy lace frock, matching hat and accessories. On their return they will reside at 496 McDonnel street.

Southern Holiday

Laughing in the Southern sunshine! Miss Leone Magee (LEFT) and Miss Peggy Irvine are shown while enjoying a vacation at Miami, Florida. They returned to town last week.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Talk happiness. The world is sad enough
Without your woes. No path is wholly rough;
Look for the places that are smooth and clear,
And speak of these to rest the weary ear
Of earth, so hurt by one continuous strain
Of human discontent, and grief, and pain." —Anon.

Dear Friends:

Did it ever occur to you that what you talk about counts? Go around talking gloom, you will spread it. Go around talking happiness and you will spread it too. It is just as easy to import hope as it is to leave depression and doubt behind.

Wherever I go these last few weeks, all I hear is that so many have been laid off here, so many are on short time there, there is going to be another war, there is going to be another depression, woe woe woe on every side.

Well, I don't believe it. And don't get the idea I speak like this because I have not been hit too, because I got my share. Never fear, if there is Flu' going, it never misses me, if there are hard times floating around, it always calls at my door and outstays its welcome every time.

But, I believe in God. There is the whole thing in a nutshell. What I cannot do for myself, I ask Him to do, and He has never failed me yet. Understand, I do not ask expecting to be refused. Maybe you have been looking for a refusal yourself, and that is what makes you so panicky, your lack of faith.

Now, understand, the oftener you talk of a thing, the farther it spreads, because one tells another. Anyone has seen how a rumour can go over a whole town, yet without a bit of truth in it. Why not try a good rumour and let it go over the town too.

I do not tell you lies, you all know that. And so I tell you that in a few weeks things will be on an even keel again, workers will be working, there will be neither war nor depression. The Easter season is with us, so forget all this sad talk and "lift up your hearts unto the Lord" whose resurrection we are celebrating.

You know, around Christmas and Easter, so many think more about the presents they are giving and receiving, and later about the clothes they are wanting, that they forget all about the One whose birth they are supposed to celebrate, and Whose death and resurrection gave us a true hope of heaven. No wonder there is so much talk of woe when we forget that.

Mark you, I like giving and getting, I like new clothes, but I do not forget the main thing behind it all, the coming of our Lord as a Saviour for us, nor the cruel death He suffered to make it easier for us.

So, think more of these things, and vision will be given you, so that you will talk joy instead of sadness, plenty instead of famine, work instead of idleness. 'Consider the lillies of the field who toil not, neither do they spin, yet Soloman in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." If God then, can look after the flowers of the field, will He not look after us? I think so.

Do not think that your voice telling hope will not be heard. You heard the ones who spoke of gloomy forebodings didn't you? Well, your voice is as good as theirs, so use it to spread hope and encouragement. Someone said, "we are never as happy or as miserable as we think we are." But we seem to take more notice of miserable things unless we change our thinking.

Honestly, I do think we are, and have been taught wrongly. Look around you. Nothing is different yet, you are still eating and working, so talk happiness and hope wherever you go.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Short Sleeves

Short sleeves in coats and jackets are new this spring, especially in long coats.

Soft nubbly wool material in navy blue is used for this decidedly smart coat for a young woman. It has a beautifully flared skirt, bloused back, white pique overcollar and elbow-length bell sleeves —all high style points of the season for Easter and after. The neatly belted line gives it added trimness.

Style Whimsies

Suspender and jumper dresses are important styles for the juveniles. The daytime versions are of navy crepe over crisp blouses, and for evening wear they are shown in navy taffeta, worn with a sheer blouse.

◇ ◇ ◇

The tuxedo swagger coat in shetland with tucks, is a fitting complement for country or town wear, over this season's colorful sports dresses.

◇ ◇ ◇

The younger set are buying reefers, pastel jackets overplaid skirts and two-piece tailored suits in men's wear fabric.

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

Small sequins are being used on summer sheers.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Forsythia Yellow" is one of the new flower colors for spring, as well as "Hedgerose."

◇ ◇ ◇

Polka dots again are in big demand. They are stressed in the softer dresses, with low necklines, rather than the classic shirt styles.

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

Charm bracelets continue to maintian their popularity.

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

Crosses are still very popular jewelry. They can be had in silver, gold or black, set with stones or plain—both large and small.

◇ ◇ ◇

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!
Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, sunk, "all bogged down"? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble!
If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible: you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.
If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.
Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

ADVISE LIMITING PELEE PHEASANT HUNTERS TO 1,300

TECUMSEH, Ont., April 25 (CP). —The yearly two-day pheasant hunt on Pelee Island in Lake Erie has become so popular that restrictions are unavoidable, D. J. Taylor, Ontario Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, told the eighth annual meeting and banquet of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association last night. He termed Pelee the "outstanding pheasant ground in America."

Taylor suggested 1,300 tickets be distributed to hunters for the two-day shoot, allotting the tickets to various sections of Ontario and reserving approximately 100 "for our American friends." The 1,300 tickets would allow 650 hunters each day on the island. He suggested that approximately 350 tickets, at $5.00 each, be allotted to Essex County.

"I want to talk it over with you," he said. "Then we can send sufficient men to the island to give the supervision to which it is entitled.

Put Tickets on Sale.

"Remember you don't object to the $125,000,000 American tourists bring to this province annually," he said when a few murmurs greeted his proposal that tickets be reserved. To guard against favoritism, Taylor suggested tickets be placed in banks and be advertised to go on sale at a set date.

He also told the 300 sportsmen present the Ontario Government intends to prohibit sale of cottontail rabbits in Essex County this year, and he noted that if the "abuse" of the use of ferrets in hunting did not cease, the Government may rule out ferrets altogether.

The Department of Game and Fisheries has set a new high mark this year in appropriation for distribution of live pheasants, he said, and is ready to send out between 30,000 and 40,000 birds when that number is available.

Where Hitler Will Visit As King's Guest

Adolf Hitler, the Austrian house painter who climbed the ladder of success and power to become the supreme ruler of all Germany, will realize another triumph this May. He will be the guest of King Emmanuel and Queen Helena, of Italy, during his visit to Rome to return Il Duce's trip to Berlin last year. Annexation of Austria and future foreign policies will most likely be the chief topic of after dinner conversation. During his visit he will stay at the Quirinal Palace, former home of Crown Prince Humbert, TOP, which despite its shabby appearance outside is magnificently appointed inside. One of the elaborate reception rooms of the palace is shown, BOTTOM.

MRS. D. TINNEY IS PRESIDENT-ELECT CAVAN INSTITUTE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, April 23.—Cavan Women's Institute met for their April meeting at Mrs. R. S. Staples' home on Thursday afternoon.

After the opening exercises the roll call was responded to by twenty-three members paying their fees.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. J. H. Snider, showed balance on hand of $22.87. Mrs. Melville Carr, convenor of the flower and fruit committee, reported $9.27 spent during the year.

The Institute voted $5 to assist in sending two members of Le Sentier du Lait Club to the girls' conference at Guelph.

Helen Smith and Jean Trumpour are the girls who have the privilege of attending.

A letter was read from Miss Pollard announcing a two-day course for leaders at Orono, April 25 and 26. The project being the making of a cotton dress. It was decided that, as the teen age girls were almost all attending school they were too busy to take another course at this time of the year.

A letter was read from a resident of Orley, Saskatchewan, thanking the Cavan Institute for a couple of coats received in March from a Cavan bale. The pocket of one coat contained a friendly letter asking recipient to write describing conditions in her district. Many and varied were the hardships endured in that land of drought, including being twice moved by the government, before finding their circumstances improved. Now on a homestead and wishing for vegetable and grass seeds.

To Send Garden Seeds

The Institute voted one dollar to send garden seeds. An invitation was extended by Miss Josie Sutton to entertain the Institute at her home in Millbrook for their May meeting. Two of the members of Le Sentier du Lait club gave a demonstration on the making of a custard and white sauce.

The secretary, Mrs. R. S. Staples, gave a fine report of the year's activities. There had been 44 members during the past year, with 11 meetings held.

A vote of thanks to the very efficient officers who had so well served the Institute during the past year was moved by Mrs. F. Staples, before Mrs. Kennedy was appointed to conduct the election of officers for the ensuing year. They are: president, Mrs. Donald Tinney; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy; second vice-president, Mrs. R. S. Staples; secretary, Mrs. Melville Carr; treasurer, Mrs. Snider; pianists, Mrs. Ray Syer and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy; district representative, Miss Josie Sutton; auditors, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Syer; flower committee, Mrs. Keegan and Mrs. Milton Carr.

Lunch was served by the group in charge, assisted by members of the Le Sentier du Lait Club. The menu included some dishes made by the girls of the club. The program and other committees will be arranged when the full number of members for the year have joined.

Gold Idol Missed In Art Theft

LONDON, April 25—(AP).—Five valuable paintings—one Rembrandt valued at $25,000—were stolen early to-day from the 17th century Chilham castle home of Sir Edmund Davis, art collector and mining magnate.

But the thieves examined and passed up an idol said by Sir Edmund to be "pure gold."

Rembrandt's "Saskia at Her Mirror," along with two Gainsboroughs, a Reynolds and one Van Dyck, were stolen by a gang believed to be expert art thieves who entered a ground floor window and cut the paintings from their frames.

The Gainsboroughs stolen were "Lady Clarges" and "Pitt," the Van Dyck was "Man With Dog," and the Reynolds was "Earl of Suffolk."

MARMORA

LAYMEN PROPOSE SHINGLING CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 23.—Though the attendance was smaller than usual the meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association held in the Parish Hall on Friday evening was of an interesting nature and much enjoyed. The president, H. B. Smith, occupied the chair and the matter of the proposed campaign for raising funds for the reshingling of St. Paul's received earnest and careful consideration.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell called attention to the Joint Deaneries Laymen's Association service, which is being held in St. Thomas Church, Belleville, on Sunday afternoon, May 22. W. J. Cottrell gave an instructive paper, prepared by Vice-president H. R. Pearce, on the operations of the Canadian Forestry Corps during the Great War. Mr. Pearce, as an ex-Lieut. in this Corps, furnished a most interesting paper which was well received.

After adjournment lunch was served. As in former years regular meetings with programs are now suspended until the fall.

The annual banquet and meeting of Hastings and Prince Edward Laymen's Association will be held in Marmora in the fall and this and the church reshingling problem will necessitate special business meetings in the meanwhile.

Worried By Fire – Then Plots

King Carol of Roumania, is shown here as he comforted a peasant whose home had been destroyed in the fire that blotted out the entire village of Diotsi in the Romanati-Oltenie district. As if the fire disaster weren't enough, when the king returned home to Bucharest he was informed of a plot against his government, allegedly hatched by the outlawed Fascist "Iron Guard". Now "Capitanul" Codreanu, leader of the Roumanian Fascists, and more than 1,000 of his folowers are in jail awaiting court-martial and probable death sentences.

WHEAT PROSPECTS CUT PRICES DOWN

WINNIPEG, April 25—(CP). — Prospects for good winter wheat production in United States southwest and virtually ideal seeding conditions in North American Spring wheat sections combined with unexpected loss of demand for top grade Canadian wheat to drive Winnipeg wheat futures lower last week.

Values at the end of the six sessions yesterday were 3 to ⅞ cent lower, May at $1.23¼, July $1.12⅝ and October 89¾ to ⅞ cents. Disappointment in demand for Canada's small top-grade wheat surplus carried the premium for No. 1 Northern down seven cents this week to 10 cents about the May future—$1.33¼. Premium on this grade was almost 20 cents below the quotation of late March, when a rush for supplies for shipment at opening of navigation bolstered all wheat values.

Daily trading volumes were small with either light buying or selling moving prices easily. The market appeared sensitive to all trade cross-currents. Even export sales were low, with only 800,000 bushels largely new-crop Red Springs or old-crop Durums, the latter reportedly purchased for France.

POISON IN CANADA

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP). — Need for Canadians to unite, as never before, to maintain their integrity as a people and their unity as a Dominion was stressed by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative Leader, proposing a toast here last night at the 19th annual re-union dinner of the Red Chevron Club of Ottawa.

Mr. Bennett said that "poison gas is being spread within Canada; there is a spirit of disunion, dissension within the country; forces of disunity are at work."

Bennett Toasts Soldier, Forgets Name Asks Neighbor – The Soldier

Concluding a toast to "the first 30,000" he could not recall the first name of the man with whom the toast was to be coupled. "..... the great soldier, Sir....."

Mr. Bennett paused and appealed for help to his left-hand neighbor. "What's his first name?" he whispered. "Richard," the man replied.

And then the left-hand neighbor stood up to reply. It was Sir Richard Turner himself, honorary president of the Club.

STABS HIS MOTHER REASON MYSTERY

CHICAGO, April 25—(AP).—Sixteen-year-old Teddy Danielsen yesterday told how he slew his crippled mother with a bread knife, but he confessed with trembling lips that he did not know why he drove the nine-inch blade into her throat.

On the witness stand, during trial on murder charges, he recalled how he found his mother making a pie in their kitchen last March 3, and how he informed her he had played hookey from high school.

"She grabbed me by the face and shoulders and shook me," he said in a recital interrupted by tears. "She scratched my face."

Then he said:—

"I think I must have struck her with the knife."

The defendant's father, Theodore, Sr., peered anxiously at his only child. Chief Justice Cornelius Harrington of the Criminal Court, who alone must decide the boy's fate since the defence waived a jury, posed a point-blank question:—

"Tell me, Teddy, why did you stab your mother?"

Attorney Reid asked Teddy how he felt about the crime now.

"I try to forget it during the day," was the response. "During the night I cry. I pray. I ask God to forgive me."

His father and his pastor, neighbors, playmates and teachers have rallied to the defence of the youngster they described as a "normal," "sane" and "obedient" child.

Hungerford Man Is Jailed As Extortionist

Glimpse of Fugitive Fleeing Ambush at Church Sends Police to Farm Home—Offers No Resistance

TWEED, April 26.—Gerald Gunning, the roving 20-year-old son of a prosperous farming family in the township of Hungerford, was arrested at his home yesterday by police who charged he was the author of a threatening letter, demanding $5,000, which was received through the mail Friday by W. E. Spackman, local bank manager.

Apparently without a single clue as to the identity of the extortionist, who broke through the police trap Saturday night and vanished into the night amid a hail of police bullets, the authorities went to work in one of the most intensive criminal investigations in years, and their probe led them to the Gunning farm home. Provincial Constables Arthur Dymond and A. A. Stark co-operated with Chief Hayes and Dymond was with the Chief when the arrest was made. Gunning was with his mother when the police arrived and he submitted quietly to arrest.

Had Been Away 6 Weeks

Close questioning showed that the youth returned to his home at 10.45 Saturday night after an absence of six weeks. He is alleged to have admitted being in Tweed Saturday afternoon and in Peterborough the day the letter was mailed to the bank manager in Tweed. He was taken before Charles H. Kerr, a Justice of the Peace, and charged with extortion and demanding with menace. Later he was removed to Belleville jail and he will appear in Police Court next week.

Chief Hayes paid tribute to the work of the two Provincial officers and of Sergeant Harry Thompson of Belleville, who also aided in the search.

"A description of the man was given by Constable Dymond and it was of great assistance in bringing about the arrest," said the Chief Constable. "Dymond managed to get a glimpse of the man as he ran across the fields."

Mr. and Mrs. James Gunning, the boy's parents, are well known, and highly respected residents of the county.

IMPORTS BLAMED AS BUTTER SKIDS 4-8 CENTS POUND

TOORNTO, April 26—(CP)—Sudden and sharp slumps in the price of butter, general throughout Canada, were believed due today to seasonal increase in production and a market-overhang of large quantities of the New Zealand and Australian product. Price declines of from one to eight cents a pound, compared to winter levels, were recorded.

And as Canadian housewives cheered the reductions, still further decreases were in sight. Some wholesalers thought prices soon would slip to the levels prevailing at this time last year. The price slumps ranged from eight cents a pound in Toronto and Montreal to one cent in Vancouver. The average reduction approximated four cents.

Within a week, the price of butter in Toronto slipped from 36 to 28 cents a pound. Wholesalers said they believed a further decline of from three to four cents was probable within a month. It was said 1,750,000 pounds of New Zealand and Australian butter were available and that this was a factor in the swift recession.

Only in Ottawa were existing prices higher than winter-time quotations. There, butter retailed for 34 to 35 cents a pound, compared to 30-31 cents three months ago and 27 cents at this time last year. It was not indicated in reports from dealers whether the unseasonal advance was due to local conditions.

Slump Is General

Elsewhere, prices tumbled. In Charlottetown, butter sold for 36 to 38 cents a pound. Prices were as high as 45 cents during the winter. Montreal's prevailing price is 30 cents, eight cents lower than during the winter, but three cents above last year's level. Butter in Quebec City was 38 cents, a two-cent drop in recent weeks.

Though existing prices generally were a few cents above those at this time last year, Winnipeg reported quotation were unchanged from April, 1937. Prices there now are from 30 to 33 cents a pound, compared to from 38 to 42 during the winter months.

Prices in Prince Albert, Sask., dropped four cents yesterday to 33 cents while in Saskatoon, 100 miles to the south, a five-cent cut went into effect. Butter in Saskatoon now sells for 30 cents a pound. Moose Jaw reported a two-cent decline to 34 cents, with a further four-cent drop expected shortly.

In Alberta, Edmonton creameries sold their product for 30 cents today after obtaining from 30 to 34 cents throughout the winter. A 3½-cent reduction within a week benefitted Calgary housewives, butter in the southern Alberta city now selling for 32 cents. Vancouver prices dropped from 38 to 37 cents. A year ago butter sold in that city for 31 cents.

WAGE OF $1,500 TOO LOW FOR UAW

DETROIT, April 26 (AP)—Proposal of the Ford Brotherhood of America that the Ford Motor Company establish a $1,500 minimum annual wage found little sympathy today in United Automobile Workers of American quarters. Richard T. Frankensteen, assistant president of the U.A.W., a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, said his union would not accept "so low an annual wage."

Harry H. Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Company, received the proposal yesterday with little enthusiasm.

In its proposal the Ford Brotherhood, an independent union, had said that in return for a minimum wage guarantee its members would buy a new car from the company every two years.

Frankensteen said:—

"The U.A.W. would not accept so low an annual wage. It is lower than the lowest accepted as an American standard of living. The joker about workers having to buy cars further lowers their income. How could a man with a family buy a new car every other year on less than $30 a week?"

Bennett's reaction was expressed in the question: "Who is going to guarantee the company an annual market?"

Conferences were to be resumed today in efforts to settle the U.A.W. strikes in eight plants of the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corp. here. Two plants of the Gar Wood Industries, Inc., closed yesterday when about 500 workers began a sit-down.

APPEAL REFUSED

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—The United States Supreme Court refused today to review a test case to determine whether citizenship should be denied aliens who refuse to bear arms in defence of the United States.

The tribunal declined to pass upon an appeal by Abraham Warkentin, a Mennonite minister of Chicago who was refused citizenship in the federal district court at Chicago because he declined, for religious reasons, to take the required oath.

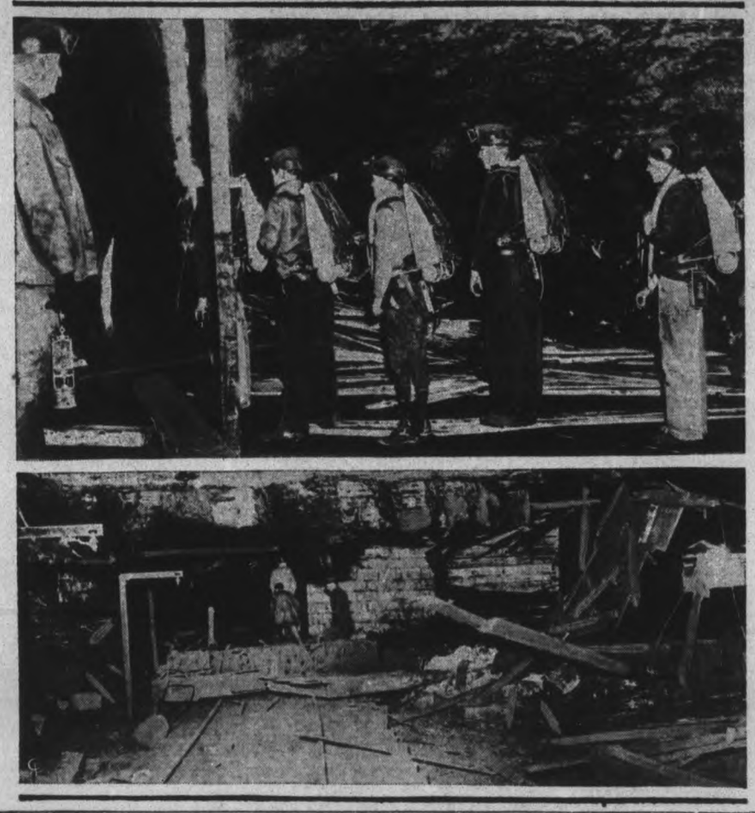
In the worst disaster in the history of Virginia mining, 45 miners were trapped when a volcano-like explosion rent the Keen Mountain Mine of the Red Jacket Coal Co., at Grundy, Va. A few of the rescue workers, who worked in 30 minute shifts, are shown, TOP, entering the mine. The entrance to the mine through which the bodies were brought to the surface is shown, BOTTOM, with some of the wreckage caused by the explosion.



FRANCE DRAFTING SNAG FOR GERMAN DREAM OF EMPIRE

PARIS, April 26.—(AP).— Premier Edouard Daladier put final touches to-day to his plans to thwart Germany's dream of a middle European empire. Two points are cited here as already having partly offset German annexation of Austria and presumed German support of Nazi demands for self-government for Germans in Czechoslovakia:

1. The joint Franco-British move to woo Italy, joined with Germany in the Rome-Berlin axis, by friendship pacts.

2. The understanding here that the British government has given up its plans to expand the friendly agreement with Italy into a four-power pact to include Germany.

Premier Daladier made known his opposition to any four-power pact that would include Germany. French officials said the foreign office "understood" Prime Minister Chamberlain had abandoned that part of his plan when he saw France was determined to stand by her Czechoslovak ally and that Chancellor Hitler was equally determined to use such a pact to keep his hands free in Eastern Europe.

Fliers See Sharks Fight For Them

Trio Have Close Call After Forced Landing at Sea; Steamer Rescues 12 Passengers Off Sinking Plane

KINGSTON, Jamaica, April 26 (CP).—Three members of the crew of a twin-engined Pan-American flying boat had a narrow escape from sharks when the craft was forced down at sea yesterday some 30 miles from Jamaica.

Twelve passengers and one member of the crew were taken off the sinking plane by the passing teamship Cavina, but the commander and two others remained with their craft. However, tossed by the swells, it began to sink and the three hurriedly launched a collapsible boat.

As they were getting into it two sharks attacked, but missed the men and then began fighting each other. The collapsible boat failed and the men had to take to a rubber raft before they were picked up by the tug Killerig, which went out to try to tow the flying boat to port. The plane sank, however, an hour after coming down.

The flying boat was enroute from Santiago, Cuba, to Kingston when one engine failed in a rainstorm. All passengers and crew reached Kingston uninjured and mail and baggage was saved by the Cavina.

FINANCIER'S PLAN CLAIMED TO SOLVE RAILWAY TROUBLE

OTTAWA, April 26 —(CP)— A plan to deal with the Canadian railway problem in a way to avoid "consolidation or monopoly; avoiding private monopoly by the Canadian Pacific Railway or political control as a public ownership enterprise under the Canadian National Railways" is being presented to members of parliament.

The plan is said to be work of a well known financial man who suggests it should be taken up by boards of trade and chambers of commerce with Toronto and Montreal boards of trade taking the lead in bringing it to the attention of the public.

The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific systems would be unified under an operating company to be known as the Canadian railway systems. It would take over by lease "the properties, equipment, rights of way, and all other powers and privileges of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways, except certain interests not necessary to transportation, communication, steamship services and hotels. The lease might be for 21 years subject to renewal for like further periods and in perpetuity."

The unified system would be managed by board of directors, possibly 10, four appointed by the government, four by the Canadian Pacific and two by a transport court or board of commissioners.

Huge Food Stores Ready For War Simon Discloses

Nation's Biggest Peacetime Budget Adds 2½% To Incomes; Jumps Tea Levy 4 Cents to 16; Gas 2 to 18

LONDON, April 26 (AP).—Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today boosted the income tax from 25 per cent to 27½ per cent to help pay the costs of the rearmament program.

In his first budget speech, Sir John shocked the House of Commons by announcing the income tax would be raised from five shillings in the pound to five shillings sixpence (from $1.25 to $1.37½ in $5).

Presenting the budget for the 1938-39 fiscal year beginning April 1, Sir John announced the government's total needs as £944,398,000 ($4,721,990,000, and increase of £81,500,000 ($407,500,000) over the previous year.

The Chancellor also announced an increase in the duties on tea and oil. The higher tax on tea will reach into the pocketbook of virtually every family in the land, rich or poor. The higher income and oil taxes also will hit most of them.

Food Ready For War.

Sir John dropped several other bombshells, including the disclosure that the government secretly purchased early this year huge stocks of wheat, sugar and whale oil, sufficient to last through "the early months" of a possible war.

The Chancellor presented the nation with the largest peace-time budget in its history.

Financial quarters were disappointed. Leading shares declined sharply in after-hours' trading. Brokers said details of Sir John's speech had "a most unsettling and disappointing effect."

The budget included £253,250,000 ($1,266,250,000) for armament expenditure, but this did not include £90,000,000 ($450,000,000) to be borrowed to meet additional costs of the defence program.

Britain is in the second year of a five-year rearmament campaign of which the cost originally was set at £1,500,000,000 ($7,500,000,000). But Prime Minister Chamberlain already has declared this will not be enough, and informed quarters have estimated the eventual cost at 50 per cent. higher, or £2,250,000,000 (11,250,000,000).

Small Taxpayers Escape.

The blow of the income tax boost was softened somewhat by announcement of a special exemption by which 2,000,000 small taxpayers will escape the increase.

In the United Kingdom everyone who earns £150 ($750) or more a year pays income tax. But the tax will not be increased this year for single persons making up to £260 $1,300) or for married men with one child earning up to £400 ($2,000).

Sir John warned that the "peak year of the defence expenditure" would not be reached until next year and possibly the year after.

"Nothing could contribute so much to the ultimate reduction of the burden of taxation as an increase in international good will and reduction of armaments," he said.

The Chancellor said secrecy in the purchases of foodstuffs was necessary to prevent "prices being raised through knowledge that the government was coming into the market."

C.M.A. SUGGESTS OPERATING UNION FOR 2 RAILWAYS

TORONTO, April 26.—(CP). — Commissioner John W. Dafoe of the Rowell Commission to-day asked for the detailed recipe by which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association proposed the two major railways should be operated as one.

If the people of Canada "scrambled" the railways according to the unification plan, could they be "unscrambled" if the plan did not work, he asked. He wondered if the only ultimate way out would be the State taking over the whole business.

Mr. Dafoe's questions followed the presentation of the C.M.A.'s proposals before the Rowell Commission for an "operating union" of the two railways as a means of overcoming a constant drain on the taxpayers through the Canadian National Railways deficits.

The C.M.A. suggested the co-ordination recommendations of the Duff Commission had failed in six years to fulfill expectations, savings now amounting to only $1,750,000 a year. The alternative was unification.

On the other hand, Commissioner Dafoe contended the major recommendation of the Duff Commission, the setting up of an arbitral tribunal, had never yet been attempted. That Commission had found both railways suffering painful experiences from extravagance. Mr. Dafoe held it "conceivable that this suggested arbitral tribunal was not acceptable to at least one of the railways."

Wants a Clear Definition.

"I would be obliged to get a clear definition of what unification involves," Mr. Dafoe said to W. H. Black, spokesman for the C.M.A. "We hear various words and phrases, 'amalgamation,' 'non - competitive union,' 'present existing property rights,' 'physical process of unification,' and various statements that the properties are to be kept distinct.

"When you speak of keeping them separate, is that a bookkeeping expedient or actual physical separation? That is important. If unification is attempted and failed, would it be possible for the government to take back control of its own railway or would amalgamation be permanent? Would the only way out then be the state taking over the whole? Is it to be an experiment or definite adoption of a policy that cannot be changed?"

Mr. Black suggested it would be unification for operating purposes only.

"Would the physical properties be scrambled so they could not be unscrambled?" Mr. Dafoe asked.

"In four or five years I would think they could be unscrambled but maybe not after that," Mr. Black said.

IRELAND WILL FORTIFY PORTS INCREASE ARMY

Pact Embarks Nations Upon Era of Good Will

LONDON, April 26 (C.P.). — Great Britain and Ireland to-day were embarked on an era of good neighborliness with the signing of a sweeping accord that settled three of the four great problems which have dogged Anglo-Irish relations for years.

The accord, which will be submitted to the London and Dublin Parliaments for ratification, was signed yesterday by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Prime Minister de Valera, with a number of Cabinet ministers.

The historic ceremony in No. 10 Downing Street had as its chief figures the son of the anti-Home Rule champion, Joseph Chamberlain, and Mr. de Valera, who once was a prisoner in a British jail.

As the pact was sealed, Mr. Chamberlain handed to Mr. de Valera an

ONTARIO'S COMBA APPEAL PRECEDENT

TORONTO, April 26 (C.P.). — Faced with the unique case of a man acquitted of a murder charge by the Ontario Court of Appeal, Attorney-General Conant is in Ottawa to-day to discuss with the Minister of Justice, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, the proper procedure in the case of John Comba of Renfrew.

Notice of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was filed yesterday at Ottawa against the decision of the Ontario Appeal Court which acquitted Comba of the murder of 13-year-old Ethel Ruth Hedderwick. Comba had been found guilty by a trial jury last fall at Pembroke.

Since the case is without precedent in Canada, no rules of procedure have been established, the Attorney-General's Office said to-day. Mr. Conant was not sure yesterday whether Comba should be re-arrested if the appeal is actually launched. He was freed after the Appeal Court decision.

Chief Is Cleared On Law Of 1784

ST. JEROME, Que., April 26. — (AP).—When he appeared in court yesterday on a charge of interfering with Provincial Police officers in the execution of their duties, Martin Martin, 53-year-old Indian chief of Oka Reserve, explained the law of 1784 under King George III. prohibited the white man from arresting an Indian on the reserve without permission of the chief.

Constables Prevost and Legault told the court that after serving a warrant against a lumberman charged with stealing wood, they were told they had no right to arrest him without permission of the chief. The officers agreed to go to the home of Louis Simon, where they found Martin, and during the argument that followed the prisoner disappeared. Martin was taken into custody.

District Magistrate J. E. Ladouceur of Joliette found there was no evidence to show Martin had interfered in any way with the officers and he was acquitted.

Great Manitoba Search Closes With Finding Pilot's Body

Discovery Shows Sawchyn Had Struggled Half Mile Before Dying Of Cold

DAUPHIN, Man., April 26 (CP).—One of Manitoba's greatest searches by air and by land was ended today with discovery of Mike Sawchyn's body half a mile northwest of where the 22-year-old farmer-pilot's airplane crashed in Riding Mountain National Park last Dec. 29.

A broken leg and a splintered bit of wood from his wrecked plane evidently used as a crutch were evidence of Sawchyn's struggle to make his way out of the park wilderness 200 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

The plane was found April 17 and pinned to the wreckage was a note written by Sawchyn saying he had suffered a "broken foot" in the crash. Apparently he died of exposure in sub-zero weather.

The young flier disappeared on a flight from Souris in south-western Manitoba 120 miles north of his home at Sifton, 30 miles north of the park. Those who found his plane reported gasoline remained in the fuel tank and they could not explain the crash.

A piece of wood from the plane led to discovery of the body yesterday. It was seen sticking from a pool of water and beneath it was Sawchyn's body, covered with water and partly imbedded in snow and ice.

Britishers Put U.S. In Quandry Over War Plane Purchase

Washington Fears Cutting Own Program Yet Hates To Lose Millions In Badly Needed Trade

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP).—The United States administration faced a difficult choice to-day as the British Air Mission in the Capital began an inspection leading to the probable purchase of hundreds of warplanes.

Informed observers said the alternatives were:—

1. Permit the British to purchase all the war planes they want and run the risk of creating a psychological situation such as existed in 1915 and 1916, when the United States was furnishing Britain and France with war materials.

2. Refuse to issue the necessary permits and conceivably lose millions of dollars of business for American merchants at a time when business is seeking a stimulus.

Another factor before the department was a decision whether to permit the British to cut into the expansions program under which the airplane manufacturers are supplying new equipment for the United States army air force or to ask the British to wait.

Crosses United States To Face Charges

Montreal, April 26 (CP). ARTHUR RUDINOFF, 28, paid his own bus fare from Mexico City to come here to give himself up on charges of forging $1,250 worth of promisory notes, his lawyer told Judge Jules Desmarais yesterday.

Rudinoff was granted freedom on $3,000 bail, and chose jury trial on charges of signing the name of John Z. Becker to three notes in 1936.

Logan Judgment Cut In Half

OTTAWA, April 26.—(CP).—The Supreme Court of Canada to-day reduced by approximately one-half the Dominion Government's judgment against Senator Hance J. Logan, out of the sinking of the schooner Gypsum Queen in 1915.

The Exchequer Court of Canada had held Logan and Captain Freeman Hatfield, owner of the Gypsum Queen, jointly liable to repay the government $71,276 being the amount with interest Hatfield had obtained as war reparations on the assumption the vessel had been sunk by a German submarine.

To-day's judgment reduces the judgment against Logan to $34,900 with interest and costs.

1 Century Enough For Ottawa Woman Who Found Slain D'Arcy McGee

Ottawa, April 26 (CP). MRS. S. DESMARAIS who celebrated the 100th anniversary of her birthday yesterday doesn't want to live another century. "I think I have seen and experienced enough," she said. "Perhaps the Lord hasn't room for me yet but when He has I will be ready to go."

The slaying of D'Arcy McGee, a Father of Confederation, was the most terrifying event in her life, she recalls. Mrs. Desmarais lived in the same boarding house on Sparks street where McGee dwelt during the parliamentary session. Going to answer the doorbell on the night of April 7, 1868, she heard a shot and upon opening the door McGee slumped on the step

KING CONDEMNS USE OF DEFENCE CASH FOR VOTES

OTTAWA, April 26 (C.P.). — Use for political partisan purposes of money appropriated by Parliament stands condemned by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The Leader of the Government joined with Conservatives in this attitude in the House of Commons yesterday, but he could not attempt a motion to that effect because it was tied up with an expression of want of confidence in the Government.

Members of the House, back at work after a fortnight's holiday, heard an old-time political battle when the Government was charged with using defence expenditures in appealing for support in the Victoria by-election of November 29, and in selecting the Coronation contingent last year.

The argument took up most of the afternoon, but the House also gave first reading to a 1938-39 relief measure and passed Transport

BRITAIN, FRANCE DRAWING CLOSER

LONDON, April 26 (CP Cable)—Great Britain and France are drawing closer together. Fresh from his conversations in Rome, Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary for state for war, today conferred in Paris with General Marie Gustave Gamelin, chief of the French general staff.

His talks were but a forerunner to wider Anglo-French conversations which open in London Thursday. Between Premier Edouard Daladier and Finance Minister Georges Bonnet on the one side and Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, on the other, the Anglo-French talks will, it is hoped, lay the basis of a still more active entente.

France aims at an agreement with Italy on the lines of the Anglo-Italian pact. With this would come recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia, coupled with a definite understanding that Italy will withdraw from Spain and the Balearic Islands when the war in the Iberian peninsula is over.

Italian and German intervention in Spain have for France an even deeper significance than for Great Britain. It would mean that in the event of war France may have three frontiers to defend and that the movement of troops from North Africa would have to be diverted beyond the Straits of Gibraltar to Bordeaux. Premier Daladier, it is understood, intends to submit at the London conference a dossier given detailed information of German intervention in Spain.

Seven Men Are Drowned As Ship Breaks In Two

Seven men were drowned following a series of explosions which broke the Greek steamer Mount Kylene in two while she was in mid-Atlantic. In answer to the doomed vessel's SOS, two ships, the S. S. Kara Knudsen and the S. S. Imerlic, rushed to her aid and succeeded in rescuing other members of her crew. The stern of the Mount Kylene is shown ABOVE just as it was plunging to the bottom. A lifeboat from the Kara Knudsen is shown, LEFT, with some of the rescued members of the Mount Kylene's crew.

C.M.A. SUGGESTS

He thought it would be largely a bookkeeping matter, but joint physical operation.

Mr. Dafoe contended the measures suggested were the very measures the Duff Commission had ruled out as undesirable, a factor which was to be kept in mind if any weight was to be attached to that body's judgment.

"I would think 'the other effective measures' they had in mind did not include monopoly of any kind," Mr. Dafoe said.

Good Times the Only Cure?

The C.M.A. had suggested a constant deficit, to which the commissioner suggested it was not impossible that when the depression went, cash deficits would go too. In 1929 the Canadian National had broken even in that regard.

Mr. Black said the transport department showed a $5,000,000 cash deficit for that year. Mr. Dafoe said there was a dispute in that regard between the company accounts and the report.

Commissioner R. A. Mackay noted that political considerations had been responsible for much Canadian railway development. The Intercolonial had been constructed as a term of confederation to join the Maritimes to Central Canada. The Canadian Pacific had been built to join British Columbia to Central Canada. The result had been freight rate structures built on political consideration.

In the light of those facts, he wondered if it would be possible to operate the unified system on strictly business lines, since Canadian railways had never been operated that way.

Mr. Black suggested the "omnipotent board of three railway commissioners" to be created under the C.M.A. plan would still be subject to the will of parliament.

"Is there any country in the world where a railway monopoly is not controlled by the State?" Commissioner Dafoe asked.

Mr. Black said he knew of none, but in the final analysis, government regulations would always be necessary.

Child-Bride Taken From Mate

Despite heart-broken pleas of a 12-year-old child bride and her 37-year-old husband, authorities ended their marriage of a week and made the girl a temporary ward of the state, committing her to a detention home as an incorrigible. The order was issued by juvenile court after truant officers learned of the marriage of Almira Mae Wells to Samuel McChesney when they checked her absence from the sixth grade. "I love her so. I would have done it over again, even if she were ten," exclaimed McChesney when police interferred at their home at Rehoboth, Del.

Depends on Nation's Courage

Sir John ended his speech, lasting one hour and 38 minutes, at 5.22 p.m. (11.22 a.m. E.S.T.). His conclusion was:

"I believe there is willingness, even pride, in the humblest home to take a share in rearmament for defending that home from peril.

"The load we have to bear will assuredly be carried with the dogged determination and dauntless courage of the British race."

The income tax boost surprised many observers who had been assuring the nation there would be no increase in this burden.

The 27½ per cent rate is the highest in 17 years. In the post-war year of 1921-22 it was six shillings in the pound (30 per cent.).

16 Cents on Tea

The higher tea duty will be a bitter pill for this nation of tea drinkers. Two years ago it was raised from four pence to six pence (eight cents to 12 cents) a pound. From tomorrow it becomes eight pence (16 cents) a pound.

The gasoline tax, which has been eight pence a gallon since 1931, now becomes nine pence (18 cents). Gasoline now costs about 37 cents a gallon in England.

The Chancellor estimated revenue for the year on the existing basis of taxation at £914,400,000, leaving a gap fo £29,998,000 to be filled from new sources of revenue.

He estimated the higher income, tea and oil taxes would produce respectively £22,250,000, £5,000,000, and £2,750,000 additional revenue, a total of £30,000,000. This would ensure a balanced budget, if the estimates proved correct, with a surplus of £352,000.

Sir John announced there would be supplementary estimates for defence later in the year "of substantial amount which are not provided for the total expenditure." The money for these appropriations will be borrowed.

This expense includes provision for new battleships to be built above the limits of the 1936 London Naval Treaty and also for the possible purchase of aircraft in the United States and Canada.

Gas Tax Effective At Once.

The higher gasoline tax becomes effective to-night and applies also to heavy oil and light hydrocarbon oils.

Sir John said the total income tax yield for the year should be £319,000,000.

Reviewing the past year he said on the whole it had been satisfactory, but business had fallen off in the last six months. He reported the 1937-38 surplus was £38,786,000.

At the outbreak of the Great War in 1914 the income tax was only eightpence in the pound (3.2 per cent.).

The Government made one concession to big industries, most of which are engaged in some form of rearmament production, which will have the effect of wiping out the 2½ per cent. boost in income tax.

They will be allowed to deduct 20 per cent. instead of the old 10 per cent. from profit totals in "wear and tear allowance" on plant and machinery. Sir John said this was roughly equivalent to the 2½ per cent. boost.

The Chancellor declined to state the amount of food stocks on hand or exactly how long it was estimated they would last.

Sir John disclosed the government broke through red tape and did not even apply to parliament for "statutory authority" to purchase the supplies. He added legislation authorizing the purchases and making supplementary appropriations for them would be introduced shortly.

Sir John's budget figure of £944,398,000 for the fiscal year beginning April 1 did not include £90,000,000 of borrowed money already appropriated for rearmament.

Thus, while the year's total national defence expenditure will be £343,250,000, the amount included in the budget is only £253,250,000.

The nation concentrated more attention on the Chancellor's speech than on any statement of foreign policy.

Scrubwomen and porters wanted to know if they would have to pay more for their tea or beer. Capitalists were eager to know whether income and business profits taxes would be boosted.

The House was jammed to hear the closely guarded secrets of the budget, which only the cabinet knew before Sir John arose to speak.

He said he must provide £10,000,000 for supplementary civil estimates, which will cover air raid precautions, purchase of food stock "and other purposes where secrecy is less necessary."

ROTARY SPEAKER IN FAVOR MUSIC WORK IN SCHOOLS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26. — Harolde Kitney, organist of St. John's Church, declared in favor of even more extensive musical training in the schools as the only means of giving Canadians a folklore of their own. A graduate of the Faculty of Music and the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Mr. Kitney came to Campbellford in November last and has taken a keen interest in his work recently organizing the L'Allegretto Ladies' Choir, who will give their initial program on Wednesday evening. "Be sincere in what you do in the realm of music," he advised. It is the folklore that has come down through the age which gives to music its real understanding and appreciation. Our jazz comes from across the line and our classics come from Europe, continued the speaker. Much can be done to enhance the appreciation of better music by proper guidance and selection in the home.

In conclusion, the speaker outlined some of the features of the pipe organ which he claimed was one of the most remarkable pieces of machanism of the age, and consisting of many pipes ranging in size from the small flutes to the pipes, same measuring 64 feet long.

Rotarian Earl Bell moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, and when it was reported to the club members that Harold N. Carr, M.L.A., had undergone an operation in Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, on Thursday last, it was decided the club should send flowers.

TOBY WING LOVES MERRILL DEARLY

DETROIT, April 26 (C.P.).—Toby Wing, stage and screen actress appearing here this week in Cole Porter's musical "You Never Know," won't deny she'll become the bride of Dick Merrill, transatlantic flier and singer. Neither will she state definitely that they'll wed, but admits "I love him."

"Dick will be here to-day," Miss Wing said. "I love him dearly, and we have an understanding and have made some very definite plans. He follows me everywhere, so there must be some meaning to that, mustn't there?"

Mrs. Paul Wing, older counterpart of her beautiful daughter, is travelling with Toby to keep her company between shows. Also in the musical is Lupe Velez, wife of Johnny Weismuller. The stock question asked Lupe was: "How are you and Johnny getting along?"

"Fine," said Lupe. "Just like always. Everybody says we fight, but we've been married five and one-half years—and we're still married. In Hollywood now they say, 'Look at Lupe and Johnny, they're the perfect couple.'"

BRITISHERS

Army officers, on the one hand, wanted the airplane manufacturers to get increased business which would enable them to run their plants continuously. Officers said the manufacturers generally just broke even on intermitten army orders and made a good profit by selling the same types of planes later to export clients.

On the other hand, they thought the army air program now was gathering momentum, which should not be interrupted.

The State Department sought to dispel any impression that Great Britain's possible purchase of warplanes here was a business arrangement between government and government. Officials said it was simply a deal between Great Britain and American aircraft manufacturers.

Legality Of Catching Catfish By Hookless Method Questioned

Is it legal to catch catfish before the first of May if you don't use a hook? Is it illegal to drop a line into the water, or does the law apply only to fish hooks? These are questions veteran Indian Chief Dan Whetung would like answered as soon as possible.

For Indians at Curve Lake have developed a unique, hookless method of catching the fish. They string dew worms on string until they have a glob of them about three feet or more in length, which they fasten together into what they call a "bob." The catfish swallow the mass of worms, hold firm to it while they are being drawn from the water, release them immediately they touch the wooden bottom of the boat. This method does away with the jobs of baiting a hook and removing the fish after it is caught.

During the past two years the Indians at Curve Lake have developed a handsome little business in catfish, which they sell in large numbers to householders in this district. Last year they sold more than a ton of fish in Peterborough. If they are prohibited from dropping a line in the water until the first of May it will mean their business will be ruined. No other fish will strike at the "bob," he said.

Chief Whetung can see no reason why his men would not be permitted to catch the fish by the "bob" method. They are destructive, eat the spawn of lunge and bass, he pointed out. "Even a bass can't stand up to a catfish," he said. "A bass will attack a catfish two or three time sand will be badly injured on the cat's spurs."

Game Inspector T. J. Lyons could not be reached for a ruling. Chief Whetung has been trying to get in touch with him since Saturday, but this is Inspector Lyon's busiest season and he is in the country nearly every day, watching over legitimate fishermen's and trappers' interests. Provincial Constable David Silvester was not prepared to give definite ruling on the matter, but could see no reason why the Indians could not "bob" fish. The catfish are not the kind of fish the department is trying to protect, he said.

STOLEN PAINTINGS HAVE NO MARKET

LONDON, April 26—(C Cable).—The sensational theft of £100,000 ($500,000) worth of old masters from Chilham Castle, was no nearer solution early to-day.

Police inquiries yielded no developments. An art expert termed the robbery a "white elephant picture theft," saying: "There is no available market for the pictures anywhere in the world. They are too famous to be sold or to be enjoyed by a secret buyer."

He predicted they would remain hidden in the hope they could be returned to the owners, Sir Edmund Davis, art collector and mining company director, for ransom.

The robbers entered Sir Edmund's castle in Kent county by cutting a pane from a window. They cut from their frames five celebrated paintings, of which the most noted was Rembrandt's portrait of his first wife, "Saskia at Her Toilet."

Two painting by Gainsborough, "Lady Clarges" and "Pitt," "The Earl of Suffolk" by Sir Joshua Reynolds and "Man With Dog" by Van Dyke, Flemish painter, completed the loot.

A special watch was set up to prevent the pictures from being smuggled out of England.

Detectives were inclined to think the paintings might have been carried away in an airplane. Oneu guest at the castle recalled being disturbed by a droning noise "like an aeroplane" the morningof the robbery.

Sir Edmund said he was not worrying, as the pictures were fully insured, "not only against all risks but even against there being any dispute over the insurance claim."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 26—(CP). — Confirmation of rust appearance in enlarged sections of the United States winter wheat belt to-day gave strength to North American wheat futures after prices fell a maximum of two cents. Winnipeg wheat closed 1¼ lower to unchanged, May $1.20¼, July $1.10¾ to ⅞, and October 89¾ cents.

A light steady flow of selling pushed the Winnipeg May future down two cents shortly after reports told of good rains in southern areas of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and the northwest spring wheat states. Showers of a scattered nature fell also in northern parts of the prairies. Despite fair overseas buying in late stages, Canadian wheat exports to-day were small, mostly of Durums.

Alberta Joining 2 Provinces Minus Governor's Residence

Aberhart's Regime Closes Edmonton House May 1, But Votes $4,000 For Upkeep

TORONTO, April 26. — Three Canadian provinces will be without official homes for their Lieutenant-Governors May 1 when Alberta joins New Brunswick and Ontario in discontinuing maintenance of the residence of the King's representative in the province. The other six provinces, however, still have their state residences.

An economy move in 1889 led New Brunswick to sell its Government House to the Dominion. Now it is used by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Economy also was responsible for the Liberal administration of Premier Hepburn closing stately Chorley Park, residence of Ontarios Lieutenant-Governor in Toronto's fashionable Rosedale section.

A "for sale" sign figuratively hangs over Chorley Park, vacated last November after the term of Lieutenant - Governor Herbert Bruce expired. His succesor, Hon. Albert Matthews, lives in his own home and the government has fitted up official quarters for him in the Legislative Buildings.

Soon after the Ontario Legislature session ended April 8, the government passed an order-in-council authorizing Hon. Colin Campbell, Minister of Public Works, to advertise for tenders. During the session he had declared dishpans were at a premium in Chorley Park in a rain storm because the roof leaked.

He added a heavy capital expenditure would be required to refit the residence, described by Premier Hepburn as having served as "a glorified hotel" for broken down British aristocracy."

Built in 1915

First occupied in 1915, Ontario's government house cost nearly $1,000,000. This includes the price paid for the 14 acres of grounds carved from the subdivision once known as Chorley aPrk. Public accounts for the 1936-37 fiscal year, latest available, show maintenance cost $22,022.83. The Legislature has voted $2,500 for maintenance while unoccupied.

Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Brown will move from Alberta's government house at Edmonton around the end of the month but whether the establishment will be sold remains undecided. The government has announced it will require expenditure of $4,000 a year for maintenance. A resolution at the Legislature's 1934 session proposed transforming it into a sanitarium. There has been no announcement since the Legislature at the last session urged no further expenditure for maintaining it as a Lieutenant-Governor's residence.

Prince Edward Island's lieutenant-governor pays for upkeep of the official residence at Charlottetown but there is an arrangement whereby the government defrays cost of repairs. The Nova Scotia government pays about $5,900 annually for upkeep of its century-old governor house.

CROWN TO FIGHT REDUCED CHARGES IN LIQUOR CASES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 26. — County Crown Attorney Anderson at Monday morning's session of the Police Court issued warning that he would oppose any further motions to reduce charges of illegal possession of liquor to illegal consumption. The warning was issued following a charge preferred against a man from Omemee named Fairfield, who was fined $10.00, and costs, for illegal possession. A charge against another Omemee man was remanded.

Provincial Constable Adair has another grain theft on his hands. Wilfred West of Oakwood has reported to the police the theft of about sixty bushels of grain from his granary.

The Provincial Police are investigating a car theft which took place at Sonya on Sunday evening. The car was the property of Graham Fish, and was stolen from his yard.

Arthur Desbiens alias Dube, of Montreal, who with Arthur Leadbetter, of Ottawa, face charges of theft of a car at Sunderland, and who will stand trial at Beaverton this week, figured in an interesting romance at the Capital a few days ago. He was united with his sister, after a separation of eleven years. The re-union took place at the jail, where the sister visited him. Desbiens is only twenty-one years of age, and the girl recognized her brother by a scar received when he was scalded as a baby.

Midget Uses Mallet To Rout Tiger

New York, April 26. (UP). DEXTER FELLOWES is dead, but his spirit lives on. The great circus press agent would have loved this one.

The best authorities of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus say that Lady, a tiger led about the arena on a leash, broke loose just after the matinee began today and raced through the runways behind the scenes, frightening performers until she came to Paul Horumpo, a midget.

And then say the best authorities, the midget hit the tiger on the head with a clown's mallet and the tiger turned and ran back to her trainer.

TWEED LAD HURT BY DYNAMITE CAP

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 26.—Elmer McCaw, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCaw, R.R. No. 3, Tweed, had his right hand badly torn by the explosion of a dynamite cap. It appears that the young man, in ignorance of the terrific force bottled up in such a small object, held a lighted match to the open end of the detonator with disastrous results. The unfortunate young man was taken to the office of a local surgeon, and was later removed to Belleville General Hospital, where amputation of parts of several fingers of the right hand was found necessary.

SUCHOW FARMERS FLEE BEFORE JAPS

SHANGHAI, April 26.—(AP). — Japanese, driving forward only 12 miles from the east-west Lunghai railway, their objective in four months of fighting, reported today the Suchow area was being evacuated by Chinese civilians.

A Japanese army spokesman said aerial observation showed all roads in the sector choken with Chinese farmers carting their belongings southward and westward, in apparent expectation of a rapid Japanese advance upon Suchow.

A shakeup in the Japanese naval command in Chinese waters was announced.

Transferred to unidentified posts were Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander-in-chief of the Third Fleet in Chinese waters throughout the Shanghai operations; Rear Admiral Tadao Honda, former naval attache to the Japanese Embassy in China, who issued many of the navy's statements and explanations at the time of the sinking of the United States' gunboat Panay, and Rear Admiral Denshichi Ohkochi, commander of the special navy landing party in China. Their successors were not named.

With 200,000 Japanese troops pouring from Southern Shantung province into Northern Kiangsu province, and 500,000 Chinese opposing them, General Chiang Kai-Shek's commanders ordered counter-attacks on both sides of the Yi river, on the outskirts of Pihsien, 12 miles north of the Lunghai and on the west side of the river, against Tancheng, 18 miles north of the railway and on the east side of the river.

LIFFORD LINE

ROBBERS STEAL WOOL CLIPPINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, April 26—Farmers in this locality have commenced seeding. It is expected the spring seeding will be completed early this year, owing to the fact that a large acreage was sown last fall and fall wheat and rye has apparently weathered the ice and frosts of late spring.

Sneak thieves have been operating in this locality recently. Two farmers had spring clippings of sheep's wool stolen from their premises while others have had grain taken from their granaries.

BEST MAN KILLED BOUND TO WEDDING

MONTREAL, April 26 (C.P.). — The shadow of death lay heavily over the wedding of Leo Robertson and Laurette Asselin yesterday.

The best man was to have been Paul Robertson, brother of the groom, but while the marriage was celebrated, Paul lay in the morgue here, victim of an automobile accident.

The brother, travelling from Tonawanda, N.Y., was killed over the week-end when his car struck a truck 18 miles east of here. News of the accident came too late for postponement of the wedding.

Hermas Robertson, father of the groom and the man who would have been groomsman, sat through one son's wedding and then hurried to the morgue to claim the body of his other son.

It Needed To Be Said

Very Rev. C. E. Riley, Dean of Toronto, was speaking to St. George's Society in St. James' Cathedral at the anniversary service. Like many another speaker he was moved to touch upon the times in which we live and the conditions under which people exist. He referred to all the charitable work being done, paid full tribute to it and continued:

Don't you think it is our duty as citizens of a democracy to find out the cause of poverty and see if there is anything wrong with our social and democratic systems. Are we content in a world of plently to see poverty around us? There is something more needed than the administration of palliatives. If we don't find out the cause of the disease other people will."

In saying that the Dean of Toronto said something which needed saying. Not that it had not been said before, but that it needs to be said again and by many people. It indicates a field in which we have not as yet worked to advantage. We have built up quite a system to attend to the results of a period of depression, but we have made little progress—if any at all—at coming to grips with the cause of the thing.

Nor would it be wise to ignore the warning contained in the concluding part of that Toronto opinion: "If we don't find out the cause of the disease other people will." The Socialists are working at it and so are the Communists, and they are busy at it all the time. The rest of us for the most part are doing little except saying that both the Communists and Socialists are wrong, and it is quite probable knowledge of that condition cause the Dean of Toronto to speak as he did.

It's An Old Plan

The Archbishop of Moscow and eight other churchmen have been arrested and they are charged with plotting to overthrow the soviet regime. It took a fair amount of reading to come to the place where it stated Russia was expecting to be attacked by capitalistic countries from the outside and when that took place the church plotters were preparing to stage a revolution. That's quite a scheme. There are some millions of people in Russia, but these eight very bad men were going to be able to disturb them.

It is not stated, which of the capitalistic nations intends to attack Russia. At the moment we know of no nation which would be able to tackle Russia successfully, and we know of no nation which wants to.

But of course that plea that Russia is going to be attacked by some capitalistic nation is always a good one. It is the sort of stuff a dictator likes to feed the people; it makes them think as he thinks; causes them to become afraid because they do not know the truth, and makes the dictator look like the man who was going to save the situation —and himself.

Hard To Believe

The town of Goderich and three neighboring municipalities have $140,000 cash on their hands and they do not require it until the first of July. The cash is the proceeds of the sale of bonds, part of the sinking fund of the defunct Ontario West Shore Electric Railway.

Mayor MacEwan says the problems is to know what to do with the money until the first of July. The banks will pay nothing for it, and the trust company does not want it. One of the councillors says when the council wants to borrow money from the bank it has to pay interest on it, and he thinks that when the town has a sack of wealth the bank should be willing to allow interest. Probably this man is chairman of the finance committee.

Goderich is a lake-shore town, has a delightful location and is interested in summer travel and tourists. It might be possible that the 34 municipalities in Ontario which are in default might like to see $140,000. The tourist committee could make special arrangements to have them come during the months of May and June to gaze upon it. It might be so much like a tonic to weary financiers of these municipalities that they would even pay a fee for the privilege of looking at $140,000.

It might also be a kindness to ask the ratepayers of Goderich and adjacent communities to come and see the thing. For a good many years they may have been whacking up their good money for taxes and wondering all the time where the cash has gone. It may be there is little they can see as far as their own section of the bailiwick is concerned. It would be something about which to tell the grandchildren in years to come—the day we went down and saw $140,000 in the hands of a municipality. Goderich should make the most of it in the two months which lie ahead for the like will probably never happen again.

A Fine Writer

Herbert Ramsay of the editorial staff of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, is in England. Now and then as he feels the urge he will write articles for the St. Thomas paper. He has already furnished one which gives a remarkably interesting recital of the trip over on the Bremen. He found it was distinctly German territory. He looked for the usual service on Sunday but it was not held. The Nazis have killed that delightful period of devotion on an ocean liner.

Readers of the St. Thomas Times-Journal will hope that the urge to write something lights on Herbert Ramsay quite often. There are writers on the small city papers of Ontario which we consider the equal of anything which metropolitan papers possess, and Herbert Ramsay is one of them. He came from Fleet Street (the home of newspapers) in London; he was the man who first wrote the story of the man who couldn't be hanged; he has in his time interviewed many of the leading public men of Britain. And above all he is delightfully retiring and modest.

In Vienna Today

The Jewish people in Vienna has no chance to vote when a ballot was taken to see if Hitler's taking over of Austria was acceptable to the people there. The Jews have to take what they get in Vienna today. One recent day Jewish shopkeepers were made to stand in front of their own places of business and hold at arm's length signs reading "Don't Buy From Jews." They were forced to keep the sign in that position for 40 minutes.

Those who were found doing business in a Jewish place of business were removed and made to parade the streets with signs on them which said: "This stupid, common person still purchases at Jewish stores."

The magnificent collection of books in the public library at Vienna, numbering 1,200,000 volumes, has been purged and everything of which the Nazi censors do not approve has been burned.

And that is the sort of stuff for which the people of Austria were supposed to have voted with such enthusiasm. They knew they were beaten at every turn and were afraid to record a vote otherwise.

Doing A Worthy Work

Collectors are making calls at homes in Peterborough on behalf of the Upper Canada Bible Society, the auxiliary force of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada and Newfoundland. These canvassers seek funds because so many copies of the Scriptures are given away to those who have no money to purchase them. There is also the continued demand for the supplying of the Gospel in whole or in part to missionaries working in lands where a new translation is needed. Already the Word has been printed in 711 languages, but the end is not yet; there is a continual demand that it be printed in more and even stranger tongues, and that is why the collectors are working.

The distribution of the Bible itself is greater than anything which man can do. The Word is more powerful than anything which man can say about it. Those who make the collections do so voluntarily and willingly and they should receive a kindly and a sympathetic hearing.

Richer—But Is He Happier?

There have been several references in this paper recently to cases where people were wrangling about the possession of money. They go to court about it because they want to get control of it. Even if they have only a fair chance or a slim chance at success they think it worth while to take proceedings.

The possession of money has not brought any more happiness to Oliva Dionne and his wife. His allowance from the officials who look after the welfare of his five daughters has been raised to $300 per month. How much he is able to make out of the booth which he operates near the Dafoe Hospital we do not know, although there are a good many in this city and district who can recall that he was busy as could be signing postcards for 25 cents each.

The home of the Dionne family is a very simple place and the farm on which they used to depend for an existence was a poor one. The buildings used to look very inadequate and not well preserved, and one might well be pardoned for wondering why any person would ever want to settle down in such a place. But it was home; there were the simple habits of the French settler; there would be little cash, but we dare say the average supply of contentment.

As things go now the five Dionne sisters are rich beyond the wildest dreams of their parents, and the Dionnes themselves with an allowance of $300 per month have more money than they ever thought possible. But we do not believe all this has made them particularly happy. The head of this family always has something new about which to complain; he is not satisfied with the way in which things are managed; he seeks to make some more contracts of his own with newspapers and photographers. Just how much happiness and contentment he should receive for $300 a month is a difficult question to answer. It is one of those articles which cannot be weighed by the pound or measured by the yard and there are no bargain days when it can be secured for half price. Compared with his outlook of a few years ago Papa Dionne is doing pretty well financially but he seems to have a lot more to worry about now. So we draw the conclusion that he can be added to the list of those to whom money has not brought happiness.

How He Kills Men

F. G. Tinker, Jr., has been writing stories for the Saturday Evening Post telling of the fighting in Spain. The editors of the Post explain that Frank Tinker is a young Arkansas flier who enlisted for service with the Loyalist air force of Spain, which means he would be paid for his services.

He tells of a number of air flights and of the manner in which Italian troops in Spain were attacked. In one place he writes: "I spotted one especially large group of Italians in wild retreat before a couple of tanks. At about 700 feet I opened fire with one upper and one lower machine gun. This was so I could see whether or not I was on the target. The stream of bullets was just ahead of the fleeing group so I opened up with the other two guns. By this time I could see the individuals plainly. They did the worst thing they could have done; they started running in the opposite direction. I could see dead white faces swivel around and at sight of the plane terror would turn them even whiter. It was too late; already they were falling like grain before the reaper. I pushed the rudder back and forth gently so that the bullets would cover a wider area, thus lengthening the swath. We kept this up until our gasoline and bullets were so low we were forced to return to the field."

We know a great many of the men who passed through much of the fighting of the world war, and almost without exception they have little to say of what took place on the days of battle. They will talk about almost everything else. They do not recite that on a certain day they used a rifle to shoot ten men, or that they had a machine gun which brought down thirty or forty, nor have we heard any of them say a thing about the time they went over the top and used the bayonet. But this Mr. Tinker seems rather boastful of his technique; he goes into detail to tell with what remarkable skill he manoeuvred his plane so he could mow men down like grain, and he even takes the trouble to tell of the horror which was registered on their faces.

Perhaps there is a form of argument or reasoninng which would show that Mr. Tinker is in a perfectly legitimate business. Probably it could be argued he had as much right being in Spain as the Italian troops. But Mr. Tinker belongs to United States, and his land was not being attacked. We believe it is right enough to say he went directly into a form of employment where he was hired by a foreign government to go out and kill men. And he is adding to his money by writing magazine articles on how he mows down men like grain. There can be no feeling of regret in this Mr. Tinker Jr., because he signs his name to the stories.

SPRING SONG

¶ When it comes round to days of spring, I like to hear the bull frogs sing, they sang just yesterday; the place they live is never rich, just in some lonely swamp or ditch, a dampish place I'd say.

¶ Why they should sing I just don't know, they never travel much or go, nor get so far away; they don't go south when it gets cold, so they've no travels to be told, of where they went to stay.

¶ In swamps they can't see very much, just buried logs and grass and such, that dries out after spring; there can't be fun in being a frog, just sitting on a rotted log, why should they ever sing?

¶ I'm sure they never learned a tune, or hummed it for a while at noon, to get it in their head; nor do they try out something new, or even learn a verse or two, before they go to bed.

¶ The best frog songs I ever heard, can't match with some sweet-singing bird, they're just as flat as dust; but when they start upon their choice, they put some vigor in their voice, and sing as though they'd bust.

¶ Yes I admit they sing out loud, sing solos also in a crowd, and follow just one plan; I'll give the frogs some credit too, they only know a note or two—but do the best they can.

Drab Lady Was A Famous Thief

EDITH ANNIE RILEY, the landlady of two houses on Withington Road, in Manchester, England, was known to her tenants as a "little mouse of a woman."

They pitied her, she looked so prim and puritanical and out of place in the world. Timid as a mouse, she lived behind locked doors and shuttered windows.

Her horn-rimmed spectacles were like a barrier against the world; she seemed to hide behind them. If a neighbor scolded her for reading all the time in her darkened rooms, she discouraged the helpful advice with a frightened look through her glasses.

She said she hated all men — but what an unhappy love affair Miss Riley had actually had, and what it had turned her to, nobody even dreamed possible. Once the owner, instead of the landlady, she had been tricked by the man she loved into putting the houses in his name. He sold the property and skipped with the money.

What made her unlucky romance so understandable and herself so pathetic was the fact that there was nothing feminine about her appearance. Her flat shoes, her drab skirt and dull hat had no more glamor than her fading mouse-colored hair and spectacles. She looked older than her 46 years. She was no "modern" woman — and did not drink, smoke, nor use powder or paint. But most of all the fussy little woman hated disorder and dirt, and her houses were the height of cleanliness, yet even this proved a misfortune for her and a clue for the police.

Twice a week she put on her grey shawl, took a shopping satchel under her arm, and was swallowed up in crowds, always to return about three hours later. If anybody met her coming or going she refused to talk, and hurried on.

In short, Miss Riley was a typical eccentric old maid — or so it seemed. But Scotland Yard, in the meantime, was puzzled by reports that dozens of burglaries were taking place in Manchester, all linked together by a single clue — the theif used a concentrated gardenia perfume.

THE FIRST time a police sergeant noticed the odor at the scene of a robbery he filed the pungent smell away in his alert mind. To his astonishment he came on the same scent in another suburb in connection with a theft the following week. In the months that followed, the perfume left a vague trail throughout Manchester.

The police knew that if they caught a woman—or a man—"at work" with the lingering perfume they would have a solution to the rapidly mounting list of "gardenia crimes." One hundred and two burglaries in a single year was the astonishing score of the person wearing the scent.

But then a deciding clue was observed. A curious habit the thief had was always to empty the ash trays in the apartments that were robbed. This decided the police that only a woman could be so methodical. One other peculiarity they noticed about the light-fingered woman "raffles"—she favored the homes of bachelors of means who lived alone. The police began to suspect their criminal had a grudge against men who do not marry.

For weeks the police checked up on the landladies in various sections of Manchester. Among the suspects was the obscure Miss Riley. One by one hundreds of these women were eliminated from the list, and among the last handful was Miss Riley.

Miss Riley did not impress them as a real supect, in fact — and when detectives followed her they considered it a waste of time. With her satchel she headed straight for the market place.

But suddenly they were wide awake. For they detected a faint gardenia odor in following her — it was so slight, perhaps they were mistaken. Still they watched more carefully, and so when Miss Riley suddenly ducked into an alley they followed her. It was a long trolley ride she led them on— nearly an hour's trip; but fortunately the car was crowded and the detectives argued so loudly about the price of lace that they evidently avoided suspicion.

The trolley stopped on a lonely street in the suburbs, and Miss Riley got out. The detectives watched in amazement while she entered a bachelor's house by way of an open French casement. She was caught red-handed. Her "shopping handbag" was filled with jewels.

In her home they found a set of troy weights, such as goldsmiths use. In the cupboard were two magnifying glasses and a pair of pliers. Every night she had shut herself in, not to read books, but to read the delicate scales. Chemical and miscroscopic examination showed traces of gold in the tools and on the dining table.

What most annoyed the police that they didn't think of it, was the explanation of her technique. A stack of newspaper clippings gave the names of the woman's victims. Always a month or two after some bachelor got his name in the papers, Miss Riley would pay him a visit. The clippings gave her the address and usually characterized the man as the sort who dines out at night and is generous to women with jewelry but not with offers of marriage.

PERSONS OVER 65.

(New York Herald Tribune)

THIS ANALYSIS of the situation as of the end of 1936 shows that there were about 7,800,000 persons over 65 in the country. Only 13 per cent of them supported themselves out of earnings, but another 18 per cent. were living on their own savings, insurance annuities or other resources. Adding in the rather small handful living on industrial or military and Civil Service pensions gives a total of over one-third of all those above 65 who were self-supporting.

About 44 per cent. of all were supported by relatives or friends; the remaining one-fifth were supported "wholly or partially" by public agencies or private philanthropy—mainly, it is scarcely necessary to say, by the public agencies, particularly the old-age assistance benefits under the Social Security Act.

THE WELSH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I read with interest the report of the Sons of England banquet, where the Mayor paid tribute to Pioneers. I would like the Mayor to know that the Welsh have also contributed. There are 4 countries in the British Isles, England Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and the Welsh can be found all over the world.

In this district there is evidence of this—Owen Sound, Bangor, Carnarvon, Bala, Pontypool, Swansea, Madoc is named after Toemadoc the birthplace of Lawrence of Arabia. Surely the Welsh should be included in the pioneer list of this country.

During the war Wales sent more men according to its size than any other country. The Prime Minister of England then was Hon. D. Lloyd George; Hon. Hughes, Premier of Australia, also Hughes, Secretary of State for U. S. A., all Welshmen. The Welsh pioneered England, they were the early Britons.

Thanking you, I remain,

LABOR AS A BUSINESS PARTNER

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Labor's restlessness is founded on a healthy desire to progress, to follow the instinct of ambition. Labor wants to make life, a little more secure and enjoyable by establishing better conditions.

The march of progress is deliberate, inspired, and well planned, we wish to get rid of the retarding forces of progress, class consciousness must disappear along with the major causes of unrest.

These things must come about because the efforts of labor to reach evils of varying importance are becoming one of the menacing forces to the present form of civilization. The sacrifices made during the last War are too great for any one class to wrest the reins of power from those who would serve all alike.

Capital and Labor have fundamental necessities, and we must have a real consciousness of the necessities of human needs. Labor claims the world owes it a living, and claims that it should be given freedom to supply the needs of living, and when it has done all in its power to supply that need, it demands its right from the other fellow for various reasons.

The Capitalist class claim that this cannot be met, hence the labor unrest, each claiming the other as over grasping and extravagant in their demands; Labor for an instance wonders when they read that a particular company, demand of a government, the oil monopoly of a country, and the right of 250,000 miles of oil land (This is history).

This is naturally looked upon as an extravagant claim. The workman, Jack says to Tom, do these people want the whole earth? where do we come in? while the capitalists claim, that shorter hours, better and more healthy working conditions cannot be met, competition is so keen, and we have to compete with foreign trade, etc. Yet as the worker looks over the income tax statistics, he realizes we are living in an age of ever increasing millionaires.

The necessities of capital and labor must be met with justice, and justice must rule our industrial relations, then we shall have no labor troubles or unrest.

The labor question is a human one as well as an economic one, and employees should discard too dominant an attitude, and get more in touch with their employers, study the psychology of the worker, when he would show a sympathetic interest and might thereby help solve one great problem.

"The turnover of labor," the constant changing of his employees which has proved so unprofitable to large establishments, especially when engaged in standardized and repetition work, the loss of spoiled and reduced production, foreman's time instructing new operators, all of which increases the overhead expenses, and just as the operator reaches the state of efficiency, "He quits." This is put down to migratory labor, or "floaters." To solve this question, employees should not make excuses, but look for the trouble in his own establishment. He will find labor, like the force of gravity, by going with it, studying it, it can be made a blessing, but to fight it is a curse to the community, and causes such revolutionary and rebellous spirits known as Bolshevics, Spartacan, etc. The best preventitive to these things is "Prosperity," contented and happy workers. The great error made by most capitalists, is placing his workmen in the same category as a machine. The machine would be an inanimate mass of material without human attention. The workman is a real live thing, animate, with eyes to see and ears to hear and an intellect which can be trained, in fact, just like his employer.

Labor is inseparable from the laborer, Capital (the machine) is not inseperable from any man., therefore in reconstructing your firm put human effectiveness first, and machine efficiency next. I would not say that labor would be satisfied by what it obtains by the great pressure it is bringing to bear in the form of just remuneration in wages and healthier conditions. One way to stop this restlessness is to make the employee feel that he is part and parcel of the firm. Just bend a little and say "Here partner" I will give you an equitable share in proportion to the contribution that you make to the net results of the business. It would soon create a real interest on the part of the workman in his work, as well as in his employer. It would do away with a lot of the labor turnover expenses with all its depreciations. Such an act would very soon be noticeable in the home life of the worker and that is what counts. These things will be brought about by the State eventually, but how it would speed up things and what an economic saving it would be to the country if we got down to business and buried our selfish interests and prejudices for the good of the common weal.

The real change must take place in the heart and soul of mankind.

Thinks Independence Is Dead

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

INDEPENDENCE OF private members in the house of Commons is vanishing under party discipline, and continuance of the trend means that Canada will soon have but the empty form of democracy, in opinion of Norman MacLeod, a member of the Press Gallery at Ottawa, who addressed the Empire Club in Toronto on Thursday. Mr. MacLeod thinks the calibre of members in the elective chamber might be improved if the indemnity of $4,000 were cut and the chances of their being called to the Senate were minimized by taking the power of appointment from the government. In other words, he believes too many representatives pay undue attention to the loaves and fishes, rather than the many national issues pressing for solution. The House, in the speaker's opinion, fails utterly to face the facts.

Of course, viewing with alarm is a popular pastime on the Opposition side, and Mr. MacLeod's interests for many years have been largely those of the political power not presently in office. Nevertheless, he is a keen student of public affairs, and what he has to say upon this occasion need not be lightly dismissed. As a matter of fact, it is at least equally true of the Ontario Legislature that independence is rarely evident, and whatever the executive council decides becomes forthwith a fact accomplished. In both cases, however, a determining factor is the unwieldy majority of the government, which tempts to autocracy and renders almost useless any attempt by private members to influence legislation or policy.

As for the prospect of a seat in the Senate influencing members of the Commons, it is doubtful if this can be as material a factor as Mr. MacLeod implies. In the first place, there are 90 seats there, and 245 members in the Commons. Secondly, many are called to the Upper House who have neither been members of or candidates for the elective chamber. An occasional appointment has even been made from outside the ranks of the party in office. So no member of Parliament should feel any certainty of achieving a haven in the Senate, however meticulous his loyalty to party. Mr. MacLeod refers also, of course, to appointment of members to senior posts in the civil service, but this does not take place frequently. The practice is far more prevalent in the Ontario field, especially in recent years, when defeated candidates on the government side have almost invariably been "taken care of" at the public expense.

The statement that independence is "vanishing" implies that there still exists a certain amount. It would be interesting to know to whom Mr. MacLeod attributes it. The writer, after some study of personnel and records a year or two ago, came to the conclusion that there was but one honest-to-goodness "independent in the House of Commons, and submitted the name to Mr. MacLeod for comment. His reply was that the member, though listed as an Independent, had never in emergency failed to support the Liberal party. It would appear, therefore, that all have bowed the knee in the house of Baal, and that political independence is not going but gone.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AFTER THIS I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; and cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb. . . . And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.— Rev. vii, 9, 10, 13-17.

BLOODLESS VICTORY.

(Manchester Guardian)

THERE IS A way in which Russia helps China, the safest and also the best. By maintaining a formidable Far Eastern Army on the frontiers of Manchoukuo, Russia, without risk and without loss, immobilizes almost half the Japanese Army on the Asian continent. From the beginning of the war Japan has been forced to keep 400,000 of her best troops to guard against an invasion which may never come but which can never be discounted. Now, when her forces in Central China are hard pressed in the fighting round Suchow, she must be sorely tempted to take the risk and send reinforcements down from Manchoukuo. But now, too, just at this crucial moment, Russia has suddenly adopted a more aggressive attitude towards Japan. It is also rumored (and rumor is quite enough) that she has strengthened her forces on the Manchoukuo frontier. This, one may say, is the most brilliant strategy of the war in China, even if no weapon is used more deadly than the pen of Mr. Litvinoff.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS.

(Toronto Star)

THE CAUSE of women's rights received somewhat of a setback in Holland the other day. The judge of an Amsterdam court ruled that a woman has no right to slap a man's ears just because she does not like his behavior. The judge fined a young, pretty woman ten shillings for boxing a young man's ears on a street car, and disregarded her plea that the young man, a stranger, had spoken to her in a manner not pleasing to her.

"Government men came around and asked us what we would want for the house. They saw everybody on the street. A lot of people didn't know what it was all about and they gave their price right away."

And here is another:

"This fellow talked as if he wasn't very much interested in my property. He made an offer of $1,000. He said that was all they would pay and that this would be his one and only visit. They would not come back, he told me.

"I wanted at least $1,500 for my property. Later on I kicked about the price at which they optioned the land and they gave me $200 more. I still think I should get more money. I haven't got any of the money yet. I didn't like the fellow's high pressure methods. He took the attitude the Government wasn't even sure the highway would come near our property."

There is a refreshing naivete about the whole matter. Apparently for once a Government went out to buy land and did not pay through the nose for it. The people who sold feel that they have had something put over them. True, they sold their land and got close to the prices they asked. No doubt, some of them never expected to be able to sell at all. But they feel that someone should have told them that it was a Government that had to have those lots. Then they could have held out for a bigger price. What right has a Government to buy land at ordinary prices?

ROCHESTER TRUCK STRIKE IS BROKEN

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 26 (AP) —A 10-day jam of shipping was broken today as 900 truck drivers went back to work after 30-day truce in a city-wide truck strike.

The strike ended on the terms of the 1937-38 contract. Four separate agreements, governing wholesale grocers, over-the-road haulers, intra-city vanmen and the City Delivery Company, a parcel carrier, are to be drawn during the 30-day period.

Only negligible quantities of freight have been moved since April 15, when the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers called the strike after the contract expired.

Fresh fruit and vegetables have been carted, however, as drivers and employers signed a contract when the strike was less than a week old. Announcement of the truce was made early last night.

PRESS WELCOMES ANGLO-IRISH PACT

LONDON, April 26 (C.P. Cable). —The press of the United Kingdom last night welcomed the Anglo-Irish agreements, and pondered on the possibility that they will lead to warmer relations between Dublin and Belfast.

The Times (Independent) said: "The conclusion of these agreements will surely improve relations between Eire and the six counties of Northern Ireland, and their successful execution is bound in time to influence the wider issue of Irish partition."

The News-Chronicle (Liberal): "It is worth far more to us to have the genuine friendship of a whole country rather than the barren right to occupy a few ports surrounded by possibly an unfriendly territory."

The Daily Herald (Labor): "Great Britain and Eire are at last free partners, bound together by friendship and by common interest. May the new friendship never be clouded."

The Morning Telegraph (Cons.): "If this agreement should unhappily not achieve its end, the position will not be appreciably worse than it has been, while if it fulfils expectation, it may well mark the re-entry of an Irish Dominion into the comity of Empire."

The Hatchet Buried?

The Cardiff Western Mail (Cons.):—

"The agreement bears unmistakeable evidence in every clause of sincere desire by both parties to bury the hatchet."

The Belfast Telegraph (Cons.):—

"The British government has behaved with extraordinary generosity to Mr. De Valera." The terms show "a very real desire on the part of the British government to heal differences and we hope it will herald a change of heart on the part of the Eire government toward the King and the British Commonwealth."

The Belfast Northern Whig (Unionist).—

"In the strict sense of the term, the defence document is not an agreement at all, it is surrender. It provides for the final scuttle by the British government from points of great strategic importance."

The Manchester Guardian (Lib.): "The agreement makes no open advance towards removal of the most acute grievance Eire still feels —the partition of Ireland. This is a great disappointment but will not be ignored in Ireland that the agreement has healing qualities."

FIGHT COMMUNISM

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., April 26—(CP).—Gathering here for the annual celebration of the local Canadian Legion post, more than 200 war veterans heard an address by Col. E. A. Baker of Toronto, managing director of the Canadian Nation Institute for the Blind.

Col. Baker, blinded in action, urged the gathering last night to stand solidly behind movements for the betterment of conditions in Canada and oppose the movements toward Communism and Fascism. He was in favor of Canada preparing to defend herself in the event of war.

Five Firemen Dying Following False Alarm

Thirty persons—five of them firemen who are thought to be dying—were injured in this collision between a trolley car and a fire truck in Brooklyn, N.Y. The fire truck was responding to an alarm which proved to be false. The crash literally "wrapped" the fire truck around the trolley.

MOHAWKS PICKING 5 CHIEFS TODAY

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 26. —(CP).— Historic Onondaga Longhouse, for years scene of the tribal deliberatoins of the Six Nations people resident of the Brantford Reserve, will be the locale of ancient ceremonial to-day far ante-dating the coming of the white man—the naming and installation of five chiefs of the hereditary council and the event is made the more interesting because not in three decades has so extensive an induction taken place, owing to the fact that in that time not one vacancy has occurred in the Mohawk tribe alone, and this year there are three empty places to be filled from that one nation.

Early in the afternoon a procession of Indian men and women, chanting an ancient hymn of induction, and headed by the Chiefs-elect will proceed from the Longhouse at Cayuga to that at Onondaga where the ceremony will be enacted. Announcement, according to custom, has already been made in the Mohawk tongue by Ar-Rah-Reh-Go, the keeper of the fire (his anglicized name is David Thomas).

For years past the Hereditary Council has not governed on the reserve, an elected council administering Iroquois affairs in its stead. Nevertheless the older tradition still has hundreds of supporters and the Hereditary Council actually claims it has a majority support.

Ar-Rah-Reh-Go makes no secret of the Hereditary Councils' resentment over its ousting, which occurred in 1924. Nor does he agree that the blessings conferred by the white man have been unmixed. "By introducing white man's teachings matters were made much worse among the Indians," he said.

REBELS SET BACK ON SOUTH FRONT

The manoeuvre semed likely to squeeze off an insurgent column in the vicinity of Albocacer, on the Castellon front, and in lesser degree to menace the Mediterranean column of Alcala de Chivert.

A Government communique said the insurgents were thrown back in disorder in fighting six miles behind the centre of the Albocacer-Alcala line, which the insurgents were holding yesterday.

This line is about 25 miles north of Castellon, important Mediterranean seaport, and the main objective of the immediate insurgent campaign.

INSTITUTE PLANS STARLING DRIVE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 26.—The Belmont Branch Women's Institute met on Thursday afternoon in the Belmont Township Hall, with Mrs. Charles Kennedy, president, in the chair. The meeting was quite largely attended, the members responding to the roll call by an exchange of seeds, bulbs and slips.

The treasurer reported receipts from the Seth Parker evening at $5.40, and $3 for quilting done. A letter of thanks was received in reply to a relief shower held recently by the Institute. The coat-rack which the Institute had made was reported completed and ready for use in the hall.

Due to the alarming increase of starlings in the district this year, the Institute decided to sponsor a drive to rid this section of these harmful birds which do so much damage to the crops. They are offering the sum of 1 cent for every starling egg or beak presented to them by any school pupil of their school section, at any of the regular Institute meetings.

The Belmont Branch will hold the District Institute Annual this year and they have secured the Havelock Town Hall for this purpose on Friday May 27. A committee composed of the president, Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Mrs. George Smith and Mrs. H. L. Scott, were appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

The program included: community singing; reading, entitled "A Kind Word," by Mrs. Cassan; reading, entitled "The Crazy Food We Eat," by Goldilene Dafoe; piano solo, Mrs. Wm. Anderson.

The May meeting was set for Thursday, May 12th.

"DRAMATIZE YOUR IDEAS"

SAYS DALE CARNEGIE

Author of the famous book: "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

● "This is the day of dramatization. Mere assertion of facts is no longer sufficient. The truth must be made vivid, dramatic, interesting.

"In other words, to put your ideas across today, you have to use showmanship if you expect to gain attention."

● "Here is one instance of effective showmanship. A great newspaper learned that people were saying it carried too much advertising and too little news.

"So the paper published all news matter from one regular edition in book form. The book contained 307 pages."

● "The distribution of that book dramatized the fact that the paper carried an enormous amount of interesting matter every day, and effectively squelched the rumours.

"We can all do this sort of thing, though perhaps not in such spectacular ways. So, if you want to gain attention quickly, remember, dramatize your ideas."

Have You Smoked a Turret Lately?

EVERY DAY — everywhere — countless Turret smokers unconsciously dramatize their preference for Turrets. They do so, not by talking about the smooth, satisfying smoke Turrets always give, but by smoking them and enthusiastically recommending them to their friends. Turrets, you know, are made from the finest Virginia tobaccos, in an original and unique blend. No other cigarette is quite the same. The handy calendar on the back of every package is a great convenience, too. If you haven't smoked a Turret lately, try a package today.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

AT A meeting in the Y.W. tonight, several entertainment features for the annual banquet of the Ladies' Basketball League on Friday e'en will be lined up. Over 80 are expected to sit in at this spread, including special guests, loop officers, girls of the various teams and members of the two L.O.B.A. squads. The champs, of course, will cop most of the credit. Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's is guest speaker for the occasion. The banquet will be held at 6.30 in the Y.W.C.A. They are generally lively and enjoyable affairs—and last time some of the lasses sang a catchy number about "All you et, oh, think of all you et", to the tune of "Alouette". Without even blushing, we thought of all we et.

* * * * * *

A GANG of men have been cutting down the steep bank in right field at the Ashburnham Bowl and it'll be ready shortly for gals' and men's softball practises and games. The diamond has always been okay for the lasses—and is one of the best in Ontario—but the male members of the softball society are liable to blast the ball out of the park from time to time. However, they did that sometimes at Central, too. With the Oval, Riverside, the Bowl and several other athletic fields in East City now, that section of the town continues to be quite a spot for sports. Quite apart from the springtime sport of love-making as carried on in half a dozen moonlit corners come May and June.

* * * * * *

WEATHER PERMITTING, baseball workouts will be held in Riverside Park tonight and Thursday in the gloaming, and gees interested should need no further invitation. While it does not require an Einstein to figure out how some of the berths on the Petes' club will be filled this year, yet nearly every summer sees a new rookie or two crash the lineup. And the officers and manager will welcome prospects young and old for a time. Later on, the squad will be pared down and the better players kept. We have been definitely assured that no engraved bids are being mailed to to the boys this season. No indoor workouts this week for the ballsters.

* * * * * *

AT THE next C.O.B.L. meeting, which'll be in Cobourg this Saturday, the entry of a fourth team will be the big thing. A fourth is needed. Matter of schedule and playoffs will come up, too, and that of ye umpires. Neutral district arbiters 'tis likely, and that'll be as big an improvement in this loop as the abolition of hat-pins was to mankind. But more about it later..

* * * * * *

AFTER BEING inactive several years, when they had pro ball, the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association are now re-organizing and want no outside interference. They sent word out over the air yesterday that they would brook no raiding by the O.B.A. It all came about 'cause Max Swanston, C.O.B.L. prexy and O.B.A. officer, invited Smiths Falls and Perth to send representatives to the next Central Loop meeting. Max figured it might revive the amachoor game in the east and also help our league. Secretary Snyder of the O.B.A. informed the E.O.B.A. that this body was not attempting to interfere with the latter, saying: "We have not heard from them for so long we were not sure whether they intended to function and, if they did not, we would have been willing to invite in any clubs if satisfactory arrangements could be made." It is possible that some of the E.O.B.A. clubs favored the Central League, and this caused the official E.O.B.A. outburst.

* * * * * *

IT WOULD appear to us without benefit of crystal ball that it'll sure hustle ye olde C.O.B.L. to get a fourth club this year to take the place of Napanee. The Gibbards are out, and Belleville is still a dead issue. No intentions in the Lakeshore Loop of stepping up to senior, either. We have grave doubts about Trenton Airport, and don't really expect 'em in. Looks like Smiths Falls and Perth won't be available, and there is but one compact senior circuit in Toronto. If all else falls at the Cobourg conclave come Saturday, we would suggest that efforts be made to reach an agreement with the Toronto league and the C.O.B.L. whereby an interlocking schedule could be run this summer, all games counting. For instance have Kingston and Oshawa play here three times each during the schedule, and the Toronto teams come here once apiece. With the Petes playing the visits. Why not? Would mean some new teams for the fans to see. Ought to be worth a thought.

* * * * * *

BILL WALSHE of Kingston says they had a fine turnout of players at the Ponies' workout on Saturday. Lot of new faces and plenty of young lads, as well as a number of veterans. Says he: "Among the newcomers to attract attention were John McIntyre, first baseman who is a student at Queen's; Zuke Zukerman, catcher at Queen's, whose home is in Brooklyn—and is considered a good hitter; Gord Patterson, Queen's scholar from New Jersey, who plays first; and Herb Handford, who played second for Napanee last year and is going to Queen's." There were several former intermediates on deck, also, besides these former Ponies: Corkey, Joyce, Compeau, McQuaide, Scrutton and Webber. Later on, Paczkowski will be back from the States with probably a few more "summer students". The Ponies will be powerful.

* * * * * *

QUITE A FEW prospective players took in a general lacrosse meeting in Duffus' last night to discuss various phases of the coming season. Practises will be held nightly from now on, weather permitting, at six bells in the boxla arena, and on Saturday afternoon. All prospects are invited. Doug Miller has resigned as club treasurer, not having the time this summer, and Alex Fitzgerald has been appointed in his place. The club will likely be known as the Auburns again, and a strong senior "B" grouping is expected shortly. As soon as the date is set and sanction received from the O.L.A. an announcement will be made regarding a lacrosse exhibition match here, maybe the first Friday in May.

* * * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: Church Softball Loop meeting dope should be in elsewhere this eve . . . . Junior City Puck League banquet for the champs is tonight at seven in the Paragon . . . . Men's City Softball League meets at eight in Duffus' tomorrow night; they want more entries . . . . Church Hockey Circuit banquet will be Friday at All Saints' Parish Hall at 6.30 . . . . The Can.-Am. pro ball loop this year will see all teams but Ottawa playing under lights . . . . Frankie Hart is still in the pro rasslin' game, being in a semi-final spot in Kitchener this week . . . . Lindsay gal softballers have begun regular outdoor drills under Skipper George Stephenson . . . . "Y" Circus here will be this Thursday and Friday; program listed tomorrow, we expect . . . . A Toronto official will be invited to the next Central Ontario Baseball League session . . . . Tennis talk is starting around town again . . . . We'd advise baseball and softball players not to bear down too much with the arm yetJor it'll be food for the sea gulls by July . . . . Boxing and rasslin' fans are letting their best drawing season slip by—from April 1st to May 15th . . . . May 1st is closing date for O.L.A. transfers . . . . A Toronto scribe tells of the thousands of miles he covered on sports in the last four years; wonder how much mileage came from going out on the limb with the Leafs.

WEMBLEY SET TO TURN AWAY CUP OVERFLOW

LONDON, April 26.—(CP)—The English football cup competition, entered by clubs from Cornwall to Northumberland and played — in preliminary rounds — on grounds ranging from suburban fields to streamlined stadiums, reaches its climax April 30 at Wembley Stadium, 93,000-seat enclosure.

Wembly, young London borough famous for its huge bowl, is another of those places like Aintree, Epsom and Putney—uneventful 11 months of the year and bursting into sports prominence almost overnight. Preston North End and Huddesfield Town clash in the blue-ribbon event this year.

The Grand National, the Derby and Oxford-Cambridge boat race all attract fans in varying degrees to districts where they are staged but only the cup final brings 93,000 paid admissions a year in advance and nearly another 100,000 rejected applications for pasteboards.

In view of the need for greater accommodation, Brig.-Gen. A. C. Critchley, Calgary-born sports promoter, came forward with a plan to increase his 60,000-seat White City plant to 175,000 if given the playoff. But his Wembley rivals, holders of the current contract, announced an expansion scheme and were awarded the classic for the next 26 years.

Wembley will be increased to 156,000 by 1939, involving an expenditure of £70,000 ($350,000). If at the end of five years pressure for additional seats continues another 25,000 will be added.

North Has to Win

As in the 1937 final when Sunderland defeated Preston 3-1 this clash also will be an all north-of-England encounter. The last time these squads met in the final Huddersfield won 1-0—in 1922.

Cup-final matches produce upsets and experts are wary of "calling their shots." The majority, however, are climbing out on the proverbial limb and favoring Preston on its record of shutouts in the preliminaries.

"Proud Preston," one of the 12 original members of the league in 1888, climaxed its first year's play by capturing the double—cup and league titles. The team—well situated to duplicate this year — went through the original league campaign without a loss. It marked the first and only time a league entry has performed the feat.

Huddersfield's bid for entry in record books is shared by London's famous Arsenal club. Both teams have won the league trophy three times in succession, Huddersfield from 1924-26 and Arsenal 1933-35.

The Lancastrians opened the cup series with a 3-0 shutout over West Ham and followed it with a 2-0 second-round victory over Leicester. Arsenal and Brentford bowed out of the tournament by 1-0 and 3-0 scores. In the semi-final Aston Villa, second division club in line for promtoion, held the major-leaguers to a 2-1 score.

Huddersfield's early-round isn't as impressive. In order they defeated Hull City 3-1, Notts County 1-0, Liverpool 1-0 and then tangled with York City, gallant northern section, third division team who forced an extra game. The first match ended in a scoreless deadlock, the second resulting in a 2-1 victory for the Town. Huddersfield surprised in the semi-final with a 3-1 decision over Sunderland.

In league play this year the Yorkshiremen have disappointed. While Preston has forged to a place among championship contenders, Huddersfield fell away badly after the New Year.

HASTINGS LOOP OPENS MAY 11

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 26—The town softball league will open here Wednesday night, May 11, it was decided at a general meeting of the club held Monday night. Officers for the coming season will be the same as last year and are as follows: President Stanley Stevenson; vice president, Max Scott; secretary-treasurer, Fred Crate.

Stanley Stevenson acted as chairman for the meeting. A very representative gathering were present which would seem to indicate that a good interest is being taken in sports for the season.

Mr. Stevenson in addressing the gathering stated the club would begin the season with a credit balance of approximately $30. He summed up last year's activities and said that they had spent over $350 on improvements to the park.

They hope to have four teams in the league if possible. A second meeting will be held Monday night next to arrange the schedule and have each team present a list of players.

On a motion of G. Herrington and C. Gillespie, the high teams at the end of the schedule will be honored by a banquet. The player with the highest batting average for the season will receive a gift from the club not to exceed the sum of $2 in value.

On a motion of E. Hahn and G. Bond the club will supply benches for the players. All games will be called for 6.30 p.m. it was decided.

The following umpires for scheduled games were appointed: W. Wellman, base umpire; G. Scriver, C. Gillespie, Dit Clapper, A. McKee, A. Thompson, G. Herrington, F. Sargent, J. Brether, E. Hahn, C. McCoy, L. Fleming, R. Richardson, base umpires.

Both Very Good In Their Line

Beautiful Kay — Jim

Sport contrast, we might call this. On the LEFT an exponent of a game in the more refined and sedate class but, nevertheless a gruelling game, tennis. Kay Stammers, beautiful English star is the young lady snapped at one of England's spring tournaments. On the RIGHT, a representative of a game in the rough and ready class, baseball. Jib Bagby is the man, the son of the Jim Bagby who hurled high class ball in the majors 20 years ago. Young Jim won his first big league game for the Red Sox against the Yankees. We'll take tennis.

TORONTO HERE VICTORIA DAY

The first meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms before a good attendance of fans and supporters.

After the financial statement of the 1937 season had been read and approved, the executive went on declaring the Canada Packers the league champions for the season and agreed to give the club the sum of fifteen dollars so that they could arrange recognition for the players that participated throughout the year.

The Injured Players' Fund had the poorest year in the history of the soccer association and the meagre sum left was divided between the two players that had been injured, thereby compelling them to pay the greater part of their liability.

Honorary Presidents.

The following gentlemen were elected as honorary presidents for the year 1938 season: Hon. G. N. Gordon, E. A. Peck, R. S. oCtton, H. A. Cranfield, G. S. Matthews, Dr. Lorna Cotton, G. A. MacDonald, Bishop O'Connor, J. J. Duffus, M.P., C. A. Salmonsen, V. A. Dawson, Dr. E. A. Hammond and Dr. D. W. Clark.

President—Stroyan Leith, Sr.

Stanley Gillespie, Secretary-Treasurer.

The first and second vice-presidents will be elected at the meeting next Monday night.

A letter will be sent to the city requesting the use of King Edward Park on the same conditions as in previous years.

Perhaps Six Teams.

The Canadian General is the only club that has declared themselves ready for the season. No definite statements have been made by the Canada Packers. Rumors have it that the Quaker Oats, Brinton, C.C.F., Deloro will be fully represented at the next meeting when it is expected that new members will be added to the executive board.

Toronto Here May 24

Arrangments have been completed by the C.G.E. club to have Toronto Kenwoods here on May 24th. It is expected that the visitors will have a hundred people in the party and have chartered two buses for the occasion. The local executive trust that the fans will turn out in large numbers to see this smart organization that created such a favorable impression last year.

George Brooks has notified Eric Jones that he anticipated returning the boys' visit to Peterborough soon and expect to reverse the decision. This game would make a good attraction before the proposed opening game that is mooted to take place on Saturday, May 7th.

WHITE BUDDHIST NUN

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26 (AP).—Her head shaven and her feet clad in crude sandals, an American woman, believed to be the only white Buddhist nun, said here today she is going to open a monastery in Southern California. Sister Dhammadinna—she refused to disclose her Christian name when she arrived here yesterday aboard the liner Chichibu Maru—said she left St. Louis 15 years ago "searching for the faith" and entered her Buddhist Order in Ceylon in 1930.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Ty Cobb, one of baseball's all-time greats, paced Philadelphia Athletics to a 9-8 victory over Boston in an American League game 11 years ago today. The "Georgia Peach," playing him 23rd years in the majors, drove in two runs, scored a pair himself, one by stealing home and ended the game with an unassisted double play.

HOCKEY CHAMPS HOLD BANQUET

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26. — The runners-up for the Geo. H. Colbey Cup, Campbellford hockey team brought to a close the most successful season in several years, when on Monday night they held a banquet in the Clifton Tea Room. Secretary Hugh Nind told the players that the year had been a financial success and that a small balance had been carried over to start the team on its way to the cup next year. He thanked the players for the co-operation which had been demonstrated throughout the season and expressed the keen pleasure it had been to work with such an enthusiastic group which although it was their first year as a team on the ice together had gone to the top of the league, only to loose out in the finals. Each of the players was presented with a windproof sports jacket and a group picture of the team.

LONG JOHN GEE DEFEATS WINGS TO TOP PROGRAM

SYRACUSE, April 26 (CP).—That "local boy makes good" headline is getting plenty of use in Syracuse these days, even if Johnny Gee, Syracuse Chiefs' mountainous rookie pitcher, is reversing the procedure and making good right in his own backyard.

Gee is a southpaw who yesterday beat Rochester Red Wings, 7-1, for his second gilt-edged performance of the year. The 23-year-old Syracusan's seven-hit win overshadowed the International League's other contests in which Newark Bears bobbed up with another rookie hurler and beat Toronto 5-1; Buffalo Bisons cashed in on Jersey City errors to win 5-4, and Montreal downed Baltimore 9-5.

Gee, who hurled and won the Chiefs' opener last week, was well supported. The Chiefs strung together five runs on as many hits and a walk and an error in the sixth to sew up the game. In all they got 12 hits.

Nick Strincevich, the Bears' rookie, scattered eight hits while his mates were making seven hits count for the Bears' fourth straight league victory.

Jersey Giants fell apart in the first three innings and the Bisons scored four times and in the seventh Ollie Carnegie singed to drive home the winning run. Tom Baker, making his first start for the Giants, was charged with the defeat.

Montreal, outhit 11-9, capitalized on Baltimore miscues and a big eighth inning to win. It was a sloppy ball game marred by seven errors.

WON 54 OF 73 SOCCER GAMES

WINNIPEG, April 26 (CP)—Islington Corinthian soccer club, which is on a world tour and will start Canadian matches at Vancouver May 7, has compiled a notable record since leaving home.

Since leaving Great Britain last October the team has won 54 of 73 games, tied 16 and lost three. They scored 174 goals against their opponents' 26.

This record is remarkable as they have often played five or six games a week on all types of pitch and in many different climates.

Two of Corinthian's tie games were played on the Malay peninsula where they engaged in 16 exhibitions against strong naval and military teams.

The eleven games to be played in Canada are as follows:

Vancouver, May 7; Nanaimo, B.C., May 9; Victoria, May 11; Calgary, May 14; Edmonton, May 16; Saskatoon, May 18; Regina, May 19; Winnipeg, May 21; Fort William, Ont., May 23; Toronto, May 25, and Montreal, May 27.

'Poker-Faced' Tennis Star After 8th Wimbledon Title

Last Of Dempsey, Tunney, Tilden, Jones, Ruth Era Still In Limelight

NEW YORK, April 26. — We have only one relic left of the Golden Decade of sports. But that relic happens to be in pretty fair shape. We mean Helen Wills Moody.

The old boys are sitting feebly by the fireside — Dempsey, Tunney, Tilden, Jones, Ruth — but the little lady who pinned up her pigtails under a visor and trounced Molla Bjurstedt Mallory 15 years ago at Forest Hills is on her way to Europe again, seeking another world tennis championship. And with a pretty good chance of winning it, too.

Her name has been in the public prints so long that Helen seems to be a very old character you might expect to come across smoking a cob pipe. Actually she is only 32 years old, but she has been playing tennis for close to 20 years, championship tennis for 15 years. This is her third comeback. Once she had to take time out for an appendicitis operation, once for marriage, once for a spinal injury.

Frigid Helen.

Only one other great champion of the last 15 years possessed in a comparable degree the magnificent self-control that Helen brought to the tennis courts. She destroyed the tempestuous Molla Mallory back in 1923 with such icy calm that the press row christened her "Miss Poker Face." One scribe wrote that the beads of perspiration that rolled down from her brow that day surely must have formed icicles. She had that same quality two years ago at Wimbledon when Helen Jacobs, her arch-rival had been beaten, all but one point, and she rallied to crush her over-eager, more demonstrative opponent. In her conquests she has displayed the game calm technique with which Tunney slashed Dempsey to his doom 12 years ago in Philadelphia.

Helen was 12 or 13 years old when her father, Clarence A. Wills, a physician in Berkeley, Cal., started to train her as a tennis player. In a few weeks she was beating her dad. "Pop" Fuller coached her, then Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston (donor of the Wightman Cup) took her in charge. Helen was the national girls' champion in 1921. It was not until 1923 that she finally caught up with the spectacular Molla and became national champion at 17.

In the old days she wore a simple frock that might have been made by her ever-present mother. The distinguishing thing about her was the white visor. Before Helen came along, most of the tennis people simply put a band about their heads. Helen "made" the visor. Both men and women adopted it when the champion took it up. To-day her attire is the height of sophisticated fashion. Through the years she has "kept training" faithfully. Physically she is fit as a fiddle.

Chance for Revenge Blocked.

Helen's most crushing defeat came at the hands of the incomparable Suzanne Lenglen. After beating Molla, Helen went to Wimbledon to meet the great French star, then at the top of her game. The match was the most ballyhooed tennis battle of the century. A syndicate of French gamblers bet 5,000,000 francs to 1,000,000 that Suzanne would win.

Suzanne won, 6-4, 8-6. Helen was a game loser, praising Lenglen copiously in the press with such phrases as "There is nobody like her — she is a wonder." Secretly Helen longed for another whack at Suzanne, for she believed in her heart she could take her, too. She almost got the chance in Paris, but two days before the match appendicitis smote Miss Poker Face. When Lenglen turned pro., Helen's chance for revenge was gone for ever.

PITTSBURG PIRATES HANG UP SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

CHICAGO CUBS BEATEN 8 TO 6 IN BUCS' DRIVE

NEW YORK, April 26. (CP).—It might not be a bad idea to begin taking Pittsburg Pirates seriously in the current National Baseball league race. They have been a disappointment to their followers in recent years, but this is another go-round and Pie Traynor's boys act like they're not fooling.

Their seventh straight win was scored yesterday at the expense of Chicago Cubs 8-6 and that puts them a full game in front of the second-place New York Giants, who were held idle by a practically invisible rain at the Polo Grounds.

The Pirates have taken up right where they left off last season, when they closed with 10 straight victories. Twice yesterday they exploded four-run rallies to overtake and pass the Cubs, the second time in the eighth inning.

St. Louis Cardinals took it on the chin again in the only other National League contest and took unrivaled possession of the basement. Paul Derringer, pitching his second victory for Cincinnati, held the birds to three hits to win 5-0.

Yanks Bow to A's

Still clubbing feebly, New York Yankees bowed to Philadelphia Athletics 6-1. All the champions' seven hits off Lee Ross were singles, and Lou Gehrig went hitless again. Dario Lodigiani, the A's rookie second-baseman from Oakland, pounded a homerun and two singles off Joe Beggs.

Gehrig now has made a grand total of one hit in 24 official trips to the plate. Any other Yank in a similar slump would have been pulled before this, but manager Joe McCarthy is loath to break Lou's long record of continuous games. The dope now is that Joe DiMaggio will be back in the line-up Thursday, and many believe his presence will bring Gehrig back to life.

Lefty Ostermueller pitched Boston Red Sox into second place in the American, blanking Washington 7-0 with four hits. Lefty, in his first appearance last week, allowed the Yankees only one blow in six innings.

Detroit's sluggers pounded out a 10-1 win over three St. Louis Browns pitchers. It was the Tigers' second triumph in seven starts. Chet Laabs drove across five runs with a homerun and a single, and Hank Greenberg hit his third homer.

Edmonton Grads Favored To Win

EDMONTON, April 26.—(CP). — Victors by one-sided scores in the first two games of the best-of-five Canadian women's basketball final with Toronto Consols, Edmonton Grads are odds-on favorites to sweep the series in three straight with a victory to-morrow night.

Grads, undefeated in a Dominion title series since they first won the championship in 1922, added a 66-29 trimming last night to the 72-28 defeat they administered to the eastern champions in the first game Saturday.

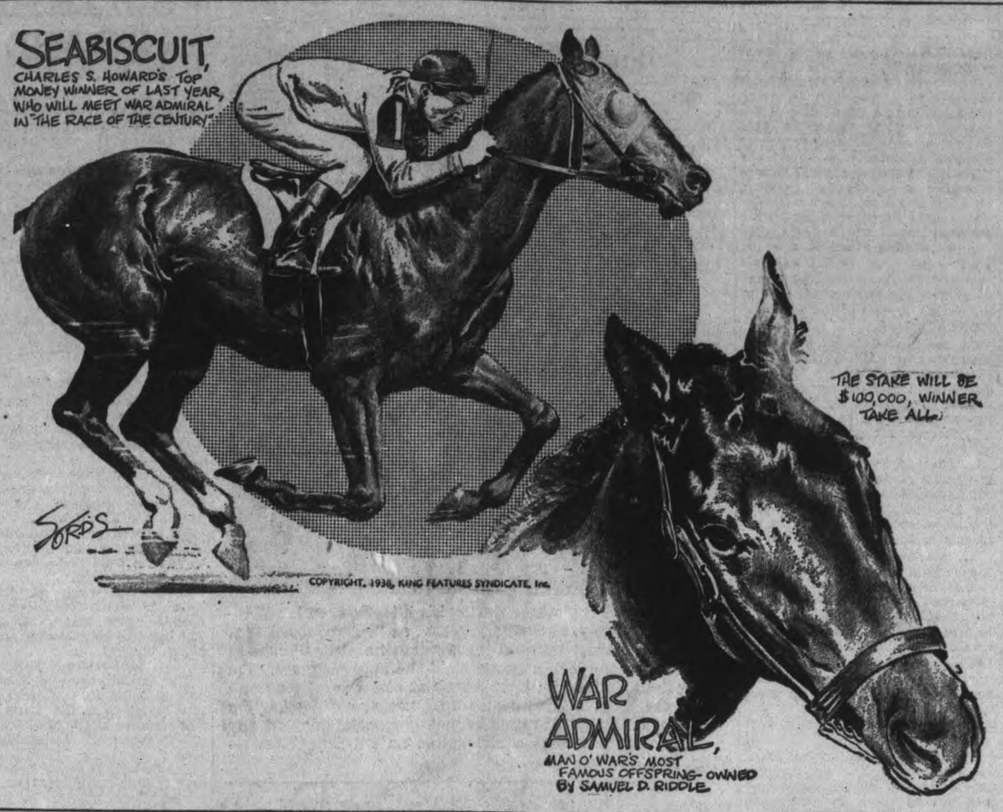
Preston Weakened For Cup Final

LIVERPOOL, England, April 26.—(CP Cable.)— Preston North End will be forced to play against Huddersfield Town in the English football cup final at Wembley Stadium Saturday without two of its crack Scottish players.

Playing for Preston's reserve team against Liverpool reserves yesterday, J. Dougal, clever centre-forward, was carried from the field with a bad knee injury. The accident came as a double shock to the Lancashire squad following the loss of J. L. Milne, Scottish international left-half who suffered a fractured collarbone in the match against Arsenal at the week-end.



Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 26 (A.P.). — Jimmy Dykes was so hard up for shortstops after Luke Appling broke his leg he even tried out Jimmy, Jr.—but no dice—don't worry about "poor" Joe DiMaggio....In addition to the $25,000 he collects from the Yankees, he's cleaning up close to five grand for a magazine series, about the same for endorsements and about two G's a month from his fish place in Frisco.

Jockey Bruce (Grand National) Hobbs, who'll be over for the Eastern United States steeplechase season this summer, may take a crack at Santa Anita riding next winter if he has any luck around here.... Francis Frisch, whose Cardinals are at the bottom of the bunch, might have less to worry about if the gas house gang had some of its traded ivory back....Such as a Ripper Collins, who went to the Cubs; Burgess Whitehead, to the Giants; Lippy Leo Durocher (Dodgers); Gus Mancuso (Giants); and Pitchers Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton who are with the Cubs.

From the new Charlie White Red Book: No National League batter has hit for the cycle (homer, triple, double, single in one game) since Ducky Medwick turned the trick back in '35....While Gerry Walker, Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig all did it in the A.L. last year. Goose Goslin, in case you didn't know, still holds the record for hitting into four double plays in one game.... Boiling Boily Grimes is one of six with a finger in the N.L. mark—three.

Ruppert Icy As Joe DiMaggio Signs No Fanfare, Ballyhoo And No Bonus

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP). — The unconditional surrender of holdout Joe DiMaggio took place at 10.45 a.m. on Monday. Giuseppe the Great arrived at the New York Yankee downtown baseball offices five minutes late, received a contract calling for $25,000 from Colonel Jake Ruppert, and he signed it.

None of the typical Ruppert fanfare and ballyhoo attended the signing ceremony. Except for the presence of a few baseball reporters, press photographers, and newsreel men, it might have been the signing of Joe Foul Ball with Terre Haute.

"Now go ahead and play ball, Joe DiMaggio," ordered the Colonel like a stern country judge. "Do your best. I hope you have a great year."

"Thanks," said Joe. "I'll do my best."

Some one asked if Joe was getting a bonus for signing.

"Joe DiMaggio," barked the Colonel, "are you getting any bonus for this?"

"No bonus," gulped Joe.

"That's right," continued the Colonel. "And furthermore, Joe DiMaggio will not get a cent of pay until he starts to play ball. Now go ahead you fellows (newspapermen), and bet that $2,000 with the fellow (Sports Editor Jimmy Powers of the New York Daily News) who says Joe signed his contract last fall.

"Yeh, but where are we going to get the money?" asked a reporter, "besides, Powers's bet is $5,000."

No one made a move to borrow the dough or to try to place the bet with Powers, so the matter was forgotten.

However, the Colonel was so riled about the assertion DiMaggio had been signed all along and that his holdout was a publicity stunt that the old gentleman could hardly talk.

"He didn't want any mention made of this signing to-day," explained General Manager Ed Barrow, "but I convinced him it would look bad—as if Joe had been signed—if we didn't announce the time of signing in advance."

Reds Purchase Big Jim Weaver

ST. LOUIS, April 26.—(AP).—Big Jim Weaver, St. Louis Browns pitcher, has been sold to Cincinnati Reds, the Browns' office announced last night. No price was divulged. Weaver was obtained from Pittsburgh on waivers last winter.

Look! Look!

Every so often you hear of "old men", usually in their 70's performing this and that athletic feat. Well, here's something really astouning, Peter W. Foley, Above, is 85 (that's right, 85), and all he did recently was run in the Boston marathon AND FINISH! It took him about 4½ hours, but all things considered, we'd say that was pretty good. Foley took to marathons at the age of 50 and gave the Boston course a going-over this year, "just to show 'em there's life in the old dogs yet." Quite a lad!

WOMEN PLAYERS GAIN PLACE IN CRICKET BIBLE

LONDON, April 26. — (CP) — Changes under consideration for several years by Wilfrid H. Brookes, the editor, have been incorporated in the 75th edition of Wisden Cricketers' Almanack—the last word in recording statistics, reports, rules and other facts concerning the old English game.

Sweeping and extensive alterations have been made in its composition. Its 990 pages this year are richer than ever in cricket features, a startling innovation being a section devoted to women's play.

The compact volume with the yellow covers finds its way to all parts of the globe where it is studied avidly by devotees of the game, many of whom have not seen an important match in years. For some of them it will take a little time to become accustomed to the changes which make an abrupt break from the familiarity of previous years.

Fifteen pages are devoted to the Marylebone Cricket Club eleven's tour of Canada last summer. The 19 matches played on the trip across the Dominion are reported fully and the comment made that "in every way the visit fulfilled expectations and the party returned confident that the popularity of the game in Canada had been greatly increased." The M. C. C. won 12 games and lost four, the remainder being drawn.

For the five cricketers of the year the choice has fallen on T. W. J. Goddard, Gloucestershire; Joseph Hardstaff, Nottinghamshire; Leonard Hutton, Yorkshire; J. H. Parks, Sussex and Edward Paynter, Lancashire.

Advice For Youth

Feature articles by distinguished players are included. The case for more natural wickets is put by Gilbert Allen, England captain and A. P. (Tich) Freeman, former Kent star, gives advice to young bowlers. He suggests they are too mechanical and do not use their intelligence.

"Pat" Hendren, idol of Middlesex crowds at Lords for years who has retired from first-class cricket, gives his "Reflections" and Mr. Justice H. V. Evatt presents an Australian view of Don Bradman, great Antipodean batsman who is leading the Commonwealth team in England this season.

German Stars Drill Without Von Cramm

BERLIN, April 25. — Germanys international tennis team, which suffered a 6 to 1 defeat by Poland over the week-end, began practice for Davis Cup competition Monday.

Among those who participated were Henner Henkel, Davis Cup star, who did not play in the Polish series; George Metaxa, former Austrian Cup star; Hans Redl, former Austrian star, and Hans Denker, fourth on the German list.

Berlin newspaper accounts of the practice did not mention the absence of Baron Gotifried von Cramm, detained by police several weeks ago.

It was considered probable that Henkel and Metaxa would handle the Davis Cup singles assignments with a wide open race in prospect for the doubles places.

Germany has a "Prettier Girls" campaign.

FAVOR VANCOUVER TO WIN CAGE TITLE

OTTAWA, April 26.—(CP).—Vancouver's western trim basketball machine that has eked out two consecutive victories over Ottawa Glebe Grads by two-point margins rules slight favorites to win to-night's game and the best-of-five series for the national senior title.

Westerns displayed more co-ordinated team work and scoring punch to edge Grads out 35-33 in the first game Saturday night, and 34-32 in the second last night. If Ottawa wins to-night other games will be played Thursday and Friday if necessary.

Grads have showed plenty of fight and last night battled on even terms for most of the second half against the visitors lightning passes. But they lacked the final drive to snatch a victory. Last year University of British Columbia Thunderbirds were champions.

Nation's Agriculture Problems Must Be Solved By Men Who Work On Land

W. R. Reek, Deputy Minister Of Agriculture, Addresses Rotary Club

Agricultural problems will be solved by the men on the land, and by nobody else, W. R. Reek, deputy-minister of agriculture for Ontario declared in addressing the annual farmers' day luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel on Monday. A representative gathering of senior farmers from all sections of the district including Warden E. N. McDonald of Peterborough County and Reeves Jas. Gifford of Ennismore and Allen B. Mann of Smith township heard Mr. Reek deliver an earnest and impressive address upon the problems that confront Ontario farmers at the present time. Among the visitors was Mayor Hamilton.

President James Dutton was in the chair for the first part of the luncheon and Rotarian visitors were introduced by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Rotarian Roy Goring gave a report of the inter-city meeting held at Newcastle under the auspices of the Bowmanville club and said that it was the most enjoyable affair of its kind he had attended. He congratulated the Bowmanville Rotarians upon the excellent arrangements they had made for the meeting and the success with which they were carried out and suggested that the secretary write the Bowmanville Club and express Peterborough's congratulations to the officers and members.

It was announced by the chairman that the election of new directors would be deferred until the next meeting.

The luncheon was then turned over to Rotarian George A. Gillespie who introduced each farmer guest personally and welcomed them all on behalf of the Rotary Club.

A Chance To Help

In beginning Mr. Reek emphasized the fact that it might be possible for such organizations as the service clubs to make a contribution toward bettering the existing situation in regard to agriculture. The greatest problem facing the farmers of this country, he said, was to provide the quality that was demanded in foreign markets and at the same time to compete with the products of other countries in those markets in the matter of price. In wheat the mistake had been made of thinking the world could not do without Canada's No. 1 hard wheat for bread-making purposes with the result that we learned that the people of Europe could get along without it.

There was a sheltered market for Canadian bacon in Britain but there the Canadian product was selling from 3 to 10 shillings less than the foreign article. That was a matter of quality and in that regard the speaker expressed the opinion that Canadian packers were in advance of the producers of hogs; that the fault did not lie so much in how the bacon was processed but in the quality of hog produced. There had been a long campaign to educate farmers to produce better bacon hogs and in one Western Ontario county this effort had succeeded admirably until suddenly there was a market in the United States for heavier hogs and immediately the producers forgot all about bacon hogs again and had started in raising the bigger variety.

A similar mistake had been made in regard to beef cattle. When instead of producing their own cattle Ontario farmers started to import them from the west. They were depending on an unstable market and as a result the beef cattle industry at the present time was in a less stabilized condition than ever before.

The American Market

"There have been times," said Mr. Reek, "when the American market was profitable to us, but I have been checking up closely and I am convinced that only on half a dozen occasions since 1880 has there been profit for us in the American market."

It was necessary, he maintained to start producing beef in a different way to meet another demand and in this connection Mr. Reek saw a market developing in Britain for Canadian cattle.

The speaker said that what was needed to be done now was to sell back to the producers of farm products their own business and to sell to the people living in urban centres the value of agriculture and the idea that when the farmer prospered the whole country prospered with him. He was satisfied that farm problems would be solved by the farmers themselves. There were signs that showed this was being accomplished and here Mr. Reek referred to the co-operative movement in the maritimes and to what had been accomplished by the apple-growers in improving the quality of their product. The co-operative movement was spreading into Ontario from the maritimes and the speaker said it was bound to come.

Government's Part

Touching upon the part government should play in these problems Mr. Reek declared that in the last twenty years governments had been doing too much. They had been doing things for people on the farms that these people should be doing for themselves and everything that was done had had the effect of weakening the people in the country.

There were things that came within the province of governments to do, and in this category were listed education, schools and short courses, the solving of soil problems, attention to the health of animals, improvement in the quality of potatoes, etc. In this connection Mr. Reek said there was no reason why Ontario potatoes should sell for 25 or 30 cents less a bag than potatoes from other provinces.

In conclusion he urged the necessity of making the farm prosperous and attractive enough to keep the young women and young men there. Personally when he saw the conditions on some of the farms he did not blame the boys and girls for not wanting to stay. All the government assistance and all the plans that could be devised could not make a success out of inefficient farmers, he warned, as he concluded with an appeal for Rotary to help in any way possible to assist agriculture as the backbone of the country.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on motion of Rotarian Mac Gordon and Warden E. N. McDonald.

ancient pair of field glasses taken from the Irish warrior when he surrendered as leader of the Irish garrison in the Dublin uprising of Easter week, 1916. Then they clasped hands.

End of Disputes.

The accord provided for termination of trade and financial disputes and for Ireland to be responsible for her own defence.

Highlights of the accord, which was in the form of four agreements, include:

1—Britain unconditionally leaves the ports of Berehaven, Cobh (Queenstown), and Lough Swilly, where she has maintained naval defence stations.

2—Ireland pays to Britain £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) outright in settlement of the old land annuity payments which, if they had continued until 1990, would have reached an estimated total of £150,000,000. The payments formerly were collected by the London Government for former landlords who sold their Irish holdings to peasant farmers.

3—Ireland will continue to pay £250,000 annually to settle debts for property damaged during strife in that country.

4—Britain and Ireland both abolish retaliatory duties which were the outgrowth of the trade war of the last six years.

5. Ireland generally gains access to British markets, receiving the same treatment for her goods as goods from other parts of the British Commonwealth.

6. Certain British goods will get preferential treatment in the Irish market; coal will enter Ireland free as against a three-shilling (75 cents) duty on a foreign coal a ton.

7. Ireland undertakes to scale duties on her tariff-protected infant industries to a level allowing "reasonable competition" from British producers and manufacturers. The latter will have an audience before the prices commission to be appointed toward that end.

8. Both governments intend to consult frequently in order to regulate trade by quantitative restrictions.

The treaty is to run for three years upon ratification. Unless notice of termination should be given six months before the end of that period, it will continue to remain in force until six months after a notice of termination is given.

Britain undertook to surrender the three ports where she has maintained naval defence stations by Dec. 31. It was expected Ireland would fortify her ports and increase her army with her new responsibilities. In this connection attention was called to a recent statement by Mr. De Valera that Ireland never would permit itself to be used as the base for an attack on Britain.

Grow More Food.

The pact was expected to encourage Irish agricultural development which in turn would be a valuable food reservoir for Britain in an emergency. On the other hand British manufacturers of textiles, iron and steel, and coal producers, will profit.

Department estimates to the extent of $4,000,000.

The relief measure which was preceded by a resolution on which some debate took place prior to the Easter recess, is similar to that brought down in previous years and provides safeguards by which the Federal Government may require provinces to furnish full facilities for audit and proof of need. It also makes provision for assisting private business.

Stirling Starts It.

Major debate of the day was precipitated by Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) who was Defence Minister in the closing months of the last Conservative regime.

On the motion to go into committee on supply Mr. Stirling moved an amendment: "That in the opinion of this House moneys appropriated by Parliament for defence of Canada should not be used directly or indirectly for political partisan purposes."

He charged that in the Victoria by-election campaign Defence Minister Mackenzie had brought forward the government's expenditures for defence of the Pacific coast in his appeals to the electorate.

Mr. Mackenzie declared his reference to defence expenditures had been made because the C.C.F. Party, which had a candidate in the field, had challenged the government's defence policy last year by moving a want of confidence motion.

"I make no apology and I do not regret that defence was discussed," the Minister said. "Why all these aftermaths when the people of Victoria have decided the issue once and for all.

Ralph Mayhew, Liberal candidate, was successful in Victoria, the first time a member of that party had been elected there in nearly 30 years. He has been ill ever since and has not taken his seat. Mr. Stirling expressed his sympathy for Mr. Mayhew and he hopes the member-elect would soon recover.

F. C. Betts (Con., London) seconded Mr. Stirling's motion and brought up what he declared to be another instance of using government money for political purposes in selection of Canada's contingent for the Coronation last summer.

Withdraws Motion.

After Mr. Mackenzie King and several Liberal members had expressed regret at the necessity of opposing a motion, the principle of which they approved, Mr. Stirling, declaring he was satisfied with the Prime Minister's assurance, withdrew it.

Mr. Stirling read from newspaper reports of the Minister's speeches in Victoria, attributing to him the statement that Canada's defences and equipment were inadequate and obsolete and that the Conservative Party had crippled the training of militia and wrecked the air force.

He read an extract in which, after showing the great increase in defence expenditures under the Liberal regime, Mr. Mackenzie was quoted as saying:

"I ask you to remember what we are endeavoring to do and I am taking this opportunity of requesting the electors of Victoria to approve the policy of defence of this coast when they go to the polls November 29."

Mr. Stirling said that when the defence estimates were up last year there was "no carping criticism" from members of the official opposition.

It had been wrong to use defence expenditures as a means of appealing for votes and unfair on the part of the minister not to explain the reason for the increased expenditures was a changed policy on the part of the whole British Empire.

Since the Great War and up to 1936 the policy had been disarmament and then it had swung over to rearmament, and the minister should have made that plain in outlining the Government's policy.

Mr. Betts charged that political considerations had influenced the Government in selecting a contingent of 256 men, of whom only five were private soldiers, to represent Canada at the Coronation.

A Golden Chance Lost?

In submitting to political influence the Government had chosen a body of men that failed to do justice to Canada's militia and had lost a "golden opportunity" to advertise Canada in the heart of the Empire.

He was prepared to prove, Mr. Betts said, that political pressure was successfully brought to bear, and he challenged the minister to show this to be untrue.

Mr. Mackenzie said the seconder's address was "not only conceived but expressed and delivered in the worst possible taste I have ever seen displayed in this House of Commons."

Members of the Canadian contingent had been selected by a committee of the Permanent Force on recommendations of commanding officers. Many had earned high honors on the field.

Insult to Contingent.

"Remarks of the honorable member are an insult to the reputations and military records of every single man in that contingent," Mr. Mackenzie said. One high military authority in London had described the marching of the Canadian contingent as "the finest of any of the Empire contingent."

Included among the contingent were presidents of Conservative organizations, the Minister said in denying that political influence had operated in their selection.

The charge on defence expenditures had been brought "in a gentlemanly way by the member for Yale." He denied that men had to join Liberal organizations to get jobs on defence projects on Vancouver Island, or that he had charged the Conservative Party with wrecking the Air Force and crippling Militia training.

Elections in Australia and in Great Britain had been fought on defence issues and "sane defences should be one of the major policies of this country. Why should we conceal it."

As a "moderate taxpayer" Opposition Leader Bennett said he found it "a little difficult to accommodate myself to the thought my taxes go to supply work only for Liberals."

"That is absolutely incorrect," Mr. Mackenzie interjected.

Mr. Bennett told of reports made to him in Victoria that men were refused work on defence projects unless they could produce a membership card in the Liberal Association. He said a Royal Commission investigation would prove his charge.

The Opposition Leader also supported the charge that political considerations ruled selections for the Canadian contingent and told the minister an investigation in his Department would prove it.

Mr. Bennett expressed the hope Mr. Mackenzie King would make a statement giving assurance money voted for defence would not be used for political partisan purposes.

Deplored By Premier

"I am prepared to go much farther than that," the prime minister said. "I will say the government would deplore money voted by parliament being used directly or indirectly for political artisan purposes no matter for what purpose they have been appropriated.

He would support the motion but for the fact it was an expression of want of confidence in the government and a direct attack upon the minister of national defence.

The prime minister said in the last campaign Mr. Bennett had gone from coast to coast advocating expenditures of public money for various purposes that they might serve political ends. "And he got his answer direct from the electorate."

G. G. McGeer (Lib. Vancouver-Burrard) charged the opposition leader with having gone to the Victoria campaign with "the outworn cry of 1911" of "no truck nor trade with the Yankees" and had endeavored to arouse fear among the people that Canadian preferences in the British market were to be surrendered to facilitate a trade agreement between United Kingdom and United States.

M. J. Coldwell (CCF Rosetown-Biggar) told of his part in the Victoria campaign and declared appeals had been made to elect a Liberal who would be in parliament to represent that city when defence estimates were being considered. Campaigns should be placed on a high plane, he thought.

H. S. Hamilton (Lib. Algoma West) approved the principles of the motion but would not vote for a motion of want of confidence in the government. He was convinced the Liberal party would not misuse government expenditures.

Leslie Mutch (Lib. Winnipeg South) likened the debate to "fiddling" while the Canadian "Rome" was burning. He thought there were many things at which the House could better occupy itself.

Wants Nothing From President

Henry Ford is pictured during his interview, on his Wayside Inn property, at Sudbury, Mass., as he announced that he will be a most unusual guest when he visits President Roosevelt at the White House. Said the auto magnate, "I'm going down to let him have a look at someone who doesn't want anything, and who also does not want to give him any advice." The visit would be merely a social one and any "conference" would be a renewal of an old acquaintanceship, Mr. Ford explained.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS CHARGING FEE AT TOURIST CAMP

Only Genuine Tourists Will Be Welcome Committee Decides Fee Of 50 Cents A Night Set

System Of Electric Lighting Will Possibly Be Installed

Peterborough's tourist camp at Riverside Park, operated for the first time last summer, will no longer be run on a free basis the parks committee of the city council decided on Monday night. Instead those who use the park will be asked to contribute to the civic treasury at the rate of 50 cents per car per night, with a weekly rate of $2.50. Furthermore only genuine tourists will be welcome, the committee having decided to bar visitors of the type noted there last summer who came in and took advantage of the free camp for weeks while the head of the family worked at painting or other odd jobs around the city.

The matter was introduced by Chairman Ald. Walter Stocker who said that his information was that a charge was made at practically all tourist camps and there was no reason why Peterborough should continue to operate on a free basis. Ald Stocker also told the committee of some of the undesirable visitors who made use of the facilities there for long periods last summer. He suggested that system of electric lighting should be installed.

On motion of Ald. Dutton and Ald. Juby it was decided to charge at the rate of 50 cents per night or $2.50 a week, to confine the use of the camp to genuine tourists and to have electric wiring installed.

The committee was unanimous in the decision that no concessionaires should be allowed in the tourist part of the park.

Requests Are Granted

Applications from the Peterborough and Whitaker Cricket clubs for the use of Nicholls Oval and from the Peterborough Ball Club to practice and play its games at Riverside Park were granted on motion of Ald. Juby and Dutton, the chairman being authorized to arrange the details.

In regard to baseball Ald. Juby suggested that the senior club should give junior clubs a break in the matter of scheduled games and the resolution granting the club the use of the Riverside Park included the committee's request that the juniors be given every consideration.

The matter of appointing a caretaker for Nicholls Oval was left in abeyance. One applicant for the position was heard at the meeting.

An application from the Peterborough lacrosse club for a grant of $500 toward the cost of erecting a clubhouse at the lacrosse bowl was discussed and on motion of Ald. McIntyre and Juby the chairman and mayor were authorized to discuss with the lacrosse officials the question of having the property revert back to the city in the event of its present use being discontinued. It was felt that this should be done before any further grants were made.

BLAME GRAY HAIRS ON 'FOOL' DRIVERS

GALT, April 26.—It's the "hare-brained" motorist who puts the silver hairs among the gold of engineers, says Joseph Hoffman, Havelock, who drives heavy freight locomotives on the C.P.R. between Trenton and Smith's Falls.

A Galt native, Mr. Hoffman is here renewing acquaintances. He said motorists had raced his trains and many times "missed death by inches" at crossings.

"Even gates are not perfect protection. I have seen gates on one crossing smashed twice in one week. Some drivers seem to have their attention on everything but the road," he believed.

Traffic gates are the first to drop. The other two gates are then lowered. The interval between the lowering of the first and second pair of gates allows a vehicle caught on the track an opportunity to get clear.

Following an increase, gasoline is being sold at 42 cents a gallon in Ireland.

The Rambling REPORTERS

CATCHING WOLVES

Steward Murphy, the Burleigh township farmer who trapped the largest timber wolf in the county this year, says that shooting or trapping wolves is the most difficult way. Easiest way, according to him, is to snare the animals.

From his limited experience the Examiner's cameraman is inclined to disagree that it is difficult to shoot a wolf. For three weeks ago, armed with an expensive camera, he "shot" Mr. Murphy's wolf—a dead one—without any trouble. That same afternoon he went out to the zoo, forgot to change his plate, "shot" a deer on the same negative. The result was a picture of the weirdest animal yet seen in this district—one for which the government should have been willing to pay much more than the $15 wolf bounty. The city editor refused to run the picture. "It would frighten children," he gave as his reason. The photographer protested that most hunters were more than pleased when they bagged two animals with the one bullet.

The other day Mr. Murphy's wolf came back from the Department of Game and Fisheries and the photographer loaded his camera, "shot" the wolf at close range, produced a picture of a more standardized animal.—J.F.P.

GRANT ORANGEMEN VICTORIA PARK FOR JULY TWELFTH

Victoria Park will be the headquarters of the Orange celebration here on July 12, it was decided at Monday night's meeting of the parks committee of the city council when the Orangemen's request for the use of that park was granted.

Earlier in the year the suggestion had been made that the demonstration be staged at Riverside Park but at last Monday's meeting an Orange deputation composed of R. C. Darling, Arthur Millen and Bert Lockington waited upon the committee and reported that Riverside Park was not considered suitable for the purpose for which they wanted a park on that day.

Mr. Darling, who was the spokesman for the deputation, said that there was not sufficient shade at Riverside Park and further that the Orangemen considered it would be better for local business if the visitors were kept in the centre of the city than taken to either Riverside Park or the Exhibition grounds.

Ald. Stocker raised the question of concessions and referred to the trouble in Victoria Park at the last Orange celebration when damage was done to the grass by the concessionaires, some of whom had used very impolite language when remonstrated with.

Members of the deputation expressed themselves as entirely willing to co-operate with the parks committee in preventing damage to the park and it was suggested that any booths that were erected should be put up along Murray street.

Ald. Juby moved, seconded by Ald. Dutton, that the request for the use of Victoria Park be granted, the Orange committee to co-operate with Ald. Stocker in regard to the location of booths and other matters.

INDIAN BOY HAS SCARLET FEVER

Trouble comes in batches for 11-year-old Gerald Johnston, Indian boy, who has been in hospital now for more than a year, and whose leg had to be amputated two months ago.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, to-day confirmed reports the youngster has contracted scarlet fever at Nicholls Hospital. He thought possibly the boy had contracted his illness through outside visitors. No other patient at the hospital has scarlet fever, he said. His illness became apparent on Sunday night. Dr. Fraser said the boy's condition is not serious, that it is a mild case of scarlet fever.

Gerald has been removed to Queen Mary Isolation hospital, where he will remain during the quarantine term of three weeks. In the meantime the public ward where he was a patient at Nicholls hospital is under quarantine for a week, hospital authorities said. There are four other patients in the room.

Mrs. Bowes was said to have found the small fortune in the toe of a pair of shoes which the parcel contained.

LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT IS PAID TO YOUNG PRIEST

Clergy of the diocese of Peterborough and a large congregation of the laity paid their last tributes of respect to the late Rev. Harold Snider in his funeral this morning from St. Peter's Cathedral to St. Peters Cemetery.

Bishop O'Connor sang pontifical requiem Mass with Rev. J. P. Kelly assistant priest, Rev. James Collins of Parry Sound deacon, Rev. H. J. Fitzgerald of Parry Sound subdeacon, and deacons of honor were Rev. John T. Finn of Parry Sound and Rev. V. J. Corkery of the city; assistants were Rev. J. Walsh, Rev. J. J. Killen, Rev. H. Archambault, Rev. K. Malane and Rev. G. Wolff; Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., was master of ceremonies, assisted by Rev. E. K. Grant.

The pall-bearers were Rev. G. Wolff, Rev. J. Walsh, Rev. H. Archambault, Rev. K. Malane, Rev. C. McCarney, Rev. E. T. Grant.

Ordained Three Years Ago

The sermon was preached by Rev. Paul Costello of Hastings, who recalled with a deep note of pathos that only three years ago in June Rev. Harold Snider was one of the young men ordained to the priesthood by His Excellency Bishop O'Connor.

"I knew him for years as an altar boy here at the Cathedral," Father Costello said, "and I never knew him to be late. From childhood he seemed to grasp the meaning of the holy sacrifice of the Mass and to love it, and it was no surprise when he was called by his bishop and went to the seminary. After his ordination he was sent to the most beautiful spot in the diocese, Huntsville, known as a most healthy place. Father Snider zealously entered upon his work among the people and won their confidence and love. He also won the love of the pastor who guided him, and in a short time he did a wonderful work. God saw fit to take him out of this world after a little more than a year as a priest. The Church always prays for her dead, and our principal purpose here is to pray for the repose of the soul of this young priest.

Everything was done for his health when he became ill. He received extreme kindness at all times from his bishop, who to-day offered the eternal sacrifice of Calvary for the repose of his soul. We feel confident God has taken him into the kingdom of his eternal happiness."

Father Costello paid a tribute to the parents who had given their son to the service of God, and whose great consolation should be that their boy had gone back to God.

"May his priestly soul rest in peace in glorifying God for all eternity," was Father Costello's prayer concluding an eloquent sermon, the introductory part of which was devoted to Christ's appointment of his apostles to carry on His work through their successors. His commission to them to preach and teach, and His promise to abide with them forever."

CASE IS DISMISSED

Crown Attorney McElderry told the court this morning when the case of Ray Milligan, charged with wife-beating was called that at the request of the man's wife he was not offering any evidence. NEED HIGHER WATER

"Low water in Lovesick Lake right now is bad for the lunge during the spawning season," said Wilford Jacobs of Burleigh to the Examiner. "Right now the fish are moving in toward shallow water and it is too shallow in the places they are used to going. The result is that there is going to be a lot of spawn wasted unless the water is higher. The muskies are not as good at spawning at any time as the bass," said the Burleigh guide, "and that is why they need as favorable conditions as possible. If that water can be brought up in Lovesick as soon as possible then the season for muskies should be good as there appear to be quite a number of them moving in from the deeper water now but there is danger of them becoming stranded."

TWO WITNESSES ARE RE-CALLED TO CLEAR UP CASE

A charge against Percy Little of having been drunk in charge of a motor vehicle on April 12 took an unusual twist in police court this morning when after the crown's case had been closed and one defence witness hard been heard, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry asked and received permission to recall two of the crown's witnesses to correct a mistake in their evidence. The mistake, Mr. McElderry said was entirely his own.

The two witnesses, Joseph Coss and Reginald Hopkins, were the first called by the crown and they testified that on the night of April 12, about 9 o'clock they had been driving up Aylmer street and as they reached the intersection of King street, Little's car coming east on King street had merely slowed down and then had picked up speed and struck and damaged their car Little, they both swore, was intoxicated.

Cross-examined by W. B. Gordon who appeared for the accused the witnesses testified that Little after the accident had pushed their car with his own to Magee's garage on Hunter street and there had offered to pay for the damage done. Neither of the witnesses noticed any impediment in Little's speech when they talked to him some days after the accident.

Found Him Asleep

Constables John Naples and Percy Sexsmith told of arresting Little asleep in his car parked in the middle of Stewart Place at 2.30 o'clock on the morning of April 12. Both officers testified that Little showed evidence of having been drinking. They had been looking for the accused for some time previously.

Magistrate Langley suggested that evidence should be called to show that Stewart Place, a short street running between Park and Stewart streets near the southern extremity of the two streets, was a city street and City Engineer Roy H. Parsons testified that the thoroughfare in question was a public street.

Constable Bruce Menzies of North Monaghan testified that he had come across Little asleep in his car on Stewart Place and had notified the city police. He had tried to waken the man but shaking him had failed to arouse him. Little had been drinking, the officer stated.

Walter H. Magee, garage keeper was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon for the defence. He remembered Little coming to his place with Hopkins and Coss in regard to repairing a damaged car. He had not noticed any signs of intoxication about the accused on that occasion.

All Very Angry

"I didn't think any of them were drunk," said the witness. "They were all very angry and it was impossible to get any sense out of any of them."

At this stage Crown Attorney McElderry asked the court's permission to recall the first two witnesses. It was obvious he said that a mistake had been made as to the date of the accident mentioned by them. "The fault is entirely mine," said the Crown Attorney, "and I apologize to the court for not having prepared the case better."

Magistrate Langley pointed out that it was a very unusual request but that in the interest of justice and to bring out all the facts he was going to allow the witnesses to be brought back.

Coss and Hopkins were then recalled and said that having heard the evidence of the constables as to the arrest of Little in the early morning of the 12th of April, they were satisfied that the accident in which their car had been involved with Little's had taken place around 9 o'clock on the night of April 11 and not on the 12th as they had previously testified.

Mr. Gordon moved that the case be dismissed but his request was refused. Then he asked for and was granted an adjournment until tomorrow morning.

School Inspector Is Pleased With Cleaning Of Classrooms

Makes Unofficial Report At Campbellford Meeting—Gym Problem

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26. — High School Inspector S. D. Randall expresses keen satisfaction with the way in which the High School walls and ceiling are being cleaned and washed according to Principal E H. Greig, who told members of the School Board at their meeting held on Monday that the inspector paid a non-official visit to the building during the afternoon in company with F. Rutherford, chief inspector of technical education for the Province of Ontario.

Two tenders were received for the job of painting the three class-rooms on the upper floor of the Public School, and these were placed on file. The Board was undecided whether to go on with the work at present due to the fact that in the next two years it would be necessary to make radical changes in connection with the heating system at the school within the next two years. It was decided to let the matter rest until it could be determined what action would be taken regarding the heating system. Messrs. A. G. Thompson, A. J. Armour, E. H. Greig and Dr. H. O. Richardson were appointed as members of the district committee for Campbellford as set out in a letter from the Department of Education making this recommendation.

The suggestion that lockers be provided for the clothing of the students while they were taking physical training was left in the hands of the property committee. The recommendation had been made by Mr Randall that students should have proper gymnasium uniforms which should be kept in suitable lockers available only during the P.T. periods. Mr. Greig stated that eight lockers would be required.

Principal C. S. Haig of the Public School stated a supply teacher should be engaged to take the class of Cecil Stephens and the matter was left with the internal committee.

On motion of A. G. Thompson, the secretary was instructed to write the Department of Education to enquire if the teachers at present engaged in teaching domestic science and general science would be able to teach the work in Grade X. without having to spend a year at University. This it was thought would clarify the present situation in which Board members found themselves uncertain as to whether it would be necessary to engage new teachers in another year to continue these courses or the present teachers would be able to qualify.

A cheque from the Department of Education for $1,632 to cover half the cost of the equipment installed in the High School last year was received, and on motion of W. R. Loucks and W. Wood, the amount was applied on the note held by the town to cover this expenditure.

MAYOR REQUESTS PARKS CHAIRMAN TO PLANT TREES

If the recommendation made by the parks committee is carried out by the city council Peterborough will soon have a more pregessive tree-planting policy.

Mayor James Hamilton first introduced the matter at a meeting of the parks committee Monday night when he told Chairman Walter Stocker that he would like to see more trees planted this year. "I have been trying to get something like that done for years," said the Mayor, "but I have never succeeded in getting much accomplished."

Ald. Stocker said one hundred trees were being planted, the majority along Lansdowne street but Mayor Hamilton contended that number was not enough.

"Go ahead and plant some more, Mr. Chairman," he said, "and we will back you up."

The other members of committee concurred in the suggestion.

Later Ald. Juby pointed out that there were numerous trees around town that should be cut down and replaced and Mayor Hamilton said that in driving around Peterborough with City Engineer Parsons he had arrived at the same conclusion.

"There is nothing like trees for giving a town an attractive appearance," His Worship said.

Finally it was decided on motion of Ald. Juby and Dutton that the city council should be asked to appoint a special committee to make a survey of the city with a view to removing decayed trees and replacing them and to inaugurate a policy of annual tree-planting.

The committee will also be asked to report on the establishment of a small tree nursery on city property, possibly on the old Hilliard farm which is owned by the municipality.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend, Natalie, who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbara about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. Garry begins to make excuses that keep him from seeing so much of Barbara, but the latter doesn't suspect Wenda, the actress, is taking up so much of Garry's time. Then an evening came when she observed that something definitely was wrong.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 20

IT SEEMED to Barbara, as she watched Garry, standing so still at the window, that all time had stopped. There was neither yesterday nor tomorrow. There was only this minute when her world would crash—when its towers would tumble and Paradise would be gone. The fear that had been in her heart grew bigger and bigger until it seemed that she could not hold it, but it would come from her lips in a swift cry in another moment.

Then Garry turned and came nearer. His eyes were sunken and his face was weary. His voice was old when he spoke.

"Barbara, I feel like the world's worst rotter." Now she knew that she had been moving toward those words for days. "Hang it all, I've fallen in love!"

When she didn't answer, because there was nothing she could say, he hurried on: "I mean with someone else, Barbara. I didn't want to—Lord, how I fought the thing! But it got me. All of a sudden, Barbara. You wouldn't believe it could come so swiftly."

"I know." In just such a way she had fallen for Garry that afternoon in the dusty, hot little office. She had looked into his laughing eyes and never wanted to look away again. Oh yes, it could happen that way.

"It's Wenda Ayer. You know that," he was saying rapidly. "Maybe it will pass. But I don't think so. I want her like—forgive me, Babbs. This is rotten for you. But I had to tell you. I have to be sure. You would want me to be."

"Of course, Garry." That low voice, steady and quiet, belonged to her. Strange that it could go on while her heart was rolling downhill. Thump, thump, thump—

"I didn't want it to happen. You know I didn't!"

"Yes, I know." From somewhere the words came. "Things happen all of the time. We have to expect them. It had better be boodby, Garry," her voice went on with the valedictory.

"No! Just until I'm certain—" His words halted in strange confusion.

"We can't wait around on love, Garry." She could even smile at the small boy quality that could put love on a shelf like an extra blanket or a guest towel, until it was needed again. "I hope you will be happy." But she didn't. She hoped he would be miserable, wretched, dreadfully unhappy. She wasn't big, magnanimous, fine. She was going to cry.

Garry had collected himself. "Barbara, you're the world's finest sport. You'll make some man the best wife who ever pulled in the Grand Central station. I'm an idiot!"

Her lips smiled but he did not notice that the mirth never reached her eyes. "Somebody will be lucky to get me!" If Garry could hope that she would love somebody else, that showed how completely and swiftly he had gone from her.

Once, as a little girl, she had drawn a chalk line for a block and walked back and forth upon it. That was what she must do now. Draw a line and walk along it and talk along it and never let her footsteps stray or her voice falter.

Then suddenly Garry flung himself on a crocked stool at her side, and buried his face in her lap. A sob caught in his throat and she reached out to touch the rough, bright hair. Garry didn't want to lose her. He was hers. Her hands held the shining head a little closer. Hers, and he didn't know it. He needed her. But that was not reason enough for keeping him. She withdrew her hands and he raised his head.

"You're a dear—and I'm a fool," he said.

He went then, pressing her hands hard, saying no other word, and Barbara sat listening to his steps go down the stairs. Steps that went to Wenda.

"Paradise," she murmured. "It's there. I saw a spire." Her head went down on the cushions but she could not cry. Instead, she got up presently, cleared away the dinner, replaced the lamp and books and ash trays on the gate-legged table. Then she telephoned Natalie, and chatted with her about her wedding. She did not hang up until there was nothing else she could say. She did not want that moment to come when she must be alone to think about Garry, to know that he was gone.

Yet presently, she had to sit on the window seat, look into the snowy street and know that never again would she see him wave to her as he hurried for a subway, or signaled a cab. That never again would he give her bell three joyfull throbs, and she would let him in.

Never— it was a terrible word, just as forever was a beautiful one.

She thought of Natalie who had heard Jack tell her, in that mocking voice of his, that he could not lover her. She thought of Ruth who must have parted from Bill just as she now had parted from Garry. Natalie was a little hard and much wiser now. She wanted money Ruth had lost something precious. It left a void, she said, but it didn't hurt.

It was hard to believe that they had loved as she had. Oh, surely they could not have had this hard, bright pain that wrenched and choked and ached!

She remembered how she had wished Garry had extended his avowal of love into a marriage proposal that night he had come back from England. She had thought that it was better, later, that he hadn't. The roots of devotion were deeply planted by then. But now she wondered.

He had not hesitated with Wenda—Wenda of the yellow hair and the blue eyes. Wenda who could weave words to a man's undoing.

The tears came at last. When they stopped she lay back, exhausted. Not even the ringing of her telephone interested her. It would not be Garry, and no other calls mattered. Let it ring forever now.

When the door bell sounded she sat up quickly. Garry might be coming back. The bell gave a long ring, not three short ones. She sank back. Of course it couldn't be Garry. How swiftly some little thing could bridge the void from heaven to nothing. At last she picked up the courage to speak through the speaking tube.

It was Jack Metcalf.

"Busy?" he asked.

"Y—yes."

"Alone?"

"Yes."

"I'm coming up."

"No, Jack, not tonight. I'm frightfully busy!"

She would weep or scream or kick if she had to be polite. She could not pretend that her castles stood, straight and splendid, when Arcady was a ravaged waste.

She hung up the small receiver of the speaking tube. But Jack came anyway. He rang the janitor's bell and was admitted.

Barbara was aware of her red nose and eyes, and the tears on her lashes. Jack did not smile. He spoke simply. "You were crying. I knew it over the speaking tube. Can I help you, Barbara?"

"There aren't any minor ones. If it is a disappointment, it is major."

"It's Garry, isn't it, Babbs? Garry and Wenda Ayer."

"Why do you think so?" She would not wear her sorrow on her sleeve for him to see.

"I've been hearing things. I knew it was going to happen. And she isn't good enough for him, Barbara. You're his kind. He needs you."

"To need, and to love, are two different things," she answered. It was odd that Jack should be talking like this. Jack who had loved so lightly and so often. He seemed to know her thoughts.

"I never said that I loved one woman alone," he stated. "They insisted that I had a one-track heart though I told all I never had. But I'm getting old now. Forty, Barbara. I'm done with romance."

"What made you look me up tonight?" she asked.

"Remember a date we made some time ago? A date to see the town? I thought this might be as good a time as any to have it. What do you say?"

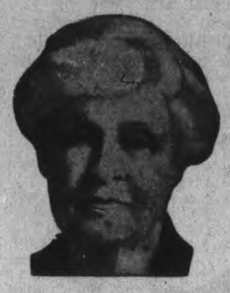
DOROTHY DIX

Ten Rules for Happiness, Sensible and Just Good Logic for Everyday Thinking, if Followed Will a New Person Out of You

DEAR MISS DIX—A long time ago you wrote an article on "happiness" that has been a sort of guide to my feet and has helped me a lot. I wonder if you will republish it, because I want to send it to a friend who needs just such a philosophy badly—MRS. H. P. S.



Answer:

I can't resist the flattery of anybody wanting me to be a repeater, so here are the ten rules for happiness that I gave:

First. Make up your mind to be happy. Happiness is largely a matter of self-hypnotism. You can think yourself happy or you can think yourself miserable. It is up to you which you do. Grab all the innocent amusements that come your way. Never miss an opportunity to have harmless fun. Learn to find pleasure in simple things. If you can't go to the opera, you can turn on the radio. Nail on your face the smile that won't come off, and after a bit you will find that it comes there naturally.

Second. Make the best of your lot. Of course, you have not everything you want and things are not just right. Nobody is that lucky. Even the most fortunate have a lot of crumpled rose leaves under their forty mattresses of ease. There isn't a single human being who hasn't plenty to cry over, and the trick is to make the laughs outweigh the tears.

Third. Don't take yourself too seriously. Don't think that everything that happens to you is of world-shaking importance and that somehow you should have been protected against the misfortunes that befall other people. When death robs you of one you love, or you lose your job, don't demand to know of high heaven why this should have happened to you and grow rebellious and morbid over your sorrow. We are never happy until we learn what funny little things we are and learn to laugh at ourselves.

Fourth. Don't take other people too seriously. They are not so much anyway. Don't let their criticisms worry you. You can't please everybody, so please yourself. Don't let your neighbors set your standards for you. Don't run into debt trying to keep up with the Joneses, or bore yourself to death trying to be as intellectual as the Highbrows. Be yourself and do the things you enjoy if you want to be comfortable and happy.

Fifth. Don't borrow trouble. You have to pay compound interest in that and it will bankrupt you in the end. It is a queer thing but imaginary troubles are harder to bear than actual ones. There are none of us who have not lain awake at night petrified with dread of some calamity that we feared might befall us and that we felt would shatter our lives if it should occur. Generally it never happened, but, if it did, it was not so bad after all and we survived it without serious injury. Enjoy today and let tomorrow take care of itself. There is no sounder adage than that which bids us not to trouble trouble till trouble troubles us. The only good that worrying ever did any one was to make him thin. It is grand for the figure, but hard on the disposition.

Sixth. Don't cherish enmities and grudges. Don't keep up old quarrels. Don't remember all the mean things people have done to you. Forget them. Hate is a deadly chemical that we distill in our own hearts that poisons our own souls. It takes all the joy out of life and hurts us far worse than it does any one else. There is nothing so depressing as having a grudge against some one. Nothing make a home so miserable as for the family not to be on good terms. Meeting some one you don't speak to will spoil any party. So if you have an enemy, forgive him and kiss him on both cheeks, not for his sake, but simply because he is making you unhappy and uncomfortable to be stirred up with wrath against him.

Seventh. Keep in circulation. Go around and meet people. Belong to clubs. Travel as much as you can. Have as many interests as possible. Have a host of friends. That is the way to keep yourself cheerful and jolly and thinking this is the best of all possible worlds. It is the little bird that hops around that sings a merry roundelay, not the calm little bird that stays shut up in its shell.

Eighth. Don't hold post mortems. Don't spend your life brooding over the mistakes you have made or the sorrows that have befallen you. What is done is done and cannot be changed, but you have your whole future life in which to make good. Not all our tears can bring back those we have lost; but we can make life miserable for ourselves and those about us by our unavailing weeping. Quit beating upon your breast because you haven't as much money as you used to have. Don't be one of those who never get over things. Have the courage to take misfortune on the chin and come up smiling.

Ninth. Do something for somebody less fortunate than yourself. Minister to other people's troubles and you will forget your own. Happiness is a coin that we keep only when we give it away.

Tenth. Keep busy. That is the sovereign remedy for unhappiness. Hard work is a panacea for trouble. You never saw a very busy person who was unhappy.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—We have been married ten years and have two children. I have been so tired, sick and nervous and so fed up with the everlasting monotony of cooking, washing dishes and baby bottles and dollar-pinching that I have wished I could die and end it all. On St. Valentine's morning I was especially miserable. Irritable with the children and my always quiet husband. And when he went to work and I had got the oldest child off to school, I felt that life was so cheerless and unhappy that it wasn't worth while. Then the mailman came with a valentine, a letter from my silent, inarticulate husband, in which he wrote me all the things he could never find words to say. Why, he loves me, Miss Dix! He thinks I am beautiful in spite of tired lines in my face and broken nails on my fingers. He appreciates how hard things have been for me and his only goal is to reach a place where he can give me all the good things of life. How different that letter made the world look to me! Life is beautiful! The children are sweet! He is worth any sacrifice. Perhaps I am a fool that a few written words should mean so much to me, but they have made me happy, happy. Maybe there are other fools like me.—D. R. M.

Answer:

Indeed, there are, my dear. There are just as many fools like that as there are women in the world, and it is a pity that their husbands don't realize that just a few words can make marriage worth while to them.—DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY PLAY

Mrs. Longears was so surprised she didn't know what to do or say at first. She just stood looking at her rabbit gentleman husband, at his pink, twinkling nose and listening to his merry whistling.

Then she looked at the sign over the door of the little cottage which Mr. Longears had quickly built in the back yard of his hollow stump bungalow. Over this little cottage was a sign,

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PLAYHOUSE.

"What does this mean, Wiggy?" asked Mrs. Longears, sort of severe life, which means cutting and sharp. But not too much so since she loved Uncle Wiggily. "What does this mean?"

"Did you read the sign, my dear?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Yes," answered his wife, "but the more I read it the less I understand. Is this a house where you are going to give plays, like at the movies or the theatre? Or is it a house where Tootsie, Wootsie and Baby Bunty can play and have fun? Which is it?"

For Himself.

"Neither one," said Mr. Longears, laughing. "It is my own special play house. It is where I am coming when I want to play instead of going adventuring."

"Play? Play? asked Mrs. Longears twice. "Do you mean play the piano or the radio?"

"Neither one," chuckled Mr. Longears.

"Because if it is," went on his wife, "you can play the piano in the bungalow as much as you like or the radio either. I don't mind it a bit."

"I am going to play in my house all by myself," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, dear. I might have known something was going to happen when Nurse Jane told me your pink nose was twinkling extra bright!" said Mrs. Longears. "So this is what you were up to, Wiggy."

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, honest like and true. "You see I feel the need of playing every once in a while in my daily work. If I didn't have adventures there would be no Bedtime Stories.

"So, you see, adventures are my work though I get a great deal of pleasure out of them. But I also must have some play, and I built my little playhouse that I might come here where no one could see me play as I please."

"You mean the way you did when you were a boy rabbit?" asked Mrs. Longears.

Might Laugh.

"That's it," said Uncle Wiggily. "You see I thought you and Nurse Jane might laugh at me if I played as I pleased around the bungalow, so I am going to do it in a play house of my own."

"Oh, Wiggy, you are like Peter Pan," said his wife.

"Well, I like to think so," said her husband. "He never grew up and I don't want to. So now, my dear, if you will please——"

"Oh, I know. You want to get rid of me" sniffed Mrs. Longears. "Very well, I go back in the bungalow."

"Please, my dear, I don't want to be impolite," said the rabbit gentleman, "but it will be better if I play alone for a while."

Mrs. Longears hopped into the bungalow but soon she said:

"Nurse Jane, just sneak out soft and quiet like, peek in a window of the play house and see what my husband is doing."

Nurse Jane looked in the window, taking care Uncle Wiggily did not see her, and soon she came running back to the bungalow.

"Oh, Mrs. Longears," she squeaked. "He's playing in the funniest way. You ought to go out and look at him. It's so funny."

Mrs. Longears hopped out. What she saw I'll tell you in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's play dishes. But please ask the police dog not to give the pussy cat a parking ticket this time.

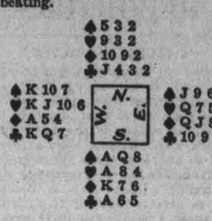
"The Authority on Authorities"

NONE TOO STRONG

EVEN THE higher no trump requirements observed by many good players today are none too high in rubber bridge if you find your partner with a trickless hand. Your tenaces and guarded kings shrink fearfully when you can't get into the dummy for a lead. If you have to play such a no trump contract doubled, you can take a fearful beating.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South's opening bid on this deal was 1-No Trump. West doubled this and North passed. East took time out to consider what his partner might hold in order to double, and then decided to pass.

It would certainly appear from South's holdings that he held sufficient strength to make 1-No Trump, but he took exactly three tricks. The heart J was led and South held off until the third round. He then led a diamond, which East won. The spade J was returned, which South covered with the Q and West with the K. This was followed by the spade 10, which was allowed to hold. The third spade was won by South, who again had to lead out of his hand. He tried another diamond, which East also won. He then cashed his last spade, and led the club 10 to West's Q. West cashed his heart K and diamond A and gave the last trick to declarer's club A.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hooper Celebrate Golden Wedding

A steady stream of guests came and went Monday afternoon to offer congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hooper of 181 Dalhousie street who were "at home" to their friends on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The house was converted into a veritable flower garden of gorgeous blooms, gifts from many friends, and including literally dosens of bouquets of all the lovely spring flowers, and roses in all their exquisite shades, and beautiful carnations. The lovely flowers were massed in every corner of the living room, dining room and hall.

Mrs. Hooper, as she received her guests, was a gracious figure in a gown of soft grey chiffon with corsage of mauve orchids. Wearing lovely gowns two daughters of the house, Mrs. A. D. Deyell and Mrs. H. K. Thompson, both of Toronto, and two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Percy Hooper and Mrs. F. E. Hooper, assisted in looking after the guests.

Mrs. C. Cheverill, sister of Mr. Hooper, and bridesmaid of fifty years ago, poured tea, and Mrs. F. E. Hooper poured coffee at the beautifully arranged table. Covered with a cloth of Italian cutwork, the table was centred with a bouquet of fifty gorgeous golden Richmond roses arranged in huge silver bowl placed on a reflector. On either side, silver candelabra held glowing candles of the same golden shade. On the buffet was a handsome tiered wedding cake, surmounted with tiny miniature bride and groom.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"No man lives without jostling and being jostled; in all ways he has to elbow himself through the world, giving and receiving offence."—Carlyle.

Dear Friends:

The other day I came on a sentence in a book which remains in my memory. This is it. "When a man is down, things keep falling on him." Doesn't that open up a train of thought in your mind. A doormat gets the dirt rubbed into it, the pavement and the sidewalk get all the droppings.

Then too, we all get jostled, sometimes so much that we fall. Now, there is no shame in falling, we all do it one time or another, but when you stay down, don't be surprised when people drop things on you.

Now, if we had been meant to crawl, we would not have been provided with legs to stand upright on. We would have been like worms, and who would want to live like that. Food for birds, bait for fishes, a creepy crawly thing.

Maybe you have been jostled so much that you feel low in your mind. Words can do that to you, disappointment following quick after the other can do it, sickness, when you are not able to do your own part can make your spirit so low, that you wish the whole thing were over.

They say "Misery likes company." Did you ever figure that one out? It isn't that the miserable one wants to co-habit with other miserables, but that we don't feel so badly when others are getting it in the neck too. (A little expressive vulgarity won't hurt you.)

So, when you are low in your mind, go out and mingle with others, find out what they are up against, what troubles they have to bear, and you will not feel half so bad as you did. It isn't that you are glad these others are not having a good time, but because you feel at one with them, you are not alone in having sorrow.

It's the aloneness that gets you down. You feel that fate has it in for you, that you out of all the world are the only one who is having a bad time. Everyone else is happy but you. But when you mix, when you stop long enough to listen, you find they have been jostled pretty badly too.

We do not seem geared for a long seige of sympathy. If a person we know is sick, or has had an accident, we go to see them at first, but —if their sickness lasts too long, we lose interest in them, and our visits gradually stop. We feel dimly that they should be able to do something about it to get better sooner.

And it is the same when we have been jostled so that we fall. Some may try to pick us up and dust us off at first, but they don't want to be doing it all the time. And why should they? Why cannot we do our best to stand erect after we have got to our feet. Why do we keep on remembering the fall we had and how it hurt us, or again why do we forget so soon and fall in the same way.

Never forget that when a person is down, things keep falling on them. It is to our help and interest that we try to keep on our feet, no matter how crowded the going it. There is always help and encouragement for the ones who are putting up a brave fight without whimpering, but there is nothing but annoyance and disgust for those who keep falling or who stay down after they have fell.

I remember, after my fourth operation (no details) I felt pretty low in my mind. I had caused a lot of expense, although it wasn't my fault. I had made rather a slow recovery because there were three inside of five months, and my strength was depleted.

And so one day, when we were out driving, we came to a mental hospital, and we drove through the grounds. I came out of there thankful I was as well as I was, glad God had left me with my wits, sorry to the heart of me for those that were so much worse off. And so, remember that "when a person is down, things drop on them."

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: About two weeks ago I wrote to you asking for a recipe for a boiled salad dressing also one made with oil. I delivered the letter personally to the office so I suppose it was not given to you.
A. A. M.

ANSWER: So sorry that your first letter did not reach me—I have found no trace of it so far.

BOILED SALAD DRESSING

Four tablespoons melted butter (or cooking oil if economy is urgent), 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs separated, 1 teaspoon each salt and dry mustard, dash cayenne, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ cup mild vinegar or ¼ cup lemon juice and ¼ cup water. Mix together the butter and flour in top of double boiler. Stir in the milk and cook until thick stirring. Beat the yolks, and add the salt, sugar, cayenne, mustard and vinegar to them. Pour a little of the hot mixture over the yolk mixture stirrng, then pour the yolk mixture into the double boiler and stir all well for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and fold in the stiffly beaten whites, stirring. Cool, and keep covered.

MAYONNAISE:

In cold bowl place 2 yolks from cold eggs (if economy is not considered 3 yolks make a thicker nicer dressing), and add 1 teaspoon each salt, sugar, and mustard, and juice from 1 large lemon, and mix with strong rotary beater until perfectly blended. Measure out 1 cup of cold salad oil, and dip 1 teaspoonful of it at a time into the egg yolk mixture, beating 25 revolutions of the beater between additions. Continue adding oil 1 teaspoonful at a time until the mixture begins to emulsify (thicken) then add 1 tablespoonful at a time until ½ cup of the oil is used. Two tablespoons at a time may be added after this but about 40 revolutions of the beater are necessary between additions, until all oil is used. Vinegar may be used in place of lemon juice and a shake of cayenne may be added. Keep cool and covered.

Hoping these recipes are satisfactory and that we can help you again.

QUESTION: We have tried your many receipts which are in the paper and enjoyed them fine. We always like to find new ones and try them. My Hubby comes from Bury Lancs, England of course. Their favorite cake is the Simnel Cake, so I am sending an English recipe and all its trimmings, perhaps you would like to put it in your columns. There are many of your readers who would be only too pleased to have it especially if they come from any where near Manchester Eng. They are also noted for their Black Puddings or Blood Puddings down Bury way—a great treat. I myself come from North West Lancashire— Barrow-in-Furness and we all have our specialties in cooking things. Thanking you,
Mrs. H. C.

ANSWER: Thank you ever so much for your kindness in sending SIMNEL CAKE (contributed by Mrs. H. C.).

The characteristic difference in this cake is that a layer of almond paste is spread between halves of the batter before baking. Almond paste is spread on top when served.

Two cups flour, 1 pound moist pale brown sugar, 1 cup butter, ½ cup stoned raisins, ½ cup clean currants, ½ cup sultanas, ½ cup sliced cherries, 2 tablespoons chopped peel, ½ teaspoons mixed spices, three eggs. Prepare fruit. Cream sugar and butter very well, beat in eggs separately, but whole. Sift in flour and spices together, then the fruits. Line round pan about 7½ inches in diameter with paper and butter it. Spread half of butter in pan, and spread over this Almond Paste (below) then remaining batter. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours—then press top lightly to see if it is firm.

Four oz. ground almonds, 4 oz. castor sugar (icing sugar), ¼ teaspoon almond essence, ½ beaten egg, and just barely enough water to mix it soft enough to spread over the uncooked batter. Mix well.

ALMOND PASTE FOR TOP OF SIMNEL CAKE

Six oz. ground almonds, 6 oz. castor sugar, one egg, half teaspoon almond essence. Beat the egg and almond essence together, then mix in sugar and almonds and work with hands until a stiff paste results, roll this out, and press on cake when ready to serve. Other desired trimmings such as preserved fruits or silver or chocolate shot are often used.

Thanks so much for this recipe—do write again when we can help you.

QUESTION: I greatly appreciate your kindness in sending the recipe for baked herring. The part of THE SECOND PART has undertaken to follow implicitly your directions, provided that the party of THE FIRST PART agrees to purchase certain female toggery applicable for wear at the forthcoming Eastertide.
E. R.

ANSWER: The bargain seems to be a little lobsided in favor of the female bargainer but all power to her if she can produce the desired result and get her price⅞ Come again.

Isabel Weddell Gives Charming Recital of Songs, Monday Evening

On Monday evening, Miss Isabel Weddell, from the studio of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, enchanted an audience that filled to capacity the Green Room and library at the Y.W.C.A. with her exquisite singing of a group of widely varied and delightful songs.

Miss Weddell's program included Italian, German, French and English songs, and she is deserving of especial praise for the complete understanding with which she sings each country's compositions, and for her impeccable pronunciation.

Probably her highlight was the French group, the singer's light and buoyant voice being well suited to French music. To quote from the program, "These 18th century French songs represent the vocal music of their period in its lighter aspect. They breathe the charm and gaiety of the Versailles court during the reign of Louis XIV...." Miss Weddell portrayed the spirit of the period in charming style, and her diction was as usual perfect.

In her first group, containing the dainty, gay "Mecco verrai su quella" by Veracini, the singer gave the florid passages with much clarity, and next came "Bella Vittoria" (Bononcini) providing a pleasant contrast with its smooth legato phrases. Her last group of English songs were rendered with equal beauty and understanding of mood. "Love the Pedlar," a song of Merrie England, was gaily given, and the old Irish air, "Down by the Sally Gardens" (Yeats) was sung with much pathos. "Break o' Day," by Sanderson, made a happily chosen and florid ending, to the singer's splendid repertoire.

At the piano, Gwen Craw was in absolute accord with the singer. Mrs. Craw gives increasingly mature performances with each appearance.

Assisting in the program, Stanley Northrop played with authority and as usual excellent technique, two groups of varied compositions, with Harry Northrop giving valuable support at the piano. Among the most popular of Mr. Northrop's numbers were the beautiful "Air On the G String" by Bach, and the rollicking "From the Canebrake" by Gardiner. In response to insistent applause he played a delightful arrangement of "Mighty Lak a Rose."

The program was as follows: Isabel Weddell, "Mecco verral su quella" (Veracini); "Bella Vittoria" (Bononcini); "Voi che sapete (Figaro) (Mozart); "Die Forelle" (Schubert); Stanley Northrop, "Air on the G String" (Bach); "Variations on a Theme by Corelli" (arranged by Kreisler); Isabel Weddell, French Bergerettes of the 18th Century: 1, "Bergere Legere," 2, "Exaudet's Minuet," 3, "Manan, dites-moi," 4, "Venez, agreable printemps," 5, "Non, je n'irai plus au bois," 6, "Jeunes fillettes."

Stanley Northrop: "Tango" (Albeniz); "Tambourin chinois" (Kreisler); "From the Canebrake" (Gardiner); Isabel Weddell, "Love the Pedler" (German); "A Song of Shadows" (Gibbs); "Down by the Sally Gardens" (Yeats); "Break o' Day" (Sanderson).

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Louie Florence of Elias Avenue wish to announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Beatrice, to Ben Collis, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Collis. The wedding to take place the latter part of July.

DIED

IN MEMORIAM

SARGENT. — In ever-loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, who passed away April 26, 1937.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Father,
That we do not think of you.

—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

LIPSETT. — In loving memory of Laura Pauline Grace Lipsett, our dear daughter and sister, who passed away suddenly April 26, 1935.

We lost our best companion,
A life mixed with our own;
Always so true, unselfish and kind,
Few in this world her equal to find.
To a beautiful life came a sudden end,
She died as she lived—everyone's friend.

—Sadly missed by Father, Sisters and Brothers.

LIPSETT. — In loving memory of Laura Pauline Grace Lipsett, a loving Wife and Mother, who passed away suddenly April 26, 1935.

The one I loved is gone to rest,
Her fond true heart is still,
The hand that always helped me,
Now lies in death's cold chill.
She had a nature you couldn't help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew her and loved her,
Her memory will never grow old.

—Sadly missed by her Husband and Son, Darrell.

Dionne Ready To Drop Demand If Wilson Report Favorable

Wants Dr. Dafoe And Judge Valin Shifted Off Board Of Guardians

OTTAWA, April 26 (CP). — Oliva Dionne, his counsel, Henri St. Jacques of Ottawa said today, would drop his request for a judicial investigation into the affairs of the Dionne quintuplets if the report of the recent probe conducted by Percy D. Wilson, one of the children's guardians, was favorable to Dionne's requests.

Among these, St. Jacques said, was that Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the Quints' doctor, and Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay be dropped from the board of guardians and that the affairs of the children, other than education, be left to 'Vilson, who is also official guardian of minor children of Ontario.

Dionne also sought control over the education of his famous daughters, reinstatement of Miss Jacqueline Noel, nurce, and Miss Clare Tremblay, teacher, recently dismissed from the Dafoe nursery, and curb on "extravagance" he believed existed in the management of the girls' business affairs.

Attorney-General Conant of Ontario said in Toronto Friday that the Wilson report had been received but had not yet been considered, and until it was no decision on Dionne's request for a judicial investigation would be made.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, April 27.

A very lively and interesting day in private and business associations is read from the important planetary configurations. The element of friendship seems to enter largely into all such activities. Progress seems assured, with finances increasing through speculative enterprises as well as practical propositions or new undertakings, in which influential persons may take an interest.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much progress and prosperity, with business, new undertakings, speculation, litigation and employment all under excellent prospects. Powerful friendships and social contacts also may play an important part, and there seems to be decided intermingling of functions of a business and social nature. Aim high with such harmonious co-operation assured.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, versatile, and capable in many directions, with its fine mentality and attractive personality advancing its position and assuring its popularity and success. Legal ability is accented.

Mrs. George Ellis held a quilting at her home Friday afternoon, when a number of friends and neighbors were invited for quilting of a quilt of the "Dresden plate" pattern. The hostess served a dainty supper.

Raid On Valencia Costs 30 Lives

VALENCIA, Spain, April 26 (C.P.-Havas). — Thirty persons, including a British seaman, were killed and 50 wounded to-day when insurgent warplanes bombed El Grao, the port of Valencia.

The British fatality occurred aboard the 5,574-ton freighter Celtic Star. Three other members of the crew suffered wounds.

The raiders appeared over the port at noon. Brisk anti-craft fire finally drove them off in the direction of Sagunto.

Flurry Over Quints' Affairs Doesn't Disturb Sisters

Yvonne Struts With Judge's Cane While Marie Waters The Wooden Horses

CALLANDER, Ont., April 26 (CP) —Jauntily swinging a judge's cane, Yvonne Dionne strutted around the Dafoe nursery today, epitomizing the attitude of her quintuplet sisters to current unrest about their affairs.

Yvonne got the cane from Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay, one of the guardians attacked in the application of her father, Oliva Dionne, to Attorney General Conant of Ontario for a judicial investigation, and a regular visitor to the nursery.

Yvonne knows that when the judge comes in and she takes his cane and mimics his reliance on it she can draw a laugh from the judge, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, her nurses and even her sisters. She never fails to take advantage of her opportunity to bring down the house.

Yvonne's strutting indicated the lack of concern among the guardians of the quints, who will be four years old May 26, about the request for a judicial investigation. The hospital staff yesterday was more interested in an attempt of Marie to water wooden horses than it was about legal proceedings.

Waters The Hobby Horses

When Marie took her beach pail around to each of the five hobby horses she bewildered her nurses and teachers. They couldn't understand how the most delicate of the quints could have seen a horse or one being watered. She like her sisters, Yvonne, Cecile, Emilie and Annette had been in the Dafoe nursery since she was two months old.

Finally Dr. Dafoe cleared up the mystery by recalling that a teamster was hired last summer to bring loam to the nursery ground and that he probably watered his horse in sight of the quintuplets' playroom.

Dr. Dafoe sat in his office in Callander, 2½ miles from the nursery, yesterday and pleaded for "a little peace." Dionne's request for a judicial investigation of quint affairs and statements issued by both sides of the controversy left the mild-mannered country doctor a little spent.

"I hope," he said, "that we'll have a breathing spell before the next outburst of publicity. Staying up all night talking to reporters doesn't agree with me."

He disclosed that the motion picture the quints will make this May will signal their retirement from the movie field for a few years. Under a contract they may be asked to make another feature length film before the end of 1939. After that he will withdraw them from circulation as movie queens for three or four years.

"There is a gift we can give you to-day," he said, "which will gladden your heart more than any other. We can and we do rededicate ourselves to the cause of truth in the news."

Propose Province Control Municipal Loans

Mortgage Officials Point to Loss of Confidence Hitting Debentures of Centres Not on Default List

TORONTO, April 27 (CP)—Provincial control of municipal borrowing was recommended by the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association today for the protection of the province and other municipalities concerned.

The credit of Canadian municipalities as a whole had been adversely affected by the extent of the default situation, the Association claimed in its submission before the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations.

"Apart from loss of credit, there has developed a serious loss of confidence in municipal securities and investors no longer regard them as primarily gilt-edge," it asserted.

"This loss of confidence is reflected in the difficulty experienced in marketing debentures of some municipalities which have not defaulted."

In addition to the financial side, there was need for effective supervision of the physical side of borrowing, in the Association's submission, "so that projects for which borrowings are to be made by municipalities on extravagant, ambitious or unnecessarily costly scales may not be permitted."

A major factor in budgetary difficulties was held to do without or with lesser services so as to reduce expense to their ability to pay, a matter now of grave consequence to the Dominion, provinces and municipalities.

Services Require Taxes.

"There is need of a recognition of the fact that sustained services can be had only as long as ability to pay for them or sound credit are present, and that, in the last analysis, taxation of one kind or another is the only source of income with which to provide services," it was contended.

The association remarked on the "bad experience" Canadian Governments had had in guaranteeing obligations of "other organizations."

"Unfortunate results have also followed the ventures of our Governments into those parts of our economic field that are not ordinarily functions of Government," it added. "Generally such ventures are economically unsound or they are in competition with private enterprises and are not as efficient."

It said the history of loans to farmers showed the heavy losses the taxpayer had had to bear "without any contribution of much value having been made to our agricultural economy."

"To the extent that Governments use their taxing or borrowing powers for purposes that can be fulfilled by

HAMPDEN PARK, GLASGOW.—Before a crowd of 91,710 persons here tonight, East Fife rapped in two overtime goals to defeat Kilmarnock 4-2 for the Scottish Football Cup. It was the first time a Second Division club won the trophy since the junior league was formed in 1922.

CALGARY—Thirteen of Calgary's relief strike leaders, including E. C. Hopper, president of the Unemployed Married Men's Association, were arrested after an attempt of 250 men and women to march through downtown districts today.

VERDUN, Que.—Pupils of Verdun High School, on the outskirts of Montreal, received a letter today, saying a five-cent balloon they released March 1 had been found in Singapore, Straits Settlement, roughly 13,000 miles away.

POTTSVILLE, Pa.—A gas explosion, followed by fire deep in an anthracite mine, killed seven men today and injured 11. Rescue workers, struggling against dread "black damp," removed six bodies within seven hours after the blast shook the mine.

BERLIN. — Great Britain and Poland today signed a naval agreement along the lines of the 1936 naval treaty of London, providing limitations for individual warships and for the exchange of naval building information.

EVEN JOAN OF ARC GETS INTO VARIED COMMONS DEBATE

OTTAWA, April 27 (CP)—Discussion ranging from pelagic sealing to Joan of Arc and from western province resources to a new honeymoon bridge for Niagara Falls brought the House of Commons a long way through the order paper yesterday. It disposed of five government measures and made progress with four others.

Members put on a sudden burst of speed and while debate was not lacking more practical work was done than in any one day of the session so far.

As a wind-up to the day A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) renewed his protests at lack of government action to cope with Japanese fishing operations on the Pacific coast. Operating within its legal rights, he declared, Japan sent over floating canneries which depleted the fisheries.

Japanese operations also threatened to exhaust the halibut fishing on the Pacific coast, Mr. Neil said. He urged joint action with Great Britain and United States to discourage the operations.

Fisheries Minister Michaud said the government was aware of the situation but that only an international agreement would remedy it.

Two bills ratifying trade agreements with Guatemala and Haiti, an act amending pension, discipline and service administration in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, an act authorizing annual contributions to the national battlefields of Quebec and a bill respecting insurance investments passed all stages.

A resolution which provided for establishing ownership by the three prairie provinces of their water and water power resources was passed and the necessary bill given first reading.

Conventions of 1911

Progress was made with a bill relating to the Pelagic sealing convention of 1911, and the bill amending the New Westminster Harbor Commissioners Act was withdrawn for redrafting.

From debate over the trade bills, which ratified agreements already in operation, came a declaration from Trade Minister Euler that even though Canada would not follow the United States custom of holding public hearings on commodities entering into trade negotiations, the government had received representations from producers and manufacturers "in connection with every commodity under the sun."

Mr. Euler would not commit himself on a suggestion from H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootenay East) that the time had come to abandon the practice of making "most favored nation" agreements.

All Albania Hails First Queen

Zog Takes Bride in Simple Mountaineer Ceremony Half Oriental, Half Occidental Before 200 Guests

TIRANA, Albania, April 27 (AP).—In a civil ceremony of mountaineer simplicity, Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary became the first queen of the Albanians today when she was accepted in marriage by King Zog.

A salvo of 101 guns and the shouts of Mohammedan Muezzins praying from minarets signalled the marriage. The ceremony was held in an atmosphere half oriental, half occidental.

They were declared man and wife by Heqmet Delvina, vice president of parliament, after he had read the conditions of marriage from the civil code in the presence of 200 guests and members of the royal family.

The bride, slightly taller than the king, was resplendent in bridal gown of white satin, embroidered with diamante, pearls and silver threads in flower designs. Her embroidered court train was long. A large veil of white tulle trailed from a high diadem of orange blossoms.

THREAT TO CZECHS WORRYING HEADS IN LONDON, PARIS

LONDON, April 27.—(AP).Heads of the French and British Governments will take up the growing Nazi glamor in Czechoslovakia in important conversations begining to-morrow. Two developments made the Czech question paramount to Premier Edouard Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain:

1. The prediction in Berlin that German Nazis in Czechoslovakia will demand early in June an election on whether they desire to remain under Czech jurisdiction, or be joined to Greater Germany.

2. A Czech memorandum to Premier Daladier, rejecting as a threat to Czech independence the demands by the Nazi leader, Konrad Henlein, for revision of Czech foreign policy in a manner favorable to Germany's friends, and self government under Nazi principles for the 3,500,000 Germans resident in Czechoslovakia.

Because of this memorandum, Premier Daladier was said by French informants to have shifted the subject matter of the talks from Franco-British military and diplomatic co-operation to the more specific point of the danger to France's Central European ally, and what to do about it.

France already is pledged to aid Czechoslovakia if subjected to aggression, but thus far has been unsuccessful in getting Great Britain to adopt a similar definite guarantee.

HOLLAND PARTIES HOLDING OPTION UPON ANTICOSTI

MONTREAL, April 27.—(CP). — Parties in Holland hold an unexpired option to purchase Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence from the Consolidated Paper Corporation, L. J. Belnap told shareholders in his presidential address at the annual meeting here to-day. Belnap said the prospective purchaser, whose identity was not disclosed, had announced intentions that the island would be owned and operated by a Canadian company for cutting and exporting wood under existing laws and that it was hoped Canadian capital could be interested and Canadians named to the board of directors.

The Consolidated Paper Corporation could not develop the island at this time, said Belnap, as it would require large sums not now available to the Corporation. Sale of the island would relieve Consolidated security holders of the annual expense of carrying an unproductive property.

If the Dutch party purchased the island it was estimated in the neighborhood of $14,000,000 would be spent on the project by 1942, giving employment to about 2,000 employees during the development stage and between 5,000 and 6,000 workers when operations proceeded.

Raids In 2 Towns Get $650 Cash

LONDON, Ont., April 27 (CP).—A gang of night raiders swooped down on two London district villages early today, carried away safes weighing a total of more than a ton, and escaped with between $650 and $750 in cash.

At Melbourne, 25 miles west of London, and at Centreville, two miles east of Ingersoll, the bandits carried out their raids within sight of heavily travelled No. 2 highway. Hours later, battered empty safes were found on lonely country sideroads.

Throughout the highways of Western Ontario, a police net hurriedly thrown out by Provincial Police headquarters at London watched all day for a trace of a light truck, believed necessary to carry away the heavy, strong boxes.

At Melbourne, at least five or six men entered Silverwood's produce office, loaded a strong box weighing between 1,600 and 1,800 pounds onto a truck and sped away.

Parents' Orders Keep 75 From Classes

3 Carloads of Police Needed to End Demonstration After Women Seize Township Administrator's Car

TORONTO, April 27 (CP).—Seventy-five children shunned school classes today at Lakeview, 14 miles west of Toronto, and romped in a field near where their parents were attending a meeting that grew from failure to obtain increased relief allowances

The relief recipients said their children were being kept from school in protest against Toronto township council's refusal to grant them additional vouchers. At noon a shopkeeper sent food to the group and women collected money from onlookers to pay for milk.

Leaders of the relief recipients' organization attempted to gain conferences with provincial government and municipal authorities while the meeting continued.

The demonstration was the second at the little Lakeside village within a few hours. Early today three carloads of Ontario police officers broke up a demonstration in which four women took possession of the automobile of a township relief administrator.

The women sat in the car with the administrator, R. S. Moore, until the police squad persuaded the crowd to break up. Surrounded by members of the Township General Workers' Union, Moore made no attempt to drive away while he awaited help for three hours.

Get Session With Reeve.

Sergeant Eric Hand, leading the detachment of 16 officers, conferred with Edward Lace, president of the union, and Lace dispersed the demonstration with announcement that the police had offered to obtain an interview for the workers with Reeve E. D. Maguire to-day if they would release the car.

Moore had driven Lace and three other union representatives back to Lakeview after a conference with the Township Council at Cooksville last night.

"We no sooner got out of the car than it was filled with women, Lace said. The crowd surrounded the vehicle and cried: "Hold Moore until we get emergency vouchers."

Moore smoked his pipe while the women sat stolidly in the car. Someone let the air out of a back tire.

When district constables came up to inquire about the disturbance, the administrator said there was "no trouble — only a few hungry people."

At the Council meeting Reeve Maguire told the delegation: "Provincial investigators who visited homes of relief recipients reports there are signs of starvation."

Emergency vouchers could not be granted, he said, and "we would like to do more for you, but our hands are tied." Tax arrears in the township amounted to $175,000, but the township had paid as much as it could to those needing relief, Maguire added.

The deputation asked for emergency relief vouchers pending negotiations with the Provincial Government for a work and wages program.

LABORITES BRAND SIMON MEASURES REAL WAR BUDGET

LONDON, April 27 (C.P. Cable). —After the budget shocks of yesterday the House of Commons was in a quieter mood this afternon. When F. W. Pethick-Lawrence rose to open Labor's attack the once-crowded benches had a number of vacant places.

Mr. Pethick-Lawrence submitted that, including defence, expenditure on loans, the real prospective deficit for 1938-39 (before taking the new taxes into consideration) was not £30,000,000 ($150,000,000) but £120,000,000 ($600,000,000). To this had to be added the cost of accelerated rearmament which might mean anything between £10,000,000 and £50,000,000.

Considered as peace time proposals the budget was both deplorable and outrageous. The budget should rather be studied as a war budget.

"We are compelled by the position of the Government to face up to this budget as though the calamity we all fear would devolve upon us," the Opposition speaker declared. The Labor Party, he went on, considered measures which Sir John Simon proposed to prevent tax evasion as inadequate. More drastic provisions were needed to prevent the wealthy avoiding payment of supertax by

FRANCO SENDS FLEET TO HELP STALLED ARMY

Rebel Motor Units Bog, Giving Loyalists Edge

HENDAYE, France, April 27 (AP) —General Francisco Franco's war fleet went to the aid of his stalled land forces today and bombarded Spanish government positions on the heights about Alcala de Chivert with its big guns.

General Jose Miaja's strongly reinforced defence line from the Teruel sector to the Mediterranean held the Insurgents virtually motionless for the fourth day.

The fighting surged through the outskirts, the government holding the western edge of the town, Insurgents the south-eastern corner.

Offsetting the Insurgents' capture of two key points, La Toretta and Palado Point, the government seized the dominant Apalaya de Alcala peak, which stands west of the town.

MOTHER OF NINE STABBED FATALLY

WINNIPEG, April 27 (CP).—William McQuarrie, 58, today was charged with the murder of his wife, Gertrude, 44, stabbed in the throat with a pen-knife here last night.

Mrs. McQuarrie was killed while returning home from the Winnipeg Juvenile Police Court, where Judge F. A. E. Hamilton awarded her custody of her nine children.

Her eldest son, Victor, said his step-father, William McQuarrie, had attacked his mother and had chased him after stabbing him in the shoulder.

Mrs. McQuarrie also sought a legal separation from her husband, who had just completed a two-year jail term for a statutory offence.

McQuarrie was remanded until May 3.

ONTARIO TO PRESS APPEAL ON COMBA

TORONTO, April 27 (CP).—The Ontario Government will proceed with an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal which acquitted John Comba of Renfrew of a charge of murder. Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced today.

The Attorney-General was in Ottawa yesterday to discuss the unusual case with the Minister of Justice. Today he assigned Cecil Snyder, counsel in the Attorney-General's Department, to argue the case before the Supreme Court.

In the meantime Comba, who was sentenced to hang for the murder of a 13-year-old girl, will not be re-arrested. Mr. Conant explained that this unique case revealed there was no procedure for taking Comba into custody. The Attorney-General indicated there would be an early amendment to the law to provide the machinery for re-arrest in such cases.

Calling 13 Jurors Upsets Court Delays 2 Trials For Week

New Police Orders Include "Smiles"

Quebec, April 27 (CP)

MORE THAN 200 Provincial traffic officers have been sent to patrol Quebec's highways with a reminder from Major Charles Girouard, Director of the Province's Traffic Department, that a smile will do twice as much as a frown.

The officers have instructions to act "like the motorist's big brother" rather than the "speed cop," and use politeness first of all to encourage observance of traffic laws.

Judge Cancels Day's Proceedings On Discovering Spare Man Listening In

DALHOUSIE, N.B., April 27 (CP). —April term of Restigouche circuit will not open until May because of an irregularity which resulted in the summoning of 13 grand jurymen instead of the customary "12 men good and true."

Mr. Justice A. T. LeBlanc adjourned court for a week yesterday when the presence of the 13th juror was brought to his attention. The irregularity nullified proceedings in two cases—one of them a murder hearing—and both the grand and petit jury panels were dismissed.

Court sat through most of the day —and already had returned a true bill in one case—before the mistake was noticed. Twelve grand jurors had been sworn in when court convened. Presence of a 13th juror who said he had not received a notice cancelling his summons went unnoticed by the judge until after the hearing had started of a murder charge against Robert Barbour, held for the hammer-slaying of Margaret Harris.

The extra juror had not entered the jury box but he remained in court and when the judge inquired about his presence he was told 13 men had been called for duty.

The judge halted the hearing, ordered the day's proceedings nullified and discharged the jury panel with instructions to the jury board to summon a new panel of 56 for next Tuesday.

Before the Barbour hearing had started a true bill was returned against Albert Moreau of St. Quentin, charged with assault. The case will be heard again with a new jury.

Cripple Gets Eloquent, Forgets Cane And Loses $15,000 Damage Suit

Detroit, April 28 (CP)

FRANK SHELTON of suburban Hamtramck hobbled painfully to the witness stand in circuit court, leaning heavily on a cane, to tell a jury how he was injured by a street car 14 months ago. He sought $15,000 from the street railway company for injuries to his left leg and knee.

Carried away by his own eloquence, he left his cane by the witness chair, and began walking back to the counsel table. A friend whispered frantically and Shelton hurried back for the stick. The jury took 10 minutes to arrive at a vedict of "No cause for action."

Shelton had testified he was thrown to the ground when the street car started before he was able to get aboard. Three witnesses said the car was standing still and that Shelton had slipped. Defense Attorney Harry Pisula said Shelton was treated with iodine at hospital following the accident, then was released.

Preparations Are Being Made For Banner Tourist Season

Accommodations Are Already Being Arranged By Many U.S. Citizens

From Keene to Cochrane's on Catchecoma Lake an Examiner reporter yesterday traversed the county of Peterborough in almost a straight line, some fifty to sixty miles, learning here and there along the way varied assurance that in a few weeks a new wave of tourists will begin arriving.

Correspondence files kept in water front farm homes and summer hotels all tell the same story, letters from Ohio and Pennsylvania, from New York and Michigan, arranging for accommodation during vacation periods that are being anticipated by Americans in big cities like Pittsburg smaller cities like Akron, and little towns like North East, Pa.

Some of the letters expressed a keen eagerness to get back into Peterborough county as soon as possible. Frank Elmhirst and Hank Cowie will have their first visitors for the opening of the pickerel season on May 15. And if many of these annual vacationists could have seen Rice Lake along the Elmhirst sandy shore Monday afternoon, or Gull and Ketchecum Lakes Tuesday af-

Dafoe Confers With Conant

TORONTO, April 27 (CP)— Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets and one of their guardians, conferred for more than an hour today with Attorney-General Gordon Conant.

The conference, also attended by Keith Munro, business manager of the Quints' affairs, was presumably for the purpose of discussing the demand of Oliva Dionne, father of the Callander children, for a judicial inquiry into affairs as administered by the board of guardians.

17 Girls Rush To Altar As Firm Rules All Who Wed After May 1 Must Quit

Boston, April 27 (AP).

MASSACHUSETTS was entangled in controversy today over setting the loss of a job as the price of marriage for women.

Mayor John M. Lynch, of suburban Somerville, declared, "It is economy," as he launched a drive to oust all married women as employees.

Between these two opinions ranged a variety of ideas.

One of Boston's largest utility companies ordered that women employees who wed on or after May 1 must resign. Booming business in the city clerk's offices followed and at least 17 girls filed intentions within a few hours. All planned marriage before the deadline.

The Massachusetts legislature stood divided. The house passed a measure which would penalize married women civil service applicants and state employees, but the Senate killed it.

SIX NATIONS PICK CHIEFS IN AGE-OLD TRIBAL POW-WOW

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 27 (C. P.). — The Great Spirit looked down benevolently as the children of De-Ga-Neh-We-, ancient Iroquois leader, re-enacted the age-old ceremonial functions attendant upon the naming of hereditary chiefs of the once powerful League of Nations of North America, the confederacy of Indian peoples comprising, now, the Mohawks, the Senecas, the Cayugas, the Oneidas, the Onondagas, and the Tuscaroras.

The scene of the traditional naming of chiefs on Tuesday was the old Long House of the Onondagas, situated by odd chance, not far from modern Lady Willingdon Hospital, on the Indian Reserve, a few miles from this city. Described as the most important gathering of its kind in the last three decades, it was attended by 200 Indian men and women and the latter, following custom, played a highly important part in the councils of their people. The scene was colorful and for the participants imbued with deep religious significance.

The proceedings began as a long procession made its way on foot from the Cayuga Longhouse to that of the Oneidas, traversing narrow country roads through picturesque spring-decked countryside, the men chanting the plaintive "Hi-Hi" of the "Ceremonial Hymn." Figuratively the Indians from the Cayuga Longhouse came weeping and those from the Onondaga Longhouse went forth to "dry their tears."

Modern Clothes Clash.

At the place of meeting a fire was lighted in the roadway and the two groups joined to proceed to the Onondago Longhouse. Strange and almost fantastic was the effect of Indian fringed deer skin habits contrasted with modern clothes. Only the chiefs of the hereditary council wore the feathered head-dress of the Iroquois, the other wearing hats and caps and "sote" clothes.

One of the chief functionaries was

EUROPEAN UNREST HITS FUR PRICES

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I., April 27.—(CP).—Silver fox and Persian lamb are the only active furs on the market but there is a strong price resistance, George A. Callbeck, manager of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association, said yesterday on his return from London, England. While in London, he attended the March fur action sales.

Buyers were not purchasing for stock but to complete orders, Callbeck said. Unsettled conditions of Europe were the cause of caution on the part of fur buyers.

Callbeck, however, had every confidence in the silver fox industry. The fact it was one of the two furs in demand when all others were unwanted showed there would continue to be a market for the fur, especially if the buyers wanted a higher class pelt. Ranchers, he said, should raise the highest grade of animal.

C.N. MANAGEMENT SHIES OFF OPINION UPON UNIFICATION

OTTAWA, April 27—(CP).—Efforts to elicit from the management of the Canadian National Railways the company's opinion on unification with the Canadian Pacific were unsuccessful in the House Railways Committee yesterday.

Several members sought to obtain from S. J. Hungerford, C.N.R. president, his views relating to that proposal, but, Transport Minister Howe interposed, recalling that next week the Senate Committee on the railway problem would get under way and Mr. Hungerford would then be requested to present his views.

"It takes two railways to work out a co-operative plan," the minister said. "The Senate has arranged a full-dress investigation into the whole matter. Mr. Hungerford will be there to answer any questions put to him. He will be confronted by Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., and the two parties will discuss the subject fully.

"This committee could have Mr. Hungerford's views, but the situation would then be that he would have presented them here before they were given to the Senate Committee, and that might be prejudicial to the railway."

The new Canadian National Railways Hotel in Vancouver will be opened about June 1, 1939, Mr. Hungerford told the committee. This year $1,750,000 will be spent completing the hotel.

Yearly Rental Of $280,000

The establishment will be operated by a company owned jointly by the C.N.R. and the Canadian Pacific Railway. After payment of operating expenses and depreciation, the C.N.R. will receive, on an income basis, an annual rental up to $280,-

Building $6,000 Home

Recent hoof marks of deer were seen in the woods along the north end of Gull Lake, and everywhere was beauty and quiet and rest. A few cottages are already in occupation, lumber is being assembled here and there for new ones. An American is planning to spend $6,000 on a summer home north of Cochrane's new resort which has replaced the old building destroyed by fire, started by a tourist's cigarette butt a year ago.

The water of Catchecoma was a deep blue yesterday afternoon, fringed by the dark green of pines and cedars and softened by the pastel shades of the budding maples and beech and the other trees that will soon be in leaf. Rice Lake semed simply another aspect of fairyland. The thousands of wild ducks that had flown in during the night remained until nearly noon had taken wing again for the north, but a big flock of black and white ducks was raising a noisy chatter in the bay east of Hiawatha. The stillness of Gull Lake was broken by the call of two pairs of loons half a mile off shore, but the whole scene was unoccupied and will remain vacant until the first morning of the pickerel season.

MORE ABOUT—

LABORITES

conversion of income to capital.

Labor Promises Action.

"If there is to be war, if greater sacrifices are still to be demanded," Mr. Pethick-Lawrence warned, "the Labor Party has no intention of sitting idly by while rich men make themselves richer."

Either some means must be found of catching the man who escaped tax by converting income into capital or else capital itself must be made liable to tax. The Chancellor of Exchequer always had this weapon in reserve; he could make capital liable to an annual tax. If the Chancellor failed to tax income from wealth, he could tax wealth itself.

"Youre asking from the people of this country unprecedented sacrifices," Mr. Pethick-Lawrence added. "You are calling for unity. The question we want to put to you is for what are you asking these sacrifices. For any real reconciliation in Europe every man and woman in this country devoutly prays.

What Evidence?

"You say you are started on the road to reconciliation. We ask what evidence you have. In Ireland you have been in time to rectify the blunders your government made a few years ago. In Germany you are yielding to autocracy what you refused to give to justice and democracy. In Spain you threw away democracy and freedom when you allowed non-intervention to become a farce. What form will appeasement take when there are no more weak nations to be flung to the wolves?"

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, followed. He declared "It is not the least merit of the Chancellor's austere and honest budget if it exposes the precariousness and rottenness of the economic policy of his predecessor (Neville Chamberlain) and which the government have been following the past six years."

It was not the time for any wise Chancellor to impose new taxation in view of the present recession which might become a slump. But fresh taxation had been necessitated by his predecessor's failure, for Mr. Chamberlain's three pence income tax increase last year "was like a refusing horse which has not the heart to take a big jump and queers the takeoff for those following."

Taxpayer Won't Falter

No steps had been taken to curb growing expenditure in recent years. But Sir Archibald admitted the need of rearmament and foreign governments would be mistaken if they reckoned on the faltering of the British taxpayer.

German air strength was still ahead of that of the Royal Air Force, although Britain's naval strength still was predominant.

"My submission," Sir Archibald declared, "is that the ministry for the coordination of defence (headed by Sir Thomas Inskip) has not saved us from the old device of a departmental scramble, in which the admiralty always scooped the pool. The government must obtain more effective machinery for the control of the three services and for closer correlation of their demands upon the taxpayer."

The Liberal leader said it had been recently exposed that aircraft manufacturers were receiving £300 profit on each plane.

"Many of us are disquieted about the waste in various directions," Sir Archibald said, "but as I am not at liberty to disclose the source of certain information I do not feel justified in repeating it."

Defence expenditures was only one part of the whole problem of mounting expenditure and there might come a panic demand for a committee of hard-faced business men to cut down ruthlessly.

"We ought carefully to inquire into present expenditure and look several years ahead into the means of keeping within revenue without detriment to the needs of national defence or social services," the Liberal leader argued.

BOUNTY PAYMENTS MADE TO INDIANS

Indians of the Rice and Mud Lake agency this week received their semi-annual bounty. The money is not a grant, according to Indian Agent Vincent Eastwood, Jr., but is interest from moneys held in trust at Ottawa.

Indians in this district filed into the office, collected $7, and went on a tour of Peterborough stores. The amount paid varies each time, depending on expenses to be taken from the earnings of the money in trust. The money is made up from surrender of lands, treaties, rentals from their own lands. The last treaty to be signed with numerous tribes of which the Indians in this area are members, netted them a quarter of a million dollars in 1923. Expenses to be taken out of the earnings of the money include roadwork, medical attention, maintenance of buildings, purchase of fuel for public buildings.

A BINGO RAID

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP). — Through the efforts of 50 harrassed policemen, comparative calm has been restored to Brooklyn to-day after 2,000 women nearly started a riot. The women were among 3,500 odd players at a bingo benefit party raided last night by police. When five men were arrested and the game was stopped, the women stampeded to the ticket booths, demanding return of their 25-cent admissions. Quarters were hastily handed back.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Lack of buying power and a poor export trade to offset influence of good general rains in North American wheat belts this week caused Winnipeg wheat futures to recede from early advances. The final prices were ¾ to ⅞ cent lower, May $1.19⅛, July $1.10⅛, and October 89 cents.

Business generally was quiet and nervous with price range within three cents. The market was influenced by Liverpool's trend which, despite an early rally that placed the May future 1½ cents higher, gave way to liquidation.

Canadian export sales were reported as only a few loads of Durums. Durum demand was reflected in spreads improving fractionally in the cash market. No. 1 Northern, however, dropped to six cents premium above the May future and other grades were unchanged.

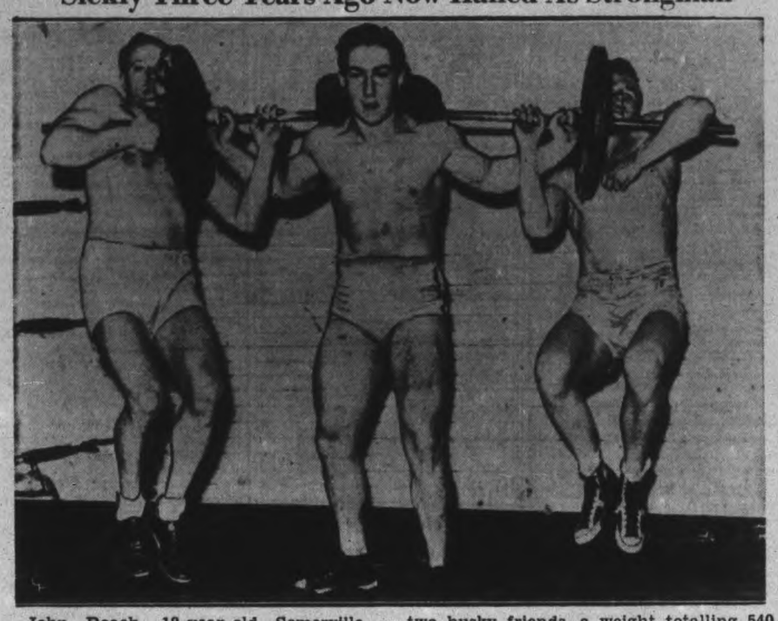
Sickly Three Years Ago Now Hailed As Strongman



John Roach, 18-year-old Somerville, Mass., youth exhibiting the tremendous strength which has earned for him a title of "one of the strongest men in the world," bestowed by various physical culture experts. Roach is seen lifting a bar bell and two husky friends, a weight totalling 540 pounds. Three years ago doctors told his mother the youngster would be lucky to reach his 17th year, and now look at him. He is expected to represent Uncle Sam in the 1940 Olympics, weight-lifting class.

BLOSSOM SUNDAY 3 WEEKS EARLY

HAMILTON, Ont., April 27. — (CP).— Three weeks earlier than usual, the Niagara Peninsula's blossom season will be at its height next week, growers predicted to-day as warm sunshine continued to bathe the district.

The season, expected to bring out the best of the early blossoms next Sunday, is the earliest in 21 years. Within two days, the Niagara Peninsula committee announced today, "there will be an excellent showing throughout the peninsula." The area along the Niagara river already is in full bloom.

"Sunday, May 1, should be exceptionally good for the early blossoms and on Sunday, May 8, later varieties of peaches, cherries and pears should be at their best," the committee's announcement said. Blossom time dates have been set for May 6-15 and officials feel now these may be "just a day or two late."

Slays A Shark With Knife

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 27 (AP).—A 30-foot "sea gangster" —a shark with a mouth as big as an automobile wheel—has been killed with a pocket knife by a fisherman in Weymouth Bay.

The huge two-ton shark had been wrecking fishermen's nets for more than three years, and eluding hunting parties armed with rifles and harpoons.

Monday the big fish became snared in a net near shore and was pulled toward the beach. Frederick Farn, a fisherman, jumped into the water and repeatedly stabbed the shark which lashed the water into foam with his five-foot tail. The battle lasted 30 minutes.

A.Y.P.A. PRESENTS EVENING OF FUN ST. JOHN'S HALL

A Pot Pouri of real fun was presented in the program of unusual entertainment given Tuesday night by the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Anglican Church before an appreciative audience in the Parish Hall.

A minstrel show, five skits and a play was the generous offering of these versatile young people, who seemed equally talented in every phase.

The part of the aunt afflicted with the "sneezes" was realistically played by Florence Hutchinson, while her romantic niece, Betty Astor, was well done by Viola Clark. The fair Betty's suitor, whose name was unfortunately "Lace," produced the same effect upon the hay-fever victim, as the actual "Queen Anne's Lace." In his easy acceptance and overcoming of the situation Leslie Dyer did some fine work as "Dick Lace."

The unconscious source of the trouble in this afflicted family, was the would-be author, Uncle Jed, whose pet hobby was bringing in pollen-laden flowers.

This difficult role was splendidly portrayed by Charles Jefferies. The short but intensely appealing playette had the desired happy ending. When the sneeze-provoking lover named Lace won the Aunt's approval he snatched the opportunity of changing the name "Astor" to "Lace," thus reducing the danger of hay fever by one.

An important factor in working out the happy ending was the chic neighbor, played by Mrs. Ena Morley in fine style.

Cast Well Chosen

Excellent dramatic ability was shown by each one of the well-chosen cast.

This fact was also shown in the presentation of the five skits which brought down the house.

"Light Out" was a humorous episode of a bank robbery and an overcrowded elevator, with two actors participating, Eileen Gynane and Walter Howell.

The second offering in this group was an evidence of the foolishness of snobbery in "Mrs. Stuckoff," with Misses Gertie Lemmings, Florence Lemmings and Rose Puddick taking the parts.

Vaudeville Act

The third skit was vaudeville, featuring negro comedians in "The Barber Shop," in which Wilfred Gynane and Jack Watson excelled.

"Mr. and Mrs." was a domestic dialogue with a surprise ending, played by Hilda Phillips and Gordon Clegg.

One of the most amusing of the skits was "Table Service" which included a kind word. Viola Clarke and Lorne Galley did a good bit of characterization in this number which also boasted a surprise ending.

The music between acts was contributed by Tommy Parker with his tenor guitar in "A modern version of "Long, Long Ago," and "She Came Rolling down the Mountain."

Alf. Pooley delighted his audience with selections on his piano accordian in "Drifting and Dreaming" Jack Marshall, as pianist, left nothing to be desired, and was most generous with his musical numbers throughout.

Catchy songs, pretty frocks and snappy jokes by the end men comprised the rollicking minstrel show, with Lorne Galley as master of ceremonies.

The musical program, interspersed with jokes, opened with the full chorus singing: "Marching Along Together"; Alexander's Rag-time Band. The soloists were all in fine voice and met with much applause in the popular song hits, as follows: Len Phillips, "Whistle While You Work"; Les Dyer, "Rosalie"; Jack Watson, "Boo-Hoo"; Rose Puddick, "Linger Longer Island"; Alf Pooley, "Ten Pretty Girls"; Bus Hutchinson, Ena Morley, "Sail Along Silvery Moon"; Walter Howell, "Sitting On a Five-Barred Gate"; Fred Hooper, "Melanchody Baby"; Lorne Galley, "Thanks for the Memory."

This exceedingly successful presenation will be repeated to-night and should be an attraction to all fun lovers.

DO YOU EVER OVER-INDULGE?

Over-eating and drinking usually mean a bad night and an unpleasant morning after. But not for those who know the "cheer-up" value of Eno's "Fruit Salt". As far back as mid-Victorian days, when eating and drinking were favourite indoor sports, Eno saved the old-timers many a sleepless night . . . many a bad morning after.

A dash of Eno in a glass of water morning and night goes a long way in offsetting the effects of over-indulgence. Eno sweetens the stomach, sharpens the appetite, keeps the intestines free from poisonous waste, and makes you feel good all over. Eno forms no habit. It is pleasant to take and acts gently, normally, effectively. Remember, life today calls for Eno's "Fruit Salt".

C.P. WIRE SERVICE MUCH IMPROVED

TORONTO, April 27—(CP).—H. P. Duchemin, K.C., of The Sydney Post-Record told the annual meeting of The Canadian Press in his presidential address that in the last year the national news-gathering organization of Canada's daily papers "met the challenge of new tests and vital problems in a highly gratifying manner."

"Never since the years preceding the Great War has it been so essential to keep the Canadian public intelligently and reliably informed of the trend of events in Europe as during the last 12 months, he said. "To this end the reorganization of our London bureau, carried out under the personal supervision of our general manager in the early part of 1937, was effected at the psychological moment. I am sure every member of our organization will bear cordial testimony to the marked improvement which has since taken place in our cable service from Great Britain."

Mr. Duchemin referred to the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, declaring ultra vires the proposed press control bill of the Alberta Legislature, as "something more than a victory for the newspapers of Canada—a judicial triumph for the freedom of public expression among a free people."

He said: "The judgment of the Supreme Court included two very important findings. One was that the necessity of an untrammelled press within the law had long been recognized as a basic condition of British democracy. The other was that the national significance of the newspress placed it in the category of subjects belonging to the legislative jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament."

The First Mortgage

The term "first mortgage" has a rather substantial sound. When one holds such a document then the feeling is that nothing stands between him and security. The individual holding a second mortgage may be out of luck, but the one with the first mortgage is in a highly preferred position. As a rule we believe that may be correct, but a discussion of mortgage conditions before the Rowell commission shows plainly that the one thing which stands prominently between the holder of a first mortgage and security is the power granted to municipalities to impose taxation.

It has been shown that in Manitoba—and much the same condition prevails elsewhere—that there is a great deal ahead of the first mortgage. It can be summarized:

Taxes are enforceable by distress, suit or sale of lands.

Road maintenance, grants to agricultural societies, bounties for destruction of gophers, rats, etc., expenses for local health purposes, maintenance of neglected children, the school obligations for the year.

Under the Municipal Commissioners' Act, a levy is made on all municipalities for maintenance of cancer relief and research; cost of courts, jails and registry offices, mothers' allowances, nursing stations, old age pensions, soldiers' taxation relief.

Lands may be organized into a drainage district and all costs go into tax levies. Bridges may be built in such districts. In the cost of ditches land within one mile can be taxed. Portions of the cost of good roads may fall upon the municipality. Local improvements are in the same class and all these expenditures find their way into taxation, and taxation has a claim upon property above the first mortgage.

Public utilities may be initiated for telephone systems, electric light, power, steam heating or gas works, and property becomes liable for payment through taxes. Two mills can be levied for the maintenance of hospitals. If three-fifths of the ratepayers say so a doctor may be engaged for a municipality; curling and skating rinks may be provided by municipalities; excavations of reservoirs are similarly financed. Councils can borrow money to provide seed and fodder, to start works to prevent soil drifting, look after noxious weeds.

That is not the complete list presented with regard to Manitoba, but it is sufficient to show some of the difficulties which have been and are today facing the loan companies which have taken first mortgages, and its particular reference is to farm lands. Each item listed above, covering a wide range of services and undertakings, finds its way to the tax paper, and the tax paper is a document which holds preference and precedence over even so formidable a document as a first mortgage. It does look as though the loan companies would have something to think about at times in order to make certain just where they did stand.

A Guaranteed Wage

The Ford Brotherhood of America is composed of men who are employed by the Ford Motor Co., and the most recent thing it has done is to make a suggestion dealing with wages of those who are employed at hourly rates. The desire is to have the Ford Co. guarantee an annual minimum wage of $1,500 per year. Some years ago Henry Ford startled the industrial world by making $5 per day something like a standard in his shop. That would amount to about $1,500 a year for a six-day week.

The trouble is that workers in automobile shops experience slack seasons and then they have no wages at all. It takes the edge of the year's work, and the suggestion they advance is for the purpose of applying a remedy to that condition.

It is not possible to argue that a guaranteed yearly wage is not desirable. Because it is. The trouble is that wages depend on markets, and there is no stability in markets. If the Ford company were to guarantee it would pay $1,500 to every man working for it as a minimum wage for the year, the company in turn could secure no guarantee from the consumer that there would be sufficient demand for cars to make the guarantee possible.

There have been a number of attempts made to provide a guaranteed number of weeks' work during a year and we have nothing but admiration for the firms which are doing experimental work in that field. In any field which is highly competitive the difficulty of arriving at some scheme which would cover a steady income would be more difficult of achievement unless the plan were generally adopted and possibly reflected in the selling price. We are moved to hope the Ford Co. will not toss the suggestion out as impossible without doing a fair amount of thinking about it. If such a policy were worked out we doubt if there would be much more labor trouble.

What Would You Do?

Mayor Day of Toronto discussed an issue which may be often enough overlooked—the reducing taxation in a municipality may be accomplished by firing people working for the municipality. Doing that would add to unemployment; it might add to the relief list.

People in public life want to reduce taxation, and they also want to see as many people as possible working, and yet it is almost impossible to have it both ways. The question came to the surface in Toronto because the council decided to do away with a number of city cars. That part of it is simple enough and all the action needed will be to sell the cars.

It is not so easy to deal with the chauffeurs who have been driving these cars, and an effort is being made to absorb the drivers in the varous civic departments. In other words, the officials are trying to find or make jobs for them.

If they fired them they would save money, and if they kept on with such a policy they would save more money. But the civic officials in Toronto are human beings and they want to see these chauffeurs find something to do. If you want the answer to that problem think it out for yourself. If you were directing the affairs of Toronto, what would you do?

The Price Of Butter

Toronto reports that butter prices dropped eight cents per pound last week, the figure going from 36 cents to as low as 28. The secretary of the Housewives' Association in Toronto said the association did not claim its butter boycott had entirely caused the price decrease, but was sure the propaganda method had had some effect.

We are not inclined to believe the boycott against butter in Toronto had anything to do with the price decrease. The reason for the drop was the release of 1,750,000 pounds of New Zealand and Canadian butter.

We have a rather two-sided way of dealing with butter. In the first place for the protection of the dairy interests we closed down on the manufacture or importation of oleomargarine, and then we also made arrangements whereby tons of competing butter from Australia and New Zealand could be sold here.

For our own part we believe it would have been better had the price of butter fat remained up. It would have meant something to the farmers, and that is not merely a kind word for the farmers, because the blunt truth is that the rest of the people are not going to get far until the farmers are well on their feet.

Just Another Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Downing and Robert Gree, all of Toronto, were almost instantly killed on the highway near Tilbury on April 12 when the car in which they were driving crashed into the back of a truck which had become stalled on the road. There was an inquest held and the verdict declared the death of the three persons was due to an accident.

The truck had stopped only a short time before and was making arrangements to get a tow from another truck. The evidence given said there had been no time to place flares behind the stalled truck, but the usual rear lights on the big vehicle were in order. There were witnesses who said the Toronto car was travelling at a high rate of speed at the moment of the impact.

But none of these things find any mention in the verdict of the jury. It can be taken for granted that the driver of a car would not plow into the back of a truck if he knew it was there. Was he travelling at such a rate that he could not readily distinguish tail lights, or were the tail lights of the stranded truck sufficient? It does look as though there should have been something which from the evidence produced could throw some light on what took place. Finding that three people were killed by accident is finding something which was already known.

It may be difficult enough for members of a jury to have such a crash so placed before them that they can understand just what did take place and why, but the jury should keep in mind as well that saying it was an accident is simply following the lines of least resistance. It suggests no responsibility and places no blame. We are having so many of these cases on our highways that we need to move away from the attitude which says "Just another accident."

Clipping The Sheep

We saw something in a little booklet today about clipping sheep. Of course wool prices are low just now and farmers are not going to make a great deal out of it. That was one job which grandfather always used to supervise himself on the Tenth Concession. And he actually liked doing a good deal of the clipping himself, something which may seem a trifle hard to understand.

There always used to be an unwritten sort of rule that the sheep had to be clipped before the end of the third week in May. What would have happened if that date had been over-run may be known to sheep-breeders, but we never heard tell of it on the Tenth.

Grandfather's sheep shearing started early. Always he would pick out the pen he was going to show at the fall fair and these he would clip in March and he'd see to it that they were kept in for a good while after that. We believe the same system is still used for show stock. They would then have a chance to have a good enough fleece to be trimmed just the right length for the fall fair. When it came time to do that grandfather was again on hand. The hired man was anxious to try his hand at it but he never did get a chance.

Grandfather contended that trimming a sheep for a show was a more delicate job than cutting hair or shaving a man with a boil on his jaw. He favored the Southdowns, although he knew well enough he never would make much out of the clip from such a sheep. But grandfather contended the Southdown made better mutton than any other sheep. There was also the suspicion too that he favored the Down because it made such a neat job to finish for the pen at the fall fair. The hired man generally brought out one of his books on how to trim sheep for show purposes, but grandfather would have none of it. Quite likely he believed the man who had written the book had never clipped a sheep in spring or trimmed it in late summer for the fall fair; and if he had any experience he couldn't tell grandfather anything of value. He was rather decided in his views on finishing sheep and trading horses, but he nearly always got the prize ticket on his pen of Southdowns at the fall fair. We recall too that after the stuff had been brought home from the fair grandfather generally had something to say to the hired man about his books on how to trim sheep for show purposes. He wasn't openly boasting, but something not far removed from it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Shirley Temple had 300 guests at her birthday party. Oh, well, she has the income to pay for that kind of thing.

Those thieves who stole five old masters from an English castle and got away without leaving a clue must have been artists in their own right.

Canadian chaplain says the only hope for peace is a united Empire. And right now we are having some difficulty about keeping Canada united.

Anthony Eden is spoken of as a possible British ambassador to Washington. There would be no doubt of the warmth of the welcome the former foreign secretary would receive from Americans.

District trout fishermen will probably feel that the announcement that the Little Ouse is to be again available to anglers is the best news since the armistice.

We claim to be a smart people and yet every year the newspapers have to tell folk that they advance their clocks and not put them back when the daylight saving season opens.

The Doukhobors of British Columbia state they have no desire for the franchise. And hastily counting noses, we announce that makes the thing unanimous.

There are only Liberals in the Prince Edward Island legislature and yet the session just closed was one of the stormiest on record. Just one big happy family!

Eddie Cantor, a story tells us, broadcast despite a temperature of 103. The comedian will appreciate now how his audience feels when they run up a temperature over some of his antiquated gags.

Japan has had to pay over two million dollars damages to Uncle Sam for the sinking of the Panay. The Japanese are about the only folk who can say definitely whether or not it was worth that much.

Ontario Municipal Board has made a concession to Toronto city council. If council has an operating surplus at the end of the year it can use that amount to reduce taxation. And by the same token if there is an operating deficit then that can be used to increase taxation.

GAS

(By A. R. K.)

The tax on gas in Britain has been increased to 18 cents per gallon.—News Item.

¶ When I drive in my pink sedan, the gas tank I severely scan, before I start to go; and it gives me no peace of mind, when after looking there I find, the thing is rather low.

¶ 'Tis then I start to search and look, and fumble in my pocket book, to see what I can buy; on days when I am poor I know, the miles I roll will be quite low, for fear I'll run her dry.

¶ And when I'm rich I order five, and think of all the miles I'll drive, I'll get far off from hence; nor does it fill me with content, to know I've paid the government, a goodly 30 cents.

¶ In England sure as I'm alive, they'd tax me ninety cents for five, I hope I've made that clear; my pink sedan I fear would stall, I'd hardly run the thing at all, perhaps ten miles a year.

¶ I hope our taxing men will frown, at what they've done in London town, be shocked by news that came; I hope they will not laugh in glee, and figure what their cash might be, if they would do the same.

¶ I like to drive my pink sedan, and be a sort of touring man, and mount hills built of rock; if tax on gas was eighteen here, I fear that most days in the year—I'd have to start and walk.

Pact Should Be Of Real Value

WHEN QUEEN ANNE sent a fleet to put the Hapsburg Archduke Charles on the Spanish throne in 1704, the expedition failed so miserably that Admiral Sir George Roke was afraid to go home without retrieving his honor. So he turned on Gibraltar, caught the 500-man Spanish garrison, stationed there, napping, and took the Rock. The exploit cost him only 60 marines.

Since that date, this accidental by-product of an intervention in Spain has stood as the Empire's most picturesque symbol. Modern soldiers doubt that its 16-inch batteries really are such impregnable sentries as popular imagination believes. But, from the last Spanish siege in 1779 (when Spain joined the rebellious American colonies to fight Britain) to Mussolini's defiance in 1935, no other nation challenged the Mediterranean supremacy represented by the gigantic crag. It is a military fact that even Gibraltar would be useless with an unfriendly Spain behind it. And when the Duce sent his expeditionary forces to Spain in 1936, his boast of a new Italian Empire became so ominous the "gentlemens' agreement signed by Britain and Italy in January 1937 soon gave way to dangerous hostility. By last month—with Fascist and Nazi power about to win in Spain—the question of whether Britain and Italy could reconcile their Mediterranean interests had become as urgent for European peace as the question of Germany's territorial aims.

HOLY SATURDAY, the question was answered perhaps conclusively. Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and Foreign Minister, and Britain's Ambassador, Lord Perth, signed an "Easter Pact" intended to regulate their affairs peacefully in history's most dangerous sea. The signers were visibly conscious of making history. English and Italian texts, bound in blue and emblazoned with the respective royal crests, were opened on a table, the only piece of furniture in the Hall of Victory in the Palazzo Chigi. Ciano and Perth signed beneath Hollywoodish klieg lights and grinding cameras. Later a street crowd gave Perth the first cheers an Englishman has received in Rome for three years.

Two short letters striking a bargain contained the most important of the 7,000 words of protocols, appendixes and letters: (1) Italy agreed to withdraw from Spain, either when the London nonintervention committee agrees on the technique of getting all foreign soldiers out or (now more probable) when the war ends; (2) Britain agreed to recognize Italy's Ethiopian empire as soon as formalities could be arranged by the League of Nations, which meets May 9. It was for the sake of this deal that in February Premier Neville Chamberlain ousted Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden — a bitter personal as well as political enemy of Mussolini — and routed British foreign policy into more conciliatory channels.

THE REMAINING agreements covered every point of conflict from Gibraltar eastward to the mouth of the Red Sea. (The pact even included a tripartite "good neighbor" pact with Egypt, which the Egyptian Minister was invited in to sign.) Italy promised to stop spreading hostile propaganda among Britain's African subjects, and said British rights in Lake Tana—headwaters of the Blue Nile in Ethiopia—would be respected. Both parties reaffirmed the convention of 1888 which provides that ships of all parties shall have passage through the Suez Canal in peace or war.

Mussolini's new and strong naval bases athwart British - dominated routes have constituted the main cause of Britain's anxiety. An appendix in the pact agreed that every January the two should exchange information about military arrangements in the Mediterranean and Red Seas. (They also agreed to notify each other in advance of any Naval or air bases to be built in the region east of 19 degrees east longtitude—halfway between the heel of Italy and Greece.) In a separate letter, Italy agreed to reduce its Libyan garrison, a threat to Egypt.

Italy's agreement not to use Ethiopian or other African troops for anything but local police duty was seen as a possible cause of trouble. Chamberlain wants France to sign a similar agreement with Italy. In the World War France used 350,000 native troops, still counts on them to balance Germany's numerical superiority, and would object to any such restriction.

Of the pact's eight annexes the one that covered most territory was one in which the two nations agreed to act as friends in their dealings with the inhabitants of the strategically vital Arabian Peninsula. They would tolerate no interference in the affairs of independent Saudi Araba and Yemen. And Mussolini recognized Britain's huge "Aden protectorate" which covers 110,000 square miles east and south of those countries.

The new amity formalized in the pact was to be celebrated this week by a visit to Rome from Britain's genial and publicity-conscious War Minister, Leslie Hore-Belisha. (Last week his mother wrote in a children's magazine that, when a child, Hore-Belisha once almost drowned and was saved by a mermaid "with skin like a luscious pear." He accompanied the story with a letter saying it was true.)

Only deliberate refusal by Mussolini to keep the bargain over Spain can spoil the pact as a triumph for Chamberlain's much-criticized "realistic" policy. The Briton's next step will be to persuade France to join.

Let There Be No Dionne Inquiry.

(Ottawa Journal)

ONE OF THE THINGS this country doesn't need is a fishing expedition into the financial and other affairs of the Dionne quintuplets. The father of the babies, through his lawyer, has asked the Ontario Government for a judicial inquiry into their supervision by Dr. Dafoe and into the management of their income and investments by the official board of guardians. There is nothing to indicate that specific charges have been made of irregularities or improprieties, and certainly the Government should not authorize an investigation, with all the publicity and hullabaloo that would entail, on the mere suspicion of an interested party that perhaps everything is not well.

Oliva Dionne, who wants the inquiry, by Ontario Act is a member of the board of guardians for his quintuplet children, but it is said he has refused to accept that responsibility, has taken no part in the board's work. What will occur to most people is that Mr. Dionne has had all this time an opportunity to acquaint himself thoroughly with the business affairs of the famous babies. His refusal so to do does not now justify him in asking for a formal investigation, presumably a public one, of decisions in which he might have had a hand. His appeal now smacks of outside instigation.

And a public inquiry into the supervision of Dr. Dafoe, unless definite charges are made against him, would be highly distasteful. The Callander physician has become a public figure, in the public mind has come to symbolize the country doctor of legend and story. He has achieved the distinction of a full-dress biography, now running in a United States magazine. He has come to know the satisfacttion— and the embarrassment—of hero-worship, but he bears his honors with dignity, the acclaim of his profession and the public with modesty. Nobody, we think, seriously would desire his halo dimmed.

The rearing of this extraordinary family presents problems enough to try the judgment and the patience of any board. That those who have managed the affairs of these wards of the King in the main have achieved a nigh degree of success is, we think, the general opinion. The perfectly natural curiosity of the public has been satisfied without the sacrifice of privacy and home life, which are important if the young Dionne ladies are to have anything like a normal girlhood. Their assets have been managed under strict supervision and regulation, and already each of them is assured of an adequate income for her lifetime. Their brothers and sisters and their parents have had, and will have more, advantages from the fund the guardians have created. All of these things are within the public knowledge. And unless there is plain evidence of mismanagement we think the guardians should not be harassed by an inquiry.

Hard Rock Miners Are Not Hard!

(From the Timmins Advance)

THERE WAS an irritating despatch in the daily newspapers one day this week. It told about a one-man riot staged by a fellow in Kirkland Lake. He smashed furniture, broke up a stove, frightened his wife, threw missiles at the police and had to be subdued by the use of tear gas and the services of four policemen. The despatches described him only as a "Hard Rock Miner", as if that explained everything.

To southern minds a "Hard Rock Miner" may picture a gentleman hard as rock—hard in muscle, in head, in heart. The truth is far otherwise. Hard rock miners as a matter of fact are just a little better fellows than other miners—a lot better than most other workers. The very fact that they are hard rock miners indicates that they are more skilled, more efficient, more competent than those who work in softer rock. A hard rock miner is simply a miner who works in a mine where the rock is hard, the drilling more difficult, the work more interesting.

Both Kirkland Lake and Timmins are hard rock camps. As a matter of fact, Kirkland Lake rock is a little harder than that of Porcupine, but that does not place Kirkland Lake on a lower plane. Indeed, the best of the Kirkland Lake miners went there from Timmins, and many from Timmins were once in Kirkland Lake, so there you are. Then, again, many of those in Porcupine and Kirkland Lake mines today once worked in soft rock mines, so where are you?

It is not a fact that the hard rock miner has a heart as hard as the rock in which he works. The southerners should not run away with any notion like that. Hard rock miners may be hard-headed but they have soft hearts. Many of them are cultured; all of them are orderly and law-abiding.

His Sleep Spoiled By the Noise

(Letter In Kitchener Record)

TO THE EDITOR: This morning at 5.30 I was awakened from a sound sleep by the shrieks of the fire trucks going past my home. In fact I was awakened by three separate shrieks, the first by that of the big pumper; the second by that of the chief's car and the third, a few minutes later by that of the ladder truck, all going past at break-neck speed, and advertising themselves in no uncertain manner. Of course, I immediately felt the wall of my bed-chamber to see how hot it was, but before I could get my eyes properly opened the Kitchener Fire Department was returning (very meekly of course) somehow like my dog who knows he has been disobedient and stands there begging forgiveness with his tail between his legs.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am wondering if all this noise with respect to our fire department answering a call is really necessary. I do not want to belittle the importance of this civic department, but I believe their advertising is somewhat overdone. Babies are born quite frequently in our city and doctors are called out hurriedly at all hours of the day and night. They do not race their cars through the city streets with the cut-outs open and have their cars equipped with special sirens to let all and sundry know that they are coming to answer a special call. Yet these same doctors fulfill their mission and accomplish their duty in as efficient manner as our fire department ever did.

I believe our fire department could learn a lesson of common courtesy from our doctors. When they get a call at unusual hours, could they not answer that call with the least possible disturbance to the neighborhood? In the busy hours of the day let them make all the noise possible, and clear the streets for their right-of-way but when people wish to sleep, can they not use common sense, and turn their noise-making instruments to the lowest pitch possible? I'm sure it will be appreciated.

A Bible Message For To-day . . .

IF YE THEN be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life, shall appear then shall ye also appear with him in glory. . . . Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; and have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him. . . . Put on, therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long suffering. . . . And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful.—Col. iii, 1-4 9, 10, 12, 15.

THE WORST ROAD.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

BROCKVILLE people will not find it difficult to remember when it was popular to poke fun at the condition of Prescott's main thoroughfare which was distinctly inferior to the surface which then covered King street, Brockville. Nowadays it is the Prescott people who find it difficult to suppress a smile—or an oath—when they are compelled to drive over Brockville's aged and decrepit pavement which grows more and more feeble from year to year and is now generally conceded to be the very worst piece of road between Montreal and Toronto.

During that time he participated in a procession and was tendered a luncheon so that any opportunity for snoozing was entirely out of the question.

FINE YEAR FACES YOUTH TRAINING

OTTAWA, April 27 (CP). — Labor Minister Rogers said to-day that the youth training program of the Dominion and Provincial Governments "promises to be even more successful this year than last."

"The Dominion supervisor of youth training has just returned from a trip through Western Canada and reports that all Western Provinces are enthusiastic about the plan and look forward to another year of activity in training and rehabilitating young unemployed," the minister said.

"Ontario, it is understood, desires to continue household training courses, but no final word has yet been received by the Dominion in regard to the balance of the program in that province.".

After representations by associations interested in forest preservation on the menace of white pine blister rust to Canadian forests, proposals have been made by the Labor Department to Ontario and Quebec offering to assume the cost incurred by the Dominion Forest Service in training 20 young men from each province in methods of fighting this scourge, he said.

The proposal is still under consideration by the provinces.

Administration of the youth training program rests with the provinces. Last year training was given to approximately 30,000 needy young Canadians.

MISSIONARY HEAD SPEAKS AT WARSAW

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 27. — The United Church services on Sunday evening was especially interesting as Mrs. Morton from Peterborough, the president of the Presbyterial, gave a missionary address along a different line from usual. The speaker took as her subject Simon of Cyrene, bearing the cross when Jesus fell under it, and enlarged. Mrs. Morton gave several selections of verse on taking up the cross and serving Him, and showed that if willingly taken it is not so hard; but grudgingly, it is hard, for it is not as pleases the Master.

It was Young People's evening, and their choir gave two selections. The hymns sung were "Breathe on me, Breath of God," "In Christ there is no East or West," and "Father, We Thank Thee for the Night."

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson led the services. The special W.M.S. thankoffering collection was taken.

STEWART HALL

The Women's Missionary Society held its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance at the home of Mrs. Beecher Matchett.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. George Hanbidge. Miss Gertie Thompson gave a chapter of the study book, "A New Church Faces a New World," and a reading by Mrs. Harold Dawson. Several items of business were discussed and the meeting closed with singing and prayer. A missionary quilt donated by one of the members was quilted during the afternoon.

Supper was served by the hostess, and a social hour enjoyed by all.

DOES WAR ADMIRAL NEED JOCKEY KURTSINGER ABOARD TO WIN?

ANY RIDER UP WOULD DO JOB FOR REAL HORSE

NEW YORK, April 27—Suspension of Charley Kurtsinger adds a new angle to the $100,000 race May 30 between War Admiral and Seabiscuit. Does the Admiral need Kurtsinger on his back to beat Seabiscuit? Just as Seabiscuit seems to demand Red Pollard in the pilot house, or else? How important is a jockey to a horse?

Most trackmen will say that a good horse can win with anyone on his back. Horses come to know their jockeys, just as jockeys learn after a couple of rides the qualities of their mounts. Horsemen say the important thing for a jockey to know is how to race the horse to get the most out of him. Some horses like to take it easy during the first few furlongs, and finish wtih a rush. Others like to go to the front at once.

Just Sit on His Back

War Admiral, they say, is the kind of steed any boy can ride, just as Man O'War was a fellow that didn't particularly care who had the leg up. All War Admiral needs is restraint. In only one of his races has he come from behind in the home stretch. That was last fall in Maryland, when he had to hustle along over the last furlong to show Masked General his place. The Riddle horse runs his own race. Many horses are like that, too—the jockey knows all he has to do is sit.

If War Admiral can't beat Seabiscuit without Kurtsinger, some correction will have to made in his status. Certainly he cannot be admitted to the select company of great horses if he needs a certain boy on his back. The same, of course, goes for Seabiscuit. They say Seabiscuit might have won the Santa Anita if Pollard had been able to ride. I doubt that. Seabiscuit is too much horse, too, to be particularly concerned about his rider. It must be admitted, though, that Pollard might have kept him out of trouble. That's one angle that will not figure in the big race. With only two horses, there can't be any racing trouble. No pockets. No bumping. Just a horse in front, or a horse alongside, to beat.

Seabiscuit lost races this year in which Sonny Workman and George Woolf were astride him. It is a question whether Pollard could have done any better than these two, for both gave the Biscuit plenty of ride. Woolf was up when the horse set a new track record at Bay Meadows in his last start. The Howard horse, by the way, is developing into something of a transcontinental traveller. Coming from California to New York for the match race, he will go right back to the Pacific coast for the $50,000 Hollywood race at the new Englewood course in June. The horse will come east again for the late summer and fall fixtures.

Approach Sun Beau's Record

Either Seabiscuit or War Admiral may surpass the all-time money winning total of Sun Beau this year. Sun Beau's earnings, now at the top of the list, were $376,744. Seabiscuit has won approximately $250,000 to War Admiral's $230,000 to date. After the match race, each will compete in four or five rich stake races.

Second to Sun Beau now is Equipoise, with $338,610. Gallant Fox won $328,165. Zev is on the list with $313,639, and Mate won $301,910.

BIG PROGRAM ON FOR "Y" CIRCUS

The "Y" Circus will be held this Thursday and Friday in the Y.M.C.A. and a big program is promised the patrons. Ringmaster Osum Speiller (Rufus Payne) will conduct the show. Two dozen dwarfs, the Pioneers of eight and nine years, will add fun and frolic. The Beginners, aged 10 and 11, will dish up speed and co-ordination in their gym tricks. A senior gym squad, known as the "Unparalled troupe" will entertain on the parallel bars.

Jimmy Gosselin does a stunt "for denizens of the dark," which is known as "Old King Tut Comes To Life." The basking basketeers, the intermediates, flash a flock of speed and thrilling play in the cage sport. Junior tumoling by junior members is reported as being most exciting and next thing to perilous. Not forgetting the flying rings exhibition by the senior acrobats. And of course, plenty of side-splitting antics by a bunch of clowns. It will be a big event for gymnastic followers.

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press.)

Carl Hubbell posted his 19th consecutive victory of a two-year stretch one year ago to-day, equalling the mark set by Tim Keefe and Rube Marquard, two other renowned pitching masters of New York Giants. Although pounded out of the box Hubbell was credited with the 7-6 decision over Cincinnati. His string ended at 21—an all-time record.

EXTRA-HOLE WINS FEATURE TOURNEY

LEEDS, Eng., April 27. (AP).—Extra-hole victories by Frank Pennink, defending champion, and Harry Bentley, who holds the German amateur title, featured the second-round matches in the English amateur championship yesterday.

Two down to J. Rushforth at the fifteenth hole, Pennink evened the match on the eighteenth and won on the nineteenth. Bentley was saved when R. F. Cottingham three putted the eighteenth green and Bentley went on to win on the next hole.

In the other matches J. E. Gent, Yorkshire champion, downed J. A. Graham, 5 and 4. Both are British Walker Cup nominees. Charlie Stowe eliminated H. K. Lister 6 and 5 and K. B. Scott, Oxford star, defeated J. Scott 3 and 2.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

AT EIGHT tonight in Duffus', the men's City Softball League will hold a huddle, and you and you and you are invited. They want more teams right now, everything else being under control. Two entries in to date, Motorists and a London biscuit firm; while the young Petes and the Westclox crews are good possibilities. The Southend League was to have been approached on Monday to see about shooting in a squad, only they didn't meet that night, so nothing came of it. The southenders have their gabfest on Monday next, but 'tis a doubtful prospect for the City Loop at best. With games played in the Bowl this summer, the revenue ought to be quite a bit higher, and a good four-team men's league would do okay.

* * * * * *

AT THE Church Softball League get-together two nights ago in the "Y", everything pointed to a big year with probably some 18 teams in. Closing date for entries was set at next Monday, and play will start later that week. Dope on the meeting is in tonight, the report arriving a bit too late yesterday for publication. Officers include: Len Agnew, Don Charlton, George Beauclerc, Lloyd Parnall, Jack English, Nelson Hewett and Stu Laing. They hope to have some games at Central this year. It is a fine league and dishes up dozens of nifty contests.

AND THE annual "Y" Circus will be held this year at the Y.M.C.A. on next Thursday and Friday evenings. Plenty of fun and action in a number of neat acts. In fact, hair-hoisting numbers, according to the press agent. He writes: "Come one, come all and celebrate one glorious crowded hour of magnificent, marvellous, majestic melody of accelerating monstrosities!" We will certainly use our free pass to see this as soon as we get a look at the dictionary and find out what all them thar big mouthsful mean. Of some of the acts he writes: "See these galloping ghouls gambol in rollicking relays," and "mounds of massed manhood in the making will cause mamas to lose their makeup," and "firearms and shillalies should be left at the office until after the show." Sounds like something, all right, all right.

ANKLED AROUND to a free feed at the Paragon last night, it being the banquet for the P.C.I.-ers as winners of the Junior City Hockey League. They copped the Payne Trophy and a lot of praise, as well as the grub, and Coach Bill Jackson and his boys deserve a lot of credit. Bill Prindible and Mike O'Brien got thanked, too, for their efforts as officers of this loop, sponsored by the Hockey Club. Rollie Glover congratulated the boys and said the added weight of increasing years was a sore blow to hockey players—and who should know better than the same R. M.? F. E. Johnston of the Collegiate and Vocational School also spoke. Bob Parnall, John Corkery and Doug Mortimer received shields for their work the past season.

* * * * * *

THERE WERE about 20 down at the lacrosse workout last e'en in the George St. arena. Ground was in fair shape and the new inside fence, with rounded corners, is a big improvement. Most of the prospects toiling away hard last evening were members of the classy Auburns' outfit which so well represented this town last year in O.A.L.A. competition, going to the Provincial semi-finals in their first season. A few other local lads and juniors were observed by this gutted-stick follower, and also one Norm Worthy, an ex-Brampton senior star. And he can sure whip around passes! Will likely line up with locals this semester. Manager Randle should round up a strong squad this year, and we hope he has a good group. If jobs were available here now, it would be easier than running into debt to bring in half a dozen of the best senior lacrossers in Ontario. But there is a recession on.

* * * * * *

THE OLD Bay of Quinte intermediate ball league has been reorganized with four clubs in, Napanee, Picton, Trenton Fliers and Belleville. And our old sparring mate, Ken Colling—umps and scribe of Bella Villa—is prexy. They hope to also line up a four-team junior circuit there. Fliers open hte schedule in Belleville on May 24th. Tommy Lawrence isn't sure yet where the Airmen will hold their home games. Another meeting will be held on May 9th. We are glad to see the game being revived down along the Quinte shores and will be looking for a senior squad in Belleville within a couple of years. Too bad we can't dig up a senior entry for the C.O.B.L. this year out of those four teams, but we are tickled to a rosy tint to see Belleville back in the game and the Fliers zooming into the spalding sport.

HERB RALPH would handle a junior baseball team here again if he could get some backing. Rotarians have aided the juniors for several years but don't expect to this summer, and it is time another club did its part. Lions Club, Kiwanis or Kinsmen, we'd suggest, if some company won't step in and assist. Herb has nearly all the necessary equipment and the material for a first-rate junior club. And a good league lined up. Prexy Jim Anderson of this city will be calling a Junior Lakeshore Baseball League meeting within two weeks, and Oshawa, Cobourg and Bowmanville will be ready to climb in. What about Peterborough? Ralph Clark is loop secretary.

* * * * * *

LAST YEAR'S Rotarians have quite a few good ballsters still young enough for junior, and there are half a dozen fine former juveniles around, too. Herb could line up such able junior performers this season as : Kelly, Edmunds, Girard, G. Clark, Todd, Thornton, McNabb, Crowe, Prete, Williams, Castle Cutting and McCormick. Maybe others, also. You won't run across better junior twirlers anywhere in Ontario than Todd and Clark. Nor a surer senior prospect as a hitting outfielder than Kelly. Just to name a few of 'em. We should by all means see that these boys play junior ball this year, and that they have an intermediate team to go into next season. There is some talk of the public schools here returning to baseball, which would be scrumptious news. But what about this junior team?

DON. ROBERTSON HEADS DELORA A.A.

MARMORA, April 27—The annual meeting of the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association was held in Deloro hall on Monday evening with William Simmons, retiring president, in the chair.

The president's address, though brief, dealt with the general good showing of the association in the past year. M. J. Corrigan presenting his report as sercetary treasurer, showed a good balance on hand. Managers of the different branches of sport followed with their reports, each indicating a very successful year had been experienced.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Donald Robertson; vice-president, Wesley Richardson; secretary-treasurer, M. J. Corrigan (re-elected).

Rollickin' Rollie Rejoins Indians

Vitt was pleased because Rollicking Rollie Hemsley, the "bad boy" of the Indians, had rejoined the club, with another promise to behave himself. No more looking at back bars lined with shiny bottles and glasses, Hemsley promised with a solemn face.

Helmsley, who lost $5,000 in payless suspensions for misdeeds while a member of St. Louis Browns last season, admitted "having a couple of drinks" in Detroit Sunday night. Slapping a $250 fine on him made them cost $125 apiece.

This was the second rampage for Hemsley this season. During the training-camp period at New Orleans he wobbled into the hotel with a black eye and a few lumps on his head. Hemsley was ordered to his home to meditate until such time as he thought he could behave himself. He was absent a week.

CHURCH SOFTBALL IN FOR BIG YEAR

At the annual meeting of the Church Softball League in the "Y" on Monday evening, indications of another big entry list were noted. There were 17 teams in last year and everything points to as many this season. George St. will again have three, senior, juvenile and bantam; St. John's will run two; and Knox and Mark St. two each, probably in the same groups as in '37; All Saints report three entries; Trinity figure on two; while St. Paul's, St. James, Murray St. and Park St.—though not represented—are expected to have as many as last year. An effort will be made to get St. George's, St. Luke's and St. Andrew's back again. Junior teams may run from St. John's, St. Paul's, George St. and All Saints.

A bank balance of $9.50 was shown at this session, and crests will be given the winners. Entry fees are 50 cents for bantams and juveniles and a dollar for juniors and seniors. Executive members elected, who will again choose their own officers, were: Len Agnew as president, Don Charlton as secretary (their 7th year), George Beauclerc as vice-president, Lloyd Parnall as treasurer, and Jack English, Nelson Hewett and Stuart Laing.

Closing date for entries will be May 2nd, with the schedule opening that week. Church Loop players are allowed two games to try out in the City League, while last year's City Loop players are barred from the C.S.L. till the 1938 City League schedule starts. Probably junior O.A.S.A. boys in the City League will be permitted to play double in the Church Loop as last year, though this is doubtful yet. Revised rules and entry forms will be sent out immediatey to all churches, and teams are asked to name their home grounds. All school grounds, the Oval and King Edward Park are expected to be available, and possibly Central also.

Votes of thanks were expressed to the schools, parks, and the Y.M.C.A., as well as the Examiner. While some of the churches did not have representatives on hand, a number are expected to enter before the deadline. Other matters were discussed and definite plans made for a big season before the gathering adjourned.

Phenomenal Scores Piled Up In National League Hockey

Maroons-Canadiens Record Of 18 In The Modern Professional Record

This was an outstanding year for phenomenal scoring feats in the National Hockey League. Old-time records were recalled in one or two instances, notably by the fast scoring feat performed by Nels Stewart, of the Americans, at Boston on November 28. On this occasion Stewart rattled in three goals in little more than six minutes.

A later instance was the huge record-scoring spree in which the Montreal Maroons and the Canadiens indulged at Montreal on January 11.

No fewer than 18 goals, a new modern record for professional hockey and an all-time record for the National Hockey League, rattled into the nets on that occasion, as the Maroons won by 11 to 7, hanging up new league, domestic, intracity series and freak records of many sorts. Here are some of them:

The 18 goals is the biggest one-game total of modern times, breaking the 16-goal record set in 1921-'22.

Longest Period 50 Mins.

The first was the longest period of the season, which required 50 minutes, due to delays caused by injuries to goalers Beveridge and Cude in turn. The game required two and a half hours to complete, including delays and intermissions.

It was the first time seven goals were scored in a National League period in ten minutes. There were nine minutes 59 seconds between the Maroons' opening goal in the first session and their fifth one. The Canadiens had sandwiched in two. The 11 goals formed the biggest count ever registered against the Canadiens in modern hockey, by any team.

Leaf's Record

The Maroons, by notching seven goals in the first period, break their own mark of six in one period achieved against Boston on February 11, 1932. On that occasion the Maroons scored six straight.

While the 18-goal total is a record for the N. H. L., there have been many games in the modern N. H. L. in which the winners scored 11 goals. The Toronto Leafs did it twice in the season of 1931-'32. On January 19, 1932, they whipped the Americans, 11 to 3, and exactly two months later beat the Hawks by the same count.

Eleven goals in a game is not, however, a National League record. On January 11, 1919, at Montreal, the Canadiens defeated the Toronto Arenas 13 to 3. This was one of the earliest 16-goal games in the history of the league.

In the first days of the National League, which was founded in November, 1917, the Toronto team got the 11-goal habit. On December 24, 1917, the Torontos defeated the Ottawa Senators, 11 to 4.

Christmas Eve seems to have been a time for handing out big scores. On December 24, 1921, the Canadiens made their first appearance of the National League season in Ottawa and were beaten 10 to 0. This happened to the Canadiens again in Boston on February 2, 1933.

Modern Figures

One of the modern 11-goal scores was compiled in St. Louis, December 13, 1934. George Boucher had gone there to replace the late Eddie Gerard as manager of the St. Louis Eagles, who were in the N.H.L. for a year. In his debut he saw his club beaten, 11 to 2, by the Detroit Red Wings.

The 16-goal mark for a single game was set in the N.H.L. back in 1921-'22. In that season there were no less than six 10-to-6 games. Ottawa won two of them, one against Hamilton, and the Canadiens won the other, beating Hamilton.

This record for volume of goals was equalled when the Maroons and Americans drew 8-all at New York February 16, 1936.

Catcher Wilson Hangs Up Glove

NEW YORK, April 27.—From now on it'll be just Manager Jimmy Wilson. After fifteen years in the catcher's box with the Cardinals and Phillies, Wilson has decided it's time to hang up his mitt mask and breast protector for good.

Chinning with the boys from the press box on the Phillies' bench before yesterday's game with the Giants, Wilson quite casually remarked: "Well, I guess I'm through. When it comes time to cut down on May 15 I'm taking my name off the active player list. My job from now on will be to manage the Phillies. Atwood, Clark and Stephenson will do the catching."

PERRY DENIES COACHING JOB WITH CANUCKS

TORONTO, April 27.—Fred Perry famous English tennis star, has not signed a contract to coach Canada's Davis Cup team. He has not made any verbal agreement to coach the four from this country who will seek honors at Germantown Cricket Club at Philadelphia this summer, reports from Montreal to the contrary.

The dark - haired Briton, who meets Ellsworth Vines in a match at Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday night, came into Toronto late last night and before bedding down for the night told the writer in an interview that the story of his coaching was a pure fabrication of a Montreal publicity man, who elected himself as an intermediary with the press against the wishes of Perry.

Has No Contract

"The story made it look as if I had a coldblooded business contract with R. M. Watt, President of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association," Perry said in between eating a belated meal at the Royal York Hotel along with Berkeley Bell, one of the four who make up the touring troupe of netmen.

"That is not true. I have no contract. I never said I would coach he Canadian eam. I have no intention of coaching anybody's Davis Cup team."

Perry and Bell motored from Toronto to Buffalo, where they join Ellsworth Vines and Walter Senior for matches tonight, and only after consulting road maps changed from their decision to continue right through to Bison City. They left early this morning.

The tall, good-looking Briton quick of wit and as interesting as ever in conversation, told how the Montreal publicity agent had awakened him from sleep at an early morning hour and asked if he could give a story to reporters who were waiting an appointed hour to interview Perry. The later said he would talk to the newspapermen. But he didn't until later, when the true damageof the false story had been felt.

"It was a damnable thing. I had been a good guy and helped this every conceivable way. If Tommy Gorman had been in the city he'd never had allowed the thing to happen. Had I been a heel of sorts, well, that's different. They could have 'got' me then."

CARDINALS DROP SEVENTH GAME, LOSE TO CINCINNATI 8-7

Cards Miss Dean And Medwick From Collapsing Line-Up

Chicago Cubs Snap Pittsburg's Unbeaten Record With 5-3 Victory

NEW YORK, April 27 (CP).—The amazing collapse of St. Louis Cardinals at the outset of the National Baseball League race is causing more comment in the dugouts than the failure of the Yankees to start off at their customary clip.

Players and managers have a hunch the Yanks are due to start pouring it on the ball about tomorrow, when Joe DiMaggio likely will break into the lineup as a pinch-hitter. But they don't know about the Cardinals.

They suspect the departure of Dizzy Dean has taken a lot more out of the Birds, mentally and physically, than was generally thought. Dizzy didn't get along with Manager Frankie Frisch, but he put fight into the Cards more than any other member of the team.

Yesterday, with Slugger Joe Medwick still out of the line-up, the Cards dropped their seventh game in eight starts, a 10-inning 8-7 decision to Cincinnati, losing it even after Curt Davis hit a home run with three on in the fourth. The Reds scored all their runs in the last four frames.

Halt Pirates' Record.

The last of the undefeated teams went under as Chicago Cubs bunched two triples in the 10th to halt Pittsburg 5-3. Tex Carleton went the route for the winners, checking the Pirates with eight hits. Tony Lazzeri, the Yank discard, clouted a home run.

Home runs by Mel Ott and Jim Ripple featured New York Giants' 12-8 win over the Phillies. Each side used three pitchers and one was about as bad as the other.

Jim Turner pitched his second smooth victory for Boston Bees as they trimmed Brooklyn 4-1, limiting the Dodgers to five hits and never giving them any hope.

The Yankees put on their first big inning of the season to even things with Philadelphia Athletics, 5-3. They did it all in the third, Lou Gehrig driving one run across with a double and Joe Gordon, rookie second baseman, hitting one out of the park with one aboard.

Thankful For Bonura.

Owner Clark Griffith of Washington Senators continues to chortle at his acquisition of Zeke Bonura. The hefty first baseman parked one in the stands in the seventh round, scoring a mate ahead of him, and beating Johnny Marcum of Boston 6-4.

Cleveland won its sixth straight and took a firmer grip on first place in the American League by slugging Chicago White Sox, 10-6, on 18 hits. Elden Auker of Detroit let St. Louis Brown down with five hits and beat them 7-1. Gehringer hit a three-bagger and two singles for the Tigers.

Once A Pitcher

Eddie Rommel, former knuckleball ace with Philadelphia Athletics, has traded his "monkey suit" for the blue serge of the umpire. He watches others hurl them over now and here he is after taking his first turn behind the plate in Cleveland.

JERSEY GIANTS DEFEAT BUFFALO

JERSEY CITY, April 27 (CP)—There's joy in "Joisey" today and it's all because Jersey City Giants are in the first division of the International Baseball League.

The Giants won their third "tight" game yesterday by edging out Buffalo Bisons 2-1. Rollie Stiles pitched a six-hitter and the Giants combined two of their seven hits with an error by Rookie Pitcher Fred Archer to score two runs in the sixth inning.

The triumph, their third in five games, placed the Giants a game behind the league-leading Newark Bears who dropped their first game of the season to Toronto 6-5 and a half-game in back of Baltimore Orioles who whipped Montreal 13-4.

A pinch homer by Recruit Al Smith in the ninth inning with Frank Reiber aboard cost the Bears their first setback in five games after they had climbed into the lead in the seventh with a four-run rally. Buddy Rosar's four-bagger with two mates on featured that outburst.

The Orioles landed on three Montreal hurlers, headed by the veteran Ben Cantwell, for 14 hits including round-trippers by Frank McGowan and Ab Wright in a nine-run sixth inning splurge.

Rochester and Syracuse wound up in a tie for fourth place behind Jersey City when the Red Wings defeated the Chiefs 6-3. The Red Wings outhit and outplayed the Syracusans for their third win in the four-game series.

JUNIOR PUCK LOOP TITULAR BANQUET

The Junior City Hockey League champions, the Collegiate team, were banquetted last evening at the Paragon by the Peterborough Hockey Club. Bill Prindible was toastmaster with R. M. Glover and F. E. Johnston the guests of honor. About 20 sat down to a fine repast and a snappy, entertaining program which followed.

Bob Parnall of the championship team was presented with the Sheehy shield for being voted the most valuable player in the league. John Corkery of St. Peter's received the Throop shield for the cleanest player. The Chown shield was awarded to Doug Mortimer of All Saints for scoring most goals. Coach Wm. Jackson of the Collegians was given a presentation by his players. The work of Chairman Bill Prindible and Secretary Mike O'Brien of the City League drew hearty thanks from Coach Jackson and his team.

Brief speeches were made by R. M. Glover, as president of the Peterborough Hockey Club—which sponsors the City League; F. E. Johnston, representing H. R. H. Kenner of the Collegiate and Vocational School; Bill Prindible, chairman of the circuit; and Wm. Jackson, coach of the winners. Captain Bob Parnall of the Collegiate accepted the Payne Trophy, emblematic of the league title.

Allan Cup Is Presented To Trail Smoke Eaters

For the second time in its history the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Canadian senior hockey championship, will rest in British Columbia for the coming year. Trail Smoke Eaters are responsible and here are some of the players after the final game in Calgary, where they defeated Cornwall Flyers, eastern Canada champions, three games to one. D. P. McDonald, convenor of the series, is seen presenting the historic trophy to Capt. Dave Duchak of the winners.

Jacobs To Match Mann And Galento At Madison Square On May 13

NEW YORK, April 27 (C.P.). — His suspension lifted, Tony Galento was free to-day to resume his ring warfare and the wish of those who make money when fighters fight was that the "Newark Night Stick" take a leaf from Maxie Baer's book and continue the sentimental stuff about "fighting for baby."

For "Two-Ton" Tony, the portly publican of Orange, N.J.—as well known for heavy beer guzzling as his ring work—is the father of a spanking baby boy, born to Mary Galento last week-end.

Gallant were the words Galento got off his chest on his son's arrival. He set them up at his Orange bar for almost anybody who cared to come around. Then he announced he would take his fighting seriously from that date on.

And yesterday the New York State Athletic Commission — apparently in fine frame of mind after Mike Jacobs, to the surprise of nobody, announced the Max Schmeling-Joe Louis title fight would be held in New York—reinstated Tony, that he might brawl with Nathan Mann of New Haven in Madison Square Garden on May 13.

Smith's Pinch Homer In 9th Ends Leafs' Losing Streak

Newark's First Loss After Four Straight Victories

NEWARK, N.J., April 27. — With youthful Al Smith in the hero role, the Maple Leafs finally snapped out of it here yesterday and handed the champion Newark Bears a 6-5 lacing for their first victory of the season after four straight defeats. It was the first setback for the Bruins who had won four straight. Smith, batting for the equally youthful Walter Lan Franconi after Frank Reiber had walked in the ninth, recognized an old Canadian-American League teammate in Xavier Rescigno, the Newark chucker, and lambasted his offering far, high and handsome over the right field wall for a home run.

The Leafs were trailing 5-4 at the time, the Bears having scored four times in their half of the seventh and wiped out a three-run Toronto outburst in the first half of the same stanza.

Thus was most of the scoring done in the last two frames, Lan Franconi and Hiram Bithorn, Newark rookie from Puerto Rico, coming down to seventh with the score tied at 1 to 1. The Leafs got their early marker in the second on Pelloskey's long double and a couple of infield outs, and the Bears tied it up in the fifth on singles by Gleeson and Keller and a long fly by Bob Seeds.

Frank Reiber's daily homer was the big feature of the Toronto outburst that sent Bithorn to the showers in the seventh, the slugging catcher connecting for his third circuit smash in as many games and his fourth of the very young season after Flea Clifton had worked the Puerto Rican for a pass.

Those two runs looked mighty big, and a third on singles by Gantenbein and Urbanski and Petoskey's long fly after Rescigno had replaced Bithorn, made it look like a cinch. Lan Franconi was still going strong, pitching marvellously with runners on the bases, and he got two out with one on in the home half. But Seeds nicked him for a single and Scarscella's slasher bounded away from Burns for a double and one Newark run.

He still led by two runs, but Rosar got his fast ball into a favorable wind that blew towards the right field bleachers and three more came in with the Bears taking a one-run lead.

Rescigno had retired five straight batters until Reiber worked him for a pass and Al Smith batted for the pitcher and drove over the wall to again change the slim lead. Then with neatness and despatch, Relief Pitcher Frank Nekola retired Messrs. Gleeson and Keller and Seeds in order, disposing of the last-named on strikes.

Needless to say, Reiber's terrific distance hitting has the Leafs all agog, but Dan Howley also had some kind words for Lan Franconi. "The boy showed as fast a ball as we have seen in the league this year," said Howling Dan. "He was perfect with runners on the bases until Scarscella's ball got away from Burns."

PACIFIC TEAM RETAINS TITLE

OTTAWA, April 27 (C.P.). — Without peers in the Canadian basketball world, Vancouver Westerns rolled homeward on a transcontinental train to-day after defeating Ottawa Glebe Grads in three straight games to retain the national senior title for the coast city. University of British Columbia Thunderbirds were champions last year.

After winning the first two games 35-33 and 34-32, Westerns provided a blazing finale by trimming Glebe 47-27 here last night in the third game of the best-of-five series.

"It took eight years to build that team, but we won the championship at last," said Coach Tel Milton as the gun ended Vancouver's 31st game since March 1.

Art Willoughby was Vancouver's ace scoring threat in the final game with 13 points made up of five field goals and three foul shots.

NORWOOD CADETS HOLD INSPECTION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, April 27.—On Tuesday afternoon beneath shining skies the Norwood Cadet Corps of the High School, held their annual Inspction exercises before Captain Mellitt of Kingston.

The boys showed, under the leadership of Captain Moore, Lieutenants Puffer and Thompson, that a great deal of time and work had been given to this branch of their studies.

Following the military part of their work, which consisted of marching, marking time, and rifle drill, the boys gave a demonstration of physicial training work directed by Mr. Craighead, P.T. teacher. Much credit is due both the boys and their teacher for this section of the work.

Captain Mellitt congratulated the corps and their captain on their splendid showing and selected the senior battalion as showing the better rifle drill.

Following the Captain's remarks, Mr. Buckon thanked the citizens for showing an interest in the work by their attendance. Col. R. E. Birdsall, who takes a great interest in cadet work, and who never fails to be present at the annual inspection was in attendance and as had been his custom in former years showed his appreciation of the work by treating the boys of the Cadet corps.

Nerves Were So Bad Could Not Stand The Children Playing

The happiness of every home depends largely on the health of the wife and mother. If she is nervous, peevish and irritable, worried by the cares of the household, and tormented by the pains and irregularities that accompany a run down system, there can be no happiness in the home for the husband and children.

Women who are weak and run down, nervous and irritable should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to help restore them to the blessing of good health.

MRS. THOMAS KIRK, Neston, Alta., writes:—"I was in such a weak, run down condition before I started using Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I could not do my housework, and would be so nervous I could hardly stand the noise of the children at their play. Now, after taking three boxes of H. & N. Pills I feel like a different person.

I shall always tell anyone not feeling well to use your medicine."

Ar-Rah-Reh-Go (David Thomas), the keeper of the fire and spokesman of the day. Inside the longhouse gathered the women, seated on three sides of the hall, with the men at the end facing the open door. And here the visiting "pale face" was dependent upon interpreters for knowledge of the ancient rituals and liturgies, all of which were in the Indian tongue. All afternoon the ceremonial chanting proceeded and late last night, the names of the new chiefs—six were to be named—had still not been divulged. At nightfall, started the fasting, the food consisting of huge quantities of corn soup, made in great iron pots, boiled meat, bread, cakes and a kind of doughnut And with the serving of the repast, just such a repast as has delighted the Redmen for centuries, the solemnity of the day merged in the gaiety of a social usage that was old long before the white man set foot upon these shores.

An Ordinary Commission.

In advocating setting up of an Advisory Commission to determine provincial grants, the association held it should aim to maintain the minimum essentials of Government, including the maintenance of credit, in the provinces.

"We do not believe that the conditions of the citizens of Canada can be equalized as between provinces any more than such a result can be accomplished within a province," it said, "but it should be an objective to remove the greater discrepancies by assisting those who are at the greatest disadvantage."

The association yesterday dealt at some length with charges that mortgage companies imposed excessive interest rates in Western Canada, considerably higher than the rates in Eastern Canada. It was asserted such companies had not made any profit on their Western Canada mortgages since the turn of the century.

The association urged that any reallocation of taxing powers or responsibilities should not weaken the position of th Dominion Government, maintenance of the credit of which was of paramount importance to the whole country. It had been because of its fine credit the country had survived the depression as it had, the association claimed.

000. Revenues above that figure will be shared on the basis of 75 per cent to the C.N.R. and 25 per cent to the C.P.R.

The C.N.R. will receive one-half of the salvage of the present C.P.R. hotel in Vancouver. At present the matter was being studied as to the extent to which the furniture in that establishment might be used for the new hotel, said Mr. Hungerford.

The C.P.R. has undertaken not to engage in hotel operations in Vancouver when the new establishment opens. Mr. Hungerford agreed to furnish the committee with a summary of the agreement between the two companies.

The unification matter arose in a general interchange among members of the committee, following reference by Thomas Vien (Lib. Outremont) to the feasibility of the two transportation companies amalgamating their express and telegraph services. He asked if it would be advantageous to have those features pooled and the revenues apportioned under certain conditions.

The question was objected to by A. A. Heaps (CCF-Winnipeg North). To ask the management for a report on this matter was unreasonable, he suggested.

"The management is at liberty to take some days or weeks," replied Mr. Vien. As a member of parliament he was greatly concerned about the operating results of the government-owned system.

A. M. Young (Lib. Saskatoon) added his objection. It was not the committee's function to ask the management its views on amalgamation or unification. Such things were matters of government policy.

The committee ought to discuss it, suggested W. A. Walsh (Con. Mount Royal).

The coast guard cutter, Algonquin, rushed to the scene, transferred the crew and brought them to their home port in Boston.

BESIEGED RAJAH STICKS TO GUNS

Efforts to persuade the Rajah to evacuate his stronghold at Sikar, walled town of Northwestern India, were rejected.

The besiegers, including two trainloads of Jaipur State infantry, a squadron of lancers and 200 military police, have made no effort to take the town by storm. However, they mounted machine guns at points facing the walls.

Two hundred of the Rajah's followers armed with lathis — long staves—were seen at approaches to the main gate, but the Rajah was believed to have thousands of other followers entrenched inside the town, the normal population of which is about 18,000.

Shouts of "Long live the Rajah" were heard inside Sikar.

BOARD OF WORKS RECOMMENDS PURCHASE OF STREET FLUSHER

ALSO USE TRUCK TO OIL STREETS COST IS $6,000

The equipment of Peterborough's street department will be modernized and improved by the action of the Board of Works at a meeting held Tuesday night in deciding to purchase a street flusher, a new truck to carry the flusher unit and an oil distributor the whole representing an expenditure around $6,000.

The flusher and the oil distributor are to be bought from the Bickle Seagrave Company of Woodstock at a cost of $2,450 for the former and $1,540 for the latter, with a five per cent discount on both as a result of the decision to give both orders to the Bickle Seagrave Company. The truck will be purchased through Hood and Cummings at $2,125 for a new type Ford V8 machine.

Four firms tendered for the flusher unit, the unsuccessful tenderers being the Waterous Company of Brantford whose tender was $3,290, the Lennox Equipment and Supply Company who asked $2,490 and Mussen's Limited who named a price of $3,285.

Chairman Ald. E. R. Wilson and City Engineer Roy H. Parsons both recommended the Bickle Seagrave flusher and on motion of Ald. Gordon seconded by Ald Stocker, the tender of that company was accepted, a warranty satisfactory to the city solicitor is given.

The flusher which the company undertakes to deliver in ten days after the receipt of the order has a capacity of 1,000 Imperial gallons and weighs 13,290 pounds when loaded.

Truck Tenders Considered

Eight local dealers submitted tenders for the truck required to carry the flusher unit. Hood and Cumming offered a new type of Ford V8 at $2,125, the Gillespie garage a Fargo truck at $3,270, Thos. H. Ruths, two Diamond T trucks at $3,110 and $3,020, J. J. Duffus a G. M. C. at $3,950, J. K. Hughes a Maple Leaf truck at $1,540, Charles H. Elliott a Studebaker at $3,740, Magee Motors two different kinds of International trucks at $2,964 and $2,104 and Lillico Motors two Dodge machines at $1,784 and $3,131.

City Engineer Parsons informed the committee that he was greatly impressed with the new Ford truck and as the Hood and Cumming tender was the lowest among the machines considered strong enough to do the work required, a motion by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the Hood and Cumming tender be accepted if a satisfactory guarantee is given was carried unanimously.

Three tenders were received for the 500-gallon oil distributor, Bickle Seagrave, $1,540, Mussen's Limited $1,522, and General Supply Company $2,390.

It was explained that if both the flusher and the oil distributor were bought from the Bickle Seagrave Company that firm would give a discount of 5 per cent. on both machines. Furthermore the company would send an experienced employee to Peterborough and teach two local men to operate the distributor.

Ald. McCannan moved seconded by Ald. Bradburn that the tender of Bickle Seagrave be accepted and the motion carried unanimously.

Referred to Committee

The question of the possible purchase of Point St. Charles from the Peterborough Lumber Company was on motion of Ald Gordon and Dutton referred to a committee composed of Chairman Wilson, Mayor Hamilton and Ald. Glover to investigate.

The committee was not in favor of the suggested exchange of city property on Monghan road in exchange for the property and some of the aldermen questioned the value of the Point St. Charles site to the city.

Ald. Gordon, referring to the annual inspection tour, suggested that it might possibly be abandoned. Most of the aldermen, he said drove round the city and made notes of what was needed to be done and he thought the inspection trip might be scrapped. No action was taken.

On motion of Mayor Hamilton the city engineer was instructed to have a storm drain constructed on Burnham Street from Sophia Street northerly about 300 feet.

A letter was read from the Ruddy company saying that the city could have the lot at thec orner of George and Sherbrooke Street at $1 a year. The property is required by the council for parking purposes.

Ald Stocker moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn that the city solicitor be asked to report in regard to the city's status in reference to the foot path running from Water Street to the bridge across the Otonabee below the Auburn Mills.

Ald. E. R. Wilson presided and present were Mayor Hamilton and Ald. Gordon, Bradburn, McCannan, Glover, Dutton, Juby, McIntyre and Stocker.

Retaining Health and Beauty

The woman who does not wish to be loved and admired doesn't exist. And why shouldn't she wish to be admired? Yet long before middle life many women show the effects of shattered health. Cosmetics, "permanents" and stylish clothes without a basis of real health will not preserve the desired charms.

The Spinal Column

is the place where science now finds the cause of many ailments. A vertebra out of alignment interferes with the transmission of nerve energy. This may be manifest in the tissues where constricted nerves end as in the arm, the knee or the stomach but the real cause is at the spine. Correct the cause and health returns. Many women who were discouraged because of poor health have regained strength and vitality through the use of spinal manipulative treatments.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HOUNDING THE PRESS.

When the representative of one of the Toronto evening papers finally got into bed at 2 o'clock this morning he was aroused from his downy couch a short time after by a telephone call and a police inquiry as to whether he knew anything about the whereabouts of a big red hound that is often seen around downtown streets. He was a little puzzled as to why he should be quizzed and the mystery was not solved until this morning when he climbed into his car to drive overtown. Then was suddenly startled to notice in his mirror that a big dog was occupying the rear seat of his sedan and was glaring at him somewhat menacingly for having disturbed his slumbers. Now the reporter is looking for the culprit who stowed the big dog away in his car.—C.

SUSPEND LICENSE OF OTONABEE MAN

Allan Hayes, Indian River farmer was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning when he pleaded guilty to reckless driving on highway No. 7 on April 16. His driving license was ordered suspended for ten days.

Hayes said that the lights on his car were weak and as a result he had collided with another car parked on the highway when blinded by the lights of the other machine.

Traffic Officers Lloyd McClure said that Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton had investigated the accident and his report was that Hayes had got over on the wrong side of the road and had a collision with a parked car.

"I think a $10 fine will be sufficient in this case," commented Magistrate Langley, adding that Hayes' license would be suspended for a ten-day period.

"How am I going to get my car home?" asked the accused.

"Better try and find a man with a license who goes out your way," advised the magistrate. "Anyway this court is too busy for me to take any time figuring out things like that."

Two Months Suspension

Everett Weaver, now living at Rockcroft who had pleaded guilty some time ago to reckless driving on Highway 7 was fined $10 and $3.39 costs. He had been driving with four other people in the front seat of his car.

"We had better suspend the license he hasn't got," commented Magistrate Langley and order a two months' suspension which means that Weaver who had also pleaded guilty to driving without a license will not be able to get one for at least 60 days.

On that charge he was given a two weeks' adjournment.

Thomas Elmhirst paid $2 and 75 cents costs for angle parking on Aylmer street, Wm. Ellis was assessed $10 and $3 costs for driving without a license, A. Whitfield, Toronto $5 and $3 costs for speeding and Richard Miller $2 and $3 costs for not coming to a full stop upon entering a highway. Pleas of guilty were entered in all these cases.

FISHING FEE IS TO BE COLLECTED ON LITTLE OUSE

Although the Little Ouse river in Dummer township is to be thrown open for trout fishing on Saturday when the season begins, there are some strings to this business that the public should take notice of, in order to avoid any unpleasantness.

B. W. Harvey of the Fish and Game Association points out that when the farmers along the fishing section of the Little Ouse entered into contracts to have the stretm closed for two years in order that it might be stocked, the agreement was that when the fishing re-opened they were to have a right to collect a fishing fee from anglers who fished in the stream

That agreement was approved of by the Department of Game and Fisheries and it gives the farmers who own the land along the stream authority to collect up to $1 per rod per day for fishing privileges.

Some eight or ten farmers are concerned and they have decided that they will collect at that rate from fishermen this year. Anglers who want to fish the Little Ouse will therefore have to secure their permits from Mr. McMillan at the Dummer cheese factory.

Some five miles of the stream, from Kelly's farm to the boundary between Dummer and Asphodel is included in the section in which permits must be secured. Below the boundary the farmers were not signed up and there are no restrictions there, The Examiner is informed.

The farmers who did enter into the agreement have been given the privilege of collecting to recompense them for helping to police the stream during the closed period and for damages and inconvenience caused by fishermen tramping over their land.

CADI RESERVES HIS JUDGMENT

Judgment was reserved by Magistrate Langley this morning in the charge against Percy Little of having been drunk in charge of a motor vehicle on April 12th.

When the case was resumed Magistrate Langley suggested that upon the evidence presented he was satisfied that this was a case that might better be treated as a summary conviction matter, rather than as an indictable offence.

Crown Attorney McElderry concurred in that view and made a formal motion to that effect and W. B. Gordon, appearing for the accused consented to the change.

The difference is that under summary conviction the maximum penalty is thirty days imprisonment while as an indictable offence thirty days is the shortest sentence that could be given.

Mr. Gordon announced that he did not propose to call any more evidence. In his address he asked that as Little was charged with an offence on the 12th the evidence presented as to what had happened on the evening of the 11th should be disregarded. He submitted that when Little had been arrested by police officers on the early morning of the 12th his car was in a condition so that it could not be driven therefore accused could not be guilty of the offence charged. The evidence, he said, showed that the car would not start until it had been pushed by a police car.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that the evidence of the police was that seeing the crank in position at the front of Little's car, the officers had given the machine a push as the quickest way to get it started. He maintained that the car was capable of being started and driven and pointed out that there was evidence that Little had been under the influence of liquor earlier that evening.

Magistrate Langley reserved judgment until Wednesday of next week.

C.G.E. Foremen Honor Veteran Who Has Given Company Forty-Seven Years Of Service

Presentations Made to Andrew McKenzie on His Retirement From Canadian General

A record of continuous service to the Canadian General Electric Company here for the past 47 years, served by Andrew McKenzie, was honored by the Foremen's Association of the plant on Tuesday night.

Nearly a hundred members were present at a banquet at the Kawartha Club and honored their former chief, who retired recently. Officials from the company's head office in Toronto were present to do honor to the veteran employee. Mr. McKenzie was the recipient of a handsome easy chair, a reading lamp and a mounted scroll, signed by executives of the company. The banquet was under the chairmanship of S. O. Shields, president of the Foremen's Association.

Mr. McKenzie has been chief inspector of the Peterborough Works.

"Tonight we are met here to honor a man who has given 47 of the best years of his life to our company," said Ian McRae, assistant works manager here. "He has earned a reputation for loyalty that could not be surpassed. The company appreciates his work and will miss him very much. And we here will miss him very much."

"I carry to you the sincere good wishes of the management and the head office staff down to the last office boy," said W. E. Ross, manager of the Contract Service Department, Toronto, and a former Peterborough employee. He lauded Mr. McKenzie's work and told of the esteem in which the retiring employee is held in Toronto."

"I know of no job or no customer where Mr. McKenzie could not return; or where he would not be welcomed back enthusiastically," he said. "Forty-seven years is a formidable figure. Looking around me I see that it is a figure which most of us have not yet reached. Mr. McKenzie's is a record of fidelity, of service, which we might well aim at."

H. M. Black, assistant works manager of the Davenport Works, Toronto, also paid tribute to Mr. McKenzie's work.

"To say I don't miss you wouldn't be true," Mr. McKenzie responded in a brief address. J. G. M. Wilson, assistant general foreman of the Winding Department, also with the company for 47 years, presented the chair and scroll on behalf of the association. E. G. Hardie, general foreman of the Switch Gear Department, presented the lamp. Other head table guests were W. O. Maclean, superintendent of the Foundry Department and L. D. W. Magie, Peterborough Works Engineer.

Signs On Sidewalks Are Contrary To City's Bylaw Engineer Reports

CITY ENGINEER Parsons called the attention of members of the Board of Works at Tuesday night's meeting to the number of sidewalk signs advertising ice cream, soft drinks etc. that were to be seen here at the present time.

"They are scattered all over the place," said the engineer, "and I believe they are contrary to our bylaw. They should be ordered off the street or else the bylaw should be changed to permit them."

"What harm do they do?" asked Ald. Glover,

"People walk into them," replied Mr. Parsons. "We will be having a damage action soon if something is not done."

The matter will be looked into.

City Solicitor Wilfrid Huycke also had something to say about signs. He informed the Board that two prosecutions for parking in a prohibited area had been thrown out by Magistrate Langley because the street in question was not considered properly marked. The whole bylaw the City Solicitor felt was affected by the decision.

EYES BLACKENED WHEN TWO WOMEN START TO FIGHT

For a while in Tuesday afternoon's session of police court it looked as if the original battle on Sherbrooke Street that had brought two women into court might be repeated, and at one stage Magistrate Langley had to warn both that if they did not cool down they might find themselves locked up.

Mrs. Daisy Vandenburg had charged Mrs. Elizabeth Moher with assault, the trouble arising out of a neighborhood row in which the children of the two figured. Telling her story in the witness box, the complainant told of trouble arising between the two and then said that after Mrs. Moher had 'taken a swipe' at her and missed, she had struck the defendant with a 'hollow stick.' Thereupon Mrs. Moher had pulled her by the hair and struck her a number of times and closed one eye tight and blackened the other. She accused Mrs. Moher of bad language.

Mrs. Moher blamed her neighbor for the trouble and said that Mrs. Vandenburg had struck her first with a mop handle. She admitted striking the complainant in the face.

Magistrate Langley adjourned the case for two weeks, suggesting to Mrs. Moher that she should move from the neighborhood, in the interests of peace.

YOUTH FINED $5.00 FOR FALSE ALARM

Pleading guilty to turning in a false fire alarm from the corner of Hunter and Sheridan streets, Joseph Heffernan, 16, was fined $5 and 75 cents costs by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning. Heffernan had previously pleaded not guilty and asked to be allowed to change his plea.

Robert Collins, 17, charged with the same offence adhered to his former plea of "not guilty" and City Solicitor Wilfrid Huycke, K.C., who prosecuted, offered no evidence so that the case against Collins was dismissed.

"I was drunk when I did it," was all that Heffernan had to say when asked by the Magistrate if he wanted to make any representations in his own behalf.

"The sad feature about this case," said Mr. Huycke "is that the two boys, who were together had been drinking rubbing alcohol." He added that so far as Heffernan was concerned he was not asking for the maximum penalty under the bylaw, believing that a $10 fine would be sufficient.

"I'm going to make it $5 and costs," Magistrate Langley announced.

SEAT PLAN IS OPEN

The seat plan for the operetta "Iolanthe" is open at Soden's Book Store, Hunter street. The operetta, sponsored here by the Lion's Club and presented by the Eaton Operetta Company, is expected to draw a capacity audience, and to be one of this city's outstanding musical hits of years. Only because Peterborough is the last city the company is playing on its tour, and because its members are not performing the same operetta next year, is this city able to see its performance. For Peterborough has no stage large enough to show the huge scenery used. The company agreed to cut the stage properties down to fit the Collegiate stage because this will be the last time they will be used. "Iolanthe" will be played here on Thursday night.

MAYOR URGES SPEEDING UP WORK PROGRAM

Mayor Hamilton urged at Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Works that city work be speeded up as much as possible in order that some of the slack of unemployment might be taken up.

"Many men are coming to me begging for work" His Worship reported. "And I think that it is time that we should do what ever can be done to provide jobs."

"The way things are looking said Ald. Dutton, chairman of the Relief Committee, we had better provide all the work we can."

Mayor Hamilton suggested among things that might be undertaken at once the levelling off of the top of Armour's Hill for which $2,500 had been placed in the estimates, the opening of the crusher at once and starting sidewalk work as soon as possible. In this latter connection he mentioned the situation on Lansdowne street opposite the Exhibition grounds where as the result of the government's paving operations it might be necessary to rebuild the sidewalk.

It was decided to leave that particular matter until members of the committee had a chance to inspect the situation for themselves.

Ald McCannan referred to a case on Romaine Street where as the result of a sidewalk having been rebuilt by the city, the pavement was now a foot higher than the walks that had been built by the owner of the property. It was agreed that this case deserved consideration.

Ald. Glover, moved seconded by Ald. Dutton that the city crusher be started at once and the motion carried.

Want Definite Plan

In connection with the levelling of Armour's Hill Ald. McIntyre said that he was opposed to the spending of $2,500 on the work until a definite plan had been prepared and Ald. Bradburn concurred in that view.

It was finally decided to ask Alex. Elliott, M.L.A. to have Harry Moore, government landscape expert come to Peterborough as soon as possible and prepare a plan for this work.

On motion of Mayor Hamilton, the city engineer was instructed to prepare estimates for the replacing of the sidewalk on Lansdowne Street between Park Street and Monaghan Road.

The construction as a local improvement of a curb and gutter in front of the property of Harold Fry at Albertus and Wellar Streets and of a sewer on Parkhill road as requested by J. O'Donnell are both to be advertised. The former was moved by Ald. McCannan and Bradburn and Ald. Glover and McIntyre strongly favored the second proposal.

It was moved by Ald. Dutton seconded by Ald Stocker that the chairman of the Board of Works and the city engineer be instructed to get a program of work started at the earliest possible moment—Carried.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend, Natalie, who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbara about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. Garry begins to make excuses that keep him from seeing so much of Barbara, but the latter doesn't suspect Wenda, the actress, is taking up so much of Garry's time. Then an evening came when she observed that something definitely was wrong. Barbara's world crashes when Garry tells her he has fallen in love with Wenda. Later, Jack Metcalf, an author friend, calls at Barbara's apartment, insisting on taking her out at a moment she believed she should be alone with her grief.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 21

IT SEEMED to Barbara that she and Jack Metcalf went everywhere there was to go that night. More than once she caught her own reflection in a mirror, in the yellow velvet frock that she had bought because Garry liked yellow. Now she could wear any colors she happened to find — never again would she search for a shade that would bring a quick smile to his eyes.

Once she went to powder her nose and the sight of the green cloisonne vanity case that he had brought her from London made her oddly ill. She put it away, and let her nose go.

But she was grateful to Jack that he had forced her to join the merry-go-round that went steadily around and around through the streets of the 'fifties. He had kept his promise to point out Mark Twain's house to her, and even sought a little Spanish church with a story. But when she had been disinteresting, he had tossed the sightseeing idea out of the cab.

"You need excitement," he said. "We'll find it."

Now and then, as a band swung too loudly, or a cello skimmed across the sky, she wondered if Garry and Wenda were some place in the madness of the city, or if they were alone in that brown room of Garry's— She could not think of that. What was it he had said at Christmas time? "Next year you'll be presiding at your own table."

She became very talkative, very merry. She was grateful to Jack. He knew that she would be so weary when she reached home that tomorrow she would sleep late. Fortunately it was Saturday so she did not have to go to the office.

Once there was a silence and she watched Jack's profile as he lighted a cigaret. Suddenly it came to her that he was always lighting them, never smoking them. "Ever play farmer-in-the-dell?" he asked.

She nodded. "I can't think you did."

"I'm so far from youth? I was just thinking that the farmer chooses a wife, and the wife chooses a child, and the child chooses a dog —Why don't they ever choose each other?"

Ruth chose Bill, but Bill chose Marie; Natalie chose Jack but Jack wasn't choosing—

"Let's not get philosphical," she said, so she wouldn't think. "Is there anywnere else we can go?"

Bands and more bands, laughter, songs, words without meaning and words with meaning. And suddenly she said: "I would like to go home."

There would be a long time when she must be alone, when she must build a new world and live in it. It was no good putting it off. Better to get started at once.

"I did something for you? Oh no, it was the other way!"

"You made me remember something important. I thought I'd thrown it away. I'm going to look it up tomorrow."

At noon the next day she found out what Jack remembered. It was something of the young freshness that Natalie had brought to him half a dozen years before. Natalie called Barbara and said: "Barbara, could you just happen to drop into Tony's, on West Fifty-second, about half past five this afternoon? You and Garry?"

"I can. But Garry is busy." Garry won't ever be dropping in any place with me, her heart cried. Garry and I are through, through, through!

"Jack wants to see me at five and I don't want to talk too long, yet I want to see him. I want to say goodby."

"You'll be seeing him around, Natalie."

"Oh yes— I mean goodby to a silly notion that needs an obituary. I'm writing it today."

There were many people at Tony's and it was difficult to find Natalie and Jack. They hailed her eagerly. Jack's eyes announced that he knew that Natalie had called her; knew, too, that she had come because she did not want him to wound Natalie again.

As he left them, he said aside to her: "I should resent your coming. But I don't. I thought I could resurrect something Natalie and I once knew, but it's dead for both of us. I wanted to see her before it was too late — now she can be married without egret."

Natalie's eyes were oddly bright. "Jack wants to love somebody all the time and he can't. It's not in him. It's like a man having to have a necktie for every day. Barbara, you're lucky that you feel off the bat for the steadfastness of Garry."

Oh, but that's over, she wanted to say, but she could not make the words come.

"You'll be at my wedding, won't you? I'm mailing the invitations tomorrow." Natalie gathered her bag and gloves. "Well, I'm saying goodby to a girl in a pink chiffon dress. It was cold the first time Jack brought me here. I supposed everybody dressed up and my best frock was pink chiffon so I wore it. Jack was feeling good — and he told me all about the girl he loved. And there I sat, wondering what had made me think I was that girl, except that he had seen me every day for tea or dinner or lunch the last two weeks."

Barbara decided tha she would say goodby to a girl in a rust-colored crepe who had had dinner in a garden one day last August. Be gay, be nonchalant, say anything but laugh as you say it and no one would know but what you meant it. That must be her code. Must be— but she knew that she wouldn't want to laugh or talk for a long time.

Meantime, a columnist, in his gossipy ramblings, joined the name of Garry with that of Wenda Ayer. The dramatic sections published her picture. A feature writer interviewed her.

The day of Natalie's wedding came, and Barbara left her desk at noon to go. Even now, in the startled confusion of her own new hurt, she couldn't approve Natalie's choice.

There were white candles, gold-tipped on the altar, just as there had been at the many church weddings back in Martinsville. There were lilies that were too sweet and wistful for a bride who had deliberately planned her marriage. The organist trod lightly as Barbara paused in the vestibule. An usher approached her.

"Friend of the bride," she said, and took his arm.

Someone who was late was being seated at her side as the baritone soloist began his love song. She comed her head slightly. It was Garry. For an odd, frightened moment the world stood still and the music stopped. Then he smiled and spoke, and gave his attention to the music. Natalie had sent Garry his invitation and he had come—come in his top coat and gray striped trousers with a gardenia in his button- hole, ready to go on to the wedding breakfast. Come equipped with such self-possession that he could sit by her and never mind.

The minister's voice was deep and gentle. In like manner she and Garry had planned to be married in a church. She glanced at him as the minister began to pray. His face was strained now, a little unhappy. He hadn't forgotten. She wanted to move closer to him but stayed in place, clinging to her pride, praying for composure.

The music drew closer, down the honeysuckle draped aisle. In a moment there would be a glorious burst of Mendelssohn and she would have to greet Garry. She thought of his play. She could mention it. After all, love was done. It never went back, only on. The minister had finished.

The Garry who spoke to her was his old self and only the tenseness of the lines about his mouth showed that he was remembering. He asked if he might drive her to the wedding breakfast. She had intended to go, but she heard herself saying!

"No, thanks, Garry. I have to run. It's a busy day but Nat understands. Are you much excited about the opening?".

"I am." For a second he became again the frightened ecstatic Garry who had come hurrying up the three flights of stairs in a Saturday twilight to tell her the details of the contract, newly signed.

("You'll have to hold me in my seat I'll be so jittery that first night," he had said.

"I will, Garry, and we'll have pink ice cream to celebrate," she had answered.)

Now Garry was saying: "I'm mailing you seats. You'll get them a day or two before the New York opening."

The Whole World Loves the Rubaiyat

What inspiring picture Omar Khayyam paints in the singing lines of the Rubaiyat!

"I sometimes think that never blows so Red the Rose . . ."

Do you remember these lines?

". . . in the fire of Spring
Your Winter-garment of Repentance fling;
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter—and the Bird is on the Wing."

Millions have felt the force of the Persian poet's words:

"The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line . . ."

One striking or lovely passage follows another, until the very end: "And when like her, O Saki, you shall pass

Conscienceless Gold-Diggers or Unthinking Girls do More to Ruin the Lives of Young Men than Any other Cause, by Demanding Luxuries and Extravagances

THE other day a boy of 18 was killed by the police as he was robbing a jewelry store, trying to get a wrist watch for his girl. Investigation showed that it was his first offense. He belonged to decent people and was not a thief by nature. He was just a weak lad earning a small salary, and he was madly in love, as only an adolescent can be, with Rosie. Rosie wanted a wrist watch and was determined to have one. So she begged and cried and threatened until she drove him into stealing, since that was the only way to get her what she wanted.

It is a common enough story. The police will tell you that a large percentage of the boys who go wrong are started on the downward path by conscienceless little gold-diggers who do not care how they get money, just so they get it. Rosie must have her wrist watch. Sadie craves silk underwear and the latest thing in hats. Susie wants to flaunt herself at expensive places of amusement. And so Tom, Dick and Harry, who want their girls to think them big shots, and who haven't enough knowledge of women to see that they are being worked, or enough courage to resist feminine wiles, begin swiping automobiles, or holding out on their collections, or falsifying their books and start on the career that leads to the penitentiary and often to the electric chair.

Of course, these boys lack stamina, but older and wiser men than they have let their principles be dissolved in the tears of pretty women who cried for what they wanted until they got it. Many a man has sold his soul for the diamond bracelet that was the price of a woman's kisses. And many a man has been just as much held up and robbed by a pair of blue eyes in a woman's face as he could have been by a highway man with a pair of blue-nosed revolvers in his hands.

Hence it is no wonder that a young, inexperienced boy is unable to cope with the Girl Friend when she puts him on the spot. He lacks the wit to be dumb to her hints and her pleadings, and to estimate her cajoleries at their true worth. He lacks the grit to call her bluff when she threatens him with rivals with fatter pocketbooks. He just simply goes down without a struggle and there is no hope for him.

When I hear of a boy like that I always think of a story I once heard a jeweler tell. He said that one day a young man he knew, a poor boy but a fine young chap who was getting a good start with a big firm, stopped into his shop to see his watch. With him was a pretty young girl with whom he was obviously very much in love. Suddenly she turned to the boy and said: "If I asked you, would you give me anything in this case?" and with a careless laugh, thinking it a joke, he replied: "Why, of course." "Well, then, I'll take this ring."

"But," protested the jeweler, "that is very expensive. It costs a thousand dollars." "But it is what I want," said the girl," and he promised it to me and I'm begging for it pretty, please."

Jeweler tried to protect the boy, but the girl insisted and in the end she had her way. The boy lacked the nerve to refuse her and with a hand that shook he wrote a check for it that called for more money than he had in the bank and to make it up he stole from his firm, was dismissed in disgrace and his promising career ended in the gutter.

When we think of predatory women who ruin men by their exactions, we picture them as hard-faced creatures who wheedle emeralds and pearls and fat checks out of Sugar Daddies, but they are not the women who do the most harm, because men are on their guard against them and are wise to their tricks.

The women who are the most dangerous and the most to be feared are the little innocent-looking, baby-faced girls who prey on the boys and who make them spend more than they can afford to spend. They are the girls who are always having birthdays and hinting for expensive gifts; who order caviar and lobster newburg and high-priced drinks instead of beer and sandwiches when a boy takes them to a restaurant; who are always telling Tom about what perfectly wonderful orchids Dick sends them; who run boys into debt by their demands upon them.

Every girl nowadays knows just how far a dollar can go and she knows just how much a boy makes. When she induces him to spend more than he earns she is accessory before the crime when he steals

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PLAY DISHES

When Mrs. Longears looked in the window of the jolly little playhouse her rabbit husband had made out in his back yard, she was so surprised her pink nose almost stopped twinkling.

"Why, my goodness sakes alive and a spoon full of soap bubbles!" exclaimed the lady rabbit. "No wonder Nurse Jane was surprised! I never knew Wiggy to do anything like this before!"

What Mrs. Longears saw through the window of the playhouse was Uncle Wiggily dancing around on one leg and making funny faces at himself in the looking glass. He made a face like a pussy cat, then like a puppy dog and finally a face like a monkey doddle.

The rabbit lady wife was so anxious to look in and see what her husband was doing that she pressed her pink nose against the glass of the window. And, just as often happens when you rub your finger over the window pane, the rabbit lady's nose squeaked on the glass.

Having Fun

"Oh! What's that?" asked Uncle Wiggily suddenly stopping his funny face making.

"It's your wife, Wiggy!" said Mrs. Longears, though she didn't need to have spoken. Uncle Wiggily could see her plainly.

"What are you doing there?" he asked her.

"I might ask you the same," said Mrs. Longears. "I am looking at you and wondering what in the world you are doing. What are you?"

"I am having fun," said the rabbit gentleman. "This is a playhouse I built for myself and I am having fun in it. That's what playhouses are for, aren't they?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Longears, "I suppose so. But is it any fun for you to make funny faces at yourself?"

"It certainly is, my dear," said the rabbit gentleman, laughing. "But come in and I'll explain. My playhouse is large enough for two."

When Mrs. Longears was inside, her husband said:

"A playhouse is for fun and funny faces are fun or they wouldn't be called that name. All my life I have wanted a playhouse for, not being a girl rabbit, I had none when I was a little boy rabbit. So I decided to build myself a playhouse and I did."

"You certainly did," said Mrs. Longears. "And a good one."

"I knew if I tried making funny faces in my hollow stump bungalow, it would surprise you and Nurse Jane," Uncle Wiggily said.

"Of course," spoke Mrs. Longears. "And Nurse Jane was surprised when she looked in at you here a minute ago."

"Did she see me?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, and she came running to tell me," said his wife. "That's why I came out and I saw you, too."

No Privacy

"I made three funny faces, not two," said Uncle Wiggily. "But no matter. I can make more. But for all the privacy I have here in my playhouse, I might as well have made funny faces in the bungalow."

"Oh, Wiggy, we didn't mean to sneak up on you," said his wife.

"It's quite all right," said the rabbit gentleman, forgiving like and kind. "Well, now that you know my secret, I may as well tell you the rest of it."

"Oh, what is it?" asked Mrs. Longears eagerly. "Tell me. I promise not to tell even Nurse Jane."

"She may as well know," said Mr. Longears. "Well, I am going out now and get a set of play dishes for my playhouse. What do you think of that?"

Before Mrs. Longears could answer, a knock sounded on the playhouse door. And who was there and what happened I'll tell you tomorrow in the story about Uncle Wiggily's slam bang. And if you see the clock strike itself in the face don't worry—it's all in fun.

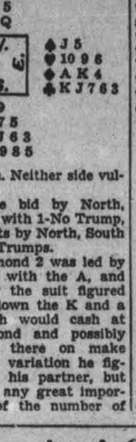
"The Authority on Authorities"

RISKY BUSINESS

FALSE CARDING by the defensive side is hazardous stuff in most cases, as it involves the possible danger of fooling your partner more decisively than the declarer. But if it looks as though the enemy can make his contract against all ordinary obstacles, the only thing to do is try something special.



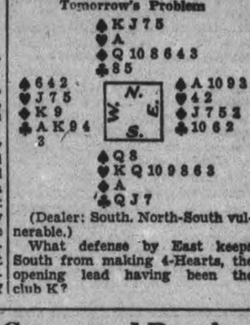
(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

After a spade bid by North, South responded with 1-No Trump, and after 2-Hearts by North, South jumped to 3-No Trumps.

When the diamond 2 was led by West, East won with the A, and before returning the suit figured that by laying down the K and a small one, South would cash at least one diamond and possibly two, and from there on make game. A slight variation he figured might fool his partner, but that was not of any great importance in view of the number of high cards held by the opponents.

Instead of the K, East returned the diamond 4, which was won in dummy with the 10. The spade 2 was led and won with the A, followed by the spade 9 to East's J. Now East switched to the heart 10 to dummy's Q. The spade K was cashed and a spade given to West's Q. When the club A and spade 8 were played, South held the K-7 of hearts and the Q-J of diamonds and dummy the A-6-2 of hearts and the club Q. Reading West for the diamond K, declarer read East as having three hearts, so he led the heart A and a heart to the K, then the diamond Q, supposedly to West, who would have had to return a diamond. Instead, East won with the king and cashed the club K.

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What defense by East keeps South from making 4-Hearts, the opening lead having been the club K?

You're Telling Me!

By WILLIAM RITT

Our friend Joe up to now has had about as big a choice in affairs in his own home as a minority in either Germany or Italy, or both. Every time he made a suggestion it was either voted down before he had finished the sentence or it was so amended he didn't recognise it as his own.

◇ ◇ ◇

You see, there is only one Joe and four other adults in Joe's menage—Mrs. Joe, Mrs. Joe's mama, Mrs. Joe's Aunt Mulie and Mrs. Joe's Cousin Edna. They voted like New York's famed Tammany Hall bloc, except more consistently.

◇ ◇ ◇

So when Joe decided to bring up the idea of his getting a new spring suit for Easter, or, maybe, it was a new Easter suit for spring, Joe did some fast thinking before he broached the subject at the supper table.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then he arose and made a stirring speech to his assembled in-laws, displaying thread-bare cuffs and a patched knee as exhibits A and B. The in-laws listened in stony silence. Then Joe called for a family-wide plebiscite on the proposition.

◇ ◇ ◇

After the roll-call he announced the result: Five votes to four in favor of acquiring some new suitable suitings for spring. At the scream of protest, led by Mrs. Joe's ma, our hero calmly held up his hand. "As their guardian," Joe pointed out, "I hold the proxies of Rex, our family pooch, our two goldfish and the canary. Their votes cast by me, have swung the election."

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. Joe rose, smiling sweetly. "You win, my dear," she said. "Go ahead and get your new suit—if you can. However, you may be interested to know I bought a honey of a bargain today in a new spring coat—only $299.85—cash. So, my dear, there isn't even a dollar bill in our bank balance!"

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 28

An eventful but difficult day is the augury based on rather perplexing planetary aspects. There are signs of much definite activity, but this may encounter determined opposition. This frustration may be wrapped up in the affairs of elders or old institutions, either through death or calamity. There are complications that might involve cherished friendships. Good judgment, enterprize and resolution may engineer these serious matters into lucrative channels or personal gratifications.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by serious problems and many perplexities or contradictory situations. This may be attributable to a death or other bereavement and may involve travel or change. However, calmness and sagacious decisions may manipulate affairs into beneficial channels. Be careful to sustain cherished friendships and social relations.

A child born on this day may be studious and serious-minded and inclined to be aloof and reticent, although its tendency may be to original, creative and progressive thinking. It may be fond of roaming and may attain stability in professional life.

LIQUOR BLAMED FOR SEX CRIMES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 27. — Sordid vice conditions and sex crimes following town and country dances where wine and liquor was freely distributed were scathingly denounced in Police Court on Tuesday by County Crown Attorney Anderson after two young men named McConnell of Omemee had pleaded not guilty to the charge of illegal possession. The County Crown Attorney made the startling declaration that many wards of the Children's Aid Society were children born to girls who met their downfall at these dances. L. M. Frost, who defended the accused, stated that there was very little control over wine since the wine permit had been abolished. He strongly felt that the Government should restore the permit.

A resident of Lutterworth Township, Haliburton County, was arrested this week by Game Overseer W. Scotton, the charge of trapping beaver in Digby Township. The overseer, it is charged, came upon the man as he was laying beaver traps. He will face a charge in the Police Court in a few days.

In again and out again was the experience of a Bobcaygeon man in court circles this week. He was arrested a few hours after he had been released to raise the money to pay the costs assessed against him on an assault charge. He fell in with friends and became intoxicated. Costs in the case were over $14.00. He will serve ten days in jail on each of the two charges.

The Victoria Yacht Club and Anglers' Association are planning a big fish contest to be held during the fishing season. Prizes will be offered for the largest lunge and largest bass.

The visit a few days ago of C.N.R. officials over the Lindsay-Bobcaygeon branch of the C.P.R. has revived the unofficial announcement made some time ago that the former company would shortly assume the running rights over that line. It was fully expected that the C.N.R. would take over the line last fall, but no steps in that direction were taken. Officials of both lines will make no statement concerning the report.

Agony to Move Them When He Awoke

"For three years," writes this City man, "I suffered with pains across the lower part of my back. In the morning, I woke with knees so stiff that it was agony to move them. Special treatment would make the pain a little easier—but that was all. Then a friend recommended Kruschen, which my doctor said I might take. I began with about a coffee-spoonful first thing in the morning. To my surprise I found my rheumatic aches and pains disappearing. MADOC RESIDENT INJURED IN FALL

MADOC, April 27.—Mr. Gilbert Alcombrack fell from a step ladder while cleaning windows in his apartment on Main street Monday, suffering serious injuries. He was found unconscious lying on the floor and remained so for several hours, but is reported to be improving.

The members of Madoc I.O.O.F. attended divine service at the Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist on Sunday morning, the Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, rector, taking charge of the service.

"The Church's One Foundation" was used for the processional hymn. Morning prayer followed and the Easter anthem was used. The special psalm was the one hundred and eleventh, beginning "I will give thanks," and for the chant, the Jubilate Deo.

The special message to the brethren was from I Cor. 12:12, and took the form of a most inspiring message. Using the services of an orchestra, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne took three points of comparison: 1, discord until the tuning is done and harmony produced. Each concentrate on his "own instrument, plays his own music but keeps his eyes on the conductor. Each practises alone, but these all play one score, according to some one plan and produce one grand tune. So we should seek harmony not the discord of prejudice, and seek the guidance of the great master, Christ.

A beautiful solo was given by Mrs. Swayne, "Jesus Will Remember When the World Forgets." Easter hymns were used and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Thieves Escape With $500,000

In what was probably the most skilful art robbery of the past century thieves broke into Kentish castle of Sir Edmund Davies and carried away $500,000 worth of paintings. At the time of the robbery the castle was filled with weekend guests who slept peacefully as the thieves made off with the art treasure. Rembrandt's "Saskia at the Mirror," LEFT, and Gainsborough's "Lady Clarges," RIGHT, were among the priceless paintings stolen.

Before you pay above $1500 for a motor car-

LOOK AT LASALLE!

MOST PEOPLE WILL AGREE that the motorist who pays the price of a LaSalle ought to get a LaSalle.

Yet, many do not. They make an expenditure which entitles them to Cadillac quality, Cadillac safety and prestige—but fail to secure them.

This is undoubtedly due to a misunderstanding as to LaSalle's cost.

V-8 CADILLAC ENGINE

Because LaSalle's reputation is so fine, they think the price must be high.

However, this is not the case. There are actually eleven motor car manufacturers who have models costing more than a new LaSalle V-8.

Before you invest — investigate. If you expect to spend above $1,500 for your next car—then look at LaSalle.

London Life Men Make Sales Record

DURING the past three months the public purchased from our representatives Ordinary Life Insurance, exclusive of Industrial and Group, at the rate of a million dollars a week. This is an increase of 27% over the corresponding period last year.

This large volume of new business is a tribute to our sales organization and is very gratifying to the Company from that standpoint.

In the past five years we have accepted as representatives only men who possessed the qualities which extensive research has proven are necessary for success in this business. In the Ordinary Branch this has meant a much smaller but more highly trained sales force and has resulted in greatly increased average production. (The present numerical strength is only 57% of that at the beginning of this development period.) Industrial representatives on the average have doubled their Ordinary insurance sales in this period.

Our salesmen in rendering greater service to the public have been rewarded with a full measure of their confidence, and policyholders have insurance in a company known throughout Canada for its financial strength and low net cost.

LET ME TELL YOU ABOUT MY CONSTIPATION

by don herold

WHY NOT JOIN THE "REGULARS"?

If you are troubled with common constipation, here's some common-sense advice. This difficulty is usually due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. So instead of seeking temporary relief, why not get at the cause of the trouble? Instead of emergency medicines, eat a natural laxative food. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted cereal contains the "bulk" you need. And All-Bran is one of the richest of all common foods in Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by grocers. Served by restaurants.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Green Things From The Good Earth For Delightful Salad Dishes

(By Mary Moore)

Nonplussed no end at being told "No Lettuce this weekend, Mrs. Moore, it is to dear."—Just when I wanted to try out at least four salads over the weekend to discover the fancies of my fickle family—I had to 'phone the green grocer and like you I had to pay the price for his lettuce—vowing I'd go into the lettuce business for the Canadian market—(I only need three things now—the capital, the time, and the ability). You are practically eating Mary Moore's Canadian Lettuce right now! (I wish they'd let me out of this insane asylum.)

Regardless of the superlatives I use to recommend the salads herewith offered you I still think the shredded all-green salad lightly tossed with French Dressing in a wooden salad bowl is the only real salad.

Now that my duty is done here they are:

Pearl Salad

This calls for tiny pearl onions. They are a luxury I know but if you are the type of cook who keeps a watchful eye over her kitchen and hides the little treasures she does not want ice-box-raiders to find—one bottle of pearl onions will go a long way.

On cupped inner head lettuce place shredded lettuce mixed with fine slivers of celery. Beside them place a little mound of onions—if they are large pearl onion about 4 will do. Tuck small bunch of cress at one sideof lettuce, a devilled half of hard cooked egg at the other. Garnish top of lettuce with strips of pimiento. This can be made larger for a whole supper or luncheon salad course by adding another half of devilled hard cooked egg.

Lima Bean and Ham Salad Plate

Cook large limas just enough to make them tender without splitting. Rinse them with a little cold water—save the rinsing stock for the soup pot. Chill beans. Prepare a marinade which is simply French Dressing in which to coat the beans, then drain well. Place these in well cupped head lettuce leaves at one side of luncheon plate. Beside them place rolls of cooked ham—which have been thinly spread with mayonnaise, and rolled up. Stuff two stalks of celery with creamed cheese for each plate—place a wedge of head lettuce between each stalk of celery. Garnish the ham rolls with parsley, and sprinkle limas with paprika. Pass mayonnaise or French Dressing at Table.

A Copy of Oscar's Tomato and Crab Salad

Purchase Canadian Crab meat (I won't say whose not to buy) and with one tin of it mix the yolks of two hard cooked eggs, mayonnaise (not boiled dressing), and ½ teaspoon mashed pimiento—chunks of pimiento won't do. Season with a little pepper if desired—salt is not necessary.

Select choice medium tomatoes, and scoop out centres, sprinkle inside with salt and invert to drain on plate. Fill with crab mixture, and serve on lettuce. Hot rolls or biscuits or cheese straws are indicated with this.

Spring Tonic Salad

Sharpen your best steel knife and shred the outer green leaves from new cabbage as finely as possible—mix with them an equal amount of fresh cooked or canned peas, and ½ cup sprigs of parsley. Marinate with French Dressing and drain, or moisten with mayonnaise and sprinkle with a little additional salt. Place on lettuce leaves and surround at base with anchovy fillets or choice sardines. Garnish with very fine slice of tomato, or radish.

Emem's Emergency Salad

For a fast salad when choice vegetables are scarce and so is time, shred new cabbage on the smallest wonder shredder, add half the amount of shredded new carrot, same amount of fine slivers of celery as carrot, and bind with mayonnaise. I find this salad useful because the ingredients are usually all on hand all week.

Tomato and Asparagus Salad

Colorful and nutritive.

On long leaf of bright green lettuce (one for each service) place rows of half slices of peeled tomato, slices to overlap. Arrange short tips (about 2-inch) of asparagus under the slices of tomato—projecting from the sides—having about 6 tips to each salad. Pipe mayonnaise through tube along centre of tomatoes, and serve with cheese tea biscuits.

Palmer House Salad

(By Col. C. G. Holden)

In a bed of lettuce place a mixture of strips of apple, chopped choice English walnuts and drained cherries. Place a slice of pineapple on top of mixture. Pipe a border of cream cheese mixed with raw cream around pineapple and place a little currant jelly in centre. French Dressing.

Slimming Salad

Slice California oranges in six slices (very sharp knife is necessary). Make cheese balls with yellow cream cheese mixed with chopped almonds or cashews. Take stones from large prunes, and stuff with the cheese balls. Place three prunes on bed of lettuce, surround with slices of orange and garnish with wee pieces of maraschino cherry at centre of each orange slice. Serve with sour cream dressing.

Sour Cream Dressing

One teaspoon each mustard and sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, speck pepper, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup milk, 1½ teaspoons butter, 1 egg, 1-3 cup hot vinegar, ½ cup sour cream. Combine dry ingredients in top of double boiler. Beat the egg, add the milk and stir into the dry ingredients gradually. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture coats the spoon (do not let the water boil in the bottom). Add the hot vinegar and butter, remove from heat and cool and add sour cream. This amount will serve six.

Ensemble of Silk Necklace And Gloves Is Very New

They're Worn to Brighten Up Any Dark Dress and Also Come in Monotone Shades or Prints

By LISBETH

FLOWERS HAVE come to town on milady's head this season after many years of prophesies that flower-trimmed hats would come back. They HAVE come back with a vengeance, and I warrant women generally are enjoying them just as they reveled in the long dresses after that awful period of knee-length skirts for all occasions.

Flowers are not the only trimmings on hats, however, as you very well know. Feathers are favorite forms of decoration, although not to the extent of the blossoms.

The little pillbox, shown right, is really not the big news of the costume, but that is another story. The hat is white pique with a voluminous face veil gathered into a bunch on top of the hat, and covering face and back hair.

Silk Necklace, Gloves

A blue and white polka dot silk necklace with a matching silk polka dot glove with a white rayon palm are worn to brighten up a dark dress. This unique accessory may also be had in monotone shades or silk prints.

This new type of costume jewelry, if it might be called that, with the glove as the other partner in the ensemble, is an interesting trend to watch.

The lapel jewelry for the suit is, of course, the most popular form of inexpensive costume jewelry at the moment. The fashion for this type of thing has really become a rage. Circus motifs, the tiny pair of leather shoes, painted and carved animals, vegetables and masks are all much in demand.

Blue and white silk polka dot necklace and gloves, white pique hat.

More earrings are being sold than for a number of years, report the stores, and stylists say this is a trend to watch. The present "up" hair styles are making earrings more and more popular.

Travelogue Gives League a Treat

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 27. — The Young People's League of the United Church met on Monday evening with Miss Edna Haig, president, in the chair. The meeting opened with the usual hymn and prayer, after which the program was taken over by Miss Dorothy Davidson, leader of the literary group.

A movie travelogue, presented by William Platt, was the main item on the program. Beautiful scenes from places throughout Canada and Alaska were shown under the subtitles: Victoria, B.C., Alaska, Banff, Lake Louise, From Sea to Sea, Sporting Waters, Wild and Wet, and Quebec By-ways.

The meeting was open to everyone an admission of 10 cents being charged, and a very good attendance was had.

SEES BREAKDOWN

WINDSOR, Ont., April 27 (CP)—The present generation is heading for a breakdown, in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Dyson, Windsor, who celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding today. Mr. Dyson contended youth cannot expect to be healthy and live happily to a ripe old age through spending all their spare time in beer parlors and "racing about the country in search of pleasure."

MERGER SUSPECTED?

GALT, Ont., April 27 (CP)—Perhaps officials of the short wave station in Berlin thought Canada and the United States had merged for they adddress their program notices here "Galt, Ont., Kanada, U.S.A."

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"God is continually giving. He will not withhold from you or me. I hold up my little cup, He fills it full. If yours is greater, rejoice in that, and bring it faithfully to the same urn. He, who fills the violet with beauty, and the sun with light, will not fail to inspire you and me. Were your little cup to become as large as the Atlantic, He would still fill it."—J. Parker.

Dear Friends:

This is in reply to one whose penname is "More Hopeful." And she says in part: "Roberta, you speak often of God, and make Him seem more personal to us... You give me courage to approach Him more often and with more belief... Did you "get" religion in a blinding flash, or how did you get your faith which seems so strong?"

No, "More Hopeful" I got my faith in a series of miracles. Of course, it has been suggested to me many times that it was just coincidence, but I noticed when I did not pray, nor expect my prayers to be answered when I did, that these so called coincidences did not occur.

Do not think I wasn't skeptical. I had been brought up in a very religious atmosphere, in fact I thought it too much so. My Dad used to tell us he got direct answer to prayer, but we youngsters just looked at him in a pitying sort of way, thinking he was fooling himself, but as long as it did not hurt him we said nothing.

But, he was a very intelligent man, had travelled all over the world, was not easily fooled, and it made me curious. I asked one of my sisters if she had ever had one of her prayers answered, and she said no. I agreed that I hadn't either, but said that if ever I did, I would surely tell others about it.

Later on, when I was suffering acutely in a hospital and it seemed as if I were to be there a long time if not for the rest of my life, the first miracle occurred. I was indignant with God, (the presumption of me) I blamed the whole thing on Him, and I simply would not pray to One whom I thought had played such a scurvy trick on me.

But—when the doctor told me I would likely be a hunchback, I said vehemently, God will never let me be a hunchback." I should have gone a little further and said He would cure me, but I didn't, and suffered intensely with my spine ever since, although it's a little better now.

Since then, although I didn't say much about it at the time, (I was only nineteen) and although big specialists said it was a sheer miracle, I seemed to need further proof. Any mother will tell you she loves her children more than herself, so the proof came through them.

God, as an impersonal being could not fill a place in my life, but a personal God, One who is interested in me as a human being, looking for light from Him, granting me help when my own puny efforts will not serve me, that's something.

The trouble with most of us is, we want one big grand belief instead of all the small beliefs lyings close around us. We want, too, to do big things for Him, but we will not do the little things. We are embarrassed to tell some other how much He has done for us. We ask for the large things like virtue and safety, but we think He will not be interested if we tell Him we cannot pay the taxes or the rent.

Yet, when Jesus was asked, "tell us how to pray" He embodied in that prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread." He knew we must eat to live He said "render unto Ceaser the things that are Ceaser's, and unto God the things that are God's," knowing we had to pay our way.

I am living too close to death to fool myself or you either, for my heart is very bad, and hurts a lot. So, take God at His word. Jesus said, "Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name, ask and ye shall receive," and if you don't take Him at his word, whose fault is it if your prayers are not answered? Your own. ROBERTA.

Paintings of George Chavignaud Are Exhibited at Roy Studio Opening

The formal re-opening of the Roy Studio this week drew a large number of interested visitors Tuesday afternoon who accepted F. L. Roy's open invitation to the public to view the remodeled premises and enjoy the delightfully artistic feeling of taking tea in the "Skylight Room."

The shining modern front the studio now presents to the outside world is duplicated in charm within. On the street level the delightful little "Camera Shop" has come into being, and now contains the amateur finishing department, and all the Kodak supplies and accessories. Except for appointments, the Camera Shop now eliminates the necessity of customers climbing the stairs.

Of great interest in the Tudor Room during opening days is an exhibit of seventy-eight water color paintings by the famous Canadian artist, George Chavignaud. Mr. Chavignaud's pictures show an uncommonly individual technique, and he has a remarkable aptitude for reproducing life and movement without much apparent effort. His soft colorings are extremely lovely. Scenes in Quebec are dominant in the exhibition, which also contains many enchanting marine subjects, and fascinating sketches made on the Continent, especially in Holland and Belgium. A number of the paintings are of more local interest also, the artist now being a resident of Meadowvale, Ont.

Mr. Chavignaud's pictures are favorites for schools and public libraries and are found in many Canadian cities, including the National Gallery at Ottawa, the Record Office, and one hangs in the Peterborough Normal School.

Rivalling the paintings in beauty are the examples of modern photography. Exquisite colored miniature portraits, giving the effect of delicate paintings on old ivory, contain some beautiful likenesses of Peterborough children. Noticeable on the walls also were th photographs of well known Canadians, such as Sir Edward Beatty, Archbishop Owen, the Hon. Howard Ferguson and Senator Frank P. O'Connor.

Tea was served in the soft green and cream setting of the renovated Skylight Room, to which a lace-covered tea table, toning candles and flowers added a festive appearance. Mrs. F. C. Neal presided at the table Tuesday, assisted by Mrs. W. T. Belleghem and Mrs. J. K. Hughes. Today, Mrs. Roland Denne poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Paige Rowell. Mrs. R. W. Frank and Mrs. M. A. Jamieson, and on Thursday Mrs. J. W. McDermid will preside and assistants will be Mrs. H. C. Sootheran and Mrs. G. Raymore Scott.

Give Suit Chic

In tulip time it is time to wear tulips. At any rate, that is the assumption, and this young woman is suiting the action to the word, as it were.

With this handsome black wool suit with silver fox tuxedo collar, the model is wearing a shoulder corsage consisting of a cluster of white tulips high on her shoulder. Pendants of strunk hyacinth bells provide a novel touch to this spring-time corsage.

IN MEMORIAM

What must it be to step on shore, and find it—Heaven.
To take hold of a hand and find it
Gods hand.
To breathe a new air and find it
Celestial air.
To feel invigorated and find it Immortality.
To rise from the care and turmoil of earth
Into one unbroken calm;
To wake up, and find it Glory.
—Mother and Daddy.

GILMOUR.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. B. Gilmour, who passed away April 27, 1932.
—Ever remembered by the Family.

MIDDLETON. — In loving memory of Harold Middleton, who passed away three years ago, April 27, 1935.
Oh, our dear one, how we miss you
Only God alone can tell.
But we know that thou art happy
In that heavenly home to dwell.
Oh, the days are long and lonely
And its such a weary wait;
But you will be there to meet us,
Standing at the golden gate.
—Always remembered by Wife and Children, Marlene and Gerald.

POWELL.—In loving memory of my little friend, Winifred Marion Powell, who died one year ago today, April 27, 1937.
Just a little bud plucked by the hand of God
To bloom forever in heaven."
—Ever remembered by Mary Corbett.

MIDDLETON.—In loving memory of our dear Son, Harold, who passed away April 27, 1935:
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,.
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you're gone three years ago.
—Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Sister and Brother.

BOATE.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Ross Boate, who passed away April 27, 1928.
Ten years have passed, dear Mother,
Since you were called away;
How well do we remember
That sad and weary day.
To those who have a mother:
Cherish her with care;
For there will never be another
To fill the vacant chair.
—Sadly missed by Daughters and Sons.

Draft Copy Of Old Petition From Cavan Pioneers To Governor-General Found

Drawn Up In 1845 Referred To Dispute Concerning Council Meetings

An old first draft copy of a petition to Sir Charles T. Metcalfe, Governor-General of Canada, in behalf of ratepayers of Cavan township, written in 1845, was recently found by J. F. Pierce, Ontario Land Surveyor, in looking through correspondence and other papers in his office. Apparently it had been preserved by John Huston, a Peterborough and Cavan surveyor of nearly a century ago, and its reference to Millbrook and the township in the early forties of the last century may be of interest to many of present residents of those municipalities.

The incomplete petition, which was probably revised, refers to a dispute regarding the summoning of Cavan township meetings, and finally it presents reasons why such public meetings should be held in the flourishing village of Millbrook.

The text of the old appeal, embodying archaic phrases, was as follows:—

"To His Excellency the Right Honorable Sir Charles Theophilus Metcalfe, G.C.B., Governor-General of British North America, etc., etc. ...In Council.

May it please Your Excellency:—The petition of Her Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the inhabitant freeholders and householders of the township of Cavan in the district of Newcastle and province of Canada.

Most Humbly Sheweth

That your petitioners assembled at the village of Millbrook in Cavan aforesaid on Monday the sixth day of January 1845 pursuant to a warrant issued John Huston and Patrick Maguire, Justices of the Peace in and for the said District of Newcastle, and directed to the township clerk of Cavan, authorizing the said clerk to call the annual township meeting for Cavan.

Avoided Meeting

Your Excellency's petitioners most respectfully beg to state for the information of Your Excellency that the said Clerk having refused to call a meeting of the inhabitants as above stated, to meet at McElroy's Inn at the village of Millbrook, in Cavan aforesaid, agreeably to the tenor of said warrant and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said inhabitant freeholders and householders, have, nevertheless, assembled at Millbrook and proceeded to the election of the township officers for the current year.

Your petitioners further beg leave most respectfully to state to Your Excellency that at the annual township meeting at Millbrook in January 1843, a resolution was unanimously adopted at said meeting that the next annual township meeting should be held at the same place on the first Monday in January following, a copy of which together with the minutes of the proceedings of that meeting was recorded and made publicly known throughout the township as the law directs by the then acting township Clerk of whom w. now complain.

And that notwithstanding the proceedings of the said township meeting in 1843 as already stated having been well known to John Thompson and John Knowlson, Esquires, (the two Justices of the Peace of whom we also have reason to complain, and both brother-in-laws to the said township Clerk and all residing on the same lot of land, namely the east half of lot number twelve in the ninth concession of Cavan aforesaid) thought proper to issue their warrant directed to the said township Clerk — and at an unusually early part of the year calling the ensuing annual township meeting in the rear part of the said township at their residence contrary to the resolution adopted at the previous meeting at Millbrook and without even consulting the two senior acting Magistrates in the township.

And Your Petitioners also beg further to state to Your Excellency that at the township meeting held in the rear part of the said township in January 1844 another warrant was actually issued by the said John Knowles and John Thompson Esquires and directed to the said township Clerk and put into his hand before the meeting was finally closed, by his own acknowledgment subsequently, and which can be more fully substantiated, if necessary, by affidavit of Mr. William, Johnston, a very respectable inhabitant freeholder of the township, and which is herewith annexed for Your Excellency's information, very modestly calling the next annual township meeting only twelve months antecedent to the year of Our Lord 1845, and that without any resolution whatever on the part of the meeting and without even an intimation to consult the other resident and senior Magistrates of the township.

Your Petitioners also most respectfully state that repeated applications were made to P. Maguire and John Huston, the two senior acting Magistrates in the township since 1828 to issue a warrant prior to the other but they declined doing so on the ground that such a course of proceeding was altogether unusual and unprecedented and calculated to create strife and discord amongst the inhabitants of the township; but that they would issue a warrant, if called upon to do so, at the usual time in the month of December and in the most convenient place in the township for the inhabitants to assemble, and which was accordingly done, and by virtue of such warrant directed to the township Clerk (although not attended to) a numerous and repectable portion of the inhabitants assembled and elected the officers of the township as the law directs.

A Glimpse Of Millbrook

Your Petitioners also beg leave to state to Your Exy. that from the rapid increase and flourishing state of the village of Millbrook, where not only township meeting but all other public meetings connected with township purposes (have been held for the past fifteen years) it is the most convenient and suitable place for the holding of public meetings, being the place where a Fair has been held since—, the Court of Request since 1827, where the County of Durham Agricultural Society have held their meetings several times, where from the nature and extent of the place the necessary accommodations can be provided on all such public occasions; besides all this there is now established in Millbrook three merchants' shops, a sub-post office, two inns each of which pays double the sum of the tavern and only one, where the last meeting was held, four blacksmith shops, two chair factories, a wheelright shop, two turning lathes, a clothing and fulling mill, a grist mill and saw mill, a tanner and currier shop, a distillery, four tailors' shops, two millinery shops, a saddler's shop, three shoemakers and four carpenters' shops, all employing a number of workmen, two medical licensed practitioners, and one deputy provincial surveyor, making altogether a population of 270."

BRYANS IN TRIAL

TORONTO, April 27 — (CP). — Trial of Thomas Bryans alias Louis Bryans, one-time member of the notorious Red Ryan gang, on a charge of murder opened before Mr. Justice C. P. McTague and an Assize Court jury to-day.

Bryans pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering Norman Ford, former assistant golf professional at a Toronto club, here on February 6. Ford's body was found outside a west-end police station on the night in question, and Bryans was arrested a few minutes later after a short chase.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Future Value Of Ethiopia Problem To Italy

TORONTO, April 27 — (CP). — Nathan D. Medlock, 45, factory foreman of the Herman Fur Company, was attacked and beaten with a steel rod by three men who accosted him outside his home today.

Police believe the men were fur strikers or fur strike sympathizers. Stitches were required to close a gash on the left side of Medlock's head. Hospital attendants feared he might have suffered a fractured skull.

Police Chief Tom MacNamara of Etobicoke Township, said an arrest was expected.

He reported Medlock was going from his house to his garage when an automobile carrying three men stopped. A trio jumped out and attacked Medlock. Two carried weapons.

Medlock downed one of the men with a blow on the jaw. A heavy steel bar knocked him to the ground. The three men fled in their car. Medlock managed to get a portion of the license number of the car and informed police.

The injured man staggered into his home and his wife and neighbors gave him first-aid.

Toronto locals of the International Fur Workers' Union, a C.I.O. affiliate, called a strike at the Herman fur plant several weeks ago, claiming a rival union was permitted to operate in the plant.

Toronto, April 27 (CP)

CITY POLICE alleged three Chinese used the grounds of Osgoode Hall, Ontario's law centre in downtown Toronto, as a hiding place for opium when they arrested the trio early today on charges of possessing the drug. A fourth Chinese was arrested yesterday on the same count by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Two plainclothesmen reported they came on Dong Chong, Fing Wong and Lee Dong near the main gate of the grounds early today. One of the three was acting as lookout while the other two dug beneath a pile of leaves.

Noticing the officers' parked automobile, the Chinese moved away, the plainclothesmen said. They returned later and one of the three took a heavy box from the ground. Apprehended, the Chinese allegedly carried 18 decks of opium.

PIONEER MANITOBAN DIES

WINNIPEG, April 27 (CP).—Mrs. Charles A. Boulton, 87, pioneer Manitoban and widow of Col. C. A. Boulton, Senator, soldier and pioneer, died yesterday.

TRAPPER SLAIN IN AXE MURDER

LA SARRE, Que., April 27 (CP). —With one man under arrest, Provincial Police pressed to-day their investigation into the two-week-old axe-slaying of Odilon Lafontaine, trapper whose mutilated body was found in a cabin not far from this north-western Quebec colonization centre.

The man, whose identity was not disclosed by police, was arrested yesterday, 24 hours after Benoit Breton, a grocery clerk, discovered the 58-year-old recluse's body. Police said the man was watching them from a hiding-place near the cabin. They did not say whether a charge had been laid.

A coroner's jury under Dr. Bertrand found Lafontaine, widower, had died of blows from a weapon in the hands of an unknown person. The body, hacked in about 15 places, had lain in the small shack 15 days, according to the coroner. Lafontaine's throat was gashed and the back of his head had been bashed in. There were numerous cuts on the face.

The coroner said the man apparently had been struck with an axe. The body was wrapped in sacking. There was no apparent motive for the slaying, according to police disclosures.

BUND TO ADOPT SHARE-WORK PLAN

NEW YORK, April 27—(CP)—The German American Bund, a "militant organization of patriotic Americans of German stock," will include in its platform for state and national elections this November the "share-the-work plan" of George Rolland, a Canadian now resident here.

The plan is based on the creed that "people do not live to work, but they work in order to live successfully."

Rolland, a compact young man in his late 20's, who was born near Yorkton, Sask., and who graduated from Regina Collegiate Institute, will stump the United States for the Bund, which has adopted his plan as the "ultimate" solution to unemployment in America."

In a booklet titled "Share-The-Work Plan," Rolland in an analysis of the causes of unemployment, lists long hours and low wages as the primary faults of the present economic system.

His plan calls for an established minimum wage-rate by industries and a spread of the work-hours according to the needs of the individual to all eligible for employment. Thus a married worker with dependents would get more work-hours than a single person without dependents.

SPANISH VILLAGES CARRY ON QUIETLY ON EDGE OF WAR

By Charles P. Nutter
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

With Spanish government forces in Eastern Spain, April 27—(AP).—From the looks of peaceful Torreblanca, drowsing under the warm April sun, you'd hardly realize the rumbling down the road was the noise of war.

Although the ominous roar of guns rolled heavily across the town of 3,000 near the Mediterranean, civilian life steered its usual even way today. Women rested in the sun nursing their babies. Older children played nearby.

A few peasants, however, methodically loaded their worldly goods on inevitable mule carts and left homes wrecked by insurgent bombs to trudge down the highway toward Castellon de la Plana, 18 miles away, seeking the safety of government lines.

No traffic moved toward the war front. Even on the edge of the battle-line activity was slight.

Scores were killed yesterday in insurgent air raids on Castellon. Fifty were killed and more than 200 wounded in Valencia, former seaport capital of government Spain some 40 miles to the south. Nowhere was there sign of panic. Valencia, its population swollen heavily by refugees, appeared extremely busy but not unexcited by the threat of the advancing insurgents.

First aid squads were just beginning to pull victims from the ruins of buildings when I passed through battered Castellon following yesterday's bombing.

Merciful rainstorms descended while the 25 raiding bombers were doing their worst, bringing a welcomed halt to the devastation.

CZECHS REJECT NAZIS' DEMANDS

PRAHA, April 27 (CP-Havas). — Czechslovakia rejects Konrad Henlein's demands for absolute autonomy for the German minority and a change in the government's foreign policy to bring it within the Reich's orbit.

A semi-official statement issued by the government declared that, of eight demands listed by the Nazi leader at Karlovy Vary, his foreign policy plank and two others were purely negative while the remaining five were too vague to warrant serious consideration.

The statement said Henlein's profession of faith in the doctrines of the Nazi party was in accord with the Czechoslovak constitution which guarantees the freedom of all political creeds. Nothing will be done to prevent the Sudeten leader from conforming with Nazi ideologies, but establishment of a totalitarian state is banned by the constitution, it was declared.

Henlein was taken to task for denouncing several phases of the present form of government without proposing acceptable substitutes. On other points his remarks were ambiguous and must be clarified before they can serve as a basis for discussion, it was said.

Blame Foreign Powers

BERLIN, April 26 (AP).—Responsibility for developments in Czechoslovakia rest not only with the Czech government but with foreign powers as well, in the opinion of the officially inspired diplomatische politische korrespondenz.

This daily commentary service of the Wilhelmstrasse said the Czechs long ago would have yielded to German demands except for their reliance upon certain big powers.

TWO ONTARIO DECISIONS GO AGAINST DIONNE

RELIEFERS SIT ON REEVE'S STEP ALL NIGHT LONG

Find House Is Empty, So Head Back to Hall

CLARKSON, Ont., April 28 (CP).—Bundled in sweaters and overcoats, nearly 100 men, women and children, striking Toronto Township relief recipients, camped all night on the Clarkson roadside before Reeve E. D. Maguire's home.

When morning came the motley group marched to the nearby municipal relief office to await developments in their demand for a work and wages program on restoration of a 25 per cent. cut in relief allowances. Shivering as the night wore on, most of the strikers had slept on newspapers spread out by the road.

Marching along the highway that skirts Lake Ontario from their homes at Lakeview, 14 miles west of Toronto, the families brought no blankets as the sun beat down yesterday. The younger children, some only a year old, were housed in a refreshment booth.

Reeve Maguire and his family were not at home all night. Township and Provincial police visited the group at intervals, but made no attempt to interfere with the vigil, another demonstration in a series which has followed the Reeve's declaration that the municipality is powerless to increase relief allowances.

List Of Allowances.

Under reduced allowances adopted April 1, the families have received amounts set out in the Campbell report to the Federal Government, passed by Order-in-Council in 1932. Heads of families have been paid up until the end of this month.

Under the rates a single person receives $1.50 a week; a man and wife, $2.25; three in a family, $3.85; four in a family, $4.20; five in a family, $5; six in a family, $5.75; seven in a family, $6.45; eight in a family, $7.10; nine in a family, $7.70; 10 in a family, $8.25. Until rates were reduced a single person received $1.88 weekly and other payments scared upward accordingly.

HEPBURN BRANDS BENNETT A LIAR ON BRIDGE ISSUE

TORONTO, April 28 (CP).—Premier Hepburn today called "a damnable lie" the suggestion of Rt. Hon. R. C. Bennett, Dominion Conservative leader, that Ontario's plans for a new bridge at Niagara Falls were intended to promote a real estate boom.

In Parliament Tuesday Mr. Bennett joined a filibuster against Ontario's bill to construct an international bridge to replace the ice-wrecked Falls View Bridge. He charged the bill was drafted in such a way the incorporators could indulge in a real estate development at the Falls while awaiting permission from New York State to build the bridge.

"That's a damnable lie and he knows it," Premier Hepburn declared. "There is no suggestion of any real estate boom. Our only purpose is to give the people a bridge which eventually will be publicly-owned and toll-free. Mr. Bennett only belittles himself when he makes a charge like that, and while he is talking delaying passage of the bill, Ontario is losing thousands of dollars daily."

Full co-operation of New York State was promised him just as soon as the necessary legislation was passed at Ottawa, Mr. Hepburn added.

Bennett's Reply.

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP).—Conservative Leader Bennett commenting today on the criticism of him by Premier Hepburn of Ontario for attacking a bill for a new bridge at Niagara Falls, said: "The language used by Premier Hepburn is in keeping with the provisions of the bill."

5 Sundridge Men Die In Crash With Freight

Victims Are Horribly Burned as Wreck Takes Fire; Party Bound North After Fish Unaware of Train

SUNDRIDGE, Ont., April 28 (CP).—A level-crossing crash that took five lives and left a sixth person seriously injured, described as the worst accident in the history of this northern Ontario district, was under investigation today by railway and Provincial police.

The six were in an automobile which was squarely across the tracks when a Canadian National Railways freight train, said by company officials to be travelling at from 25 to 30 miles an hour, struck it yesterday a few yards from Sundridge station, 35 miles south of North Bay. Fire broke out after the crash.

Ray Morrington, 24; James Jones, 42; Gordon Hornibrook, 24, and Ernest Hornibrook, 50, were killed instantly. Burned severely and with his left arm torn from its socket, 28-year-old Edward Wilton died in hospital in Bracebridge, 60 miles south of here. Clifford Morrington, 23, believed suffering internal injuries, was taken to hospital with Wilton and was reported today to be in serious condition.

Off On Fishing Trip.

All farmers of the Sundridge district, the men were en route to Callander for a fishing trip. They apparently were unaware of the approaching train as the motor-car started across the tracks. The engine caught the light machine in the centre and carried the wreckage nearly 300 yards.

Engineer H. T. Appleton and Conductor J. E. Millar pulled Morrington and Wilton from the flaming debris and placed them in a freight car. The railwaymen said Wilton was a mass of burns. His left arm later was found a short distance up the tracks.

The freight train covered the 60 miles to Bracebridge in 80 minutes Coroner M. A. Wittick of Burk's Falls, who administered first aid at the scene of the crash, and two nurses taken on at Sundridge cared for the two injured men during the race against death. But Wilton was given little chance of recovery as Bracebridge was reached, and he died shortly after admittance.

"It was the worst accident in the history of the district," said Dr. Wittick, who yet has to set a date for an inquest. "It was horrible enough with the fire, but when the gasoline ignited, the suffering of those still alive must have been terrible. I believe Ray Morrington was the driver."

Railway officials said all crossing warnings were given by the engineer as the train approached the station. The regulation whistles were sounded and the bell rung.

ONTARIO IN GRIP OF MID-SUMMER APRIL HEAT WAVE

TORONTO, April 28 (CP).—Summer temperature spread over Ontario today on light breezes that gave some relief to city dwellers and raised clouds of dust behind the farmer's plow.

Some spots reported the warmest days in 20 years and all agreed the weather at least was unseasonable. It sped the blossom season in the Niagara peninsula and dried out pasture lands in the east.

But an immediate cooling-off was reported on the way. Rain fell at Sudbury, tumbling the mercury from a startling 80 yesterday to a comfortable 44 this morning. The weather man saw showers coming for the rest of the province tonight or tomorrow.

Sudbury residents lolled on their verandahs yesterday after hurriedly pulling summer furniture from attics. Shortly after midnight rain began to fall.

Western Ontario found no such let-up. An unofficial recording of 81 in the shade was reported at Brantford after a high mark of 83 in the past 24 hours. The mercury didn't drop below 58 there all night.

Warmest in Many Years

Kitchener experienced the warmest April day in 13 years yesterday and Guelph the warmest in 28, with marks of 82 and 81 respectively. Just as lofty a temperature was anticipated today.

Yesterday was the third warmest April day in Toronto, in nearly a century. In mid-afternoon a high of 83 was reached, nearly touching the record set April 22, 1842, when the provincial capital sizzled in a temperature of 90. On April 26, 1915, the mercury was 84.

Ottawa expected mid-summer conditions as an early-morning recording of 76 was reported.

Mine Blast Toll 8 Dead, 10 Hurt

ST. CLAIR, Pa., April 28 (A.P.).—This mining town in the heart of Pennsylvania's anthracite region lay stunned to-day by the greatest tragedy in its history—a mine explosion in the St. Clair Coal Company's mine that killed eight men and injured 10 others.

It was the second major mine disaster in the United States in less than a week. Nearly 50 died in an explosion in a bituminous mine at Grundy, Va., last week.

The dead: Frank Montgomery, 30, Paul Sikra, 40, Richard Barnes, 43, Wasil Holovak, 45, Andrew Potts, 36, and Luke Churckran, 40, all of St. Clair, and Michael and John Terris, brothers, of Port Clinton.

Stevens Proposes 25 p.c. Subsidy To Reduce Taxes

Federal Act Would Let Municipalities Out of Hole And Remove Main Obstacle to Housing Enterprise

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP).—Parliament is now engaged in its annual wrangle over unemployment relief with a bill before the House of Commons covering this year's authorization to deal with the problem—a bill which opposition members charge differs in no practical way from those brought down each year since the depression and offers no permanent cure.

Yesterday's session was devoted entirely to debate on second reading of the relief bill with the feature a suggestion from H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootenay east) designed to lighten the burden of civic taxation and take the brake off housing rehabilitation.

Mr Stevens would have the Federal government offer to pay every municipality in Canada, a subsidy equal to 25 per cent of the taxes it derived from real estate on condition the municipality would agree not to increase assessments over a period of years.

Taxes could thus be reduced by 25 per cent without loss to the municipality and the one great obstacle to housing enterprise would be removed, Mr. Stevens said.

Rogers advances it

Labor minister Rogers moved second reading of the bill but did not discuss it and had no opportunity to reply to the various criticisms when the House adjourned. The debate will be renewed tomorrow.

The minister did draw attention of the House to the fact the bill was only a general permission for the government to spend money that might be voted and that details of the government's plan would be made now in the supplementary estimates.

General criticism of this year's relief bill was that it offered no suggestions or plan for permanent solution of the unemployment problem, and that it did not reflect the

YOUTH CONFESSES TWO SAFE JOBS

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (C.P.). —An 18-year-old Toronto youth was held here to-day for questioning in connection with recent Western Ontario safe-crackings and the theft of a Toronto automobile. Police said he confessed cracking of two safes and theft of $300, involving a companion.

The youth was arrested yesterday in an allegedly stolen Toronto car. The companion, whom he refused to name, gave police the slip. A sack of silver coins totalling $36.15 was found in the machine, while the youth carried $60, alleged to be part of the loot.

Detective Edmund Tong of Toronto and Inspector S. Oliver, Provincial Police Chief for London district, questioned the boy.

Among recent Western Ontario safe robberies were two from London district. At Melbourne, 25 miles west of London, a Silverwood Dairy warehouse safe was looted of about $700, while $57 was taken from the Innerkip Lime and Stone Company strong box at Centreville, near Woodstock.

No Quint Inquiry Will Be Held Says Hepburn

Guardians Remain Unless They Ask to Be Changed; Bi-lingual Section of Department to Run Education

TORONTO, April 28 (CP).—Oliva Dionne was the loser today, under two Ontario government announcements, in his fight for possession of his quintuplet daughters and control of their $600,000 fortune.

Premier Hepburn announced no judicial investigation of the guardianship of the Quints—demanded by Dionne—would be held nor would there be any change of guardians. Dionne sought a shakeup in the guardian board.

Dissatisfied with the way in which the Ontario government's appointees have controlled the affairs of the famed children, Dionne applied to Attorney-General Gordon Conat for a judicial probe.

Reunion of the girls who will be four years old May 28, was prime motive of Dionne's request according to his legal representative, Henri St. Jacques of Ottawa. The parents wanted the children, whose custody was taken out of their hands two months after their birth, returned to them.

Education Decided.

Mr. Conant announced the education of the Quints will be placed under the bi-lingual (Engish-French) section of the Department of Education. Uo consideration will be given to Dionne's request for reinstatement of teacher Clare Tremblay and Nurse Jacqueline Noel.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe's position as "supreme authority in all matters affecting the health of the Quintuplets" is to be maintained. An increase in the allowance paid the Dionne family from the Quints' funds from $100 to $300 a month is confirmed.

The Attorney General's announcement was based on the findings of Guardian Percy D. Wilson, who made a preliminary inquiry into Dionne's complaints at North Bay and Callander a month ago. These recommendations, Mr. Conant said, will be adopted or commended to the guardians, the government being "satified Mr. Wilson has taken a proper view of the whole situation."

Of the $4,000,000 "the Kid" claims to have earned as a film star, only $545,924 now remains. And $171.96 of that represents sums advanced for his clothing and expenses by the Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.

It was a blow to 23-year-old Jackie—this deflationary inventory filed by a court-appointed receiver in his multi-million dollar accounting suit against his mother and stepfather, Lillian and Arthur L. Bernstein.

"My mother must not be blamed for this condition of affairs," was the youth's first comment. "I have not yet had an opportunity to examine the report fully, but it shows that virtually all my earnings excepting those invested in real estate has been dissipated."

FRANCO-BRITISH HEADS IN PARLEY ON NEW ALLIANCE

LONDON, April 28—(CP Cable). The Anglo-French Entente got down to brass tacks to-day. In the Cabinet Room at No. 10 Downing Street, Premier Edouard Daladier and Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, on the one hand, and Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, on the other—each with their respective advisers—began two days of discussions ranging over the whole tortuous European field.

It is unlikely that before tomorrow afternoon any official indication of their decisions will be available, but it may be taken for granted that the Entente will be reaffirmed and strengthened. Already it amounts to a virtual alliance.

France Is Anxious

Relations with Italy enter largely into the conversations. France is anxious over Italian activities in Spain and Tunis, and is seeking new assurances before she will be willing to recognize Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia.

To both Great Britain and France Chancellor Hitler's ambitions down the valley of the Danaube are a matter of deep concern. The German minority's demands for autonomy in Czechoslovakia, with the probability of German economic pressure on Praha, paving the way to German domination of the Balkans, all hold their problems for Great Britain and France alike.

Bryans Sentenced To Hang June 30

TORONTO, April 28 (C.P.). — Thomas Bryans alias Louis Bryans one-time member of the notorius Red Ryan gang, was sentenced to hang on June 30 when convicted by an Assize Court jury to-day of the murder of Norman Ford here on February 6.

Ford, former assistant golf professional at a Toronto course, was found dead outside a west-end police station. He had been shot to death. Bryans was arrested a short time after a man had been seen running from the scene. Witnesses told of having seen two men struggling outside the station.

No defence was offered on behalf of Bryans during the three-day trial before Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, with both Crown and defence counsel making final addresses to the jury yesterday.

FOOD LINE-UPS TO BE TABOOED FOR NEXT WAR

Ration Ticket System Will Be Used by Britain

LONDON, April 28.—(CP Cable.) —Books of ration tickets rather than food queues is the way the government plans the gigantic task of feeding the nation in time of war.

Elaborate arrangements for assuring the change from normal trading to war-time control within a few hours were revealed in a report issued by the Food (Defence Plans) Department under the direction of Sir Henry French.

Assuring all types of consumers all over the country that they will be able to buy the food required in a major emergency, the report declares it has been decided that essential food control, comprising organization of supplies and regulation of consumers' demands, should be imposed immediately after the outbreak of hostilities.

All Problems Worked Out.

It was in order to prepare these plans well in advance that this department was established in November, 1936. The report admits it is concealing several factors which must remain secret but adds that it has anticipated every problem which might face a food controller as soon as he has been appointed, so his work will get under way as promptly as possible.

Based on Great War experience and later studies it is considered vital that government control be operated so far as possible by the food traders themselves and be flexible enough to cover a variety of situations.

Plans against air attack have not been compiled but are being hastened. Retailers will be licensed and consumers obliegd to go to particular stores.

Britain will be divided into 7 areas for controlling food supplies and a provisional oficer with staff has already been appointed for each area. The report declares it is practically certain that meat would be rationed immediately and it is likely that tea and other staples would follow shortly after, according to the emergency.

GOERING ORDERS JEWS LIST ALL CASH, PROPERTY

BERLIN, April 28 (AP).—Diplomats indicated today that embassies and legations of foreign powers are studying the decree published yesterday requiring registration of Jewish fortunes and properties in Germany.

A high authority disclosed last night the German government planned to take over all Jewish property "in due course of time" and encourage Jews to emigrate from Germany.

This was in explanation of the decree issued by Field Marshall Hermann Goering, as director of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, requiring the approximately 75,000 Jews of Greater Germany to register their fortune if these exceed 5,000 marks ($2,000). Jews in Germany must all register their foreign properties. Foreign Jews must list their holdings in Germany. This must be done by June 30.

Display Of Manpower And Decorative Splendors Will Overshadow Anything Rome Ever Saw

ROME, April 28 (AP) — Adolf Hitler's reception here May 3 will be the most spectacular ever given a foreign visitor to the Italian peninsula.

PILOT BAILS OUT AS PLANE SPINS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 28.—(CP) Student pilot J. L. J. Bemoip of the Royal Canadian Air Force base at nearby Trenton bailed out of his falling airplane at 3,000 feet today and laded safely in a field, three miles north of Trenton. The machine crashed in a spin and was wrecked. It did not catch fire.

Bemoip was flying at 4,000 feet when the plane dived. In a 1,000-foot descent he tried to level her off, but failed.

Sergt.-Pilot C. Harling was flying nearby. He landed and picked up Bemoip who had been flying solo three or four weeks. A court of inquiry was later ordered by Wing Commander A. E. Godbridge.

The machine was a fleet training ship.

AN EXPEDITION which entered the British Guiana hinterland in search of Paul Redfern, United States aviator lost 10 years ago in a flight over South America was back here today, convinced the flyer is dead.

Theodore Waldeck, New York sportsman and leader of the ill-fated expedition which set out for the up-river jungle country, said: "We are convinced Redfern is dead. "We located the place where his plane crashed and have positive proof Redfern is dead."

The explorer, who spent four months in the jungle where Dr. Frederick Fox, native of Lucan, Ont., died, said he was unable to give details of the evidence immediately.

SHUFFLE HINTED FOR GUARDIANS OF QUINTUPLETS

Judge Valin May Retire, Dafoe's Move Uncertain

TORONTO, April 28 (CP)—The Globe and Mail in a news story today says it is understood reorganization of the guardianship of the Dionne quintuplets will be discussed "and possibly decided at a conference today between Premier Hepburn and Attorney-General Conant.

The Globe and Mail adds:

"This reorganization is almost certain, it is said, to include the retirement of Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay, with Judge J. A. S. Plouffe of the Nipissing district as his probable successor. Whether Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe will also relinquish his guardianship post remains to be seen. According to rumor, Dr. Dafoe is ready to do so in order, if necessary, to preserve Anglo-French accord in the north country, but the majority of the Ontario cabinet ministers are said to be dead against any such move on his part."

The paper adds that "in any event" Dr. Dafoe will continue as personal physician to the five babies he brought into the world May 28, 1934, with no curtailment of his present authority over their health.

Dafoe Speaks Frankly

The Callander physician, with Keith Munro, business manager for the quintuplets, conferred yesterday (Wednesday) with the attorney-general, when, the Globe and Mail says, "the physician is said to have frankly laid his cards on the table."

The paper says further:

"No statement was forthcoming afterward but rumor had it that investigation recently demanded by Oliva Dionne, father of the quints, through Henri St. Jacques, Ottawa barrister, would not be granted."

The Globe and Mail adds that the government is said to have taken the position that a "private inquiry" recently by Percy D. Wilson, official Ontario guardian, "failed to disclose conditions that would warrant any further probe."

U. S. IS ALL RIGHT SAYS HENRY FORD

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—United States administration officials, silent about President Roosevelt's "family luncheon" conference with Henry Ford, undertook today to arrange an early meeting of 16 big business men who have promised their aid in establishing economic stability.

The negotiations were being made by Commerce Secretary Roper and John W. Hanes, securities commissioner who conceived their pledge of cooperation with the president.

The extent to which similar cooperation might be forthcoming from Ford remained undisclosed after his two-hour conversation in the oval dining room of the White House.

"The country is all right and always will be all right," the 74-year-old auto manufacturer told reporters.

He declined comment on the president's spending-lending program or on his general business policies, which he frequently has opposed.

"Everything was very pleasant," Ford said of his talk with the president, whom he last had met while they were associated in naval department work during the Great War.

$14,000,000 OIL PLAN UNDER WAY IN TURNER VALLEY

CALGARY, April 28.—(CP). —In Alberta's Turner Valley, a valley of contrasts where spring flowers bloom in early spring, many days ahead of rangeland growth, and strawberry plants bear fruit in February, millions of dollars are being spent this year in the search for oil.

A $14,000,000 oil development program is underway to-day. Forty-one new wells are being drilled in the centre crude field of South Turner Valley; preparations are under way to drill another 14 and the great rotary drills will have started in 25 more by June 1.

To-day 45 wells are producing oil. They have a potential yield, flowing at full capacity, of 40,000 barrels a day—a daily average of $50,000 and a yearly value of $17,-000,000. Crude oil from the valley sent as far east as Winnipeg, has a price of $1.25 a barrel.

Last year $10,000,000 was spent in the valley on new wells in the picturesque foothills country 45 miles southwest of Calgary where but a few years ago ranchers and their range riders held sway. A year ago at this time 23 wells were drilling and seven preparing to start operations.

Average depth of the valley wells is 7,000 feet and the average cost of drilling is $175,000 a well. Some, however range as high as $212,000, depending on depth and structure encountered.

Field on Schedule.

At present the field is on a proration schedule. Production is at 42 per cent. of capacity, about 15,800 barrels daily, valued at $18,850.

With the potential capacity rated at 40,000 barrels daily in a Gov-

HARVEST RECORD

MELBOURNE, Victoria—(CP). —Three men in the Wimmera wheat belt of this state claim a world's harvesting record on their 700-acre crop. Using an "auto-header" which strips grain heads and bags them in one operation, they harvested 3,300 bushels in one day, working 15 hours with only brief halts for meals and machine adjustments. Yield of wheat was 43½ bushels an acre.

VETERAN BARBER TO FIGHT CODE

"If a man cannot earn an honest living in this country, it is just too bad," declared Arthur C. Mitchell, 78 Aylmer street north, in police court this morning, as he announced his intention of fighting the Barbers' Code set up for Peterborough under the Industrial Standards Act. Mr. Mitchell told the court that he did not propose to go on relief without making a fight to keep off it.

Mitchell, along with two other local barbers, Everett Pringle and John Quinlan, had been charged some weeks ago with two offences against the Barbers' Code, namely of accepting less than the minimum price for a hair-cut and of working on Wednesday afternoon, which under the code has been set apart as half holiday.

At that time the three entered into an agreement to obey the regulations and the cases were adjourned until to-day with the understanding that if they had been found to have lived up to their undertaking, the cases would be withdrawn.

In accordance with that understanding the charges against Pringle and Quinlan were withdrawn this morning, but when Mitchell's case was reached Crown Attorney McElderry informed the court that the circumstances were different. He said that last Friday Mitchell, who had observed the agreement up to that stage, had written the Labor Department to state that he was withdrawing from the understaking that he had given.

"You are going to fight then?" asked Magistrate Langley.

"I've got to fight it out," replied the veteran barber, "and I'd rather fight it without my signature on anything. I am no going on relief without a fight."

Mitchell, who had pleaded not guilty to both charges, consented to the Crown's request for an adjournment until May 9.

captain of the schooner Nigalik.

"Seldom is there more than two months of summer weather there, the snow leaves in June and the ice breaks up in August. But we always expect our winter to have et in by the first of October," stated Captain Pasley. "We don't mind the cold, it often goes 60 below zero, unless there is a wind and we also have heavy blizzards. Of course we are always dressed warmly for it, as we wear two heavy suits of deerskin."

Nearly Frozen In London

"I almost froze to death in London," said Mrs. Pasley. "The weather was so very damp compared with what we have. We had the first colds in many years over there. I love the north and would not change my life there for any other. Of course we must fill our larder when the supply schooner comes, for it only comes once a year. We store 70 and 80 tons of food for trading and for our own use. But usually we overstock, because there is always the possibility that the supply ship will get caught in the ice."

The white personnel at Cambridge Bay consists of the Hudson Bay Company manager and his wife, the Anglican missionary and his wife and two members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. As well as the Pasleys. The house has three thicknesses of timber insulated from outside by beaverboard and the floor has four thicknesses. The nearest white neighbors are at Wager Bay, 350 miles away and the nearest city is Edmonton, 2,000 miles distant. Caribou is the chief meat as far as fresh meat is concerned.

IS LEFT WELSH ESTATE

TORONTO, April 28 (C.P.). — Frederick Noel Carpenter, physical instructor and head of the Cadet Corps at Upper Canada College here, has fallen heir to a 300-year-old estate on the Island of Anglesey in Wales, his wife said to-day.

Mrs. Carpenter said that after 30 years in Canada the family would return to Wales in June to take over the property, which consists of land and buildings. Carpenter was a member of the Canadian contingent to the Coronation of King George last year.

the guardians "to the growing administrative costs," the report states in reference to Dionne's charge of "extravagance."

Mr. Wilson held out hope for ultimate re-union of the Dionne family with their famous daughters and suggests "that the whole situation be surveyed from all points of view, including medical, educational and religious, with a view to reuniting the family."

The Department of Education is to co-operate with the parents to assure educational benefits to the other Dionne children, expenses to be borne by the guardianship fund.

No recommendations were found necessary in connection with tfuture moving picture contracts or the public showing of the children as "all are agreed upon the policy to be followed in these respects."

Recently it was announced that after completion of their next movie the quints will not be called upon, probably for several years, to again face the cameras. During their formative years movie-making would be too much of a strain, Dr Dafoe has said.

"No investigation is warranted," Premier Hepburn said at Queen's Park where a conference concerning Dionne's complaints was held. He said a report prepared by Wilson on a preliminary inquiry he made at Callander and North Bay a month ago had indicated no necessity for a judicial probe.

Nor was any change in the guardianship indicated unless either Dr. Dafoe or Judge Valin ask to be relieved of their duties. It was reported that Judge Valin, who has been ill recently, would retire to be replaced by Judge J. A. S. Plouffe of Nipissing district.

Judge Valin Silent.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 28.—(CP).—"Nothing to say," Judge J. A. Valin said to-day, regarding reports of his possible retirement from the Board of Guardians of the Dionne Quintuplets.

Judge Valin said he had heard nothing from the Ontario government. The government had been "fair with me, has trusted me in my position as guardian and I would not like to embarrass them in any way," he said. The Judge said he was satisfied the guardians "have done a good job."

DE LAVAL IS GIVEN LEAVE TO APPEAL

Another round in the long-drawn battle between Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and the De Laval Company over the latter's assessment was staged in the Appeal Court at Osgoode Hall on Tuesday as the result of which the De Laval Company was given leave to appeal from a decision given against the company by the Ontario Municipal Board last month.

The motion by special leave of Mr. Justice Middleton was for an order granting leave to appeal against the Board's decision and was supported by F. D. Kerr, K.C., and G. W. Mason, K.C. for the company while former solicitor J. R. Corkery appeared for the city of Peterborough. Leave was granted, the order being that the appeal is to be heard on or after May 16, 1938.

It will be remembered that this battle began with an appeal by Mr. Gordon against the De Laval assessment before the local court of revision which dismissed it on the ground that it had no authority to deal with it. Mr. Gordon then appealed to the County Judge and again lost out for the same reason. Then he carried his appeal before the Ontario Municipal Board and there his efforts were successful. Now the company has been given authority to carry the litigation on a step further.

BY-ELECTION ORDERED

QUEBEC, April 28 (C.P.). — The Quebec Legislative Assembly seat for Chicoutimi County, vacated through the resignation of a Union Nationale Government member, Arthur Larouche, because of ill-health, will be filled by a provincial by-election on May 25.

Date for the contest, third by-election since the present Government swept into power 20 months ago, was set last night at a provincial Cabinet meeting. Nomination day will be May 18.

CHAOS IS FEARED IF RAILWAYS USE 'AGREED CHARGES'

OTTAWA, April 28.—(CP).—Adoption of the agreed charges clause in the transport bill would bring chaos into the field of railway transportation, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said in a brief prepared for presentation to-day to the Commons Committee on Railways, Canal and Telegraphs.

The committee is considering Transport Minister Howe's bill to change the name of the Board of Transport Commissioners, extending its authority to include regulation of air and certain water traffic.

The agreed charges clause to which the C.M.A. voiced particular opposition would give the railways power to grant any shipper rates lower than the published schedules when the shipper gave all his business to the railway. The railway would have to give the same reduced rates to any other shipper who met the same conditions. The clause would introduce a new principle into transport regulations in Canada.

"The Canadian Manufacturers' Association is speaking after the most careful deliberation when it states its conviction that the adoption of agreed charges will in time mean a return to the chaotic conditions existing in railway transportation prior to establishment of the Board of Railway Commissioners in 1904. It is opposed to the principle of agreed charges and recommends the omission of them from the bill."

Violate Old Principle

Such charges would violate the principle that was the keystone of the present railway act—equality of tolls for all persons shipping goods of the same description over the same portion of railway under like conditions, the brief said.

"Our submission is that the passage of the agreed charges clause in the bill would not merely bring chaos into the field of railway transportation but would make impossible the achievement of order and stability in the field of highway transportation where it is recognized that there is equal need for it.

"Provisions which will operate in this way and which, in addition, will discriminate unfairly as between individual shippers and against carriers by water, air and highway cannot, in our submission, be said to be in the public interest."

The brief contended that the fundamental principles embodied in the railway act had withstood the test of time and had corrected the abuses which were originally responsible for its enactment.

"The members of the C.M.A., as users of railway services, consider that the public interest requires

SPANISH FLEETS ALMOST CLASH

HENDAYE, France, April 28 (AP)—An engagement between the fleets of the Insurgents and the Spanish government was only just avoided, it was learned today, when Insurgent war vessels bombarded government land forces yesterday.

Despatches from both sides said the Insurgent fleet, including the cruisers Canardias and Almirante Cervera, together with smaller vessels, shelled government lines along the Mediterranean yesterday, especially Alcala De Vhivert, north of Castellon.

Barcelona wireless orders sent government ships steaming at forced draft to the area, but their commanders said they arrived too late to engage the Insurgents.

(The government fleet has been based at Cartagena. A clash off Cartagena occurred between the two fleets March 6. The Insurgent cruiser beleaves was torpedoed and sunk with an estimated loss of 600 lives.)

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Threats of army worms, grasshoppers, and rust in the United States Southwest Winter wheat belt and above-average Durum export buying caused Winnipeg wheat futures to move slightly higher today. Final quotations were ¾ to ⅞ cent higher, May $1.20, July $1.10⅞ and October 89⅜ cents.

Volume was small and prices slowly recovered from opening fractional declines. Good export buying of the May future contrasted with the poor demand that allowed it to decline for eight consecutive sessions.

Investors who regained market confidence on reports Italy was attempting to barter for Argentine wheat supported other wheat futures.

LAKEFIELD W. A. 'TEEN-AGE GIRLS GUESTS AT RALLY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 28. — The members of the 'Teen-Age Girls' Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John the Baptist Church, Lakefield, motored to Toronto on Friday, where they attended the fifty-second annual meeting of the girls' branches of the Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Toronto, which was held in St. Paul's Memorial Hall, Bloor Street East.

The party, which was made up of ten members, included the president, Miss Hazel Crawford, and nine others: Misses Elizabeth and Marian Twist, Elsie and Alice Chappell, Madeline and Jacqueline Morin, Constance Orr and Gwennie and Dorothy Crawford. They left Lakefield by automobile early Friday morning and arrived in Toronto in time to call on friends for a while before attending the tea which was served in St. Paul's Memorial Hall to all the visiting branches at 5.00 p.m. This gave the girls an opportunity to meet and chat with their fellow-workers in other branches of the Diocese. There were representatives from Brampton, Rosemont, Peterborough, Port Hope, Penetanguishene, Toronto, etc.

After tea the girls attended the general meeting, when Mrs. G. A. Andrew, a missionary from Honan, China, gave an inspiring address and the Bishop of Athabasca Diocese described the work being done in the Peace River district.

A display of costumes of different countries proved very interesting and the presentation of badges for nursing, mission study and Dorcas served to inspire the members of the local branch with a desire to work even harder than they have been to make up all their pledges and to raise the standard of their work generally.

"It was a special privilege for the girls to meet the very 'prayerful and sacrificial leaders' and to gain from them a better knowledge of the work which they are helping with, and of the great need for their assistance in the work," Miss Crawford, the president of the local branch, told The Examiner.

The Lakefield branch was chosen to move the very hearty vote of thanks extended to the Diocesan Board for their hospitality to the out-of-town branches. Miss Madeline Morin made the motion, which was seconded by a member of the Brampton branch.

"This is the first year for some time that the Lakefield 'Teen-Age Girls have been able to attend the annual meeting," Miss Crawford said, "and they have returned with a renewed interest in their work and a desire to send as much work as possible in the coming year, and to make up all their pledges. It has given the girls some idea of the great organization of which they are a part."

Friends Honor Newlyweds.

A shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Traynor (nee Phoebe Isobel Crapp) was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Crapp, Pinegrove, on Monday evening, April 18, when over one hundred friends and relatives of the recently wedded couple gathered to extend good wishes and shower them with very many beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. Fred. Young read an address, and Mrs. J. Traynor and Miss Eliza Traynor presented the gifts and helped Mr. and Mrs. Traynor unwrap them.

A delightful evening was spent in dancing, music being provided by Mrs. J. Brethour and Lou. Drain.

A delicious lunch was served at the conclusion of the evening.

L.O.B.A. Euchre.

A successful euchre party was held by the local L.O.B.A. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charlton, in Douro, on Friday evening, April 22, when eight tables of euchre were played.

The prize-winners were: Ladies, first, Miss Eva Higgins; consolation, Mrs. Touchburn. Gentlemen, first, Gordon Kidd; consolation, Carman Abrams. The lucky chair prize was won by Miss Ethel Blakely.

At the conclusion of the card games, dainty refreshments were served by members of the L.O.B.A., after which a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charlton.

King Goes To Races On Wedding Day

Windsor, England, April 28 (CP)

YESTERDAY WAS the fifteenth anniversary of the marriage of the King and Queen.

During the afternoon the King flew to Newmarket to see tomorrow's running of the Two Thousand Guineas, first of the spring and summer racing classics.

Queen Elizabeth and their daughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, went to the flying field to see him off.

Looking Back On This Date

APRIL 28.

To-day is the anniversary of one of the historic battles on Canadian soil—one that, but for Britain's mastery of the sea, might have meant the loss of everything won by Wolfe and his successors on the Plains of Abraham and perhaps, the retention of Canada by the French. Its story is one of the most glorious in the records of French arms in Canada.

Fred Williams

During the winter of 1759-60, while General Murray, in command at Quebec, was striving to maintain his military position and at the same time conciliate the French-Canadians in and around Quebec, the great Chevalier deLevis had been busy at Montreal, organizing a force to recapture Quebec. As soon as the river was navigable he set forth from Montreal with some 10,000 men, who were taken safely down the river and landed near Lorette. The French were well armed, they had ample guns and ammunition, and they were fired by the courage of desperation impregnated by their great leader. The British, in contrast, were half starved, poorly clothed, weakened by a terrible winter, and had but a limited supply of arms and material.

Quebec was surrounded. Murray, having little faith in the strength of the fortifications of the city, decided to give battle. At first the tide was with the Britons, but bit by bit numbers told, and eventually Murray had to retreat to Quebec, with a loss of 1,100 men and many valuable guns. The fleur-de-lis which had been lowered in defeat after the battle of the Plains again blew to the breeze on Quebec soil.

Murray's position was desperate. The odds were against him. Levis, aided by ships brought down from Montreal, bombarded Quebec; his troops closed in step by step. If Murray would not come out again he could be forced to surrender. For a fortnight the siege went on. Daily, hourly almost, the British position became more desperate. But Murray and his men were stubborn. They would hold out until the end. Their one hope lay in the British Navy. Would relief arrive before deLevis was able to achieve his triumph? It was a stand against time.

Eventually on May 9 a ship came up the river. The eyes of both generals, and of their followers, were rivetted on it. What flag would it display. The Cross of St. George and relief for Murray, or the French naval flag with hope for deLevis. Breathlessly they watched. A little bal Iran up to her mast, hung for a moment and then broke out into the glorious white ensign.

Quebec was saved to the British. Murray had won, with the aid of the Navy; and gallant deLevis had to retreat to Montreal, convinced that the last die had been thrown and that the destiny of Canada was decided. But he retired with honor. His fame and glory must ever live in our history as the fitting successor to Montcalm who, too, in the hour of despair showed courage and determination to go down fighting. What a contrast to his superior, Vaudreuil. On his return home deLevis was honored as was his due. He became a marshal and a peer of France, and died in 1787 amid tributes from those whom he had so valiantly fought, at and after Ste. Foye. The Chevalier deLevis must always be a hero in Canada's story.

ENVIRONMENT KEY TO UPRIGHT YOUTH

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (CP). — After 35 years of experience, Magistrate David Brodie of Windsor has come to the conclusion that environment is the main factor contributing to juvenile delinquency, he told a gathering of fathers and sons in the Church of the Ascension here last night.

"If you could peer into the homes of crime cases, you would discover that the secret of delinquency in 95 per cent of cases was environment," he said. "We should not expect our school teachers and principals to be sole guardians and models for our children."

Companionship of boys was stressed by Magistrate Brodie. Parents should know whom their lads chum around with. And the boys' companions "should be allowed to come into your home."

A Poor Start

The House of Commons had a vacation of two weeks, and when the members gathered once more they proceeded to have two hours of row because Grote Stirling (Conservative from Yale, B.C.) made the charge that patronage had crept into government defence expenditures.

It was charged too that members of the Canadian contingent sent to the Coronation last year had been selected on account of loyalty to the party in power. Time was also taken to show to what extent the officers outnumbered the privates on that trip.

But all that took place last year. It is through, washed up and dried. It has all been discussed in parliament before; it has all been in the papers several times. There is not a new button or swagger stick in it.

The country had been hoping that after the Easter recess there might be an inclination to get down to business and discuss something worth while. Digging up old issues for the purpose of dusting them off and putting them away again might make a good game to use when the rest of the parlor tricks had been exhausted, but in the nation's business chamber it is miserable stuff.

Yes—Get It Started

The Board of Works has recommended the purchase of a flusher for use on Peterborough streets and that recommendation should go through without question. It means that at least a section of our streets will be washed and that is the only way of which we are aware to keep dust at low ebb. It is common practice in most cities and the truth is we have been slow is going in for street flushing.

We have been informed by merchants that there have been days in the summer season when they hesitated to keep their doors open. They wanted to, but they had to contend with dust.

When we get our streets flushed we will be able to start living up to the reputation which some person has kindly bestowed on us of being a clean city. The order for the machine ought to be placed as quickly as possible and citizens will be delighted with the results.

Spare The Horses

A farmer made a timely remark to the Examiner about taking care of horses during a time when hot weather comes on with a rush. He says the temperature on Wednesday was about the equal of the average day in summer, and he admitted he was tired enough after following a drag and a seed drill for a number of hours. When horses are put on this kind of work in the spring it is well to remember that they are not in condition. For the most part they have been spending a great deal of time in the stall for a number of months. They are not hardened to work.

When the season is a little late for seeding farmers are apt to feel they must make the most of every good hour that comes in order to get their seed in Then it is the danger comes of working the horses too many hours on work that is hard. When horses are pulling a drill, harrows or a roller over the field they are working on soft soil where it is difficult for them to pull easily. They go from their slack season right into the hardest task of the year.

Our farmer informant says it has been common enough experience for farmers to lose good horses at this time of year when the heat has come on with a rush. He advises taking it easy even if there is a good deal of ground to be attended to. His plan is to take the horses off the work at 11 in the morning, give them a rub in the stall as soon as possible, and then leave them there for two hours or more. "In the afternoon," he sail, "I watch them for any sign of distress and generally knock off after three hours' work. It is possible to increase the working time a little after the horses have grown partly used to it but I am certain it pays to play safe with good work horses in the first of the hot weather. It is poor economy to risk losing a good horse for the sake of getting a little more done."

Cannot Be Done

The Alberta Social Credit party is prepared to carry its battle into the province of Saskatchewan where a provincial election is not far off. It is stated that Saskatchewan has been divided into some sort of a zone system for the contest and the Social Credit people of Alberta are ready to carry on the fight.

According to Major Douglas, the one competent authority on Social Credit, the system must be built on the control of finance and financial credit.

In this country such matters are entirely in the hands of the Dominion government, and the provinces have no more to do with money and financial credit than have the municipalities.

For that reason the province of Saskatchewan cannot embark on any scheme for Social Credit, nor has it yet made any move which is embodied in the Douglas plan. Nor can it.

Perhaps the people of Saskatchewan understand this, and then again they may not. But the blunt truth is that a province of itself cannot embark on Social Credit as outlined by Major Douglas, the Scottish authority on that subject.

When Editors Meet

As a rule questions which come up for discussion at the annual meeting of the Canadian Press Association are not published, and the reason is plain enough. There is really nothing in the discussions which would interest people in general, as the gathering has to do with the gathering and distribution of news and the costs of such services.

At the meeting in Toronto this week there was one little discussion in the hall outsde the meeting room. Senator Buchanan, of the Lethbridge (Alberta) Herald, an old Peterborough boy, was having a chat with L. H. Dingman of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, and L. H. was telling of the extent of the new mental hospital which Mr. Hepburn has caused to be erected within two miles of St. Thomas. The Times-Journal man spoke of the size of the place, and also of the number of folk who might be housed in such an institution.

Senator Buchanan was impressed. So much so that he suggested "I suppose such a population as that will enable your paper to get quite a good increase in circulation." And with that the little discussion in the hall broke up, leaving the western publisher with at least one hit to his credit.

Our Present Militia

The great democratic nations of the world to-day have placed their trust in the citizen soldier and of the World powers Great Britain and the United States are the only two nations whose young men are not subject to enforced military service in peace time.

The military forces of Great Britain muster 542,740 all ranks. Of these, but 206,400 are "regulars" of which only 114,000 are on "home duty" the remainder scattered across the face of the globe, being engaged in policing the Empire. The defence of the motherland to-day is largely the duty of the Territorial Army, the citizen soldiers who last year mustered 278,041 officers and men.

The United States Army is composed of 474,378 officers and men with but 166,139 regulars and a citizen force of 308,239. In comparison with these two great Anglo-Saxon democracies are the standing armies of those nations where enforced military service is a shadow across the life of every able-bodied young man. Russia has 19,000,000 men under arms, France 6,198,637, Japan 2,282,000, Germany 2,118,000 and Italy 6,894,395.

Conscription for military service is repugnant to the Anglo-Saxon character, but the great danger that walks hand in hand with the voluntary system is obvious.

In all this where does Canada stand and what can Peterborough do? The Canadian militaryman is the most long suffering and neglected patriot in the world to-day. Industry, for the most part in the past, has had nothing to do with him and the taxpayer has looked upon him with suspicion for he has heard that soldiers cost money and get people involved in costly wars.

But industry, the man on the street and the taxpayer are not to blame for this viewpoint for the militaryman knows that his case has not been properly put before the people. Canadians have read about the re-organization of the militia and the new mechanization and they hope for the best but their information has ended there and also their interest in the citizen soldier.

The Canadian Regular Army: with a strength of a little over 3,000 all ranks is comparable in size to that of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. In reality the permanent force is a corps of hard-working schoolmasters to a citizen army of 134,258 officers and men of which about 50,000 receive annual training under the guidance of permanent force instructors. During the past year the Canadian citizen army has undergone radical and sweeping re-organization. But with all this it is realized that without public backing it is as badly off as it was before. With this re-organization the days of the Saturday-night soldier who was expected only to "form-fours" and shoot are gone. The modern citizen-soldier must be an alert scientifically-minded fellow with plenty of time for studying and active training.

The militiaman's service in this country means personal loss of time and money. The Canadian citizen-soldier, is all the large city regiments at least, pools his "pay" in order that his regiment may carry on. The officer must buy his own uniforms, he must sacrifice his summer holidays and often two and three evenings a week. All of this he has done willingly.

Co-operating for instance with a corps like the Prince of Wales Rangers in Peterborough does not make a man a militarist. It shows only that he recognizes world conditions as they exist and is prepared to do his part to see that his native land is not left undefended.

Cause And Effect

Reading about a motor car accident is not unusual; it is something which one can do almost any day in the week. It is more impressive and more distressing to read an annual review of such things to see what we have done in a year.

In Ontario in 1937 motor cars killed 766 people, and that is a 40 per cent. increase over the preceding year.

There were 12,092 persons injured in 1937, an increase of almost 2,000 over the previous year.

If all those injured people were brought to one place there would be enough of them to form a city.

The total economic loss through car accidents in 1937 is stated to have been $38,300,000, and that is not far removed from being one-half of the amount which is needed each year to operate the government of the province.

In 1937 there were 304 hit-and-run drivers; in the year before there were 221.

In 1937 230 drunken drivers were involved in accidents as compared with 177 in 1936.

We do not know with what degree of accuracy it is possible to relate the increase of accidents to the conditions which have caused the increase.

Last year we increased the speed limit to 50 miles an hour and that means a good many people drive faster than that. In that way that may be related to the 40 per cent. increase in people killed we do not know exactly. But we do know the law invited people to drive faster.

There were 230 drunken drivers involved in accidents against 177 the year before. It may be such a result is related to the increasingly large number of places where people can call and secure a drink.

The hit-and-run driver is on the increase, and to lend aid to this tendency we have produced a car marker this year which is not easy to read. If it becomes at all dusty it cannot be read at all.

We do not know for certain that these causes are directly related to the undesirable results we are achieving, but we submit the thing is well worth thinking about. It may be found that what we are getting is closely related to what we have done.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A burglar in Edmonton was routed when a woman screamed. We always felt that burglary was a racket for single men.

That circus story from New York about a tiger being routed by one of the show's midgets indicates that press agents are still press agents.

Lots in Long Branch can be bought for $10. The only catch is you have to put up a $3,000 house and then the assessor goes to work.

British taxes have long since got past the point where it hurts. By this time the average taxpayer must be at about the unconcious stage.

Liberal has been returned by acclamation in Prince Edward Island. It is suspected if there ever were any Conservatives in that province they have all long since been deported.

Oshawa aldermen have decided that they should pay for their own telephones and there does not seem any reason to fear that some ratepayer will ask for an injunction against that decision.

The speed limit was stepped up and accidents have increased by 40 per cent.; poor vision markers were issued and hit-and-run accidents have jumped 37 per cent. Looks like cause and effect.

Two brothers from Toronto were arrested in Oakville for doing something that most people regard as quite right and legitimate—making money. Trouble in this cast was it was counterfeit.

FEAR

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben fears a chill, he fears that it may make him ill, he seems to live in dread; he fears a draft may blow his way, he looks for one near all the day, and when he goes to bed.

¶ When Uncle Eben's in the room, he sheds abroad a bit of gloom, he shifts from here to there; when doors are open where he sits, why Uncle Eben up and flits, and gets another chair.

¶ When Uncle Eben goes out doors, to try and do his daily chores, he stops to sniff the air; he calculates the atmosphere, to see if any chill is near, decides then what to wear.

¶ If Uncle Eben hears a sneeze, he starts to weaken at the knees, his chances then are slim; he knows that just as like as not, the germs are chasing on a trot, and they are after him.

¶ And Uncle Eben keeps that way, he fusses every night and day, if he's out or at home; I think he'd feel first rate right now, if he could simply plan somehow—to leave himself alone.

The Windmills Of Old England

(From the New York Times)

WINDMILLS, now picturesque reminders of a bygone day when they were a familiar part of every English pastoral, have attracted the attention of a group interested in preserving the atmosphere of Old England. Concerned about the fate of these relics, the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Buildings is seeking public support for a program to ensure the maintenance of the windmills that remain.

A century or more ago windmills were the most common feature of the London landscape. There were mills lining the Thames on the Isle of Dogs and mills on the famous Hampstead Heath; one stood near St. Paul's Cathedral and another gave its name to Great Windmill street near Piccadilly. Today there are many Londoners who have never seen a windmill.

Outside London, however, there are numerous mills, in various conditions of repair; a survey undertaken by the society has revealed that there are approximately 1,000 of them scattered throughout the country.

One windmill, regarded by the society as especially interesting, is that of Great Chishall, in Cambridgeshire. It was built nearly 120 years ago and contains timbers of an even earlier structure. Essex is particularly rich in fine old mills. Mountnessing windmill, one of the best, has now ceased to work, but it was operated continuously by one family from 1800 until a few years ago.

The oldest working windmill in England is the Outwood, located in Surrey and dating from 1665. It is recorded that from the top of this mill the original owner and his family saw the flames of the Great Fire of London.

Though objects of beauty on the countryside, few of the remaining mills have any market value, nevertheless, the society finds that its efforts are being hindered by the exorbitant prices at which the windmills are valued by their owners. In a recent report the society disclosed that on a number of occasions it has been impossible to go forward with the work of preservation because of inability to meet the terms of the mill owners.

This problem has been solved in Essex, at least, by the decision of the municipal council there to assist in the work. The council has agreed to allot $2,500 each year for an indefinite period, for the purpose of acquiring, preserving, maintaining and managing windmills within the country.

As a result of this decision, some owners have been willing to present their windmills to the council for preservation, but the council has declined on the grounds that ownership and management can best be vested in the hands of local trustees.

The Society for the Preservation of Ancient Buildings looks with favor upon the action of the Essex body and expects that it will give great impetus to the movement of which it is the sponsor.

RACE SUICIDE.

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

STATISTICS for 1937 show a forty per cent. increase over the previous year in the number of persons killed in automobile accidents in Ontario.

Were this a merely temporary upturn in the chart it might not be so bad but the increase of one year over that preceding has been going on for many years.

Under the percentage system of comparing one year with that just passed it is a form of multiplication, rather than of addition and, as such, has merely to go on a few years more until it has reached the point where it will be seriously affecting the country's population, if nothing more.

And yet, it seems, no one is likely to show any particular concern. The statistics from the Ontario Department of Highways are merely another table of figures.

BURMA STATE LOTTERY.

(Brandon Sun)

AN EARLY act of the Burma government as constituted under the new regime will be to establish a state lottery. Public bodies have been sounded and Burmese opinion has been revealed as practically unanimous in favor of the proposal. As no legislation is necessary the first lottery is to be held as soon as arrangements can be made, being organized on much the same lines as in Siam. Tickets will be of low value, probably three shillings, and it is hoped to sell £187,500 worth, that is a million and a quarter tickets. Fifty per cent. of the proceeds will be returned in prizes and fifty per cent. retained, out of which the expenses of administration will have to be paid. The revenues should therefore benefit by £80,000. At present much money goes out of Burma to foreign lotteries.

A GOOD DETECTIVE.

(Niagara Falls Review)

A DETECTIVE in the city of Montreal has retired after twenty-five years service and he handed in his gun, which he has never fired during all those years. And it is probable he may have been a good detective even if he was not quick on the draw. There was a case in Montreal recently where police officers fired and seriously wounded a boy, against whom there was no charge, simply because he ran when they started to question him. Many of us may prefer that detective who never fired at anybody to the other kind.

GOOD NEIGHBORS.

(Brantford Expositor)

EVERY READER can give scores of cases of friendly assistance which relief organizations never hear about—the big hearted women, usually middle aged, who will go next door and help with the wash or cook the dinner—the matter of fact men who will slip a five or ten dollar bill in an anonymous letter—are not rare by any means. The spirit of mutual help is the best bolster there is to the morale of any community.

South Africa's National Anthem.

(From the News Letter of the South African Morning Newspapers.)

THE QUESTION of the National Anthem has suddenly come into great prominence throughout the Union of South Africa.

At the recent opening of Parliament by the Governor General the Rt. Hon. Sir Patrick Duncan, G.C.M.G. an Afrikaans song composed by the late Senator Langenhoven, entitled, "Die Stem van Suid Afrika" ("The Voice of South Africa") was played after "God Save the King".

This innovation, which was entirely unannounced, led the leader of the Dominion Party, Colonel C. F. Stallard, to ask in Parliament whether this was "intended to be the recognition of that song as the national anthem of South Africa."

General Hertzog, the Prime Minister, replied that there was no such intention, but that he hoped that "Die Stem" would in course of time come to be recognized as a national anthem.

He went on, however, in somewhat ambiguous language, to explain the position of "God Save the King" in the ceremonial life of the country, and this part of his statement gave rise to certain misgivings on the part of Colonel Stallard and his followers.

They accused the Government of trying to depose "God Save the King" from its position. Even among General Hertzog's own English-speaking supporters there was also a certain amount of misgiving. This led to the putting of another question to the Premier a few days later, but objection taken by the Dominion Party prevented him from replying. His intended reply, however, was issued as a statement to the Press, in which the Prime Minister said quite plainly that as long as the King is King of South Africa, "God Save the King" would retain its place as a solemn invocation to the Almighty and as the best and most appropriate anthem for such occasions."

At the same time, speaking for himself and, as he believes, for "the rest of Afrikaans-speaking South Africa and others, 'Die Stem' would have the character of their national anthem."

Canadians Live Longer Now.

(From the Chatham Daily News.)

INTERESTING STORIES may sometimes be gleaned from dry statistics. For instance the bulletins of the Bureau of Statistics may be valuable to the persons interested in cold figures and numerical comparisons, but to the ordinary reader they appear merely as masses of tabulated forms, of interest only to accountants and actuaries.

But in one of these recent bulletins, these columns of comparative figures convey the information that the expectancy of life of the ordinary Canadian is increasing. This may be due to the fact that in this country there is plenty of space for people to move about in the fresh invigorating air. It may be that the high standard of living makes for better health than in many other more congested and less prosperous countries. The improvement of social services and the advancement of medical science, especially as it pertains to sanitation and preventive measures, no doubt has something to do with it.

In this connection however, it is interesting to note that Canadians who live the longest lives are residing in the western provinces. The probability of a person 25 years of age dying in five years, for instance, is greatest in the Maritimes and least in the Prairies, by fifty per cent. The expectation of life at the age of five is over 64 in the Prairies and under 61 in Quebec. Those are the two Canadian extremes.

One wonders why the people of the western provinces enjoy the greatest expectation of life, but it has been figured out that the west has been populated chiefly by the people of the eastern part of Canada; and when there are great movements of people to new homes, only the most hardy feel capable of making the trip to underetake the strenuous pioneer life which must be endured, if the battle of life is to be won.

While long life is desirable, it is generally admitted that the length of life does not matter so much as the manner in which the life is lived. In Ontario we have the opportunity to enjoy peaceful, happy and contented lives, with an expectation of existence far beyond that enjoyed by people of many other countries. And this is true in spite of our insatiable longing for excitement and hustle, which seems to be greater in the present generation than in those of any past era.

Will Farming Lick a Depression?

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

ON ALMOST every occasion when Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile magnate, can be induced to speak for publication, he reiterates his belief that modern economic problems can be solved by a wholesale return to the land.

The other day Mr. Ford was at the Wayside Inn estate at Sudbury, Mass., where he has duplicated an early American hotel on five thousand acres of land. He proposes to put all that land into crop this year and also several other holdings in various parts of the country.

So convinced is Mr. Ford about this agricultural panacea that he says that if the people of the United States wish to get out of depression and avoid dictatorship, they will have to go back to farming and gardening so that every tillable acre in the country will be producing food. If they do not undertake that willingly, Mr. Ford predicts that a dictator will compel them to.

While it is a matter of history that no purely agricultural country ever had a severe depression, the problem now is to reverse the process and get industrial populations back on to the land. People who have lived in cities have lost most of their capacity to be contented in a rural environment. The modern forms of entertainment and recreation have given them obsessions that seem unconquerable. Nearly everyone knows of some friend or acquaintance who has tried to desert the city and live on a farm. In the majority of cases the experiment was abandoned. The subjects could not become reconciled to the loneliness that is inseparable to certain phases of farm life.

There is another aspect of the back-to-the-land theory that never has been satisfactory explained. It is the matter of large surpluses of agricultural products. We have seen the effect of extra production of fruit and vegetables in this province. There was no adequate market at prices sufficient to cover the cost of production, consequently the harvest was left to rot on the ground. Mr. Ford says that agricultural products for food never can be too plentiful nor too cheap. He may have in mind something that the existing system of distribution lacks, because it is readily apparent that a surplus of farm products today causes a disorganized market. There seems to be something important on this subject which Mr. Ford has neglected to mention if he really is convinced that more farms and gardens are the answer to the economic insufficiency.

MENACE OF COMMUNIST SCHOOLS

(Chatham News)

If existing legislation does not provide for stamping out these schools then legislation should be enacted which will. It is not a question of freedom of speech; it is rather a question of protecting Canadian children from the pernicious, lying dogmas of Communism and atheism.

I have sinned; what shall I do unto thee, O thou preserver of men? why hast thou set me as a mark against thee, so that I am a burden to myself? NOTABLES IN A STORM.

(The New Yorker)

THE QUEEN MARY, we read, battered her way through the storm with her decks awash. Lily Pons, clutching a rope, sang doggedly on through the night; W. H. Suydam, a banker, was driven against a wall by a berserk baby grand; Marc Connelly, the playwright, remarked that the storm was "worse than a West Indies hurricane." We found this saga gripping, both as drama and as cold fact. Taking it as pure drama, we say three heroic souls pitted against the elements, each in his fashion coming face to face with destiny. As cold fact, it reminded us that God himself can't stop a determined singer from singing, that a financier is bound to get it sooner or later, that nothing this side of hell can keep the literary mind from comparing any storm with every storm that ever was.

TWO SALESMEN found that the only hotel in town was full. The proprietor told them the best thing they could do was to sleep in an abandoned church building across the street. They agreed.

"Well, what was the matter?" he anxiously asked the porter on his return.

CLOSER CHECK IS BEING DEMANDED FOR YOUNG WARDS

TORONTO, April 28.—Each home in which a ward of the Children's Aid Society is placed must be visited within two months of first placing, and a report sent immediately to the Children's Aid Branch, Ontario Department of Welfare.

This regulation is one of the two main features of the new and revised written instructions announced by Hon. Eric Cross since the recent death of a ward at Fergus.

The other feature is that responsibility for supervision and visiting has been more definitely fixed.

"It clarifies the situation," Mr. Cross declared last night. "The written instructions were not specifically aimed at the Fergus case. Individual societies had been told of the impending change in regulations as early as last November."

Children's Aid Society officials interviewed yesterday thought the regulations a real improvement, but pointed out that some time must intervene before the individual ward would benefit. There hasn't been time as yet to judge the result, it was said, but all were hopeful. There would have to be considerable correspondence between societies before everything could be adjusted.

Improvement Anticipated.

But every official saw real improvement ahead. It would prevent resentment in certain counties where certain other societies had "unloaded" children and then washed their hands of these outside wards. One case was mentioned where a certain county had more wards of outside societies than its own within its borders.

Often a child was placed by Society A in Society B's area without consulting the agent of Society B. This, naturally, was an unsatisfactory arrangement, because when a visiting nurse from the Provincial Department came around, she expected the agent of Society B to make a visit to the child with her—a child about whom Society B's agent knew little or nothing—and report regularly thereafter.

The new instructions remove that difficulty and resentment, it was pointed out. It rules out placements without the consent of the society in whose area the ward is placed.

"A Children's Aid Society in whose area a ward of another society is placed may still supervise that child under the new arrangement," Mr. Cross pointed out. "The society of which the child is a ward, however, would be responsible for assuring that the other society would agree to give such service.

One Visit a Month.

"Before making a placement, this arrangement could be assured. For those children who are already placed in other areas, they remain under the supervision of the society in that area until a mutually agreeable plan with respect to supervision is concluded."

Although the department only requires one annual visit to wards, after the first placement and the first visit within two months, most societies pay much stricter attention than that, it was pointed out.

The Toronto society, for instance, pays an average of one visit per month in the ordinary placement. For wards in boarding places (where part of the upkeep is paid) the average is about one visit in nineteen days and when all contracts are considered, such as office interviews, telephone calls and letters and clinical care, the average is about one visit every seven days.

GERANIUMS ON PEDESTAL

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 28 (A.P.).—Lowly geraniums stole the Florists' Flower Show to-day from costly orchids and the traditionally aristocratic roses. Florists from Canada and the United States meeting in a district convention featured the brilliant red flowers in their exhibits. Also staging a comeback, exhibitors said, were carnations which will be fashionable in brides' bouquets this year.

EDMONTON WARS UPON 12 DAIRIES IGNORING TESTS

EDMONTON, April 28.—(CP).—Drastic action is planned by Edmonton Board of Health against 12 dairymen distributing milk in the city who have refused to allow the Board to test their cows for traces of a disease causing undulant fever when transmitted to humans.

Licenses of the 12 dairies which handle unpasteurized or "raw" milk will be suspended May 11 unless they permit the tests by that time, the Board decided at a special meeting last night.

If the firms refuse May 11 to allow the tests, they may retain their licenses only by one method—by agreeing to send all their milk to a pasteurizing plant before offering it for sale.

The Board also chartered "showdown" procedure against 15 other dairymen whose herds, tested by the Board, were found to include cows infected with the disease.

The 15 will be given five weeks to remove the infected animals from their herds. If that has not been done before the June 1 deadline, their licenses will be suspended by the Board, unless, as in the case of the other 12, they agree to pasteurize all their milk before selling it in Edmotnon.

AGAINST BEST SELLER LIST

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP).—Pearl S. Buck wants to abolish "best-seller" lists—which in the past have included some of her own novels—on the ground they regiment public taste. "I wish to heaven we could do away with the best-seller list entirely," she told a luncheon of booksellers and authors.

"The best-seller list is not a thermometer. It is an iron mold clamped upon the public mind."

U.S. PLANS TO RUSH 22 NEW WARCRAFT

WASHINGTON, April 28 (A.P.).—The United States Navy, armed with a record peacetime $546,866,494 appropriation, prepared to-day to ask bids with a minimum of delay on two more battleships and a score of other craft.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the regular Appropriation Bill for the next fiscal year, providing $140,000,000 to start work on the 22 new craft and continue construction of some 60 others.

Detailed designs of the battleships are complete, officials said. They will be 1,000 tons or more larger, but otherwise similar to the 35,000-ton U.S.S. Washington and U.S.S North Carolina, which were started late last year.

Construction of projected "superbattleships" of about 45,000 tons depended on Congressional approval of the separate $1,156,000,000 fleet expansion bill which the Senate is debating.

The next pair of battleships will be known merely as Nos. 57 and 58 until they are named for states, probably several months hence. They will replace the Texas and Nevada which in 1940 reach the treaty overage status of 26 years.

Crash Keeps Police "On The Jump"

Alpena, Mich., April 28 (UP).

EAST FIFE CREATES PRECEDENT IN WINNING SCOTTISH CUP

First Second Division Team To Win Coveted Soccer Cup

Defeats Kilmarnock 4-2 In Second Overtime Final Before 91,710 Fans

HAMPDEN PARK, Glasgow, April 28 (CP Cable)—Football enthusiasts all over Scotland today joined in unstinted praise of East Fife, first club from the Second Division to win the Scottish Cup.

This entrant from Methil in Fifeshire, fighting against great odds, barged through the competition like champions and climaxed giant-killing performances with a meritorious 4 to 2 overtime triumph Kilmarnock. The Killies in turn had to overcome in preliminary rounds Glasgow's Rangers and Celtic, two of the greatest cup-fighting clubs in the game.

Before 78,000 spectators last Saturday the Killies and East Fife battled to a 1 to 1 deadlock. The replay was knotted at two goals each after regulation time and the minor-leaguers proved the season's best "money" team with a startling reversal of form that produced the game-winning goals in overtime.

By an odd coincidence managers of the clubs were former Celtic players. Jimmy McGrory, all-time high scorer of major soccer, took over Kilmarnock Christmas Day, while David McLean has piloted East Fife for a number of years. He performed for Celtic before the war.

Bad Luck Dogs Killies

A poor "gate" appeared certain in Wednesday's game when only 60,000 persons were in the huge enclosure at game time. A steady stream of late comers boosted figures and official attendance was chalked up as 91,710.

After the second semi-final replay with St. Bernards. McKerroll of Hearts was transferred to East Fife, and on Tuesday, Harvey, also of Hearts, joined the team to replace the injured Herd, captain and left-half. McKerroll proved hero of the replay, bagging the first and last goals of the match.

The Killies went into the second half with a 2 to 1 advantage, but ran into bad luck. Collins went lame after a few minutes, switching positions with Thomson at outside right. Early in the overtime McAvoy, clever inside forward, was injured, and from that point on East Fife took definite command and put the game on ice with two goals.

After Thomson and McGrorgan netted the Killies' two first-half goals, Manager McLean rearranged his forward line, Miller and McLeod changing places. The swap seemed justified as McLeod rapped in the tying goal soon after.

Getting A Light

Robert Irwin, sculptor, accused of the murder of model Veronica Gedeon, her mother and a male boarder one year ago in New York, is shown taking a light from a fellow-prisoner in New York supreme court. Irwin was brought to court as result of his attorney's request for immediate trial, which was refused. He thus lost the first round in his battle to escape the death sentence.

SEES BALL GAME UP IN THE MOON

NEW YORK, April 27 (CP)—The Hayden planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History has stepped into the 1938 baseball picture by "broadcasting" an imaginary ball game on the moon. The setting was realistic, 2,000 feet of painted close-ups of the moon's surface which the planetarium is showing. The announcer was Prof. William H. Barton, Jr., who is a baseball fan as well as astronomer.

"That's the field," he said, pointing to a shadowy area behind a moon crater. "It is a mile long and half a mile wide. The first batter hits a long fly. Up and up goes the ball, 500, 1,000, 1,500 feet. A fielder catches it a quarter of a mile away. The next batter smacks a homer. He makes first base in three strides. He goes 30 feet with each step—12 steps to circle the bases.

"Notice how the pitcher doesn't seem to have 'anything.' Don't blame him. It's against the law of nature to throw curves on the moon. No air—no curves. It's air-resistance greater on one side of the ball than on the other that makes a curve."

Whistling Swans Going Northward

REGINA, April 28. — (CP). — A flock of nearly 200 large whistling swans was sighted on Echo Lake at Fort Qu'Appelle, 40 miles east of here recently.

It was believed the birds, estimated to weigh 30 pounds each, were resting before resuming their northern flight to hatching grounds.

Whistling swans are wild and are slightly larger than trumpeter swans. A flock has stopped at Echo Lake every spring and fall for many years and this year's group is much larger than usual.

THAT MAN is in again. We mean the press agent for the "Y" Circus which runs tonight and tomorrow evenings in the Y.M.C.A. at 8.15 by your clock. Says he with much splashing of ink: "The great Y.M.C.A. Circus comes again to you, presenting to your critical eyes the most promiscuous, indiscriminate, miscellaneous assortment of massive stupendousity ever conceived by human beings, attired in all the glittering gorgeousness of Pharaoh's Court!" We dunno who Judge Paraoh is but apparently he had quite a colorful collection in the docket. It is quite a show, this "Y" Circus, and after weeks and weeks of practise they really give the customers something. Fun, thrills, acrobatics, et al. And don't say you weren't notified in time, and by big adjectives.

MOSTLY CHATTER down at the men's softball meeting in Duffus' last night, but they are gradually making headway. Always takes three or four sessions before this loop is lined up. Shorty Barrett will be in with Motorists again, while Jack Salvage expects to run a squad bearing a London biscuit firm's name. Not quite definite yet but the company representative here kind of expects to enter this team. A Southend Loop team is interested, and there is a bit of talk of Brintons. While the Quakers, Lions Club and an uptown shop are also possibilities. Westclox are not entering. Southend League meeting is Monday, so the City Loop will wait till Tuesday and run a meeting then when 'tis expected a couple of more outfits will enter to make it a four-team circuit. The league will, if necessary, sponsor a team.

THREE YOUNG chaps looked us up last night to say they had a junior ball club which would like exhibition games soon with local or district opposition. No name to the club yet, but the gang have been playing as an independent outfit in exhibition or scrub matches here and there for several seasons. Some good boys, too, but they don't feel ready to affiliate with the O.B.A. this summer. Will tackle intermediate baseball—nuts on this silly "hardball" misnomer—teams, too, either at home or away. Not looking for anything, just the love of the game. Dennis Armstrong is the manager, and anyone interested in playing his team can give us a call and we'll notify him. They say they're pretty fair.

BASEBALL SEEMS to be on the uptrend here again. The School League has decided this year to run baseball teams for their senior lads, those over 13 years, while the juniors will run as a softball circuit. The baseball will be played from four to six at Riverside Park. And so the cycle is again completed. This is the best news we've heard since that dream three weeks ago tonight when the boss said: "You've been working too hard and we want you to take a six-week trip to Bermuda with everything paid!" How we hate alarm clocks! No fooling, this is a fine move as the schools start the boys off right in baseball and within a few years we should have a neat City Baseball League going again and plenty of good homebrew prospects for the intermediate and senior teams. Our heartiest congrats to the teacher-coaches who put it across. The school schedules should be published anytime now.

* * * * * * *

TONIGHT AT Riverside after six o'clock, weather being right, the Petes' prospects will workout again and everyone is welcome. Some of the boys didn't go for the indoor drills but they all get the diamond bug when the weather turns mild. And this is the time to get out there and loosen up the old soup-bone. Don't look for an invite or a bribe—these press notices are all the club is giving out this year.

* * * * * * *

GUESS THAT Girls' Softball League setup will remain at four teams this summer, Keene, Lindsay, C.G.E. and Westclox. The Cobourg crew will not be in now, and the Brintons have decided to wait a year. They had a meeting the other day and came to the decision that the club would not be ready this year to make a real showing. So they may run as a shop loop, possibly a mixed shop league—that is, gals and gees together—through the coming warm spell. And then when this year of recession recedes, and 1939 spring hats are being shown, the Brintons expect to be set to step into the P.W.S.U. loop and do things in a big way. 'Tis not a lack of sponsorship nor interest, simply a shortage of good players—the C.G.E. and Westclox squads having the pick of the Peterborough softball femmes.

* * * * * * *

LOCAL LACROSSERS will keep working out nightly at the George St. arena and on Saturday afternoon, and all prospective players are welcome. Nothing further on the proposed O.L.A. senior "B" grouping the Petes are after. In fact, Oshawa is not too certain at the moment of having a gutted-stick squad at all this summer, since the U.A.W.A. 222 gang have declined to back it again. The Motor Citizens came on like a landslide toward the end of last season and made a fine showing, just losing out in a playoff game in Lindsay to the locals in the last minute of play. We have hopes they will dig up some backing somewhere and return to the wars this season against the Peterborough contingent.

NORM BOWLER of the Riverview A.C. tells us the club is getting squared around to run another amateur mitt card here within three weeks. The leather-pushers have been swinging into shape with regular drills in their new club room and some Toronto pugs have been contacted. Just where the show will be held is doubtful at present. Maybe outdoors. Quite a spell since the scrappers have staged a show and they ought to draw well if they don't run into the baseball, softball and lacrosse season. This town could stage mitt and mat cards regularly the year round, pro and amateur, if there were a few good spots available. That's the trouble.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

For some time past we have, through the medium of this column, been trying to impress upon the skips the importance of having their rinks complete and handed in by the end of this week. This is our last appeal as the schedule books go to press next week, regardless. There are some rinks who have not their rinks completed but we know they will be and then there are other skips that we are not so sure of. And to them we say, don't linger too long.

The schedule committee has been very busy. They now have the ladies' section all ready for the book, the schedule drawn up with all the dates, etc. They have over half the book ready and all they need now is the men's section and the book will be ready.

Now, we want to draw the boys' attention to the annual meeting of Central Ontario Association to be held to-night (Thursday) in our club rooms. This is an invitation to come out and see what is going on in this district. We miss our guess if it does not turn out to be a real live meeting. The outstanding event next week will be the open meeting on Monday, May 2. This will be for all men bowlers and is being sponsored jointly by the games and membership committee. More information in a day or two.

NOTED ATHLETES IN "Y" CIRCUS

A number of noted local athletes will perform in the annual "Y" Circus tonight and tomorrow evening in the Y.M.C.A. Some of the senior stars of parallel bars, rings, tumbling and clowning, include: J. Wolstenholme, A. Holmes, M. Hunter, J. McMillan, D. Crowe, F. Williams, C. McKinstry, K. Gadd, C. Porter, S. Ball, G. Broadley, R. Rennie, E. Creighton, R. Palmer, M. Magee, S. Csumrik, N. Stanger, W. Harle, W. Hogan, E. Duncan; as well as juniors, beginners and pioneers. Cliff Cadd is floor manager, and Rufus Payne will conduct the show as ringmaster.

The annual Circus at the Y.M.C.A. is an entertaining event, with action, thrills and humor liberally sprinkled through the program. In addition to such stunts as tumbling, the flying rings, parallel bar work, gym acrobatics, etc., a fencing exhibition will be put on this year by senior members of the local Fencing Club. A big crowd of spectators is expected to see the two-night performances of the "Y" Circus this week.

THROUGH WITH BOXING

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP). — Throwing back his head to avoid a blow, Jack Fletcher was struck in the neck and had his windpipe dislocated in a boxing match here. He was instructed never to fight again.

SPORTS CLEARING HOUSE IS FORMED

TORONTO, April 28.—The Ontario Sports Federation—a dream of some sports-minded executives six months ago—became a reality last night at the official organization meeting at the King Edward Hotel. W. J. Smith, Past President of the Ontario Baseball Association, was elected Chairman; Alvin Schlegel of Preston, President of the Ontario Hockey Association, was named Vice-Chairman, and Laurie Irwin, Secretary of the Ontario Basketball Association, was charged with the duties of Secretary-Treasurer.

While it admits no fight with the Amateur Athletic Union, the new federation was organized after many expressions of dissatisfaction with the A.A.U.'s conduct on many contentious matters. It is virtually a clearing house of such sports as hockey, lacrosse, baseball, softball, football and basketball. Each sport is entitled to one vote in the new set-up, although there is no restriction to the number of delegates they appoint within their ranks.

It is not a governing body, and each sport has autonomy over its own interests. The Federation will discipline athletes who have erred in their ways and its members will meet and exchange ideas to the benefit, it is hoped, of the different organizations.

Seek Artificial Ice For Hockey

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 28 —(CP).—Business men of this city are making a determined drive to have installed an artificial ice plant in the Port Arthur arena. Representatives of the Civic Finance Committee have been appointed to discuss the question with officials of the Arena Rink Company, Limited.

"We just tossed $3,000 out the window," said W. A. McKinnon, president of the Port Arthur Hockey Club, referring to loss of home games in the Manitoba-Thunder Bay series. "That would have made a tremendous difference to the club and to the rink as well. We have been forced to pass up a lot of revenue during the year because of adverse weather."

ARGOS ENTER GRUCHY SERIES

TORONTO, April 28.—With the baseball teams just away from the barrier, important football news was forthcoming last evening. Harold Bailey and T. A. Reed as trustees of the Reg DeGruchy Memorial Trophy announced that Argonauts had entered the city championship football series, to the winner of which goes the trophy. As usual it will be a pre-season series and the return of the Argos, who have remained out of the competition since 1934, will make it truly representative of the championship of Toronto.

Each of the three senior unions in which Toronto is represented now will have an entry with Balmy Beach representing the Ontario Union and University of Toronto the Intercollegiate.

ORIOLES HAND LEAFS 9-4 TROUNCING AT BALTIMORE OPENER

Puccinelli's Hit With Bases Loaded Beats Toronto Team

Three Howley Pitchers Unable To Halt 13-Hit Barrage Of Winners

BALTIMORE, Md., April 28. — After breaking their losing streak in the final game of the series at Newark, the Toronto Leafs fell back into the defeat ranks here on Wednesday, when the Baltimore Orioles banged out a 9-4 triumph in the series opener. Three Toronto pitchers—Mike Meota, Johnny Wilson, and Joe Sullivan—were unable to halt the thirteen-hit barrage of base hits sent out by the Orioles. Meola was shelled from the mound in the fifth, after allowing eight runs on seven hits. Wilson yielded one run and three hits, while Sullivan pitched superb ball, blanking the Birds and allowing three bingles in the final three frames.

Orville Jorgens, late of the Phillies, started his second game of the season, and turned in his second victory. He scattered the Leafs' ten hits. The only time he was in trouble was in the third, when the Canucks scored two of their four runs and tied the score at 3-all.

Clifton's Sensational Catch.

Although the records give George Puccinelli only one hit in four times at bat, Pooch was the outstanding batsman for the Birds. He drove in six runs, four of them with his fourth home run of the season, this circuit clout coming with the bases loaded in the third inning. Ab Wright also homered for the Orioles, while Bill Cissell obtained four singles and was robbed of his fifth when Flea Clifton made a sensational catch in right field to turn it into a double play. Every Bird hit safely.

The Smith boys were the outstanding hitters in the Toronto lineup. Mayo banged home two runs in the third, while Al, a pinch-hitter, singled in the seventh to score the final run. The first Toronto tally was a gift, Cissell committing an error to allow Burns to scamper home.

Baltimore took a two-run lead in the first inning as the result of Cissell's single and errors by Clifton and Urbanski and ground balls by McGowan and Puccinelli. The Leafs came back in the second and scored one tally, Burns tripling to right and scoring as Cissell fumbled Clifton's roller.

A pass to Richardson, infield singles by Cissell and McGowan and Puccinelli's long liner accounted for another Baltimore run in the second. The visitors came back in the third and tied matters. With two out, Gantenbein beat out a single to first. Urbanski singled to right and both runners advanced as Wright fumbled. M. Smith's single followed to drive in the runners.

After Two Were Out.

Then came the third and the five-run rally to sew up the ball game. The first two men were retired and Jorgens, a weak hitter, singled to centre. Richardson drew a pass, but Cissell came through with a single to centre to score Jorgens. McGowan walked to fill the sacks, followed by Puccinelli's homer. Wilson took up the hill duty at this stage, Wright's homer in the fourth off Wilson was the final Baltimore marker.

Toronto scored its last run in the sixth. This also came with two away. Clifton doubled, Reiber walked, and A. Smith singled to bring in this counter.

O.B.A. Takes Part Intercounty Tangle

GALT, Ont., April 28 (CP)—An executive meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association in Toronto Saturday will have the task of attempting to straighten the affairs of the Intercounty Baseball League.

Senior and intermediate members of the Intercounty family failed to break a deadlock over the proposed entry of a Strathroy team in the league at a meeting here last night and it was decided to ask the O.B.A. to make a ruling.

The intermediate group, composed of teams from Brantford, Preston, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener and Waterloo, threw its weight against the proposal to admit the Strathroy team and against another proposal of the senior teams, Stratford and London, for an interlocking playing schedule.

Possibility of the Stratford-London-Strathroy group forming a Michigan Ontario League with teams from New Baltimore, Port Huron, Marysville and Marine City in Michigan if they could not come to an agreement with the Intercounty League was voiced at last night's meeting.

GIANTMEN TIE PITTSBURG FOR NATIONAL LEAD

NEW YORK, April 28 (CP).—The biggest change of the baseball season has come over Manager Bill Terry, whose New York Giants were in a dead heat with Pittsburg today for the leadership of the National League, each with eight wins and one loss.

Bill not only hasn't bitten a single sports writer to date, but he's doing his coaching now from third base and spending practically all his time signalling his men to hit the ball. In past seasons Bill's idea of offensive strategy was to draw a walk, then sacrifice and then score, if possible, on a two-base error.

It must not have been bad strategy, as witness the Giants' record of three pennants in five years under the old Colonel, but now Bill has tossed all that overboard and has his boys swinging from their shoe-tops. They have hit 13 home runs in their first nine games, among other assorted violence, and are overwhelming the eastern half of their opposition.

Terry considers his present Giant team the best he has managed, even with his regular second baseman, Burgess Whitehead, back in the hospital for perhaps a month as an aftermath of an appendectomy. It appears to have some of the power that he has craved since the Yankees caved his lads in last October.

Gain 27 Hits.

In swamping the Phillies twice yesterday, 7-3 and 11-6, the Polo grounders pummelled a total of 27 hits, and Terry didn't signal for a bunt all afternoon. They best demonstrated their new-found power in the seventh inning of the second game, when they put over six runs on five solid smacks, including home runs by Hank Leiber and Joe Moore.

Pittsburg prevented the Giants from taking the lead by defeating Chicago Cubs 6-5. Arky Vaughan, slugging Pirate shortstop, supplied the winning margin when he hit the jackpot in the 7th inning—a home run with the bases loaded. Larry French was his victim.

The Brooklyns snapped a four-game losing streak by belting four Boston Bee twirlers for 17 hits and a 13-2 victory. Freddie Fitzsimmons pitched nice ball for the winners, allowing only one hit for the first six innings.

Lon Warneke brought St. Louis Cardinals out of their prolonged slump with a 5-0 shutout of Cincinnati, in which he gave up only three hits. Mickey Owen, Card catcher, rapped out three doubles.

Cleveland Indians remained on top in the American League, though they suffered their first defeat since opening day at the hands of Chicago White Sox, 6-3. The Sox jumped on Mel Harder for four runs after two were out in the seventh to sew it up. Thornton Lee became the first Sox pitcher to last the limit this year.

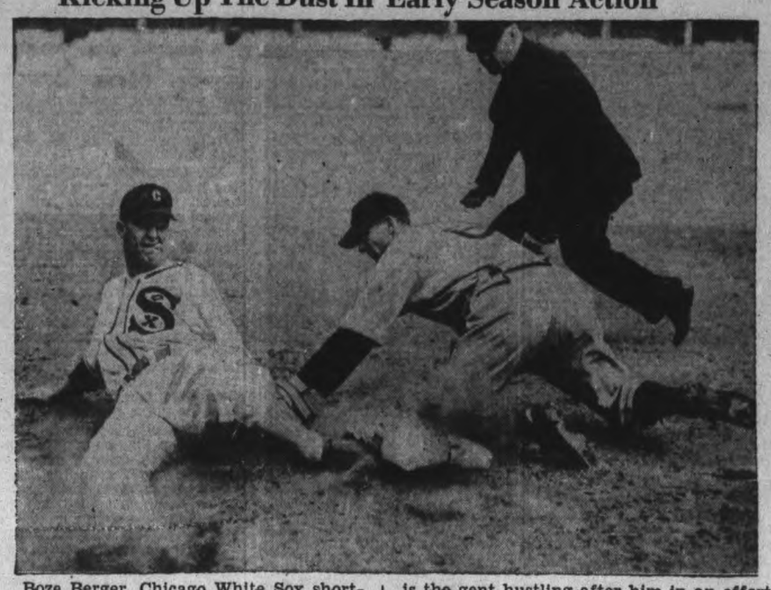
The Yankees finally won two in a row at the expense of Philadelphia, 9-2, and their 16 hits would indicate the champions are at last finding the range. Red Ruffing stopped the A's cold after the second inning, when the rookie, Dario Lodigiani, hit a homer with one on. Joe DiMaggio was expected to add his big bat to the swelling Yankee chorus when they face the Red Sox today at the Stadium.

Senators in 2nd Place.

Jimmy Deshong pitched Washington Senators into second place with a 5-2 performance over Boston. The veteran Ossie Bluege knocked in two of the winners' runs with a double and single, and scored twice himself.

St. Louis Browns gave Detroit a 7-2 beating, Buck Newsom hurling his third complete game and his third straight victory as he set the Tigers down with four safeties.

Kicking Up The Dust In Early Season Action



Boze Berger, Chicago White Sox shortstop, gives vent to his feeling with a hearty "umphhh" as he slides safely into second in a game against Detroit Tigers. Billy Rogell is the gent hustling after him in an effort to tag him out, while Umpire Emmett "Red" Ormsby, he of the large family, is right on top of the play in the background.

GRADS RETAIN CANADIAN TITLE

EDMONTON, April 28 (C.P.). — Edmonton Grads' clear superiority in Canadian women's basketball was re-established to-day following their victory by one-sided scores in three straight games over Toronto Consols, Eastern champions.

Coach J. Percy Page's famous Grads completed conquest of Consols last night with a 58-13 victory to add to the 72-28 and 66-29 decisions they scored in the first two games of the best-of-five national final. It was one of their most convincing victories since they won the title first in 1922.

Hon. Solon E. Low, president of the Alberta Basketball Association and provincial treasurer, presented the Underwood Trophy to Captain Noel MacDonald after the game.

JERSEY ROOKIE BLANKS WINGS

JERSEY CITY, N.Y., April 28 (CP)—Robert Louis Carpenter, a 20-year-old rookie of Jersey City Giants, is the most talked of hurler in the International Baseball League today.

Carpenter scored the first shutout of the circuit season, yesterday, blanking Rochester's Red Wings 5-0 and tacked nine scoreless innings to the six he turned in as a relief hurler Saturday to run his skein to 15. It was his second victory of the season for he got credit for his relief work he did Saturday.

The veteran Ken Ash gave Syracuse Chiefs only six hits in winning for Buffalo 3-1. Pitching didn't figure prominently in the other two games. Newark Bears rallied to down Montreal 6-5 and Baltimore Orioles smacked Toronto around 9-4.

A Perfect Performance

Carpenter's game was a gem. The bespectacled hurler, up from Greenwood of the Cotton States League, fanned four and walked only one while the Giants were scoring four times in the first five innings to sew up the game.

Ash was threatened only once when Arnold Moser tripled home a run with one out. But he retired the side and the Bisons went on to win aided b five Syracuse errors.

Jimmy Gleeson's single in the ninth with the sacks loaded climaxed Newark's four run rally and won the ball game from the Royals. Frank Kelleher, Gus Dugas and Alex Hooks hit homers.

CITY SOFTBALL LOOP LOOKING FOR NEW CLUBS

Plans were discussed for the coming season at a well-attended general meeting of the City Softball League last evening in Duffus' with President Dave Leether in the chair. With several prospective entries in doubt yet, or awaiting meetings to decide on their actions for the summer within the next few days, not a great deal could be accomplished. It was decided to call another league meeting for next Tuesday night at eight in Duffus' to accept entries, elect officers and make other plans for the summer.

Motorists were the only definite entry, but it is expected that four teams will be ready to play toward the end of May. Jack Salvage, local representative of a London biscuit company stated he hoped to run a team in this league and would know within a few days. A Southend League or the Brintons was mentioned as a good prospect, also, but Westclox apparently will not return this year. A few other prospects will be approached before the next session. The league intimated that assistance might be given toward sponsoring a team, or defraying the expenses of a club in O.A.S.A. playdowns. More will be known when the next meeting is held.

A London surgeon who has travelled regularly between the same two railroad stations for 58 years is said to be England's record commuter.

TRINITY WOMEN GUESTS OF MEN ANNUAL BANQUET

Women of Trinity United Church sat back with folded arms and watched their husbands serve an elaborate dinner on Wednesday night.

It was the first annual dinner of the Trinity Men's Association and the ladies were guests. The time-honored custom whereby the women members of the congregation prepare and serve the dinner was reversed. The ladies had nothing to do with either the preparation or the serving of the banquet.

"The ladies are certainly happy to be here to-night," remarked Mrs. F. C. Neal, responding to a toast to "The Ladies," proposed by Dr. H. V. Dobson. It was seldom the ladies of a church were permitted to enjoy a banquet without worry about serving the other guests, she explained.

Rev. George S. Easton, pastor of Trinity Church, guest speaker, addressed the association on the poetry of Burns. The birthday of the Scottish Bard in January is celebrated by more people in every country in the world than is that of any other man, with the exception of Christ, he said. He deplored the extent to which biographers have dug into the private life of Burns, doubted the truth of much of the legend of debauchery that surrounds his name.

The qualities of Burns' poetry are such that his writings hold the love of all common men the world over, the speaker said. He praised his loyalty, his hatred of war and of hypocrisy, his courage, and above all, his humanity. "In the face of poverty and other hardship Burns maintained his sturdy independence," he asserted. "Woe to the man who dared pity Burns." Burns never forgot the contribution his parents had made to his character, he claimed, citing passages from "The Cottar's Saturday Night" in substantiation. When universal peace and justice is established, the name of Burns will be among the foremost of those who have established it, he said.

A musical program was provided by a string quartette and Cliff Cruickshank sang a solo, accompanied by the church organist, Miss Mabel Clarry. A toast to the church was proposed by Duncan Walker. Dr. J. E. Middleton, president of the association, was chairman.

CAMPBELLFORD

CHORAL CONCERT PLEASES AUDIENCE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28.—An appreciative audience which taxed the auditorium to capacity, attended the initial concert by the L'Allegreto Ladies Choir on Wednesday evening. Under the very capable deadership of Harolde Kitney, formerly of Peterborough, a truly delightful blending of voices was offered for the first time by a local group.

Miss Jessie Tuite of Belleville, who had previously entertained Campbellford audiences, gave her usual fine performance as the guest artist, and Charles Allan assisted at the piano. Perhaps the most outstanding number of the evening was in the first group of German Chorales "Now Thank We All Our God," a North German hymn by Cruger. This was followed with Bach's "O Sacred Head Now Wounded" after which a unison song, "The Omnipotence" brought to a conclusion the first portion of the programme.

A group of three piano numbers by Mr. Kitney opened the second portion of the program and these included an Adagio and Allegreto from Opus 27 No. 2 by Beethoven, the familiar Valse Triste, Sibelius and the Carnival, Opus 9 of Schuman. A piano duet by Mr. Allan and Mr. Kitney preceded the second group by the choir which opened with Neidlinger's 'Rock-a-bye." The solo portion of this number was beautifully handled by Mrs. F. de F. Free. "Sylvia" by Speaks and an old English Air, "Pretty Polly Oliver" were the concluding numbers.

GIVES LIFE TO SAVE SON

RAPPAHANNOCK, Va., April 28 (A.P.). — P. D. Kelly, 41, sacrificed his life so his only son Donald, 16, might live. His broken ankle was encased in a plaster cast, but Kelly plunged into the Rappahannock River and held his boy's head above water—his own submerged—until a rowboat came.

They were fishing when the youth's line broke. Donald swam after it and tired.

HELPED HIS UNCLE IN RUSH OF 1898 NOW RICH FARMER

EDMONTON, April 28 (CP)—Fortune's horn of plenty is pouring $300,000 into the lap of George Robinson, farmer of the Conklin district, 175 miles northeast of Edmonton, because he was kind to a Klondyke prospector forty years ago.

"When I was a lad of 22, I grubstaked an uncle for the gold rush of '98," he said. "Forty years passed, and there was no word from my uncle, Jobe. Then, just a few months ago, I got a message from a Seattle solicitor. Now I am owner of a $250,000 fox farm in Alaska and a $50,000 ranch in Montana.

"They were bequethed to me by the uncle I had almost forgotten, but who never forgot an act of kindness."

Plans To Go To Alaska.

Widower, father of five children, the 62-year-old farmer was in Edmonton Wednesday, planning to sell his farm, 190 miles north of the city, to take him to Alaska, where he will take charge of his newly acquired fox farm.

"I don't know how I'll like living in Alaska," he pondered.

Since the early century hard luck has dogged the wandering trail of the grub-staker. Restless, he has visited many parts of the world, and has homesteaded in Montana, and more recently in Alberta. About ten years ago his wife died, leaving him with three daughters and two sons.

Once, in Oregon, he sold enough newspaper subscriptions to win a free trip to Alaska, and at that time, 1908, he tried to find his uncle, without success.

Within 30 Miles Of Him.

"I find now that on that trip I came within thirty miles of the place Jobe was living," Robinson related.

"When I got the big news from Seattle, at first I could not believe it. Then I was so upset I couldn't write a letter without my hand shaking. For ten days I was walking in a dream.

"Then I raised enough money to go to Seattle for identification. Now I can hardly wait to take charge of the property.

"Good old Jobe. People said I was crazy to lend him that $3,000. But he told me he would never forget. He remembered."

BOYS DESTROYING FACTORY BUILDING COMMISSION TOLD

A complaint from the Canada Crayon Company of Lindsay through J. W. Gravestock that their old factory building on George street south has not been receiving proper police protection was read at Wednesday's meeting of the Police Commission.

Mr. Gravestock complained that the building had been broken into several times, windows had been broken and other damage done and recently more serious harm had been done, glass partitions having been shattered, toilet bowls broken and parts of the heating equipment carried off. 'We are paying taxes on this property and getting nothing for what we pay", the Canada Crayon executive stated, adding that although they had complained to the police department and asked for a regular inspection of this property they were now inclined to doubt that the police ever inspected it.

Chief Constable Newhall told the commission that some of the damage had been done by school boys throwing stones from the nearby railway tracks through the windows. Police had found the place open several times and had to close the building as best they could themselves, the company officials having failed to do anything about effectively locking the plant up.

Chief Newhall suggested that the windows should be boarded up and the doors tightly locked.

"Do the police ever go round the place?" queried Judge Smoke.

"Yes, every night," replied Chief Newhall.

"I can't see where we can be expected to do more than that", remarked the chairman of the Commission.

The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Gravestock and inform him that the building would be inspected regularly and notifying him of Chief Newhall's suggestion in regard to more secure locking up of the old factory.

Psittacosis, or parrots' disease, has broken out in the London Zoo.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON RE-INSTATING FORMER OFFICER

No action was taken at the regular meeting of the Police commission held on Wednesday evening in regard to the application for the reinstatement of former constable John Deannard or the appointing of a new constable to fill the present vacancy on the force.

"I still stand where I stood before" said Judge Smoke, chairman of the commission when the matter was finally reached near the close of the meeting. His Honor at the previous meeting had vigorously opposed any further consideration for the dismissed constable.

Mayor Hamilton who had suggested at the other meeting the reappointment of Deannard as a new constable starting at a salary of 1,200 a year declared that he had not changed his mind on the question either.

Police Magistrate O. A. Langley was not prepared at last evening's meeting to announce his opinion on the matter, declaring that he would know his position better in a week or two.

The question had necessarily therefore to be shelved until another meeting without any action being taken.

"This thing should not be postponed indefinitely" declared Judge Smoke. "It must be dealt with before long. I do not appreciate receiving anonymous letters every week."

To Order Uniforms

A letter from Isadore Black asking that he be given an opportunity to tender for police uniforms brought to the attention of the Commission the fact that nothing had been done so far this year to provide new toggery for the finest.

It was decided therefore to secure information from Chief Constable Newhall as to what was required and the chief was called in, making his first appearance at a commission meeting in several months.

Chief Newhall stated that an issue of summer clothing for the whole force including suits for the plain clothes members of the force would be required.

"How is it, Chief, that officer Piercey is never in uniform?" asked Judge Smoke. "He is down here as a constable and yet I have never seen him wearing a uniform since I came here."

Chief Newhall explained that the officer had been occupying the position of acting detective ever since William Carey left the local force.

On motion of Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Judge Smoke Chief Newhall was instructed to secure tenders on summer uniforms for fourteen men.

Licensing Junk Collectors

A report from City Solicitor Wilfrid Huycke stated that boards of police commisisons had the power not only to license junk dealers and second hand dealers but also to license individuals who went round from house to house, collecting or purchasing second hand articles.

A motion that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw amending the present bylaw in regard to second hand dealers and junk men to include the house-to-house collectors and that the fee should be $10 a year was introduced.

"How would such a bylaw affect those four or five men who go round with handcarts collecting bottles, cardboard and other stuff?" asked Mayor Hamilton.

Judge Smoke was of the opinion that the bylaw would include such collectors.

"Then I am opposed to it" said the Mayor. "It would be a hardship on these men who are keeping themselves off relief by what they are able to earn in this way."

The Mayor's opposition was about to end the proposed bylaw when it was pointed out that it was desirable to regulate all such collecting and that that end could be attained by a small license fee.

Accordingly the license was set at $1 a year and a resolution was passed instructing the city solicitor to draw up a bylaw naming that figure.

A letter from Police Matron Mrs. Maguire asking for an increase in salary was on motion of Judge Smoke seconded by the Mayor, received and filed.

The meeting adjourned after passing a number of accounts.

'COURTESY' POLICE SPRING SURPRISES

LONDON, April 28.—(CP).—The "courtesy cops" in London's Metropolitan district and all arterial roads nearby are as popular as they are useful. When a cop pulls a speeder to the curb and smiles politely, it is something you remember. When he says he's not going to pinch you it is something you'll never forget.

They are to be seen on all roads. Some are on motorcycles, some just posted at corners. They are legislating by explanation. Any little offence, small in itself but possibly responsible for a major accident, catches their eye. Drivers are warned for proceeding at inconsistent speeds, for not holding to the side of the road, for not signalling the corner, for crowding pedestrians.

They touch their hat, explain to the driver his particular fault and how he might have avoided it and answer his worried question by saying, "No, you don't have to go to court this time."

27-FOOT SEA YACHT

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 28 (A.P.).—A marine engineer prepared today to test a new 27-foot yacht in which he hopes to sail to Sweden. The yacht was launched yesterday and Albert Johnson, its owner, said he "definitely will go back to Sweden in the craft next year if it proves to be seaworthy."

Suspect Body In Lake Ontario Another Cleveland Murder

Police Study Lake Currents—Victim May Be Missing Society Heiress

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., April 28—New York State police laboratory technicians turned to-day to a study of Great Lakes currents in an effort to determine whether the dismembered body of a woman recovered last week from Lake Ontario was that of a victim of Cleveland's mysterious "torso slayer."

Dr. Bradley H. Kirschberg, director of the State Police laboratory here, said charts of United States army engineers would be checked to learn what effect passage over Niagara Falls and through swift currents of the Niagara River might had on a body tossed into Lake Erie and after found in Lake Ontario.

There have been 10 torso murders in Cleveland since 1935. Most of the bodies have been recovered from Lake Erie.

Meanwhile, I. W. Chamberlain, assistant director of public safety, and Police Inspector David C. Cowles have returned to Cleveland, Dr. Kirschberg said, after examining the body found last Friday near Pulaski, N.Y.

A Society Heiress?

Whether the body might be that of Mrs. Alice Parsons, society heiress who disappeared from her Bayshore, Long Island, home last June 9, remains undetermined, Dr. Kirschberg said. A note demanding $25,000 ransom was found in Mrs. Parsons' automobile.

Mrs. Parsons was 38 years old at the time of her disappearance, was five feet tall and weighed 135 pounds.

Examination of the body found in Lake Ontario indicated it was that of a woman five feet tall and weighing 140 to 145 pounds.

His report to Chief Inspector Albert B. Moore of the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation also asserted the body was "not immediately thrown into the water after death but was buried in the ground for a short time."

The report added there was evidence the body had been wrapped in cheese cloth and burlap, and that there had been an unsuccessful attempt to destroy it by fire or chemicals."

Absence of certain organs, the report concluded, disclosed "the possibility of operation by a sex maniac either before or after death.

Night's Fishing Costs $110

He paid $10 and costs for fishing with an artificial light and spear, and $100 for assaulting Ernest Prosser, game warden. Prosser said Kenny hit him over the head with a flashlight when he attempted to take him into custody.

Had Indigestion Gas and Pains In Stomach and Bowels

The process of digestion depends largely on the condition of the stomach, and when it is unable to do its work properly there will be a rising and souring of food, a gnawing and burning sensation in the stomach, belching and pressure of gas, flatulency, etc.

Miss M. C. Weiss, Mapova, Alta., writes:—"For a long time I was troubled with indigestion. My stomach would not digest my food, and I would have gas pressure and sour stuff coming up in my mouth.

I used Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking one bottle I felt a change for the better, so I decided to keep on, and after the third bottle I could eat anything and not be bothered with the rising and souring of my food."

BLAST ROCKS MINE 3 DEAD, 22 MISSING

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 28 (AP).—An explosion and fire killed at least three coal miners today and raised fears for others trapped underground.

Rescue workers struggled in the workings at the St. Clair Coal Company's mine, four miles from here. They sent up word they were hampered by "black damp." An emergency call went out for State rescue equipment.

Four hours after the blast, six of 28 miners in the affected level had been brought out alive and taken to hospitals—five burned and in a critical condition. The fate of those remaining was uncertain.

Mine officials refused to express an opinion as to whether those not immediately accounted for were dead or alive.

The body of Frank Montgomery, 30, unmarried, of St. Clair, was brought to the surface shortly after rescue squads went down. Paul Sikra, 40, and Wasil Holovak, 45, also of St. Clair, were removed dead later.

Fire Boss Hurt.

Andrew Potts, 42, mine fire boss, was among those critically burned. He was about to enter the number nine tunnel, located in the mammoth vein, when the blast came. He could give no hint as to what happened. The miners had entered the level to begin their day's work shortly before the explosion at 7.30 a.m., E.S.T.

The blast let go about two miles from the main entrance to the mine at St. Clair—a village four miles from Pottsville, centre of Pennsylvania's great lower anthracite field.

Outside the mine, mere minutes after the blast, was formed the picture repeated wherever such disaster strikes — of relatives, tears streaming, waiting some word.

Flames shot up after the explosion, believed caused by gas, and spread to mine chambers where diggers toiled. Some miners were enveloped, their clothing burned off.

The hastily - recruited rescue squads entered the mine through a "release slope" on a mountain-top a mile away.

412 RAMBOUILET SHEEP IMPORTED TO BETTER STRAIN

OTTAWA, April 28—(CP).—Purchase of two flocks of pure Rambouilet sheep to improve sheep raising in Western Canada and provide farmers there with a revenue-producer remaining comparatively constant in drought periods was announced today by the Department of Agriculture. Each flock consists of 200 ewes and six rams.

The purchase, arranged by Agriculture Minister Gardiner, is part of a program for sheep improvement in the west. Obtained in Wyoming, Utah and Montana, the sheep are at the Dominion experimental farm, Lethbridge, Alta., and the Dunburn range operated by the University of Saskatchewan.

To provide for a continuous policy for improvement of Rambouillet sheep in the Dominion, the agriculture department has appointed a three man committee—A. A. MacMillan associate chief of the department's production service; K. A. Rasmussen, Dominion Experimental farm. Lethbridge, and Prof. A. H. Ewen, department of animal husbandry, University of Saskatchewan.

This committee will outline and define the breeding policy for the two flocks. Each year two auction sales, one in Saskatchewan and one in Alberta, will be held through which well developed, specially selected yearling rams will be sold.

JUDGES' RETIRING PLAN IS STUDIED

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP).—A high official of the Justice Department said today the Department was studying the question of a retirement plan for judges of the Supreme courts of the Provinces but he declined to state whether any specific proposal would be placed before parliament this session.

"Every year such representations are made to the Government and given all due consideration," he said. The question was not new and had been discussed by previous governments.

Any legislation would not make retirement compulsory, he added. Under terms of the British North America Act, judges of the Supreme Courts of the provinces are appointed for life.

A retirement age of 75 years has been suggested. This already applies to judges of the Supreme Court of Canada and the Exchequer Court of Canada, both under Federal jurisdiction.

Woman Is Jailed As Extortionist

STRATFORD, Ont., April 28—(CP)—Mrs. John Berlet, Bridgeport, appeared before Magistrate J. A. Makins today charged with attempted extortion. She was not asked to plead and was remanded for a week.

Mrs. Berlet was arrested yesterday by Provincial Officer John M. Douglas. The charge follows receipt of threatening letters by Norman Berlet of Monkton.

Mr. Berlet, a school janitor, is a brother-in-law of Mrs. John Berlet and received the first of them a few weeks ago and postal authorities were called into the case when cancelled stamps were used.

Several traps were set for the author of the letters who was to have called for money, which Berlet was instructed to leave at certain places, but nothing materialized on those occasions.

ENDS HIS LIFE

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 28—(CP). — J. Ernest Morrison, 60, of Madoc was found suspended from a rafter in an outdoor kitchen today by his wife, who had just returned from shopping. Dr. J. J. Robertson, chief coroner, declared an inquest unnecessary. Morrison lost an eye last fall and the other eye was becoming affected, and it is believed he was melancholy.

Gives Eye That Another May See

For the first time in Canada the delicate operation of removing the cornea of an eye and grafting the healthy tissue on the eye of another patient was undertaken in a Toronto hospital when Miss Florence Hayward, RIGHT, volunteered to permit removal of a blind eye in an effort to give Nick Popiak, a fellow patient, his sight. Miss Hayward's eye, though blind, was not in need of removal and eye specialists told her that the grafting operation had one chance in a hundred of success. Popiak lost his sight through contact with acid several months ago. The two patients, shown after the operation, have never met. It will not be known for a month if the operation will succeed.

$2,150 RECEIVED BY CITY TREASURY FROM PIN GAMES

Forty-three pin games, licensed at $50 each, produced a revenue of $2,150 for the city last year. This information was provided for the finance committee of the council last night in the expectation that deputation from the Ministerial Association would recommend to the council Monday night that the licenses not be renewed or be substantially increased.

W. M. Rosebush offered the property committee $35 for a lot on the west side of water Street opposite the Auburn mills on ground that was once a gravel pit but was levelled by the city in the hope that eventually it would be used for building sites. Alderman Stocker commented that the lot was worth $300, but, this opinion was regarded by other members of Alderman McCannan's committee as being a rather expensive estimate. Mr. Rosebush's letter was referred to the City Trust Commission as stewards of the property.

A brief discussion by the property committee indicated that steps are to be taken to compell all restaurants to comply with a bylaw restricting the height of partitions enclosing compartments which are said to encourage the drinking of liquor on the premises. It was said that several restaurants have not complied with this regulation, and Alderman McCannan and City Solicitor Huycke were authorized to revise the bylaw and another drafted by John R. Corkery as City Solicitor several years ago compelling all restaurants to remove the objectionable "cubby-hole" effect of these compartments. Mayor Hamilton promised that he would call a special meeting of the committee of the whole council early in May to go over a new bylaw that would cut down the compartments.

Alderman McCannan and Alderman Dutton were commissioned to investigate the heating and ventilating of the city hall for the purpose of trying to regulate uniformity of heat for future winters and also to provide adequate ventilation without having to depend on wide open doors and windows.

The committee was unable to agree last night on a new set of weigh scales for the market. Mayor Hamilton was in favor of a new type of scales that were virtually automatic in their registering and that also stamped weights on slips that could be given to persons bringing loads to be weighed. It costs $2,-095. Alderman McCannan said a beam type of scale costing $1,100 was all the market required. This question was postponed for further information and consideration.

Alderman Bradburn reported complaints from residents of Ashburnham that loose paper was blowing from the dumping grounds that are being gradually filled up, causing a nuisance in that neighborhood.

TIMMINS, Ont., April 28 (CP).—Gee Tom was fined $100 and costs for illegal possession of liquor. He had his laugh on court officials when he paid almost the entire fine in nickels, dimes and quarters. The court accepted the count by the Chinese as correct until she clerk had a spare day to check.

SELWYN Y.P.S. PRESENTS PLAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, April 28.—The Tilicum Class of Keene United Church held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Miss Edith Nelson, with fourteen girls present. The meeting opened with the president, Miss Betty Brown, conducting a short devotional service which had been prepared by Miss Mary Belle Humphries. The business for the evening was then discussed. The topic was "Sewing." Each girl exhibited a new print dress that she had made herself, and Miss Willena Nelson conducted a short sewing period which was followed by some contests. At the close of the program the hostess served dainty refreshments.

The Selwyn Young People presented the religious drama, "Whatsoever Ye Sow," in the basement of Keene United Church Sunday evening at the regular meeting of the Keene Young People.

PUBLIC LIABILITY POLICY FOR CITY WILL COST $2,750

Two accidental factors conspired against V. M. Eastwood's lower bid for the city's public liability insurance contract which the committee of the whole council renewed last night with the A. E. Wilson Company of Toronto for $2,750.

Mr. Eastwood's tender was $2,650. The meeting was called for seven o'clock, and returning from Roseneath where he had spent some time on official business Mr. Eastwood was under the impression that the committe met at 7.30. One of the members telephoned his office shortly after seven and also after the committee had heard the representations made by an agent of the Wilson Company. In their subsequent discussion of what action they should take, several of the aldermen expressed the opinion that Mr. Eastwood's tender did not cover liability insurance relating to all the city buildings, and as they were told that the Wilson agreement was "totalitarian" they accepted this Company's bid on Alderman McCannan's motion seconded by Alderman Stocker.

On his arrival Mr. Eastwood contended that his contract was identical with his competitor's, and although he was not present at seven o'clock because of the impression that the meeting was to be half an hour later he said that his letter set forth all the facts and that in any case it was not necessary for him to be present when the contract was being considered. City Clerk Armstrong brought from his office Mr. Eastwood's letter and it confirmed every detail of his statement. He requested that the two bids be reconsidered, but the committee had already accepted the Wilson company's tender and sent their agent away with that pleasant decision. For that reason they declined to revoke the McCannan-Stocker motion.

WARNING GIVEN BICYCLE RIDERS ROLLER SKATERS

From local police headquarters to-day comes a plain warning that a campaign to eliminate dangerous practices on the part of bicyclists and roller skaters is to be launched at once by the department.

"Conditions on city streets will have to be cleaned up," Chief Constable Newhall states. "There are more bicycles than ever in use and roller skating is becoming very popular so that something will have to be done to regulate both riders and skaters or fatal accidents will be bound to occur."

In the first place the police are going to insist that the regulations in regards to lights on bicycles are obeyed.

The Highway Traffic Act provides that every bicycle or tricycle "shall carry on the front thereof a white or amber light or reflector approved by the department and on the back thereof a red lighted lamp or reflector approved by the department as well as a white surface not less than ten inches in length and two inches in width which shall be so placed as to be clearly visible to the drivers of other vehicles.

Have No Lights.

Police point out that there are many bicycles on the street at night without these lights and the owners of these machines will be checked up. "We are not anxious to prosecute but if this warning is not heeded it will be necessary to do so in the interests of public safety," Chief Newhall declares.

At the same time other dangerous and illegal practices are to be cut out. It is an offence to carry two persons on a bicycle or to ride more than two abreast on a city street and these and the dangerous habit of riding with hands off the handle bars will receive police attention.

Roller skating is another pain in the neck both to police and motorists and the youngsters who indulge in this form of recreation and who have been skating in groups all over the road are also to be checked up. It is pointed out that many of these youngsters are just learning to skate yet they are travelling through heavy traffic where a fall might cause a serious or fatal accident.

BIG LUMBER CUT IS ANTICIPATED BY LINDSAY MILLS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 28.—An important change in local hotel management was announced today. The Benson, Lindsay's leading hostelry, which for the past ten years has been managed by Messrs. Wellman and Wyatt, will come under new management on May 1st. Mr. Wellman is retiring and the hotel will be operated jointly by Messrs. Walter Wyatt and William Nugent. Mr. Nugent is a resident of Trenton and was in the employ of the provincial government for nineteen years—first as a provincial policeman, then hotel inspector and later as store inspector under the Liquor Control Board.

Great activity prevails in the lumbering industry in this section at present. The Carew Lumber Company mills at Lindsay will commence operations in a few days and a big cut is anticipated. The Phillips Lumber Company mill at Kinmount has begun operations and the Austin & Sons mill will blow the whistle in a few days. A big drive of logs is coming down for the firm from the head of White Lake. The Waye and Bailey Company mill at Eagle Lake is working double shifts and it will take seven months to cut the logs that are ready for the plant.

A deputation from Lindsay council waited on the Deputy Minister of Highways at Toronto on Tuesday relative to the town's plans for street paving. The deputation was very favorably received, and expects the Department to approve the programme. It was feared that the department would not approve the resurfacing of Lindsay and Queen streets, both highway connecting links, but this handicap will likely be overcome.

ernment report issued yesterday, it is expected a new proration order will be promulgated to permit boosting the flow at all wells in the crude field.

In the valley on contrasts some of the new crude wells have a potential flow of more than 4,000 barrels of oil daily. In the older section of the field some wells—all naphtha producers—have a yield as low as five barrels a day.

Along the 15-mile valley range 121 wells are in operation—76 "old-timers." Many of the "old-timers" are doomed to be closed soon under the gas conservation program of the Alberta Government. It is estimated 500 of the naphtha producers will be closed.

STEVENS

recommendations of the national employment commission which recently concluded its work after two years operations.

John R. MacNicol (Cons. Toronto-Davenport) suggested British manufacturers of munitions, arms and steel be invited to move their plants to Canada out of the danger of bombing attacks.

He suggested the government get in touch with British government officials on the matter. The Toronto Conservative also pleaded for greater expenditures on highways, flood prevention and housing. He accused the government of failure to grasp the essential needs of the problem.

Just a Paper Clause.

T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) spoke of that section of the bill which refers to making agreements with industry. "No such agreement has been made so that is a mere paper clause and nothing will be done," he observed.

The government had "wasted" two years on the National Employment Commission, Mr. Church said, "and that commission did nothing but talk." He charged the government had put Saskatchewan in a preferred position in comparison with the rest of the provinces and had failed to bring relief to the municipalities where the industrial workers congregated.

Describing the National Employment Commisison as a "humpty-dumpty," Mr. Church said it had declared nothing could be done until the Rowel Commission had reported. "King Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed with such importance as the Rowell Commission" Mr. Church said, but it was doing work that could be well done by the House of Commons.

Employment conditions were no better and in some communities getting worse. According to J. A. Marsh (Con. Hamilton West). He urged that something be done to rehabilitate youth and to lighten the burden of taxation so that home building would be stimulated.

Fewer Homes Owned

In Hamilton there were 16 per cent fewer homes owned than seven years ago while the city, through seizures for taxes, was becoming a property-poor landlord.

Mr. Stevens said there was a lack of leadership in industry, farming and government. He scored the labor minister for not having brought forward some constructive proposals for dealing with the employment problem, and declared the bill in no way implemented the national employment commission report.

While the workers were looking for security and industry was looking for stability, "We have failed lamentably as a parliament to meet the situation."

Faced with its most distressing problem parliament was giving only "desultory" attention to the legislation designed to deal with that problem, Mr. Stevens declared. He said there were only three ministers and an extremely poor attendance of members in the chamber considering the importance of the measure before the house. There was probably well under half the membership present.

Bingo For Charity Finds Sanction

NEW YORK, April 28.—(CP). — Bingo, which has been taking a beating lately, especially in the Bronx, where the district attorney bans it, found a friend to-day in Brooklyn—providing the game is for charity.

Magistrate Sabbatino during hearing of a charge against five men following a police raid on a bingo game, said "if this is a racket I want the men running it brought in. But if the proceeds go to charity, that's different."

In parolling the men in custody of their attorney to May 6, the Magistrate said that a lodge he attends often has bingo games to help the poor.

that the principle of equality of treatment underlying the railway act should be perpetuated in any legislation designed to regulate transportation."

It was charged that the agreed charges section would give the railways an undue advantage "as there is nothing in the bill to prevent part five operating to the substantial detriment of highway transport."

No Protection For Truckers?

"A number of provisions in part five are designed to protect individual shippers and carriers as well as representative bodies of shippers and carriers, but the term 'carrier' is defined by the bill to mean 'carrier by railway, water and air.'

Those provisions, therefore, are no protection whatever to carriers by road. This is one of the iniquities that result from the bill's failure to regulate highway transport."

The C.M.A. stated in the brief that the railways, armed with the agreed charges legislation, could impair seriously the services of other classes of transportation with less extensive facilities than the railways.

In many instances, the tendency would be to deprive shippers, particularly those doing business of national proportions of the services of these other means of transport, as the weapon placed in the hands of the railways by the clause would produce conditions which shippers would find too controlling to be resisted or overcome.

The association also protested the section of the bill that would regulate shipping between Canadian Atlantic ports and Canadian Pacific ports via the Panama Canal.

TRUE CHRISTIANITY WORLD'S MAIN HOPE

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (CP).—Debased and false Christianity are more responsible for today's Communism, Fascism and Nazism than the "isms" themselves, Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, Toronto, former Moderator of the United Church of Canada, told an audience in Westminster United Church here last night.

"I don't like Communism that rules God out," he said. "And I don't like Christianity that rules out brotherhood."

It had to be admitted that Communism had accomplished some reforms in Russia, he said, but on the other hand, he could not reconcile destruction of churches, exclusion of religion and the ruthless dictatorship imposed by Stalin.

He pleaded for a return to true Christianity, a religion of brotherhood, and self-sacrifice. A classless Christianity transcending economic barriers, a religion that cannot provide a breeding ground for the injustice and misery that fostered Fascism and Communism in other lands.

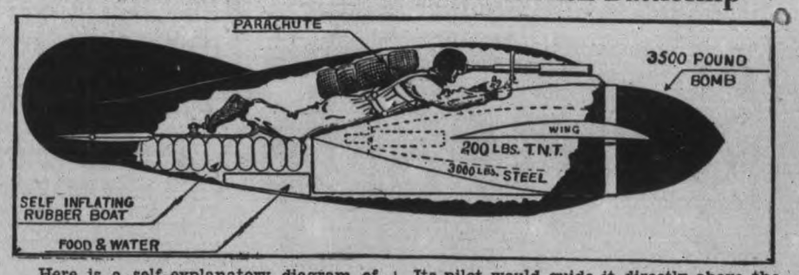
Inventor Claims One Man Can Demolish Battleship



Here is a self-explanatory diagram of the "diving bomb" which, according to predictions of Lester P. Barlow, Stamford, Conn., expert on aerial munitions, will be used in the next war. By means of this bomb, opines Mr. Barlow, one man could destroy a $7,000,000 battleship and still have a chance of living to tell about it. The bomb would be launched from 10,000 feet. Its pilot would guide it directly above the battleship in a glide to 3,500, where he would put the bomb into a vertical dive, tripping it loose from his parachute and rubber boat. Concentrated food and water are stowed in this boat, designed to stay afloat for days. Barlow won fame as an inventor of demolition bombs in the world war era.

IN THE HYGIENE COURT OF JUSTICE

Business Man Accused of Rheumatism

(Before Mr. Justice Kruschen)

JUDGE: Have you anything to say, prisoner, before sentence is passed?

PRISONER: Well, my lord, I can't see that rheumatism is a crime.

JUDGE: In these enlightened days all preventable illness is a crime—just as much as suicide is. You've no right to have rheumatism—lowering your efficiency, spreading gloom, making yourself a liability to your family and your country, instead of an asset. Do you know that rheumatism costs the country millions of weeks of work a year?

PRISONER: But I couldn't help getting rheumatism, my lord.

JUDGE: Don't be so sure! The common causes of rheumatism are constipation and excess uric acid. As man to man, can you stand there and tell me that you can't prevent these?

PRISONER: Give me another chance, my lord!

JUDGE: In this Court of Hygiene we don't punish—we reform. You are released on probation for three months, on condition that you start and religiously keep on taking the 'little daily dose'.

PRISONER: But — but that's exactly what my doctor ordered me years ago!

JUDGE: And you took no notice.

PRISONER: Well, my lord, the expense. . .

JUDGE: Expense? Nonsense! The Kruschen habit costs much less than 1c a day, but it will reform you 'body and soul'. Get rid of the poisonous waste matter from your system, and you will be a new man—keen, cheerful, efficient, without a care in your heart or an ache in your body. Go away now and don't let me see you here again, or it may be a more serious matter. Next case!

KRUSCHEN SALTS

relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Boat Trip To Orillia Is Included In Holiday To Start On Monday May 31

Governor-General Also Wishes To Visit Grove School At Lakefield

Mayor Hamilton informed the committee of the whole council last night that the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir, would pay an official visit to Peterborough on Monday May 31. He will spend three days in the district, realizing a desire, expressed soon after his arrival in Canada, for a holiday trip through the Kawartha Lakes.

A letter from His Excellency's secretary informed Mayor Hamilton that May 31 would be a convenient date for accepting Peterborough's repeated invitation which had been suspended in 1937 at Lord Tweedsmuir's request. At that time there had been some suggestion of a canoe trip, and possibly it may yet be included in the program for the three days.

The Governor-General wishes to visit the Lakefield Preparatory School, and it is likely that an hour and a half of the morning of May 31, from 11 a.m. until 12.30 p.m. will be allotted for that detail of his itinerary. His official reception in Peterborough will be from 3 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Because of delicate health that requires him to adhere to a special diet His Excellency has suggested that a civic dinner be ommitted.

Lord Tweedsmuir will make a holiday of his second day here, and it is understood that he will spend the day on a boat trip up the Trent Canal and through part of the Kawartha Lakes, probably on the government boat "Bessie Butler". And on the third day His Excellency will board the boat again at Chemong taking the long water route to Orillia.

On Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman McCannan, Mayor Hamilton and City Clerk Armstrong were instructed to reply to the secretary of the Governor-General conveying the city's appreciation of His Excellency's forthcoming visit. Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Gordon, chairman of the reception committee, were appointed to assume charge of the local details conforming with the Governor-General's desire to greet the citizens of Peterborough and also to enjoy the several extensive water trips through the Kawarthas.

SUGGESTS CROWN REDUCE CHARGE OF THEFT OF CAR

"I am satisfied that this is a case that should have been laid under the section dealing with theft of the use of an automobile rather than under the more serious section" declared Magistrate Langley in police court this morning after the crown had concluded its evidence in the preliminary hearing of the charge against Fergus Mongraw of stealing a motor car from Hugh Davis of the Capitol Taxi on the night of April 15.

T. J. Carley, K.C. who appeared for Mongraw concurred in that opinion, pointing out that the circumstances as alleged by the crown brought the case squarely within that section of the code designed to deal with the offence commonly known as "joy riding" as separate from the act of stealing automobiles with the intention of depriving its owner permanently of its possession.

Magistrate Langley intimated that there was enough evidence to warrant bailing Mongraw for trial but repeated that he thought the crown should consider the advisability of change the charge.

"If police officers are to have the right under the code to decide that one man shall be charged with one offence and another under the same set of circumstances with some other offence that is a violent state of affairs," Mr. Carley declared.

Hugh Davis, owner of the car alleged to have been stolen told of seeing Mongraw near his taxi stand on a number of occasions but said that he did not see him on the night the automobile was taken. He told of having learned of the machine, a Plymouth sedan having been taken from the rear of the taxi office, and of later that night seeing it behind the police garage. He had not authorized the accused to take the car that night.

To Mr. Carley, Davis admitted that all he knew about the car having been stolen was what he learned from his driver. He had not gone out when the latter came in to report that he had left the machine at the rear.

Was Given Ride

Gordon B. Smith, 18, Lafayette avenue said that between 8.00 and 8.30 o'clock on the night of April 15 he and his brother were walking down George street near the Ackerman plant when Fergus Mongram drove down in a Plymouth sedan and asked them to have a ride. They demurred about getting in because they had a Great Dane dog with them but Mongraw told them that was all right and to put the dog in the back seat. They had then entered the car and had been driven to the corner of Lake street where they got out.

Smith said the dog slobbered frequently.

To Mr. Carley witness said that he had seen Mongraw in the police station on the morning of April 16 and had identified him there, Mongraw had not been placed in a lineup, witness seeing him alone. He said that he and his brother had driven about a quarter of a mile with Mongraw and he had glanced at the prisoner enough to be able to recognize him by his features.

Saw Dog Marks

Police Constable Sexsmith told of finding the Davis car parked in front of the Bell apartments on Hunter street around 10 o'clock on the night of April 15 and of afterward examining the machine behind the police sedan and of seeing slobber marks on the top of the front seat and of noticing eight or 10 dog tracks on the floor of the car at the rear. He said Sergt. Thompson and he had arrested Mongraw about 10.20 that night near his home and there had been a struggle.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carley, witness said that the Davis car was in plain sight on Hunter street when he and Officer Murphy found it there.

"What about this struggle when the accused was 'arrested", defence counsel asked. "I take it the accused weighs about 130 pounds".

"About that," admitted the officer.

"And I would say you weigh about 200 pounds?"

Witness said that was correct.

"And Sergeant Thompson weighs about 250 pounds," said Mr. Carley, "and yet you had a struggle".

Constable Sexsmith said that they had difficulty in putting Mongraw into the police car.

Eric Frizzelle, driver for the Capitol Taxi was called to show that he had left the allegedly stolen car at the rear of the taxi stand between 7.45 and 7.50 o'clock on the night of April 15 and had found it missing at 8 o'clock that same night.

That concluded the crown's case and Mr. Carley intimated that he did not propose to call evidence.

Magistrate Langley, stressing the fact that the evidence showed if it were accepted that it was a case of stealing the use of an automobile rather than of stealing the automobile, said that there was however sufficient evidence to warrant sending the case along for trial. He ordered an adjournment until this afternoon to permit Mongraw to arguard knew anything about the affair was not made clear. However, although the assault took place in the Toronto municipal institution, the finance committee agreed that this city would have to assume the hospital bill whatever it may be.

TORONTO, April 28.—(CP). — Pat Jordon, injured during a fight at Langstaff jail here early this month, will be out of hospital within a week, hospital authorities said to-day.

Langstaff jail officials said no action had been taken regarding the fight until Jordon was able to testify. Jail officials said there was a conflict of evidence on how the fight started and who took part.

WON FIRST PRIZE.

Among the winners for the Y.M. C.A. Boys' Hobby Show, the name of Donald Whittaker was omitted as being the creator of the steamshin Queen Mary model which was awarded first prize for that section. Fred Craig, builder of several other marine entries had been named winner of this model, which was in error.

CHANGES HER PLEA

Mrs Josephine Robinson who pleaded guilty some weeks ago to permitting drunkenness on her premises and had received the benefit of several adjournments asked Magistrate Langley's permission this morning to change her plea to "not guilty." She said she had only pleaded guilty before because some of the police told her she had to do so. Magistrate Langley consented to the request and the case will be heard on May 2.

INCREASES INSURANCE

The county council has doubled the limit of its public liability insurance with A. E. Wilson and Company of Toronto. The total indemnity for one accident is now $20,000 instead of $10,000 as in the past.

WELL, THAT'S THAT

TO DISCUSS BRIDGE

The Ennismore bridge committee will meet in the Chamber of Commerce Monday next at 5 p.m., Alderman Cotton reported Wednesday night. Aldermen Glover and Wilson have been added to the city's representation. Mayor Hamilton mentioned his recent trip to Ennismore. A letter from City Solicitor Huycke expressed the opinion that the city would be liable for one-quarter of the cost of reconstruction if it was washed out at any time after the city became involved in the affairs of the Suburban Area Commission.

ATTENDING LECTURES.

If this week's extension course for municipal officials at the University of Toronto is co-educational there has been no reflection of it among Peterborough's city hall staff. City Treasurer M. E. Shaver, City Tax Collector A. S. Couper and Deputy City Clerk A. E. Outram were in Toronto today for some of the lectures and W. J. Henry, assessor, has been up and back. Some of the ladies of the staff lightly lifted arched eyebrows as if to say "you don't need to tell us it's a man's world."

ANNUAL TOURNAMENT.

Indications that the Peterborough Bowling Club's tournament on Civic Holiday is going to be a success were forthcoming this morning when the secretary received an entry from far down in the southern United States. Other entries have been made from Windsor and Hamilton. Officials are expecting the largest entry for any tournament in Central Ontario. Cards announcing the tournament were sent out only a week ago.

NETTING CATFISH.

Several catfish fishermen provided entertainment for Charlotte street shoppers this morning when they waded in the waters of Jackson Park Creek, using nets to land their catches. Luck was high around the bridge on Charlotte street, one fisherman netting nearly a dozen. Next closest was an early 'teen-aged youth who had captured six or seven.

RECORD FIRE ALARM MONTH

Five fires have been reported this month and all have been on the roofs of buildings, Fire Chief George Gimblett noted this morning. He believed that this month more alarms have been rung in than in any other month. Previous total for a single month was 81, and before the end of April is reached that number will be passed, he thought.

CITY BE RELIEVED SANITORIA COSTS ON DOMINION DAY

The provincial government's assumption of the cost of indigent patients in sanitoria becomes effective on July 1, Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., informed the Examiner today.

This further assistance granted by the government to municipalities was announced during the recent sessions of the Legislature, and at that time it was estimated that the direct financial benefit to Peterborough would exceed $10,000. Care and treatment of indigent patients, almost entirely those who had contracted tuberculosis, has been an increasing burden on municipalities, and petitions have been sent to the government from time to time appealing for relief from a responsibility regarded as primarily of the provincial government's duty and account.

Cost $10,788 Last Year

Peterborough's indigent patient bills to sanitoria last year totalled $10,788, and as the new relief is not effective until July 1 the city will gain the advantage for only six months this year, amounting to more than $5,000.

Some members of the finance committee of the council were enquiring Wednesday night as to when the government intended to assume this account, but the information had not been received up to that time. Mr. Elliott told the Examiner today he was definitely informed that the city would be relieved of the sanitoria liability beginning the second half of the year.

WM. ROY PRESTON C.P.R. CLERK DIES

William Roy Preston, clerk at the Canadian Pacific Express Depot here for the past 23 years, died at Nicholls Hospital on Wednesday evening. He had been ill only a week, and was in his 50th year.

Born in Lakefield, he had lived here for the past 25 years, residing at 616 Water street. He was a son of Mary Ann Frise and the late James Henry Preston. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and was widely known throughout this community. He is survived by his wife, formerly Margaret Stabler, and one son John, and one daughter, Marjorie, both at home. One sister, Mrs. Isaac Watson of Detroit, and one brother, James H. Preston of Omemee, also remain.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Nisbett Funeral Home, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiating. Interment will be made at Lakefield Cemetery.

Squirrels Raid The Tulip Beds

Black squirrels have created a minor problem for Frank Kitney, superintendent of the Little Lake cemetery. Their original colony of four has increased to 12, and if they would only stick to a diet of nuts no one would raise a finger or turn a thumb against them, but they have cultivated a taste for tulip bulbs, a taste and also a technique of rooting up the bulbs. It is also held against them that they are extravagant, a few bites out of one bulb, and they dig around for another. Figuratively they are biting the hand that has fed them, because during the winter they have always had a friend in Mr. Kitney. But, these days when the tulips are sprouting and he comes upon a bed that has been mussed up by the squirrels his thoughts are turning to the necessity of loading up a .22 rifle and doing something about it.

Bids For Painting Smokestack Range From $40 Up To $170

Bids for painting the smoke stack at the incinerator ranged from $40 by a Belleville painter up to $170, and with such a price spread members of the property committee of the council said "there must be something wrong somewhere." Eleven gallons of paint at $3 would amount to $33, and on a $40 tender the revenue to the painter would be only $7, without other expenses being taken into the reckoning. Vincent Lynch put in a bid for $70 and the veteran Max Peters at $150 was nearly $100 above his last contract. Alderman McCannan was asked to get more information about painting materials and to consider whether specifications should be prepared for new tenders.

Alderman Cotton told the committee that aluminum paint was recognized as being of great value in extending the life of fire brick in furnaces, and was going to be used at the C.G.E. plant.

HIT-RUNNER FINED PERMIT IS TAKEN BY OSHAWA COURT

OSHAWA, April 28. — Found guilty of not remaining at the scene of an accident, Kalman Ferencz appeared before Magistrate F. S. Ebbs on Wednesday and was fined $50, and had his driving permit suspended for two months. In asking the court to convict the accused, Chief Constable Owen Friend pointed out that Ferencz wa sa "double" hit-and-run driver, having made off a second time after the occupant of the car he hit had cornered him.

"I am going to do my part in clearing up these cases," said the Magistrate, pointing out that this was the first case of its kind to come before him since the public agitation over hit-and-run motorists. The Bench disregarded a plea for leniency from defence counsel, who said the man was "a little confused, having had a drink or two."

"Just so much more reason why I should give this man the maximum penalty," retorted the Magistrate.

Evidence showed that Ferencz nad turned out to pass a car going east on Olive Avenue and in doing so side-swiped a car driven by Fred White of Oshawa. Ferencz looked back after the impact and then continued on his way, it was alleged. White followed the car a short distance, and after catching it told Ferencz to wait. White said Ferencz swore at him and drove away. He was later picked up after a chase along city streets.

Magistrate Ebbs said that the instructions from the Attorney-General's Department were to impose the maximum penalty in such cases, and he intended to do so in the present instance.

Trucker Takes Blaze To The Firemen

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aprail 28

FIREMEN OF the Main Street station rubbed their eyes yesterday afternoon when a truck pulled up in front of the building and the driver called for water. The vehicle, owned by the Niagara Falls Public Welfare Board, had a ton of paper aboard and it was ablaze. The fire broke out at the city limits and the driver dashed along the Main Street business section with his burning load to the fire hall. Damage was estimated at $25.

Scorching A Hog Fires 2 Barns

CHATEAUGUAY, Que., April 28 —(CP).—The weather played the role of Big Bad Wolf yesterday as it huffed and puffed at a little pig on the farm near here of Remi Tougas, Montreal butcher, and resulted in a fire loss estimated at $15,000.

Butchering animals, a hired man was using a blow torch to burn hair off the pig's hide when a sudden gust of wind blew sparks into a nearby barn, igniting straw.

Flames destroyed two barns containing feed and farm implements, a shed, and a hen coop, and damaged the farm house.

MILLBROOK Y.P. CONDUCTS DEBATE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 28. — A preliminary debate in preparation for the Presbytery finals, when Knox Church, Peterborough, and the local Union compete for the honors, featured the weekly meeting of the Young People's Union on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The subject for debate is: "Resolved, that the pioneer woman has contributed more to home and community welfare than has the modern woman." Upholding the affirmative in the practice event were B. B. Dawson and Gordon Muspratt and advancing arguments for the negative side were Henry Gray and Gwen Staples, who defeated Springville in the semi-finals and will therefore compete against Knox Church in the final debate of the series, which will be held at Millbrook on Wednesday evening, May 4.

Ken Kidd presided and Leitha Edworthy was timekeeper. The decision was left with the listeners, and was rather indefinite. Rev. A. L. Sisco offered some constructive criticism at the conclusion.

Soft music, with Marie Douglas at the piano, introduced the worship service, which was in charge of Eleanor Bigelow, missionary convenor, those assisting, besides the leader who gave the talk, being Dorothy Sisco, who read the lesson, Beatrice Fallis and Della Mae Sisco, who gave three worship poems, and Eleanor, who offered the concluding prayer.

The president, B. B. Dawson, announced an executive meeting at the home of Mrs. T. Douglas on Friday evening, when arrangements will be made for the visit of the Cobourg Y.P.U., and the trip of the local young people to Bethany; also final details for the "interest groups" which will carry on their series during May. Recreation and the usual closing completed an interesting meeting.

Catfish Go Moving On Turtles

HAMILTON, Ont., April 28—(CP)—The fishing and fish story season is here. . . But that could have no possible connection with Tom Barnes' story of what happened when the Brant House pond was filled in to make way for the highway, burying turtles and catfish. They managed to wriggle out. Catfish showed their good judgment by thumbing rides," said Barnes. "When a turtle came along, you'd see four or five catfish on its back."

ACTIVE DESPITE LOSS BOTH LEGS

WINNIPEG, April 28 (CP).—Betty Plexman, who for 11 of her 13 years has worn artificial legs, plays and dances just like other children and can skip and ride a bicycle.

The smiling, fair-haired girl has been obliged to undergo painful operations periodically, but she has never permitted her handicap to interfere with her desire for a normal active life.

Eleven years ago, when she was just past her second birthday, she found a penny in her yard, bought a peppermint stick at the corner grocery and was returning across the street when she fell beneath a street-car's wheels. Both legs were severed near the knees.

Her father, Karl Plexman, told a reporter her playmates rarely teased her nowadays. But at one time when they did she had used a stout wooden foot to kick them soundly.

She is a girl guide, second class and when she grows up she plans to be a school teacher. Her dancing up to date has been of the ballroom variety, but she intends to take up the strenuous Polish folk dances.

WHERE ALPINISTS WILL MEET

Photos, Canadian National Railways

WITH members from many foreign countries attending, the Alpine Club of Canada will pitch its 53rd annual camp at the foot of Mount Athabaska, (shown above) in the Columbia Icefield, Jasper National Park, Alberta, July 16-30. For the first time in history this great spectacular region of the Rockies is accessible by motor, the new highway between Jasper Park Lodge and the Columbia Icefield making possible in a few hours, a journey that used to take 10 days by trail. The Columbia Icefield is world-famous for its glaciers and peaks. Seven mountains in the area rise higher than 11,000 feet. The tallest is Mount Columbia, 12,294 feet, a climb to the top of which will be a club objective. The picture at the side shows a typical alpinist on the crest of a peak.

TOP FINANCIERS PLEDGE EFFORTS TO AID BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—A pledge by 16 top-ranking industrialists and financierr to cooperate with United States administration efforts to aid business created a dramatic prelude for President Roosevelt's conference today with Henry Ford.

Many observers predicted their promise of assistance in restoring "confidence and normal business conditions," apparently inspired by Mr. Roosevelt's recent "fireside chat," would help clear the way for a new period of teamwork between government and big business.

There was a prospect that Mr. Roosevelt would invite the signers, including Owen D. Young, General Electric chairman, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, to confer with him at an early date.

Ford, who has been at odds with administration policies more often that he has approved them, was scheduled to meet with the president for an informal luncheon.

Also invited to the conference were Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; Edsel Ford, son of the motor magnate and president of the Ford Motor Company, and W. J. Cameron, public relations counsel for the company.

Mr. Roosevelt said they would discuss economics. It was generally understood that this broad topic included methods proposed by the president in an effort to end the recession.

Claims Wondering Brings Progress

WINDSOR, Ont., April 28 (CP).—Youth is an irresistible force, overcoming all obstacles, Dr. Sherwood Fox, president of the University of Western Ontario, told graduates of Assumption College, Holy Name College, and alumni of Assumption here last night.

Contending that adults have been painting too sombre a picture for the youth of today because of the recent depression, Dr. Fox asked that college graduates have a more cheerful outlook on life. He said that a graduate was likely to "take himself too solemnly."

"I prescribe for you, male or female, periodic doses of 'Alice in Wonderland,'" he said. "It's a sugar-coated antidote."

"All human progress is the result of wondering," he added. "Practice wondering on every phenomenom you see and practice wondering on nature we see about us. It will expand your mind and give you a feeling of release."

Boycott Looms On Seized Oil

LONDON, April 28—(AP)—The British government in effect to-day advocated a boycott of oil taken from wells expropriated by Mexico from British companies until the question of those properties is settled.

Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, disclosed this stand in replying to a question in the House of Commons. In a brief written answer to Robert Gibson, Labor, who asked for a statement on the oil controversy, Mr. Butler said: "In view of the recent notes addressed by His Majesty's government to the Mexican government requesting restoration of expropriated British oil properties, the marketing of oil from these properties by British subjects of companies could in the present circumstances be only a matter of embarrassment to His Majesty's government."

Former U.S. Submarine In Canadian Waters

Moving slowly into its dock in Toronto harbor, while a crowd of spectators cheered, this submarine, the S-49, staged a peaceful invasion of Canadian waters in far different style than that for which it was planned. The submersible was a modern underwater fighting craft in 1931 and cost the United States government over $2,000,000. Then the London Naval Treaty, limiting naval and submarine tonnage came into effect and the craft had to be scrapped to meet terms of the treaty. Capt. F. J. Christenson, INSET, bought the S-49 for exhibition purposes. She is 240 feet long and one of the 10 largest submarines ever built.

Eskimo Clue May Show Grave Of Lost Russian Fliers

Claim They Saw Object Vanish In Sea—Oil Discovered In Area Later

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP).—From natives of an isolated northern Alaska village came reports yesterday indicating the Russian flier Sigismund Levanevsky and five companions may have crashed into the sea on their Moscow-California flight last August.

An army radio operator at Point Barrow, Master Sergeant Stanley Morgan, reported to the war department three Eskimos at Oliktuk, 140 miles southeast of Point Barrow, said they saw "a large object," apparently a plane, disappear beneath the waves.

They estimated the date as Aug. 19 or 20, a week after Levanevsky left Moscow. Officials familiar with the far north commented, however, that an error of several days was easily possible in a primitive land where dates are a matter of season.

Embassy Asks Search

The Soviet embassy asked the army for full information, and expressed the hope a search would be pressed.

Sir Hubert Wilkins abandoned in March an aerial search of weeks for the missing Russians. Constantine A. Oukanskyjn embassy counselor, said Soviet flyers are still seeking clues.

Morgan gained world prominence in 1935 when he reported the death of Wiley Post and Will Rogers in a crash near Point Barrow.

His message said the Oliktuk natives reported finding oil on the water where the "large object" disappeared. A week later, he said, a white trader, Jack Smith, also noticed oil on the water and made an extensive investigation.

Morgan said he and Smith made an extensve search of the nearby ice. Smith, he reported, promised to take a crew of natives and search the vicinity more carefully after the ice has broken up.

Find Baby Dying On Right Of Way

FOSTER, Que., April 28—(CP).—Provincial police began a search to-day for the mother of an infant boy, said to have been born on a Montreal-bound train and tosed on to the right-of-way where it was found dying, about 50 miles south-east of Montreal.

Police told a coroner's jury under Dr. N. Noiseau of Sutton, the child had been found by Peter Groulx as he walked along the track last Saturday. The child died before Groulx could carry it to the nearest home.

The jury returned a verdct of "death from exposure," after police gave the only testimony. The officers said it would be probably possible to trace the mother through identification marks found on the child's clothing.

BISHOP'S CORNERS HALL IS BURNED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 28.—Fire said to have resulted from sparks issuing from a passing tractor, destroyed the Orange Hall at Bishop's Corners, nc... Northbrook shortly after noon on Wednesday.

A lumber pile at the rear of the building ignited by the flames, threatened the bush land at the rear of the building. Prompt action on the part of residents of the vicinity prevented what might have developed into a serious bush fire as they passed buckets of water from a disused well to the scene of the conflagration.

Strong prevailing winds drove smoke and flames in the direction of the heavily timbered land at the rear of the burning building, giving rise to rumors that a heavy bush fire was in progress.

The fire was brought under control without any damage to the surrounding timberland.

PRESS OF BRITAIN ACCEPTS NEW TAX LEVY AS NECESSITY

LONDON, April 28 (C PCable).—The British press last night regarded Sir John Simon's budget with mixed feelings, but its taxation provisions generally were accepted as necessary.

The Times (Independent) said:

"The taxpayers' burdens...are now to be increased and there is small prospect of their being diminished except by a general agreement for the reduction or limitation of armaments, which can only come as a result of an international understanding."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) calculated that actual borrowing for defence purposes last year and this year will amount to only £126,000,000 ($630,000,000) instead of £170,000,000 provided in estimates, leaving a margin of £44,000,000 to cover supplementary estimates.

"That being so," the paper argued, "where, it may be asked, was the real necessity of saddling the already grievously oppressed taxpayer with immediate fresh burdens?"

The Daily Mail (Ind):

"By resolutely facing up to the need for national rearmament, we are taking the only course that might—if the Government's diplomacy were as firm as its finance—bring this unproductive outlay back to more reasonable proportions."

The News-Chronicle (Liberal):

"It is important to demonstrate to the world that Britain can rearm without plunging her finances into chaos. Our ability alone among the great powers to do that is our greatest strength."

Would Spread Them More

The Daily Sketch (Independent):

"Too much is being asked of this generation. We should spread the cost of defending the country more equitably between the present and the future."

The Daily Herald (Labor):

"An increase in the surtax and death duties was plainly called for ....It is a budget of a man honest and clever in small things, but without the vision of a statesman." (The surtax and death duties were not changed in the budget.)

The Manchester Guardian (Lib.):

"Sir John Simon's first budget is painful but just....The financial picture the Chancellor presents is a desperate one and calls for desperate remedies."

The Liverpool Post (Liberal):

"The present increase, coming at a moment when trade shows a tendency to recede, can hardly be exhilarating."

The Sheffield Independent (Lib.):

"The public will accept the budget as one of regrettable but unavoidable necessity, a necessity imposed by the mad rearmament race in Europe."

The Birmingham Post (Cons.):

"The colossal sum of $944,296,000 which the taxpayer is required to find could hardly be raised by means calculated to inflict less hardship than the Chancellor actually is inflicting."

The Bristol Press (Independent):

"Of three blows the Chancellor inflicted that directed against the income taxpayer will be the most acutely resented and the most grievously felt."

Tourist Association Of Muskoka Asks For Establishment Of National Park

OTTAWA, April 28 (CP).—Establishment of a national park in the Muskoka district of Ontario was proposed in a resolution sent the Dominion Government by the Muskoka Tourist Development Association in 1937. The resolution was tabled in the House of Commons on Monday at the request of T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview), who asked for all correspondence on the subject.

A letter from the Department of Mines and Resources in reply stated the Dominion could not consider a national park proposal until the Ontario Government offered a suitable park site free of all encumbrances. Should such an offer be made it would receive consideration.

Narrowly Escapes Death In Bombing

WINNIPEG, April 28 — (CP). — Miraculous escape from death in Shanghai during a bombing raid was reported by R. Montague-Smith, British business man in an interview here. Head of the Shanghai branch of Imperial Chemical Industries, he is on his way to England.

A 1,000-pound bomb exploded 30 feet from the car in which he was riding. He was wounded by flying bits of shrapnel, 52 pieces of which still remain in his body. His right eye was destroyed, his arm shattered, and his clothes and hair literally blown off, he said.

Oddly enough, Mr. Montague-Smith said, his hair had been growing thin and after its removal by the explosion it gerw in again thick and firm.

"The only thing that was left on me after the bombing was my watch which is still going," he related. "I was driving along Avenue Edward VII which was thronged with panic-stricken refugees. Suddenly I saw a pillar of orange flame burst in front of my wind-shield. The car in front of me disappeared in smoke. The whole street became a river of blood. Later they took up 1,400 corpses.

"There was an extraordinary silence after the bomb fell and then the awful moaning of the wounded. At the time I didn't know I was hurt at all. I got out of the car because I saw that al lthe other cars were on fire. The next thing I remember I was lying on the road."

MUCH FIGHT LEFT IN SPAIN'S ARMY

TORONTO, April 28 — (CP). — The International Brigade with its Canadian MacKenzie - Papineau Battalion is probably the best body of troops the Spanish government possesses, says C. S. Forester, British novelist who has watched the civil war on both sides.

Forester declared his belief that despite the success of General Franco's spring offensive the government army is far from being on its last legs. He said the republicans are improving steadily in both training and equipment.

As former medical student, Forester has joined the growing group of novelists who foresook medicine for letters. His latest book "A Ship of the Line," just published, has been acclaimed by critics as an able historical romance of a British warship of the Napoleonic period operating in Spanish waters. He got the local color on his tour as a war correspondent in Spain.

"I couldn't pass the medical exams so I took up the easier job of writing books," Forester explained laughing. In deserting the pestle for the pen, Forester followed the lead of Somerset Maugham, A. J. Cronin and Francis Brett Young. The writer, an authority on Napoleonic history, said British seapower in the Mediterranean which began with Nelson's victory at the Nile now is undergoing an eclipse.

"In the event of war with Italy, we should lose control of the sea and Malta would have to stand a siege. It probably could be won back later but a large fleet of minesweeping and other auxiliary craft would be needed and it would take time to assemble them and bring them into the Mediterranean."

KEEP YOUR FAITH MASONS ARE TOLD

KINGSTON, Ont., April 28 (C. P.). — Speaking to-day at the 80th annual convocation of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Canada, W. Y. Mills of Kingston, Grand First Principal, in his presidential address, said that under dictatorships, the lamps of freedom and happiness are burning but dimly in many countries.

"Armed aggression and annexation are becoming commonplace incidents," he said. "With strife in Palestine, a land steeped in Masonic tradition, war in China, with Japan earnestly believing in the threat of the godless Communism, Spain's very life being destroyed by Civil War with Franco bombing helpless women and children in the guise of the protector of Christianity. What church, what religion, which nation can justify his ruthless brutalities? Looking everywhere the price of righteousness seems high and the prospects discouraging. Only in the great democracies and especially in our great Empire, and in that country with whom we share this continent, does freedom and calmness still prevail. The survival of justice and liberty, it seems, can only be preserved by war or by prodigious preparations for war.

"In these troubled times we cannot and must not lose faith notwithstanding the departure of much of the world from the high ideals of Truth Will Prevail.

"Truth is mighty and it will prevail; 'Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, goodwill towards men,' must continue to be our watchwords and Divinely-guided desires.

"Masonry stands for peace, freedom and goodwill, but not for peace at any price. The criminal must be restrained and that is best effected by the knowledge of power ever ready to resist any attempt to subvert the peace and good order of society. Freemasons are pledged to observe the laws of the country in which they live, to render obedience to properly constituted authority, to subdue evil passions, and to strive to excel in all that is good and great."

Grand First Principal Mills paid tribute to all those who hold office in the Grand Chapter. In the discharge of their duties, he said, they have all been zealous and loyal.

ARCTIC EXPERTS DODGE ICE FLOES IN FRAGILE CANOE

MOOSONEE, Ont., April 28 (CP). —A hazardous canoe trip across a turbulent ice-choked river, dodging huge ice cakes that ever threatened destruction to the frail craft, is "nothing new" to George Macleod who spent the past winter in the bleak wastes of the western Arctic.

The Arctic musher, with Fred Gunner, Jimmie Glenesk and Robert Linklater, spent 3½ hours on Little Butler Island in the Moose river, a mile from this James Bay port late yesterday. The men were stranded on the island when the ice broke up as they were crossing the wide strem from Moose Factory.

The last mile required an hour's trying padling among the ice that at times, Gunner said, "lifted our canoe out of the water." All Linklater could see "was ice all around us," but to the jaunty Macleod the trip "was not dangerous for a fellow with my experience," He added: "I just came from the western Arctic where we trod a lot of moving ice. This is nothing new for me."

The quartet set out by dog team, carrying a canoe. As the ice broke up without warning they took to the water, paddling along "leads" in the ice. The dogs made their own way to shore. Landing on Butler Island, the men waited until lopen water made paddling again possible. But before making their way safely to shore it was necessary to haul the canoe over 40 feet of rough ice to launch it in open water.

FASCISTS RESENT BAN UPON RALLY

MONTREAL, April 28 (CP). — Eugene Ravel, secretary-treasurer of suburban Town of Mount Royal, said last night a permit for a meeting of the National Social Christian Party in the Town Hall on Thursday had been cancelled.

The permit, granted to the Fascist group by the Town Council, was revoked after the Citizens' Association had protested its issuance by resolution. The Town Hall is the only place in Mount Royal available for large meetings.

Aside from announcing cancellation, Ravel refused to comment.

Adrien Arcand, Quebec Fascist chief, said he found it "very strange" that the hall had been refused his organization after Tim Buck, Communist leader, had been allowed to speak there. He asserted the original permit had been granted under a unanimous Council vote, but had been cancelled "without the same unanimous vote."

He saw in the incident "a very proof that something must necessarily be done for our freedom in Canada, and we Fascists are going to do it."

Wolf Stops Train On Lindsay Line

LINDSAY, Ont, April 28 (CP).—There's a new menace to train schedules on the Lindsay-Bobcaygeon run, Canadian Pacific Railway men declare. At that, it's a little reminiscent of pioneer railroading.

The train was brought to a screaming stop near Ancona yesterday when a wolf loomed up on the track with fangs bared. He stood his ground until the crew peppered him with coal and even when the train moved on the wolf loped alongside for several miles.

Prevalence of deer was believed to have attracted wolves.

SEYMOUR WEST

MRS. F. McCULLOCH HEADS INSTITUTE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — Mrs. Fred McCulloch was elected president of the Seymour West Women's Institute at their meeting held at the home of Mrs. Howard Clark on Thursday afternoon when officers for the next term were voted on. Fifty-two members responded to the roll call "A Helpful Idea for Saturday," and during the business session Misses Irene Curle and Beatrice Rutherford were chosen delegates to attend the annual girls' convention which will be held in the Guelph Agricultural College in May.

Permission was granted to the Clark's Cemetery Board to take money from the society's Cemetery Fund in order to make repairs to some of the tombstones, and following the election of officers Misses Margaret McCulloch and Irene Curle gave a demonstration of home-made candy, and the hostesses Mrs. G. Curle, Mrs. Robert Waddell, Mrs. Art. Russell, and Mrs. Charles Dunn, served a delightful lunch.

The officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Fred McCulloch; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Fred Rutherford ;2nd vice-president, Mrs. Frank McKelvie; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. David Durran; secetary-treasurer, Miss Vera Clark.

Place Rugs.

The two rugs donated by the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Church had been duly placed in the church auditorium, according to the report of the vice-president, Mrs. M. McFarlane, at the meeting held on Monday evening, when it was arranged to hold a Mother's Day tea in the basement of the church on May 2. It was suggested that each member should be in charge of a table and invite four guests for the occasion. Miss Jean Hendy was in charge of the program, in which Harold Dunk gave an illustrated lecture on the History of St. Andrew's Church. Campbellford, and of Warkworth Presbyterian Church. Following this Rev. B. Simpson Black offered a few interesting remarks to supplement Mr. Dunk's lecture.

CUPID'S VICTIMS RUSHING TO BEAT NEW HEALTH LAW

PROVIDENCE, April 28—(AP).—Hundreds of young couples rushed to marriage bureaus in Rhode Island yesterday to beat the new state blood test law to the gun, and those June brides and grooms planning elopments to states without such laws learned there was a catch to that, too.

Dr. Edward A. McLaughlin, State Director of Public Health, issued regulations covering operation of the new law starting on Thursday which made it clear that persons going to Massachusetts or other states to get married can't come back to Rhode Island to live for six months—unless they submit to the Wasserman test.

Should such couples return and be tested, however, he said, discovery of a venereal disease in either person will not act as nullification of the marriage performed outside of the state.

Ontario Regiment To Train At Borden

OSHAWA, April 28.—The Ontario Regiment (Tank) will go to camp this year at Camp Borden instead of Niagara-on-the-Lake as in previcus years. This announcement was made yesterday by Lt.-Col. E. Pearson, officer commanding.

"We expected to be under canvas from the first until the sixth of August. During that time we will have tanks for active training with staff officers acting as instructors," Col. Pearson stated.

Arrangements have also been made to have practices with the Vickers machine gun at the Port Hope rifle ranges every Saturday afternoon. This week the regiment commenced active spring training with 150 all ranks turning out for the initial parade.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend, Natalie, who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbara about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. Garry begins to make excuses that keep him from seeing so much of Barbara, but the latter doesn't suspect . enda, the actress, is taking up so much of Garry's time. Then an evening came when she observed that something definitely was wrong. Barbara's world crashes when Garry tells her he has fallen in love with Wenda. Later Jack Metcalf, an author friend calls at Barbara's apartment. Barbara goes alone to Natalie's wedding. Garry is there and he talks of the opening of his play. Barbara's remorse grows.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 22

His own play, and she would not be seeing it with him—

"I'll watch for you that night," he was concluding the conversation. Then he grinned. "This is one time I'll be there early!"

RIDING back to her office, after Natalie's wedding, Barbara consoled herself with the thought that she had nothing new about which to feel badly. It did not help. Garry, in the flesh, had made the wound throb anew. She reminded herself that work was greater than love; that it stayed with you; and forthwith began a new series of fairy tales. The winged cow wouldn't fly, though, and the speckled pig kept losing his roller skates, and the kitten's tale got tangled in a red hoop.

She counted the days until Garry's New York opening. It would link her to him again. It would break her heart, too, but that didn't matter.

While she waited Peter — her tousled, beloved young managing editor at Martinsville — dropped in one day. He came to her office in the late afternoon.

"Peter!" Her eyes and mouth flew upward, and her hands went out to him. "Oh, I didn't know anyone could! be so glad to see another!"

Peter had a new suit and overcoat. His face, rugged and homely, smiled down at her.

"Busy tonight?" he asked presently.

She shook her head. She banished that throb of quick pain which came because there had been a time when she was busy every night.

"Of course not! I want to see you a lot, Peter."

Peter had come on to sign a book contract. Moreover, his story was to be serialized. He was modest about it.

"My friends will all be famous," Barbara said. "Garry's play, your book — I'm ashamed I can write nothing but animal tales."

More than once Barbara played with the idea of going back to Martinsville with Peter. She had tasted love and adventure. It might be good to go home. Home? She remembered, then, that there was no where to go but a boarding rouse. No, home now was the Ninth street apartment. Garry had been there. She didn't want to leave it.

One evening she took Peter to dinner at Ruth's. "He's a dear and you'll like him." she said. "Be nice to him, especially nice, won't you, Ruth?"

"Garry's a nitwit," Ruth answered. "Some day he's going to wake up and be ashamed, of himself. By that time he'll probably have encircled that blonde pretender's finger with a diamond circlet. Barbara, why don't you try to get him back?"

When Barbara stood still, only staring down at the lights on the bridges that swung against the dark sky, Ruth said: "No, you couldn't do that. Love comes and goes unbidden. Like mercury. If you try to hold it, it sleps away. But some day it won't matter too much. Believe me, Barbara."

"I know."

Some day I can ask him about his health and wonder if he was always fleshy because I won't remember any more! Ruth might talk to be kind. She knew that always she would be watching for the rough-edged hair and that lean profile; that it would be years before she could hear another say the words that had been strangely his; that she would start at dear, familiar laughter, only to find it came from someone else. And what if she did find Garry in a crowd All she could say would be: "Garry, you are looking well."

And he would answer: "Thanks, Barbara. What are you doing these days?" But he would not even listen to her answer because it would matter so little to him.

When Peter announced that he had been monopolizing her entirely too much and intended to give her a free evening, she was rather sorry. She had come to depend on him.

"But, Peter, I like to be with you!" she said.

But he insisted. It was from Ruth she discovered where Peter was going.

"He's taking me to dinner." Ruth said. "Peter is awfully sweet, Barbara."

"I know it." There was a catch in her throat for a moment. "He's somebody special."

A day or two later Ruth telephoned again. "Barbara, are you by any chance taking Peter to Garry's opening? My seats came today and I thought if you aren't, I'd like to ask him."

"That's lovely, Ruth. I'm glad. I'll get Natalie."

When she reached home Barbara hurried to her mail box. The opening was the next night and she had been watching eagerly for the mail. She pulled out three envelopes—a bill, an advertisement for cold cream, a note fron an old school friend. She ran her hand around in the dark box. There was nothing more in it.

Maybe the mailmen were later with deliveries downtown than uptown. Yes, that must be it! Her seats would come in the morning. She did not want to telephone Natalie and ask her to go along, but she could not sit in the orchestra alone. She had been waiting for the seats to come before she telephoned. True, Garry might be remembering Natalie and Basil, too, or they might have other plans. She would have to risk it.

The seats had not come by morning, and though she hurried home at noon, just to peer into the mail box, it was empty.

Surely, surely, they would arrive that afternoon! Yet she knew that Garry had forgotten before she put her hand into the empty box. So she mattered so little he could mail seats to others, and never miss her name on his list! With deeper import than she had known before, she realized how little importance he attached to her now. She trembled a little and was amazed because anger, not hurt, prompted it. Let him give their memories to the ragman! She hated him! She would work tonight. Work, work, work—it became a chant that carried her up the stairs.

She drew the blinds against the night, changed to the brown and yellow lounging pajamas, made a cup of hot chocolate and some toast, and settled down to work. Now the winged cow went charging gaily over the roof of the Empire State building on the way to the moon; the speckled pig roller skated down the avenue, and did an Irish jig when the light turned red; the kitten rolled a steady hoop.

Work was greater than love. Oh, yes, it was! The poets all were goofy! But now and then she raised her head because dimly, in the distance, she imagined strains of applause and caught the radiance of a lighted stage and a darkened, waiting house. Peter and Ruth were there. So were Basil and Natalie, probably. The circle had closed again, and left her out. Then she wrote more madly.

At a quarter after 11 she looked up, wide-eyed and flushed. Her story was done and she knew that it was good. Uptown the third act would be coming to a close. Wenda would be taking a bow. So would Garry. The critics would go back to their offices and pretty soon the morning papers would carry the story of the goodness or the badness of drama that carried Garry's hopes and prayers and happiness.

He never would know that she had not seen it. He would not remember that he had forgotten to send her seats. Maybe, some time in an off moment he might wonder why she had not written him a note, never realizing the fault was his. Or—maybe he wouldn't care.

The telephone rang and she picked up the receiver. "Yes?"

It was Ruth. "Honey, how did you get home so soon? You must have grabbed the first cab. We've been looking everywhere for you."

Pride kept her tongue silent. She couldn't tell Ruth and Peter that Garry had forgotten her.

Ruth was plunging on. "There's a party, Barbara, in Garry's honor. It's a good play, isn't it? His producer is having a party but he's coming to ours for a little while. Can you come up to my house right away, or shall I send the car for you?"

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—My particular case is that of a 30-year-old wife with a 40-year-old husband, no children, married three years. My husband and I both work. Neither gets a large salary, but our combined income enables us to rent a five-room house in the suburbs, pay on a car and furniture and save money. I do all of the housework. My husband is of the moody type, has to be continually bolstered up and encouraged and flattered to hold him to his position, which he is always threatening to give up. To tell the truth, some days I am so tired myself I feel I should be the one to get the encouragement and the pat on the head. But I skip it and try not to be too out of patience. The lot of the wife who works outside of the home is not an easy one. How can she be a successful wife and keep a contented husband?

F. T.

Answer:

I'll say the lot of the woman who has not only to fry the bacon but also bring home her share of it is a hard one. She has not only to do two women's work, which is a burden the good Lord never intended to be laid on any wife's back, but she also has to contend with all the problems that the purely domestic woman has to solve in dealing with a husband, and then plenty more that rise out of the unnatural situation in which she is placed.

There is no denying that in the scheme of things it was designed that the husband should be the breadwinner and the wife should make and keep the home. That division of labor gave each one plenty to do. Unfortunately, however, under present economic conditions it is often necessary, as in your case, for the wife to help make the dough as well as bake it. So far very few men seem to be big enough and just enough to realize how hard this is on the wife and to help work out an equable adjustment of their problem.

There are, of course, exceptions to the rule, but the great majority of husbands do not seem to appreciate that for a woman to held down two jobs puts her under a physical and nervous strain that only one with an iron constitution can stand. She must begin the day under high pressure. Rush through getting the breakfast and doing a little slapdash cleaning up. Hurry to the office or store. Give every ounce of strength and vitality to her work. Hasten home, stopping on the way to buy the food for the evening meal.

Then, tired and worn out by all she has been through, she must clean up the house, cook the dinner and do the thousand chores that it takes to make a comfortable home. She has no time for rest or relaxation or amusement, without which any woman is bound to go to pieces sooner or later.

Now and then, as I have said, there is a husband who helps his wife with the housework as she helps him with supporting the home, but most men just take all of the wife's extra work as they take her extra help for granted. They sit and read the paper while she stews over the stove. They step out for a game of pool after dinner while she washes the dishes, makes the beds and sweeps the floors. They scorn woman's work, and it never occurs to them that she is doing a man's work as well as a woman's work. What a rotten deal they are giving her.

All husbands have to be handled with care, but the woman who works outside of the home must use velvet gloves when she deals with hers, because the very fact that he isn't making enough to support the family makes him supersensitive. He is always looking for a slight and ready to take offense at any criticism, and he is determined to keep his wife in her place and make her cook, clean and wait on him just as much as if he paid all the bills.

Personally, I do not think that any woman who works outside of the house should work in it. I think that those couples where both husband and wife are money earners should live in some comfortable boarding house or hotel. It would save many a working wife from wrecked health and a premature death. It would give her a chance to enjoy life and she would find it easier to get along with her husband if she was not always a bundle of nerves from overwork.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a daughter 17 who will graduate soon from high school. Her girl friends are all planning to go to college and, of course, she also wants to go, and has been looking forward to doing so. But she has never been a student or shown an especial ability or talent in any line. Neither has she ever shown any affection for us or her brother, but rather the lack of it, to such an extent that her father and I have been very much hurt. We are people in moderate circumstances and her father feels that she does not deserve any further sacrifice from us and should be made to go out and earn her living. What should we do?

A WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer:

For the last few years the presidents of a number of the large universities have been urging parents not to send their children to college who are not college material. They say that it is not only a waste of time and money to send boys and girls to college who are not students by nature, who have no love of learning, no desire for culture, no interest in intellectual pursuits; that it is a positive detriment to them, because they acquire idle and extravagant habits, waste the years in which they might be learning some useful trade and fitting themselves to be self-supporting.

I think there are no more pathetic tragedies than those of the parents who have worked their fingers to the bone and gone without the food and medical attention they needed to send boys and girls to college who loafed their way through it and came home with nothing but a college yell and a feeling of superiority to their old fathers and mothers.

I think your husband is exactly right in refusing to make a martyr of himself for this girl, who only wants to go to college because all the other girls are doing it and she thinks it is the smart thing to do. Spend what money you can afford in having her taught some way to make a living and put her on her own.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a boy of 18, in love with love. I can be crazy about one girl one day and another one the next, and I can change from one to another without a heartbreak. There must be a remedy for this. What is it?

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SLAM BANG

"Come on!" called Uncle Wiggily to his wife as he opened the door of the playhouse where he had been making funny faces at himself in the looking glass. "Come on, my dear!"

"Where?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"To help me look for some play dishes," said the rabbit. "This may sound very silly to you," he went on, looking doubtfully at his wife. "Very, very silly, I fear."

"Not at all!" she answered most graciously. "If you are in a playhouse of course you need play dishes or things won't come out right, Wiggy."

"I'm so glad you feel that way about it," said the rabbit gentleman. "I just need to get off by myself for a while and play a bit."

"Of course. Every one does," said Mrs. Longears.

"Would you like me to build a playhouse for you?" he asked. "And perhaps one for Nurse Jane."

No Need To Hunt

"Oh, no," laughed Mrs. Longears. "Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy and I have enough to do in the hollow stump bungalow. We have no time for playhouses. We go to the movies."

"Oh, that's all right then," went on Uncle Wiggily. "And now for some play dishes. You will help me find them."

"Let's get Nurse Jane, too," proposed the lady rabbit.

"Of course," agreed Uncle Wiggily. So they called Nurse Jane away from her work in the kitchen where she was tickling the sink with the dish rag.

"Play dishes!" exclaimed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Why, you don't need to hunt them, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Why not?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Because there is an old set of play dishes in the bungalow that Jingle and Jangle had when they were little. A few of the cups are cracked and one plate is broken but—"

"Oh, you mean real play dishes!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course. Why not?" asked the muskrat lady.

"I would rather have play dishes that I find," said Uncle Wiggily. "You know, the sort you found when you were little."

"Oh, now I know," said Nurse Jane. "You mean clam shells and oyster shells and pieces of red, white and blue glass and sand for sugar and little pebbles for raisins and currants in mud pies and all that sort of thing. Is that it, Mr. Longears?"

Dish Search

"That's it!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "So now we three can hop over the fields and through the woods to look for play dishes."

Soon Mr. Longears, his wife and Nurse Jane were happily skipping along. Nurse Jane found a clam shell. Mrs. Longears found an oyster shell. Uncle Wiggily found some broken bits of real dishes—parts of cups, saucers and plates with some red, white and blue glass that was very pretty.

"Oh, I shall have a fine lot of play dishes now!" he shouted joyfully. "I can even give a party."

"So you can—in the playhouse," said his wife.

"If the playhouse is large enough for me I will wait on table," promised Nurse Jane.

"I'll build the playsouse larger," promised Uncle Wiggily. "Now we must take these shell and other play dishes to the playhouse."

All went well until Uncle Wiggily was hopping into his playhouse with the play dishes when, all of a sudden, he stumbled and fell and went down slam bang with a crash that could be heard all over!

"Oh! Oh! I have broken all my play dishes!" cried the rabbit gentleman.

But cheer up. Things are not as bad as they seem. And if the next Christmas tree doesn't start blinking its red and green lights to stop all cars, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's play party.

FAKING AN ECHO

A HIGH-LOW echo on your partner's king and ace leads against a suit contract informs him that you expect to take the third trick. It also tells the declarer the same story. Therein lies your occasional chance to put over a "fast one" on him, if the dummy has a doubleton in the suit. You may then be able to tempt him into using a high trump from the dummy which sets up a trump trick for your partner.

	♠ Q 8 ♥ K Q 10 9 8 6 3 ♦ A ♣ Q J 7

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

After a heart bid by South, West overcalled with 2-Clubs, and North put in a bid of 2-Diamonds. South responded with 2-Hearts, North 2-Spades, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

When West led the club K, East reasoned that, in order to set the contract, they needed, besides two tricks in clubs, two others. He therefore played the 10 on the first trick and the 2 on the second. West led a third club, and as South also felt sure that East could ruff, he trumped the trick with dummy's A.

East's foresight saved the day for his side, for the play enabled West to cash a trump trick, which, in addition to the spade A and two club tricks, set South one trick.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

More National Outlook Is Urged By President Of Daughters of the Empire

A more National outlook with realization of the place the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire holds holds in every community, and every province, and in the Dominion as a whole, and that the aims and objects of the order be kept continually before every chapter, was urged by Mrs. W. G. Lumbers, National I.O.D.E. president, who was a distinguished and gracious guest of honor at a dinner attended by over one hundred members of the local Chapters in the Empress Hotel Wednesday evening.

Mrs. F. E. Hooper, member of the provincial executive, presided, and also at the head table were the five regents of the Peterborough Chapters, Mrs. R. E. Clarke, of the 57th Regiment Chapter, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, of the Otonabee Chapter, Mrs. I. H. Keefer of the Peter Robinson Chapter, Miss Anne Heideman of the Jeannette Scott Chapter, and Miss Anna MacKenzie of the Major Bennett Chapter.

The toast to the King was proposed by Mrs. Robinson, and to the Order by Miss Anna MacKenzie. Mrs. Hooper introduced the guest of honor, mentioning that it was the first time a member of the National executive much less the National President had been present on such an occasion in the city. At the close of Mrs. Lumber's address, Miss Anne Heideman expressed the sincere appreciation and thanks of the Chapters in whose behalf she presented the National President with a basket of red roses.

During the evening Miss Margaret Dickson sang three lovely solos, "L'ete" (Chaminade), "My Heart is Like a Singing Bird" (Pary) and as an encore, "Will o' the Wisp" (Spross).

In expressing her pleasure at being present Mrs. Lumbers stressed the happiness and well being her duties bring her, and urged all who have an opportunity to take office in the Order to do so "for you will find you gain far more than you give."

Organization's Beginning

The National President traced a brief outline of the origin and history of this great order which came into being through the urge of a few women to help the soldiers during the South African war. "I always feel we owe the organization of the order as much to Mrs. John Black of Fredericton as to Mrs. Clarke Murray, the founder, for when Mrs. Murray had become discouraged in the face of great difficulties Mrs. Black had organized and started the work of the first chapter." Educational and child welfare work were the Order's chief activities for a number of years, before 1914, and when the Great War came a body of women was ready to step in and fill splendidly the need that opened to them. "No other organization had quite the opportunity to do or did the work of the Daughters of the Empire," said the speaker. After the war a number of the chapters naturally disbanded, but younger women were inspired to carry on, and the Order has remained practically the same as far as chapters are concerned. During the last few years a most successful drive for new members has been undertaken. "It is much more necessary for us to be prepared now if called on than it was in 1914." said Mrs. Lumbers.

"When we think of the educational work that has been done and of the number of students sent overseas we should be proud of our part," continued the National President, and spoke of Tom Allen, the Ontario winner of the I.O.D.E. War Memorial Post-Graduate Overseas Scholarship. "I was so very pleased to meet him," she said, "and you should be very proud of him."

Work In Remote Areas

The work of the I.O.D.E. in the western and northern parts of the Dominion was spoken of. "In the cities we cannot realize the isolation that exists in parts of Saskatchewan especially and in Alberta, and the difficulties the people have been through." The Saskatchewan provincial president has spent most of the past three years travelling under great hardships throughout the province and is accomplishing a splendid work. Eleven new chapters have been organized in Saskatchewan where the women travel many miles to attend meetings, and can as yet only pay their dues, but they are and will be a wonderful help to the order. The I.O.D.E. is also accomplishing educational work among the northern communities where the population is largely foreign born. Mrs. Lumbers spoke also of the ceremonies in the City Hall at Toronto when groups of people receive their naturalization papers and also greeting cards from the I.O.D.E. with whom they keep in touch. "You would be amazed how few appeals we receive for help and how many communications speaking of the pride of the newly naturalized citizens," she said.

"I do think we ought to be very careful to look into the sentiments of the youth of our country today" continued Mrs. Lumbers, and spoke of the Youth Council in Toronto which is the result of older men taking an interest in a group of dissatisfied unemployed young people who came to the city council with their complaints. "There are Communists and Fascists in the Youth Council, but there are also church groups, Y.W.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. groups and artists' organizations, and many other young people who are interested, not in Communism, but vitally interested in the whole welfare of youth today", said the speaker, and urged her audience to keep a watchful eye on the youth organization. "But if you hear of them being controlled by Communists, it does not necessarily follow" she said, and spoke of the small influence they have in the Toronto Youth Council, but urged the members of the I.O.D.E. Chapters to spread imperialism as much as lies in their power among the young people with whom they come in touch.

Speaking of the aims and objects of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, the National president stressed that they be kept always before the members. "If we feel the order is worth belonging to and working for, we must have a national outlook, as well as provincial, and municipal. Every primary chapter should take into consideration that we are one big family of women across Canada, and the standing of one community effects the standing of another community. It may seem as though the National Head Office is a long way removed, and there is the temptation to disregard the literature sent to the primary chapter, but it is all important, and we are anxious to help at all times, and want to feel in closer touch with you." Before closing her address, Mrs. Lumbers paid tribute to the work of Mrs. F. E. Hooper in the provincial executive to which she has contributed much.

PRINTED SILK SUITS SAY IT WITH POSIES, GAY HUES

Printed silk crepe ensemble with white cotton batiste blouse, worn with French beret of grapes and leaves.

Flower printed silk suit and cardigan jacket with felt bands, Watteau hat trimmed with flowers and veil.

Watteau and Gay Nineties Influences Are Important

By LISBETH

NATURE says it is spring with posies blossoming, green grass and the singing of birds.

Women say it with gay costumes—dresses that flaunt bright colors, hats with flowers and flying ribbons and veils.

Newest skirts are circular or with fullness introduced with all-around plets, sometimes confined at the hipline, but free lowed down to swing in the breeze. Waists are smaller, hips are definitely in the picture, according to the latest Paris silhouette. At the same time there is a decided trend toward a lowered waistline.

We see smart versions of this trend in easy fitted, sweater-like silk jackets worn over trim tailored silk dresses with pleated skirts, like the model at the right above. This costume is made in flower printed silk with a cardigan jacket that has bright blue felt bands. Note the short sleeves of the jacket and the neatly fitted air, reminiscent of the gay nineties.

Windbreaker Jacket

This suit has a stitched, pleated skirt, and the windbreaker jacket of the same material can be buttoned to the throat, loops instead of buttonholes being used. A white cotton batiste blouse is worn with this suit.

A French beret completely made of grapes and leaves in the tones of the dress has been chosen to complete this ensemble.

Lingerie touches are favorite trimmings on silk print dresses and suits as well as on plain, sheer silk dresses.

To complete ensembles smart women favor silk coats, as indorsed by Paris. They are seen in silk alpaca, grosgrain or marocain. They feature usually soft dressmaker details and fitted lines. One model shown that goes far in transforming dresses into distinguished costumes, has pushed-up sleeves and vertical tucks forming a fitted waistline.

Rustic weaves hold great interest in plain silks. Elizabeth Hawes has designed a long-sleeved, peasant type of rock in one of these new weaves, with high surplice closing and circular skirt set off with a gaily striped girdle. An unusual feature of this ensemble is the matching sleeveless, full-length box coat. There are many other interesting versions.

Fold in the stiffly beaten whites then sift in remaining flour mixture and mix just barely enough to blend all. Bake in buttered layer cake tins at 375 deg. Fahr. In the meantime make Date Filling: Stone 1 cup dates, and to it add ½ cup water and 2 tablespoons sugar, put over low heat and stir when it gets hot—to prevent scorching—and cook until it will spread between layers.

The Misses Mary and Annie Deyell lent their charming home at 185 Crescent Street for the meeting of the study group of St. James' W.M.S., which took the form of an interesting review evening for the final study of the book, "A New Church Faces a New World."

Much information has been acquired regarding the extensive work being carried on by our missionaries both at home and in the foreign fields.

Liquor Interests Overcome Ban On Advertising

"Can we expect the church to undo on Sunday morning what the beverage rooms do on Saturday night" demanded Rev. Dr. Geo. A. Little in his challenging address to the temperance forces of Peterborough in George Street United Church last night. Brought to the city under the auspices of the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Dr. Little was assisted and supported by representatives of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, with Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of the church conducting the opening devotional service.

For the lesson Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe read from 1 Thess 4 and prayer was offered by Adjutant Warrander.

An especially fine musical program provided by George Street United S.S. orchestra was greatly appreciated was as the solo "O Love that Will Not Let Me Go," contributed by Miss Phyllis Rome.

In introducing the speaker, Mrs. Harold Rehill, president of the local W.C.T.U. referred to her organization as one of the largest organized groupsof women in the world—both national and international, and gave a very urgent invitation for every women not already a member to join.

Lauds W.C.T.U.

Dr. Little also lauded the W.C.T.U. and its work and spoke of it as a great sisterhood which is positive in its social results.

The recent advertising in local newspapers on "Why concentrate on beer?" aroused the ire of the temperance advocate, who voiced in no uncertain words many reasons for this concentration on beer. One of the chief of these was the great increase in motor accidents in which the driver involved had been drinking beer. Excerpts from court cases were read in support of this statement.

"The present system of liquor administration is the worst Ontario has ever had" said Dr. Little in reviewing the situation for the past 100 years. In Ontario today, there are 1,755 places of sale and liquor is sold in six different ways, and the brewery warehouses and Liquor Control Stores are a convenient supply for the bootlegger.

"Beverage rooms," he asserted "are making good use of the instinct of hospitality and woman are learning to imitate the masculine vice of of treating. Liquor control has become a sales promotion."

Four different phases of the problem of "what alcohol is doing," were dealt with by the speaker in authorative terms.

The first was the acquisitive urge. It is the "profit motive" that makes alcohol the problem it is. Otherwise, it is a manageable social problem ,for it is not natural for people to want to drink.

There is big money in beer, a profit of from 100 to 150 per cent. In Toronto a strong protest was made at paying 13c per quart for milk, one of the necessaries of life, while people, both men and women, submit without a word to the price of beer at 50c a quart. In order to obtain these big profits the liquor interests go to great lengths with their advertising, spending seventy-five million dollars in North America in newspaper advertisements, and twenty-three million on radio advertising. However, during the last three years there has been no word of editorial comment in the Ontario dailies favorable to the liquor trade, which is an indication of the rising tide of opposition to it.

Advertising In Ontario.

The liquor interests are overcoming the ban on newspaper ads. in Ontario, and are adopting an insidious form of propaganda. Copies of magazines with their advertising were displayed, as well as samples of wrappers, aprons, and beer jackets to demonstrate the expanse of their campaign. The educational approach to this problem was next stressed, showing the findings of scientists as to the effect of alcohol. They have found, too, that people drink to escape reality and to get away from adult responsibility — which is hardly a civilized process.

An intensive program of temperance education has been laid out by the Religious Education Council, to meet their responsibility toward young people.

Dealing with the political angle, Dr. Little remarked that this problem could not be attributed to any one political party. The Conservatives laid the egg that the Liberals hatched. The Conservatives put the bottle on the table and the Liberals took out the cork.

The government is evidently working at cross purposes. With 10½ million dollars revenue from the liquor traffic, at the same time millions are spent on mental hospitals and on our highway accidents. There is no logic—no consistency in their methods.

The religious crisis of this awful problem has also come. There is a letting down in the standards of life, and Jesus Christ is the only one who has the answer. If we get God in our life we will not want drink. The church is the body of Christ, and the liquor traffic is injuring the members of that body. So we have a contest between our church and the liquor traffic. If their present system is an experiment, surely we have had enough of social tragedy to doom it. Surely we have a right to expect our government to be on the side of the church and right. What can we do about it? We can talk, for conversation is a powerful force in arousing public opinion. We can vote and organize. If we can get enough power in the Christian church we can drive out this evil. In the name of the Lover of little children, let us protect the children of Ontario.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one; no more right to say a rude thing to another than to knock him down."—Johnson.

"Men are born with two eyes, but with one tongue, in order that they should see twice as much as they say."—Colton.

(Article requested by "Beatrice")

Dear Friends:

Sometimes those who are our friends think this friendship gives them license to be rude or uncivil to us. but they never made a bigger mistake in their lives. If a person knocks us down, if they beat us with their hands or kick us with their feet, if they wound us with weapons, we have the law that will come to our defense and punish them.

But who can come to our defence when our friends use their tongue to stab and wound us, who use their eyes to pick out our weak spot, then use it as a club against us? Who can help us when they insult us by reminders of any kindness they may have done to us?

You may say, "oh a friend would not do a thing like that" but it is being done every day. So many thing their friendship lets all barriers down, so that they can get our confidence, then use it to our hurt and detriment.

I think there is nothing so harmful or so loathesome as an unbridled tongue. No one has the right to be rude, or sarcastic to another. Money, power, past favors, nothing in the world excuses it, nothing lowers a person so much as when they let their tongue run loose to hurt the one they professed friendship for, then let down so badly.

It's all right to say you are sorry, but all confidence is gone in you. There is always the fear that this may crop up again. Then, too, when you did favors, did the other do none for you?. Was it all on one side? Friendship is not like that. for generally if one gives one thing the other one gives something too.

And it is a bad thing to kill a friendship. Holmes tells us this: "Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. The nearer you come in relation to a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to learn unpleasant things from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them."

So many think when other things annoy them, or they are not feeling well, that they can take out their annoyance on their friends or relatives, but they never made a bigger mistake in their lives. If all of us went around taking out our spleen on others like that, what a sorry world it would be.

And those very same people would be the first to resent it if anyone did that to them. They want courtesy, they want their faults glossed over, they want appreciation for any kindnesses they have done, but they assume their tongue is hung in the middle so that they can let it wag as it likes, no matter who is hurt in the wagging.

Friendship, like love, is a delicate thing. It needs care to keep it alive. It is a precious thing and will not live when bitter words are used against it. No one can have too many friends, we all need them, the king and the poor man, the capitalist and the laborer.

And what is worse than an indiscreet friend, who, at the least cause blabs all that has been told them in spite for some fancied wrong. or due to some misunderstanding? Who can hurt like those we put confidence in, yet who can turn and rend us like a flash of lightning.

We are sometimes prone to think others are like ourselves. We would not do certain things, so we think these others would not do them either. All we can do is learn to be better choosers when we make friends. Hoping you remember I am truly, Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

PUBLISHERS SEE THREAT IN RADIO OF DICTATORSHIP

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP).—The radio committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association said today in its report at the Association's 552nd annual meeting that "the inescapable task of the American press is to guard against any encroachment upon United States democracy by the Federal government with radio as an instrument of political power."

"In the totalitarian countries," the report said, "radio has been made an instrument of dictatorship by which not only the freedom, but the very soul of the press, has been destroyed. Seeing that in other countries, radio has been used as a weapon to destroy liberty, we must solemnly undertake to see that it shall not happen here. Aside from the use of radio in our own country," the report continued, "the press of America must recognize the terrific potentialities of radio as an instrument of propaganda by which nation speaks to nation.

"The radio stations of Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan are being extensively and intensively used to influence the people of other countries."

The committee expressed hope "that the vigilance of the American newspaper toward the developments in radio may be coordinated into a constant and effective opposition to all tendencies toward the misuse of radio, especially by any dominant political interest.

Roosevelt's Action

"Without any partisanship," it said, "it may be legitimately pointed out in this connection that the present national administration has made very extensive use of the radio to explain and defend its policies, and only recently the President of the United States made his 11th "Fireside talk," to the nation, using 400 out of the 700 radio stations in the country for the purpose.

"This is a precedent which, in future years, might encourage dictatorship."

The committee suggested tha future studies be directed towards keeping the final control of radio in the hands of Congress, as the elected representatives of the people, rather than in the hands of the administration in power.

"The present system of Federal licensing for a six months' period should be carefully studied,' it said.

"There is always the possibility that the short-term license makes the broadcasters unduly sensitive, if not subservient, to the administration in power."

The report said "no conclusive statistics appear to exist as to the effect of news broadcasts upon newspaper circualtion," but added:

"One fact, however, is outstanding: In 1922, when radio broadcasting was in its infancy, there were only a few thousand receiving sets in the entire country; to-day, the total number of receiving sets is estimated as high as 37,000,000.

"Sixteen years ago there were 2,382 daily newspapers in the United States with a total daily circulation of 29,780,328; to-day there are about 2,000 daily newspapers in this country with a total circulation of 41,468,917.

"In other words, since the advent of radio, newspaper circulation has increased more than 33 per cent, and to-day's total is the greatest in history."

Federal Aid Plan For Prairies?

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., April 28 (CP).—Prediction of an early announcement from Ottawa which would have an important bearing upon employment in Saskatchewan is made by Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General.

"As much work as possible must be provided the unemployed of the Province pending the return of crops and normal conditions," Mr. Davis said last night in an address following his selection at a Liberal nominating convention to contest Prince Albert riding in the next Provincial election.

"I am not in a position to make any public pronouncement but I am very hopeful something of real interest will be made known shortly in Ottawa."

3 FOG COLLISIONS DAMAGE 5 SHIPS

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP).—Five steamships were in trouble, with one of them beached, as the result of three accidents off the North Atlantic Coast in a dense fog last night and early to-day.

The United States Coastguard dispatched four cutters and two patrol boats to the assistance of three of the vessels, but the other two, after reporting a collision, did not ask for help.

In the most serious accident, the 2,686-ton Commercial Pioneer of New York was in collision near the Delaware breakwater with the 2,677-ton York of Baltimore.

The port side of the York was stove in and her master grounded her in 18 feet of water on Cape Henlopen. No one was reported injured.

The Commercial Pioneer, built in 1920, is owned by the Moremack Gulf Lines; the York, also was built in 1920, by the Merchants' and Marine Transportation Company.

The S. S. Malmaton of the C. D. Mallory Corporation, went aground off Rhode Island, cracking her foreplates. Her master reported she was in no immediate danger. The 4,554-ton steamer was taking water and her pumps were busy, but it was expected she would be saved.

The third accident reported was a collision between the A. C. Bedford, a steam tanker of 9,485 tons owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey and the Tokai Maru, an 8,360-ton Japanese steamer, off Atlantic City. The damage in this crash apparently was slight for neither asked for assistance.

WINCHESTER, England—(CP).—A window will be unveiled in Winchester Cathedral, July 12, commemorating regard in the United States for King George V.

DRUGGING DENIED BY MRS. McINTOSH

TORONTO, April 27—(CP).—Mrs. Eva McIntosh of Montreal, denied before a Government-ordered inquiry to-day that her husband, Angus McIntosh, was drugged and taken against his will to Homewood Sanitarium, Guelph, Ont., in 1934.

McIntosh went to the sanitarium, whose affairs are under investigation, only after she had consulted members of her husband's family who agreed he should go there, Mrs. McIntosh said.

Earlier in the inquiry McIntosh charged he was drugged at Montreal "and woke up to find myself in the Homewood." He said he was kept there beyond the necessary time.

The inquiry under Commissioner F. H. Barlow, K.C., Master of the Ontario Supreme Court, opened here March 31. Evidence was later taken at Guelph and the inquiry resumed for two days here last week. More than 40 witnesses have testified.

Mrs. McIntosh, slim and dark-haired, said she and McIntosh were married March 13, 1920, when her husband was a salesman for a baking company. Later he started an importing and exporting business in Montreal.

Mrs. McIntosh said they bought a house at Port Nelson, Ont., in 1932 and she was happy there. The house was sold at a loss, she said. The sale was made in 1933 because her husband found himself unsuited to country life.

Consultations with Dr. Colin Russel of Montreal were described by Mrs. McIntosh who said her husband told her, following "a restless night," he was willing to go to Homewood if Dr. Russel would accompany him. She telephoned the doctor and arrangements were made to admit him.

"No Drugs Given"

"Did Mr. Russel give your husband any drug or medicine before leaving?" asked C. L. Snyder, counsel for the inquiry.

"No. absolutely none," Mrs. McIntosh said. "I was there all the time."

"If your husband says that he arrived at Homewood in a doped condition would you say that was true?"

"No. That was not true."

Mrs. McIntosh said she went to the sanitarium with her husband. She did not think the first room he had was comfortable enough and later he was moved. The rate was $6 a day.

When she left Guelph some time later, Mrs. McIntosh said she was on good terms with her husband. She took action later to appoint curators because "my husband was talking in such a way I feared he would dissipate his estate."

Mrs. McIntosh said she had read a letter written by her husband to his brother in Hamilton, seeking to get out of the sanitarium. She was advised by a Montreal law firm the only way she could protect the estate was to have McIntosh interdicted. She did this and was appointed one of the administrators.

When she visited the Homewood, she said McIntosh "talked about a Mr. McFarlane of Hamilton and about suing everyone to get out of Homewood." During the summer of 1934, she did not think he should leave.

B.F. Tips Dictate Hair Styles

BUFFALO, April 28—(AP).—Although they probably don't know it, the "boy friend" are the ones who influence style trends in women's hairdresses.

Said Retiring President Emile Martin as the New York State Hairdressers' and Cosmetologists' Association closed their convention last night:

"Fashion trends come from customers themselves in suggestions which are inspired by the remarks of boy friends. The newest fashion of brushing the hair up on top of the head probably came from complaints of boy friends that women with page boy bobs looked droopy and tired."

RIVAL UNION FIGHT BRINGS POLICE OUT

MUNCIE, Ind., April 28—(AP).—Police were on guard to-day against further hostilities between rival unions at General Motors Corporation's Chevrolet plant here following two clashes which sent two men to a hospital and another to jail.

Members and sympathizers of the United Automobile Workers of America marched from a mass meeting last night to the plant, where 100 independent unionists were on picket duty.

Clubs and baseball bats were used in a melee which ensued. The pickets fled inside the plant and the U.A.W.A. forces withdrew.

Injured were Charles Cook, a member of the Independent Union, and Everett Kelly, 40, U.A.W.A. member. Both were taken to a hospital where their injuries were found not to be serious.

Walter L. Lundberg, spokesman for the Independent Union, said afterward: "We don't want any outside organizers. We feel we are intelligent enough to take care of our own jobs."

ORDER LACROIX PROBE

OTTAWA, April 28—(CP).—Revenue Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons to-day he was ordered an investigation into charges that Edouard Lacroix (Lib. Beauce) defrauded the Federal Treasury of customs duties. The investigation was sought by the Quebec member himself.

CZECH-GERMAN TENSION GROWS AS PLOT BARED

German Press Blames Slovak Army Officers

BERLIN, April 29. (AP).—Tension in German - Czechoslovak relations was increased today by publication in Der Angriff, organ of propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels, of a charge that Czechoslovak army officers had plotted a "monstrous attempt" on the peace of Europe.

The newspaper asserted a group of officers of the Czechoslovak army belonging to the so-called war party had been preparing a plot which failed to materialize at the last minute only because of the watchfulness of a member of Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German party.

Berlin awaited with keen interest an expected radio address by Czechoslovakia's premier Milan Hodza upon which might depend whether Germany will revise completely her relations with her neighbor.

The German Story

Der Angriff's account of the alleged plot was:

On the initiative of the officers' group a German subject named Glaser, disfranchised and with a warrant out against him, formed the Sudeten (Nazified) Germans in Czechoslovakia a so-called "terror organization" against the Czechoslovakian state. He also formed what the paper described as "groups of three," supplying them with arms and orders to start a putsch against Czechoslovakia during the night of April 30.

Glaser then informed authorities of all towns and villages where he had formed these groups. The police then received orders to suppress any attempt with the most brutal force.

Only through the watchfulness of one Sudeten German, said Der Angriff, was prevented a catastrophe the extent of which hardly could be imagined.

Hill is one of a comparatively small group having this medal. It will be presented this week by Mayor C. D. Hanniwell.

Its Milk Too Cheap Dairy Gets Fined

Montreal, April 29 (CP).

THE United Dairy Co., Limited, was fined $1,000 today by Judge Gustave Perrault after being convicted of offering to sell milk to small jobbers at rates lower than those established by the Quebec Milk Commission. The Judge listened to the record of 17 such convictions against the company, and then ordered a warrant prepared, ordering seizure of the dairy's property if it failed to pay the fine.

NEW PROGRESSIVE PARTY MAY SPLIT DEMOCRAT UNITY

WASHINGTON, April 29 (A.P.). —Demands by Philip F. La Follette, Governor of Wisconsin, for a United States party realignment behind a new banner of progressivism raised a threat of serious schism to-day in the political forces which President Roosevelt welded into a huge democratic majority.

To what extent will the Democratic Party leadership, its ranks split with dissension and rebellious, be able to retain support of 1936's mixed political bed-fellows?

Will John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization walk out with the La Follette group into "the National Progressives of America?"

Will the American Labor Party heed the La Follette cal lto abandon "reactionaries in both old parties?"

On answers to such questions hinged the success of the new Progressive Party, Democratic chances to retain the White House in 1940, Republican opportunities to build upon slender Congressional minorities toward capturing the national administration two years hence.

May Draw Roosevelt.

Involved in the outcome, too, was the possibility that events might draw Franklin D. Roosevelt into a third term race.

This possibility already had been mentioned by Senator Norris, Nebraska Independent who supported the senior Robert M. La Follette when he sought the Presidency on a Progressive ticket in 1924.

Norris has supported Democratic Presidential tickets since that time. He had no immediate comment on Governor Philip F. La Follette's announcement in Madison, Wis., last night that a National Progressive Party had been formed.

GOSSIPS TALK GENERAL VOTE FOR THIS YEAR

Dominion-Provincial Squabbles Held Cause

OTTAWA, April 29 (CP)—Prospects of a general election this year furnished gossip for political speculators on Parliament Hill today although there has been no indication the government has considered the matter since Prime Minister Mackenzie King some months ago said there was no need for an election.

A chance remark by A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) in the House of Commons this week stimulated election talk. Mr. Neill, who announced last night he would not contest another election, said he thought there would be an eletcion this fall.

Conservatives who must select a new leader to succeed Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett at a convention in July are wondering whether the Liberal government will attempt to obtain a new lease of power before they become fully organized under their new chieftain.

Liberals are divided on the question. Some think the present year would be a good time for an election and others hold the government should not dissolve parliament until its five-year term has run its course or nearly so. That will be in 1940—after two more sessions.

The last official work on the submonths ago and before the present pect came from Mr. Mackenzie King session of parliament. Then Mr. Mackenzie King's statement was an emphatic declaration that there was no need of an election and no indication the government, with its huge majority, did not enjoy the confidence of the people.

VALERA'S COHORT WOULD GAS NORTH

DUBLIN, April 29 —(A P)— A member's suggestion that "poison gas" be loosed over the northern Ireland border caused uproar in the Dail Eireann today in the midst of discussion of the new Anglo-Eire pact.

Martin Corry, a member of Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's party, made the comment in a speech in which he welcomed the agreement as another step toward Irish independence.

"We may differ as to methods of securing independence for the 32 counties," he said, referring to the six counties of Northern Ireland and the 26 included in Eire, the former Irish Free State.

"I would be in favor of storing sufficient poison gas when you have got the wind in the right direction it would be let loose at the border."

The speaker intervened with an objection to the "poison gas" reference. Members of the opposition attacked Mr. Corry's speech as "scandalous."

Mr. De Valera was not in the House at the time but said later "this obviously is an utterly irresponsible statement."

Proposal to Pool Defences in Event of Conflict; Making 1,230,000 Men Available for Field at Once

LONDON, April 29 (CP-Havas).—French and British statesmen today reached an agreement on steps to be taken to bring about a peaceful and equitable solution of central European problems.

The nature of the greement, which follows yesterday's virtual defence alliance, was not immediately revealed.

The statesmen met for the second time today to seek practical means of conciliating French and British positions regarding Czechoslovakia, a country threatened with the possibility of facing a new German drive for expansion.

They were believed to have mapped an economic-diplomatic campaign to prevent Germany from starving Czechoslovakia into submission and considered moves to relieve the economic pressure of Nazi Germany on other small neighbors of the Danubian region.

Plant to Pool Defences.

LONDON, April 29 (A.P.). — The pattern of an Anglo-French military and economic alliance emerged to-day from ministerial discussions between the two countries. The British and French Premiers and Foreign Ministers have devised a sweeping program of co-operation to prepare for the day when war may come.

Mindful of Germany's drive for expansion and of the might of the German war machine, the two leading democracies of Europe shaped an agreement which was in everything but name a formal mutual assistance pact.

Establishment of British air bases in France, exchange of aircraft supply bases, co-ordination of joint defence material purchases — all these are contemplated.

The British Ministers were said to regard favorably, on the economic side, an arrangement for British Government credits or private credits to finance French purchases of wheat, oil and other raw materials in Czechoslovakia and the Danubian states—to offset German economic influence in those sections.

Premier Daladier, at the conclusion of yesterday's conferences, declared, "We arrived without difficulty at complete agreement. Without exaggeration, all conversations

BRIBERY CHARGE RULED UNFOUNDED IN HAMILTON CASE

HAMILTON, April 29 (CP). — Finding that the evidence did not show any proposal had been made to Controller Nora-Frances Henderson by Mark Lynch-Staunton to induce her to alter her stand on the gas purchase agreement, Judge E. F. Lazier today submitted a 19-page report in connection with the civic inquiry into such charges.

His Honor also found that there had been no attempt by the gas company to influence Controller Henderson's vote on the gas question.

The judgment was delivered to James Berry, city clerk, by Judge Lazier and copies are being forwarded to members of City Council. It was publicly read in the Board of Control chambers by Mr. Berry, in the presence of Mayor William Morrison and members of the Board of Control.

"In my opinion Miss Henderson's statement that she brought the subject before the public because she felt it her duty and the only thing to do, and that she could not exercise her vote if she did not, is to be given full credence," Judge Lazier submitted.

Cause For Speculation

"At the same time one cannot help but speculate as to what her attitude would have been if she had had a longer time for consideration or if she had taken legal advice as to whether what had been said would have indicated an attempt to bribe her had or had not been made.

"It is possible that Miss Henderson was quick to suspect.

"The question of the conversation being secret does not concern us.

20 JAP PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN HANKOW RAID

Emperor's Birthday Attack Proves Costly

HANKOW, April 29—(AP). — Forty Japanese planes raided the Hankow area to-day, Emperor Hirohito's 37th birthday, but more than a score of Chinese planes counter-attacked and to-night Chinese headquarters announced its greatest aerial victory of the war.

Headquarters said the defending airmen brought down 20 Japanese planes, including eight bombers.

Air headquarters reported finding the wreckage of 13 Japanese planes and admitted loss of three of their own craft, in addition to one which made a forced landing and four missing planes.

(The Japanese also claimed victory. A navy communique, issued at Shanghai, said there were 50 planes in the raiding fleet and that these shot down 51 of 80 counterattacking planes. The communique added only two of the Japanese craft failed to return to their base.

(An official Chinese announcement reaching Shanghai said that in anticipation of a raid on the emperor's birthday the Chinese had concentrated a large aerial fleet for the defence).

Unofficial Chinese sources reported 400 civilians were killed or wounded when the attackers concentrated their bombs on the crowded, industrial Hanyang area across the Han River from this provisional Chinese capital. Other investigators estimated the casualties at less than 100.

WIRES TRAP CAR 3 HAVE NEAR CALL

BARRIE, Ont., April 29 (C.P.).— Three missed death or serious injury when 15 Hydro-Electric poles blew down carrying wires bearing 23,000 volts across the top of their automobile last night near Fergusonville on No. 27 Highway.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Raymes of Craigville, Ont., were in an automobile driven by George Sherring, Jr., of Stroud, travelling towards Barrie when the accident happened.

"Suddenly I felt a great wind hit us," Sherring said to-day. "It shifted the car over to one side of the road. Then there was a crash as Hydro poles came down all about us.

"The wires fell across the car and began sparking and crackling. For a minute I sat spellbound, then I opened the car door and the other two followed. By good fortune the path was clear on that side, and we were able to escape."

Mrs. Raymes, only one of the party injured, was burned slightly.

Wage-Hour Bill Is Sidetracked

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP). —The United States House of Representatives Rules committee, ignoring President Roosevelt's insistence on enactment of wage-hour legislation at this session, refused to-day to grant the revised wage-hour bill right-of-way to the House floor.

This action, which House leaders said virtually meant the death of the measure for this session, came at the close of two days of hearings during which the committee heard the bill defended as necessary to halt a "vicious spiral of deflation" and denounced as "arbitrary and capricious."

The bill would have fixed minimum wages at 25 cents an hour for the first year, scaling up to 40 cents at the end of three years. Hour would start at 44 a week and drop to 40 in two years.

TO MOVE AMENDMENT

OTTAWA, April 29 ((C.P.). — An amendment to the Bill to incorporate the Niagara Falls Observation Bridge Company to prevent the company from acquiring lands or taking other action until the Congress of the United States or other competent authority passing legislation approving the proposed bridge will be moved in the House of Commons by Conservative Leader Bennett.

Canada Found Most Talkative Nation In The World

Telephone Conversations Per Capita Run 210 Compared With 197 In U.S.

OTTAWA, April 29—(CP).—Canadians are the most talkative people in the world, and they are getting even more so.

Apart altogether from the wordy briefs presented to royal commissions and the 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 words spoken in the House of Commons each session, telephone statistics award loquacious laurels to Canadians.

Telephone conversations per capita during 1935 in Canada numbered 210.8 compared with 197 in the United States, 173.9 in Denmark and 152.2 in Sweden, the next highest countries. Still on the increase, Canadian calls were 222 a person in 1936, latest year reported.

Birthplace of the telephone, discovered by Alexander Graham Bell in 1676, Canada retains the lead in Empire advancement of this instrument in establishing the longest direct wire path of 2,200 miles between Toronto and Calgary.

Canada stands fifth in world comparison with 1,266,228 telephones installed, showing approximately 10 per cent of her population benefits by telephonic communication. The United States is the only country showing a larger number of telephones installed per capita.

Makes $60 On Club Gets Fined $50

TORONTO, April 29 (CP).—Eric Kettlewell, who said he made $15 a week for four weeks from his "500 Club," was fined $50 with an alternative jail term of 30 days when he pleaded guilty today to conducting a lottery.

Morality Officer Hugh Jackson said Kettlewell's club was a "chain letter scheme with his name at the head of the list."

The officer testified Kettlewell asked at a police station if it were all right for him to conduct the club and officials told him they didn't know.

Whole Cup "Cooties" Picked In Cell

Calgary, April 29 (CP).

CARL MILLER, 20, told Magistrate I. F. Fitch in court what he "and the boys" think of Calgary's police cells.

"I have been asked by the boys below to tell you the joint's lousy," Miller said yesterday.

He added one of the prisoners in the basement cells had picked a whole cup of "cooties."

"They must have come in with you," remarked assistant chief David Richardson.

Miller was committed for trial on charges of breaking and entering and being in possession of stolen property.

GIVEN TWO YEARS

WINDSOR, Ont., April 29 (C.P.). —Charged with false pretences, Queenie Hopper alias Keith, 39-year-old negress of various addresses, was sentenced by Magistrate David Brodie in Police Court to-day to two years less a day in Mercer Reformatory on her plea of guilty. Miss Hopper had a lengthy previous record. The charge involved selling of furniture while a lien of $200 was against the goods.

Painting Robbery Suspect Held

LONDON, April 29. —(AP). — Scotland Yard detectives to-day took a man to headquarters for questioning in connection with the theft of five paintings valued at £100,000 ($500,000) from the Kentish castle of Sir Edmund Davis. The man refused to give his name.

They met him at the offices of Tyler and Company, a firm which had offered £8,000 reward for information concerning the robbery. After questioning there the man was taken to Scotland Yard in a police car. Detectives indicated they had secured tangible clues.

25,000 Expected For Parade In Toronto Saturday Night

Great May Day Rallies Planned Coast To Coast—Montreal Expects Trouble

TORONTO, April 29 (CP)—Canadian labor forces—faced with a May Day falling on Sunday—plan parades and meetings at varied times in cities from coast to coast this week-end as they mark the 52nd anniversary of the general strike called by the American Federation of Labor May 1, 1886 in seeking an eigh-hour working day.

Chief attention is directed to Montreal where extra policemen have been detailed for duty because of reports Communists and Leftists plan a parade. No permit has been issued for any demonstration. Members of the Communist party have made no announcement of parade plans in Montreal, saying police would be on hand to arrest them under a law banning Communist activities.

The national office of the Communist party in Toronto said 9,000 would parade in Montreal. Trade union officials in Montreal have never taken a prominent role in May Day parading.

Toronto's Saturday night demonstration in Queen's Park promises to be the biggest in Canadian history. Last year 20,000 people representing 125 organizations paraded. This year 160 organizations will be represented and officials in charge expect 25,000 to march in the three different parades which join at Queen's Park. A further meeting will be held Sunday.

U.A.W. To Take Hand

Windsor, one of the few other Ontario centres marking the anniversary, will parade Saturday and hear brief addresses and another May day meeting is scheduled for Sunday. Delegates from the United Automobile Workers of America are expected to take leading roles.

Labor supporters at the Lakehead received permission from police to parade in Fort William. Last year 1,000 marched and a similar number was expected this year.

Although Winnipeg's Police Chief George Smith refused permission for a Sunday parade, the police commission granted it and 4,000 members of the Independent Labor party, trade unions, the Communist party, and various national cultural groups are expected to march and hear speeches during the afternoon.

Beavers Flood Track Wreck Freight

Sudbury, Ont., April 29 (CP).

INDUSTRIOUS BEAVERS who built dams near the right of way were blamed today by railway officials for a washout and derailment of a freight train yesterday 40 miles west of Chapleau, that injured two men.

The dams broke, railwaymen said, and washed out half a mile of track. The Toronto-Winnipeg freight train was derailed setting off a carload of matches next to the engine, the fire spreading to a stock car where a valuable pedigreed horse going from St. Thomas to Foam Lake, Sask., was destroyed.

Britain Doubling Plane Production

LONDON, April 29 (CP Cable).— The Air Ministry plans to double aircraft production in the next two years, according to well-informed quarters.

Earl Winterton, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, is expected to make a statement to this effect in the House of Commons shortly. Supplementary air estimates, it is understood, will make provision for huge expansion. An inter-departmental committee at present is paving the way for increased production.

8 Stowaways Of 7 Different Tongues Make Skipper Mad – For 32 Days

London, April 29 (CP-Cable). "STOWAWAYS FOUND in the hold, sir!" shouted a seaman to Captain Mantzovinos, master of the Greek steamship Andreas, nearing Dover.

Captain Mantzovinos was not pleased as he had a crew of 37, with neither extra food no accomodation aboard for a 32-day trip from Antwerp to Montevideo, Uruguay.

That stowaway was a Lithuanian. "Better search the ship," said Mantzovinos, and one by one the crew uncovered a Frenchman, a Chilean, a Russian, an Italian, another Lithuanian, a Greek and a Portuguese. Captain Mantzovinos became extremely displeased. Besides there was no common language for all, nor interpreters. The skipper appealed to the authorities but Dover did not want them.

The captain and the eight stowaways reboarded the Andreas and sailed for Montevideo.

Pouliot Proposes A. B. Purvis Be Deported

Charges Industrialist Used Post on Commission To Get Confidential Information Worth Million

OTTAWA, April 29 (CP).—Warnings that revolution and illegal seizure of property might come in Canada were mingled with sharp criticism of the government's policies on unemployment and with some concrete suggestions for betterment during yesterday's debate in the House of Commons.

Opening with an unexpected discussion of Canadian National Railways indebtedness and winding up with debate over second reading of the relief measure, the House finally adopted the latter motion and the bill will be considered tomorrow in committee of the whole.

Climax of the relief debate came when Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) charged that Arthur B. Purvis, Montreal industrialist who served without remuneration as head of the National Employment Commission, had taken adantage of his position to obtain intimate details of business competitors He declared Mr. Purvis should be deported.

He said Mr. Purvis, in addition to being chairman of the National Employment conditions in various Canadian industries, Mr. Pouliot said. "Therefore Mr. Purvis was in a position to secure confidential information of private industries, 27 or 29 of them.

"That report (on employment conditions) is more detailed than the report on unemployment, especially on the chemical industry and the industry of rubber products in which he is interested."

"Mr. Purvis, continued Mr. Pouliot, "as chairman of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company was most interested to know everything of a confidential nature in the rubber industry. Also, as chairman of the Canadian Industries Limited, he was most interested to know what was going on in the chemical industry. He knew it all.

Valuable Information

"I find it most unethical that a man who was asking nothing to do that work should take advantage of his position as chairman of a public body to secure private information for which other industrialists would be ready to pay $500,000 or $1,000,000. That is the point."

Labor Minister Rogers said that he had admired the independent spirit of the member for Temiscouata but deprecated his personal attack upon members of the commission who had performed a public duty to which they had been called by the government.

C. B. Howard (Lib., Sherbrooke) made a definite suggestion that the government initiate a Workmen's Housing Act, which would provide Federal money for municipalities at three per cent to be used in building $3,000 maximum cost houses for workmen in the $18 to $30 a week class.

Existing housing legislation did not reach this clas sof worker, Mr. Howard said, and he was convinced such a venture would not only provide a large measure of employment

Push Air Program Together.

Indications were that British and French efforts at air force expansion would be pushed side by side.

Great Britain has an aviation mission in North America exploring the possibility of purchasing heavy bombers for quick delivery by United States firms and the outlook for long-range plane production in Canada.

It has been suggested France participate in this buying program. Presumably she will concentrate on pursuit planes while Britain stocks up with long-range bombers. The British government is reported to have promised to reach the maximum of these in every home plant within two years.

The combined French and British armies contemplated by the agreement of pooling of defence forces would make 1,230,000 men available immediately on the outbreak of war.

Behind this, however, would be France's reserves, stimated at 7,000,000, and Britain's reservoir of men of fighting age, to put 9,000,000, the greatest potential army in the world.

Even greater importance is attached to pooling of navies. The navies would total nearly 2,000,000 tons, built or building.

Both powers are adding feverishly to their air forces, but France now has 1,400 first line planes and 900 in reserve. Britain is known to be working toward an objective much higher than previously announced—1,750 first line planes by March, 1939.

Russo-German Pact?

NEW YORK, April 29 (C.P.), — A little-dreamed-of alliance between Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany was reported in a London despatch in the New York Herald-Tribune to-day to be considered within the realm of possibility.

Reporting on the fruitful Anglo-French conversations, the Herald-Tribune's London correspondent wrote:

"The bogey of Hitler and Josef V. Stalin forgetting their ideological differences and forming a powerful partnership is real to the French and British right now.

"There is some talk that Russia is preparing to smite Japan and then hook up with Germany to control the destinies of two continents."

The despatch also said it was learned Prime Minister Daladier in-

"France would purchase in the United States 500 latest-type Curtiss planes, believed to be fast fighters, to bolster her air force."

STORMS AND MUD BOG REBELS DOWN STOP GREAT DRIVE

HENDAYE, France, April 29. — (AP).—Government commanders in all sectors of Eastern Spain declared to-day the insurgents had abandoned their six-weeks-old offensive, but military observers were skeptical of the sweeping nature of their claims.

From Teruel east to the Mediterranean and from Tortosa north to the Pyrenees insurgents were inactive.

Neutral observers attributed the delay, however, to rain storms that swept insurgent aviation from the sky and bogged down motorized equipment, as much as to the strength of government lines.

The Government said that from the Pyrenees to the Ebro river at Tortosa its militiamen made slight advances "without encountering any real resistance" except in the Tremp sector, where power plants are located.

The insurgent drive toward Castellon and Valencia was said by government commanders to have been broken so badly that General Jose Miaja's troops were pressing an offensive of their own in the Cati-Tirig sector north of Albocacer.

Barcelona sources disputed even the small victory insurgents reported in the Alfambra river sector just north of Teruel.

TELLS OF PROGRESS IN MERCHANDIZING

At the monthly educational meeting on Thursday, sponsored by the local C.C.Y.M. unit, the speaker of the evening was R. J. Goring.

Mr. Goring gave an interesting talk on the progress of merchandizing in both the United States and Canada. The history of merchandizing he stated could be summed up in four epochs; from the early modes of pre-historic barter system which advanced to trading posts in the early times of settlers, to the general store era, where he reminiced the fate of the nation was often settled around the box stove, to the present chain store system.

In the days of the general stores he recalled that most of the foods and drygoods were sold in bulk; and that a cabinet of patent medicine was looked upon as vitally necessary, which incidentally was one reason for much of the ill health of those days. The chain stores and departmental stores, he said added greatly to the health of our country as better foods were the result of the increasing competition for one thing.

The advance of chain stores have been no less than miraculous he said; when one considers that the A. & P. Company expanded at the rate of four per day for fourteen year, and reached a peak in 1929 of $750,000,000 in turnover.

Woolworths, at the end of fifty years reached a peak in turnover of $272,000,000, while the T. Eaton Co. from a humble begining of one Toronto store did a yearly trade of several hundred millions, with branch stores across the country. He went on to show that the Marshal Field firm of Chicago, the first company to try mail order selling eventually possessed 4,000 department stores in America. Through their methods of improved efficiency and mass buying, the chains reduced prices as much as five to eight per cent—and this has been one reason for thousands of smaller business men being forced to bow to their will and go out of business.

On Decline Since 1929.

Since 1929 Mr. Goring said, the chain stores have been on a decline and related that in the past few years the A. & P. Company had closed 1,400 of their 17,000 stores. One reason being higher and higher competition, while labour shortage had much to do with it, and a third that of taxing chain stores out of existence. This last he did not believe to be a good policy, as it meant that the bigger firms would be reduced to that point of competition where they would eat one another out of business.

He did not forget that the coming of automobiles had a lot to do with the decline in the mail order businesses.

Co-operatives, he believed would cure many of our national ills of to-day and he praised the C.C.F. party for the wonderful work it was doing in educating the Canadian people in the vast possibilities offered through a co-operative system. He said that to-day regulated merchandizing was required and he looked forward to seeing legislation being passed for this need in the future.

In his day, he said, it was looked upon as a disgrace to change party allegiance but that to-day it would be a disgrace not to. He pointed out that the younger generation to-day had the mistakes and progress of their elders to study to their advantage; and with this in mind and the realization that a great future existed for them he urged that they continue in the intelligent way they were going about life. He stressed the point that today more than ever, courage plus education were the fundamental requirements of the young people who hoped to succeed.

For the young ladies he had a special word. He suggested that they make it a point of speaking to the old people of their acquaintance as the elders could hardly be expected to spot them in a crowd when, for the most part, they were dressed differently every day.

A vote of thanks was voted by Gordon Powell and seconded by Helen Russell. The local president presided.

Marketing Director Reveals Alberta Farmers Keep an Average of Nine Hogs; Highest in Canada

TORONTO, April 29 (CP).—Suitability of the enterprise to the area and the low cost of operation are two big things to be considered in Canadian farming, A. M. Shaw, Director of Marketing Service, Federal Department of Agriculture, said in an address here last night.

Certain parts of Canada have developed on an export basis and others on the domestic market, the former dean of the faculty of agriculture, University of Alberta, told the annual banquet of the Eastern Canada Livestock Union.

Wheat can use moisture on western land faster than any other cereal crop, and much faster than grasses, Mr. Shaw said. On the other hand, cheese could be produced in Eastern Ontario because of the good grass land which must be utilized when it is green, while the western rancher sells his grass as meat and not cheese.

Discussing high prices for butter and what he said was a recent drop of 2,000,000 pounds in consumption, he said housewives had decided 37 and 40 cents a pound was "just too much to pay." Mr. Shaw added: "Prices can only go so high and then you are on the danger line."

Definite Weights Lacking.

Part of Ontario's trouble in marketing beef, the director continued, was that there were no definite weights for a definite market. "We have no market outside of Canada and we have to do it as best we can," he said.

Mr. Shaw said the trend in production of bacon hogs was moving westward. Statistics showed 1½ hogs a farm in the Maritimes. In Northern Alberta it was nine, the highest in Canada, he said.

Discussing the problems of animal nutrition, Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, predicted the health of cattle some day would be checked just as people "see their dentist twice a year."

"We can talk of markets, but after all we have to go back to the producer; he is the man doing the job," said Dr. Christie. "Other agencies are only supplemental."

OSHAWA CADI TO DEFINE JUNK

OSHAWA, April 29—Charged with operating a junk yard without a license, Morris Kohen, appearing before Magistrate F. S. Ebbs in Police Court Thursday, claimed that the so-called junk was new goods, according to the license under which he operates, and the goods call for sales tax.

Chief of Police Owen D. Friend, who laid the charge, maintained that the building and yard was littered with what he called junk and that he had visited the building and removed samples of rags and waste paper from bundles, which, in his estimation, was junk. Kohen went into the fine points of his business, stating that the "rags" the Chief displayed were new goods, according to law.

Chief Friend stated that Kohen had written the Police Commission, asking the privilege of operating a factory, but on his recommendation no junk license was allowed.

Magistrate Ebbs agreed to the suggestion that he inspect the goods and adjourned the case, meanwhile inspecting the property under dispute.

Miss Henderson thought that an improper proposal was being made and it was, she believed, her duty to make it public. No fault can be found with such an attitude, in my opinion."

So far as the alleged threat to "break" Miss Henderson was concerned, His Honor finds the facts seemed to be that at the point where the accusation that Lynch-Staunton had come to the wrong person was made, both parties appeared to have lost their tempers.

Easy Explanations.

Any conflicting points in the evidence of Miss Henderson and that of Lynch-Staunton were easily explained "as the natural result of an altercation," the Judge believed. He asked if there was anything inconsistent with the statement of Lynch-Staunton that he went to Miss Henderson as a newspaperman.

If there was no bribery, what is the use of the investigation, Judge Lazier submits some people may ask. He finds that question answered by the evidence of Controller A. H. Frame and Ald. Archie Burton that they would not take part in further discussion of the gas agreement until the matter had been cleared up.

Judge Lazier finds the United Gas and Fuel Company fully cleared. He accepts the "most full and ample denial" by T. P. Pinckard, vice-president and general manager of the concern, that the gas company or anyone connected with it or authorized by it has any part in the occurrence.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 29—(CP). — Winnipeg wheat futures receded from maximum gain of two cents today on liquidation induced by nervousness at the approach of the first day of the May delivery month. Final quotations were ⅝ to 1¼ cents lower, May $1.19⅝, July $1.09⅝ to ¾, and October 88⅛ cents.

Weakness at Chicago in late stages added to selling pressure that forced the October future almost a cent lower near the close.

Despite reports, overseas firms were good buyers of May wheat, Canadian overnight export sales were difficult to confirm.

Drought concern in Italy, France, United Kingdom and Australia lead to sufficient buying to keep prices higher in early dealings.

WARKWORTH PLAY PLEASES AUDIENCE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, April 29.—Characteristic of the usual standard set by Christ Church Dramatic Society, Campbellford, "Aunt Cindy Cleans Up," a farcical comedy drama in three acts, was presented under the auspices of St. John's Church, on Wednesday evening. Owing to other attractions the attendance was not as large as it otherwise would have been. The characters were well portrayed, and the play abounded in laughable situation and lively dialogue which provided plenty of laughter for all present. Between acts, vocal solos and step dancing was enjoyed, which made an evening of splendid entertainment.

After the play, lunch was served to the actors by the ladies of St. John's Guild.

Gifted And Experienced Cast Presents Operetta Iolanthe

Eaton Operatic Company Enthusiastically Received By Peterborough Audience

The Peterborough Lions' Club has steadily been establishing a reputation for excellence of entertainment offered the public under its auspices, but a new peak was reached Thursday evening which will be hard to equal in amateur productions in future. And 'amateur' seems an absurd appellation to apply to the gifted and experienced cast of the Eaton Operatic Society which presented "Iolanthe" to a large and enthusiastic audience in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening.

This joyous comic opera which many consider contains some of the loveliest and most entertaining music of all the Gilbert and Sullivan masterpieces, and with its magnetic fairy story appeal coupled with humor par excellence, was produced from first to last with lyrical ease and superb acting, and in an atmosphere typically colorful throughout.

The performance was directed by Thomas Foster, Mus.Bach., F.R.C.O., of Toronto, who with a splendid 10-piece orchestra contributed magnificently to the success of the production. The scenery had been well adapted to fit the Collegiate stage, and with soft pastoral landscape for the first act and depicting the palace yard at Westminster in the second, made a perfect background for the superb costumng of the performers.

The chorus of fairies in their pastel colored draperies sang and danced with airy grace and sweetness, and the balancing chorus of peers, wearing their handsome cloaks and coronets, made a magnificent contrast with voices rich and melodious and mannerisms effectively haughty and condescending where required.

Popular Character.

It is difficult to find words even though a whole battery of superlatives were employed to do justice to the portrayal of Charles D. Jolliffe of the "highly susceptible" Lord Chancellor, who married the fairy Iolanthe and later falls in love with the attractive Arcadian shepherdess and one of his wards in Chancery. Most convincing make-up and his brilliant interpretation of the role made his appearances increasingly popular with the audience, till the zenith was reached in the gusto and abandon of his trio dance with the two peers. How he manipulated his heavy Chancellor's robes while he danced with such agility is a mystery.

The Queen of the Fairies as portrayed by Alison Wallace was a magnificent black eyed, black haired and regal figure, who could surpass the Lords in hauteur—and did—when her anger was aroused. She possesses a fine voice and with superb dignity and grace of carriage is admirably suited for the part. Her solo, "Oh Foolish Fay," with the chorus of fairies in the second act called for an encore.

Helen Bruce makes a most delightful Phyllis. She has an entrancingly sweet and lyric voice and her dancing is none the less lovely and graceful. Pictorially, some of the scenes where she is alone on the stage with Strephon, her Arcadian Shepherd lover, attired in a similar embroidered satin costume, were indescribably pretty.

The lithe and charming Strephon, son of Iolanthe and of the Lord Chancellor (though he does not know it), half fairy and half mortal and thereby beset with difficulties, was played well by George Aldcroft. Some of his poses were delightful.

Appeals For Her Son.

Betty Barron made a somewhat sad and wistful Iolanthe throughout, with her most notable appearance towards the finale, when in spite of penalty of death, she discloses her identity to the Lord Chancellor. The infinite pathos and beauty of her solo as she pleaded for her son was most lovely.

Norman Cherrie as the Earl of Mountararat and Arthur Harvey as the Earl of Tolloller interpreted their parts in brilliant style and rendered their solos in fine voice, especially Lord Mountararat's song with the chorus of fairies in the second act, "When Britain Really Ruled the Waves." The three chief fairies, Celia, Leila and Fleta, were delightfully captivating and naive as portrayed by Edith McIlroy, Betty Holmes and Lilyan Mullen. The duet in the second act, with the two principal peers and the chorus of fairies, "In Vain to Us You Plead," was splendid.

Richard Jolliffe as "Private Willis of the Grenadier Guards," made a dignified and sufficiently wooden sentry, nonplussed and embarrassed by the Fairy Queen's regard and later capitulating to her when she finds she too must marry a mortal.

A TOWN HALL DRIVE

OTTAWA, April 29 (CP)—Following a suggestion he made Wednesday, Mayor Stanley Lewis has inaugurated a subscription list to finance construction of a city hall here, rendering it unnecessary to defray the cost through taxation.

Suggestion that $5 be collected for every person in Ottawa the mayor last night offered $100, "Five dollars for myself, and five dollars for 19 other persons who cannot pay." Controllers Bourque and Geldert followed suit with a $50 donation each.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 29 — John A. Campbell, former cheese factory manager and graduate of the Eastern Dairy School at Kingston, has been appointed Dairy Tester for Northumberland County. A resident of Campbellford, Mr. Campbell was for seven years cheese maker at the Prince of Wales Cheese Factory, and filled the same position at the IXL Factory for a number of years after previously spending three years with the Citizens' Dairy in Belleville. of the county council, is quietly celebrating his 81st birthday today. Although he has accumulated many years and with them many friends he has not lost his interest in general affairs and in the diversions of life. In the accompanying picture Mr. Humphries at the right is shown with his son Max at the right, and his grandson, Gerald McKee in front. The seven fox hides in the centre of the picture is an illustration of Mr. Humphries continuing keenness for outdoor life. These foxes were all shot within a mile of the Humphries home within view of the Trent River, three or four miles west of Hastings. The dog in this picture is regarded by Mr. Humphries as one of the finest foxhounds he ever saw, when and Adam uses superlatives he really means them because it is just natural for him to be guarded and cautious in his opinions and judgements.

Mr. Humphries' many friends in the county will extend him congratulations on his birthday and express the hope that he will be spared good health and also the clearness of sight that will enable him to nail more hides on the fence.

LINDSAY

TWO CAR THIEVES ARE GIVEN YEAR

LINDSAY, April 29.—The two Ottawa men who stole the car at Sunderland and changed the license plate at Lindsay, came before Magistrate Dick at Beaverton on Wednesday. The pair were given a year and a month in the Reformatory.

Harry Hamilton, son of Richard Hamilton, of Emily Township, was seriously injured while working on his father's farm this week. He was driving a horse and wagon in the field when the horses bolted, throwing him off the vehicle. The heavy wheels passed over his stomach, inflicting serious internal injuries. Last Saturday young Hamilton's father was badly injured when a buggy in which he was riding was struck by a car east of Omemee.

Leo Curtin, aged 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curtin, of King's Wharf, is in the Ross Hospital here suffering from serious injuries sustained while playing with his brother. The latter was splitting a stick with his hand and Leo attempted to show him where to strike it, with the result that he sustained a gaping wound across the back of his right hand. It was feared at first that the youth would lose all his fingers, but it is believed that only one will be lost.

The Victoria Yacht and Anglers' Association is planning a program of fish conservation. Nogie's Creek, in the Bobcaygeon district, and McLaren's Creek, which flows into the Scugog north of Lindsay, were discussed as sanctuaries for fish.

The C.N.R. authorities are not going to allow the transients to occupy the "jungle" near the railway bridge, south of the town this year. This was the favorite rendezvous for the stragglers in past years, but this year, according to announcement, they will be kept moving.

540,000 Fresh Canadian Grade A Eggs To Stimulate Scottish Appetites

Ottawa, April 29 (CP). SEEKING TO stilmulate Canada's egg trade with the United Kingdom, the trade and commerce department and Canadian exporters are arranging for a tie-up between the Dominion's display of eggs at the Glasgow exhibition next month and commercial shipments of fresh eggs arriving in Britain at the exhibition's opening.

Three carloads of fresh, grade A Canadian eggs will be on the British market in early May. Each car will contain 500 cases of 30 dozen each. The consignment follows shipments of winter-produced fresh eggs earlier in the year.

One car load from the Canadian poultry pool, Winnipeg, will be sent from Montreal April 29. Another from the same source will be shipped May 6 along with one from the cooperative egg grading stations in Eastern Ontario. Negotiations now are underway for further shipments.

The three car loads are going to one buyer, Henry Noble and Son of Glasgow, for distribution to the larger retail shops in the Glasgow area. Arrangements are being made through the trade and commerce department for stores to make special shop displays of the Canadian product. Particulars will be available at the booth in the Canadian pavilion where the eggs may be obtained.

EXPORTS GO UP

OTTAWA, April 29 (CP) — Due largely to an increase in purchases from British Empire countries, Canada's domestic exports during the 1937-38 fiscal year rose to $1,070,228,609 from $1,061,181,906, a gain of more than $9,000,000, it was reported today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The United States were the best customer, purchasing $423,130,636 worth of goods compared to $435,014,544 in the corresponding period of 1936-37.

Mr. Stevens Has A Plan

Hon. H. H. Stevens has an idea. Just this: The Federal government should grant subsidies to all the municipalities in Canada equal to 25 per cent. of the taxes derived from real estate, on the understanding that the municipalities should undertake to not increase assessments over a period of years. Mr. Stevens was certain this would act as a stimulus to the building of more houses. He was certain there was a scarcity of them now. In most places that condition exists; in a few cases it does not.

Having the Dominion government pay 25 per cent. of the tax bill sounds attractive enough—at first. It would be granting a degree of relief to those who needed it and also to those who do not need it because they are well able to pay their own way under the present plan.

It would be interesting to know how this scheme would work out. Let us suppose for the moment that the Dominion treasury did take up 25 per cent. of the tax rate of all the municipalities in the country. When the Finance Minister had completed his Santa Claus business he would find he had handed out a good many millions of dollars. For the city of Peterborough he would have remitted about a quarter of a million, and under the plan he would have to keep on doing that for a number of years.

The Minister of Finance, whoever he might be, would know quite enough about the raising of money to be fully aware that he or his government had no money at all except as they took it away from the people. That is not a theory, but rather a hard and formidable fact about which it is not even possible to argue. Having given so many millions to the people to pay one-quarter of their taxes he would then be faced with the necessity of taking it back from the people. He might increase the sales tax beyond eight per cent., he might increase the income tax. There are a number of ways in which he could go about recovering the amount which he had paid out unless he preferred the line of least resistance and issued a loan so that the country at large would have to pay only the carrying charges. That in turn would be a sure way to increase the national debt. We do not believe Mr. Stevens will see his scheme approved. At least we hope not.

Not A Sufficient Reason

When the building of a bridge at Niagara was being discussed in the House of Commons, R. B. Bennett said it looked to him as though there was a fine chance for some person to create a real estate boom.

Premier Hepburn who favors an immediate start on the bridge, said the remark of Mr. Bennett was a "damnable lie." And we do not believe Mr. Bennett's remark or Mr. Hepburn's reply to it will do much to hasten the actual building of the bridge.

Nor do we look for much of a real estate boom to result from work on the bridge being started or carried to completion. This province has a number of people who got badly fooled with real estate booms where international bridges were going to land. There may have been some money made at the time the Peace Bridge was constructed, but where one made money a good many more lost it. There was also the bridge at Windsor where attempts at making money out of real estate went flat and people lost their money.

We dare say there will always be those who will seek a chance to have a real estate boom as soon as the word bridge is mentioned, but this time it will hardly work. The bridge will make it easier for people to pass between United States and Canada; it will aid tourist traffic, and its continued absence will retard that traffic. We can see no good reason for not granting authority to erect it.

No Investigation

We are certain there will be no quarrel with the announcement of Premier Hepburn that no official inquiry or probe or investigation will be held into the affairs of the Dionne family. The strongest plea which Dionne could make would be for the custody of his five daughters, and one cannot disregard the basic fact that a man has a right to his own children.

There appears to be some doubt as to whether Papa Dionne would know what to do with their management. There is something like $700,000 at stake, and we have not the least doubt a number of people have told Dionne what to do with that amount of money. Under present plans the money is safe as can be, and so will all the rest of the cash be which comes to the credit of the children.

The one thing which shows the working of Dionne's mind is the contract he signed when the children were but a few days old to have them hurried off for exhibition at the big fair in Chicago. That was at a time when there was little life in them and a poorer decision could not have been made. When a man makes one poor choice he is likely to make another. There is actually no good reason for an investigation and certainly no cause for the province as such spending a five-cent piece on it.

Going To The Hospital

Mayor Day of Toronto says that since provision was made for medical relief for those receiving direct relief there have been far more cases of sickness sent to the hospitals and the costs were mounting there.

The tendency is to send people to hospitals today. In a good many cases there may be good enough reason for so doing, because there is all manner of equipment there with which to work and undoubtedly the patient will get good care.

But it is not so very many years since going to the hospital was an experience which few people ever had. People used to have diphtheria, typhoid fever, broken limbs and all such ailments and have their nursing and medical attention at home. And in the great majority of cases there was no nurse provided. The people at home attended to that and the neighbors used to come and perhaps sit up at nights while those who had been on duty caught up with a little sleep. We have not a word to say against hospitalization; we believe in it—but when the added costs are now becoming a charge against the homes of the people there are well-defined limits past which it cannot go.

Shucks! It's Easy

Some people may wonder where all the news comes from to fill up an entire paper each day. Well the thing is comparatively simple; it may even be entirely simple.

We mean this way: Henry Ford went to pay a visit to President Roosevelt in Washington, and before he went there were several columns written at various times about what he was likely to talk about. All Mr. Ford had ever said himself was that the president was going to have a chance to see a man who didn't want anything.

The visit took place, and in one paper we read exactly one column and three inches and that is quite a lot as stories go. It would take a linotype operator about an hour to put it in type. One column and three inches and it never said a thing. Nice trip...pleasant sort of conversation...no dispute. Mr. Ford was cornered by the reporters and he told them everything about the visit except what they wanted to know. But that made one column and three inches.

So you see it is not much of a trick to find enough material to fill the newspapers each day. All you have to do is find one man who goes to visit another man and write one column and three inches about it, put a heading on the thing and there you are.

He Prefers A Crowd

When there is reason to believe the same person is involved in several thefts it becomes interesting to notice if there is any similarity in the method. It is reported that in Scotland Yard for instance when a crime is reported the officials know for whom to look. The method used has been similar to another case; the time of day and the way of entering and the articles taken all bear that mark of similarity.

There are thieves who prefer to operate in daylight; there are those who are certain the best time for robbery is right when there are many people around and when police officers are at hand. We believe it is the contention of such an individual that the very fact that policemen and plenty of people are near causes prospective victims to take few if any steps to guard against the visit of a robber.

As an example of that form of robbery Toronto had one at the corner of Adelaide and Bay and it was during the evening rush hour. Two detectives were sitting in a parked cruiser not fifty feet from the store; a policeman was directing traffic at the corner and another was not far down the street. The robber merely walked off the street into the store, placed a handkerchief over his face, drew a gun and proceeded to secure the cash from the till. After which he took off the handkerchief, put the gun and cash in his pocket and walked off into the crowd outside, and it may have been the traffic officer on the corner gave him an added chance to cross the street in safety. There have been two or three other robberies in Toronto and the method employed was quite similar, so it is correct enough to conclude the same man has operated in each case.

The truth seems to be that robberies are more a matter of day work now than night operation. The largest sums are taken in daytime raids when the robbers depend on high-powered cars, guns and daring to do the work quickly and depart in the same manner. The old-fashioned robber who was probably a keen locksmith in his own right and who could open almost any door which faced him without damage or noise is pretty much a thing of the past. Admittedly there is a degree of cunning in the individual who selects the time for operation as one when there are plenty of police and civilians only a few feet away. Such an individual would not be easy to apprehend.

In An Enlightened Age

If we were paying income taxation in Canada at the same rate it is applied in Britain we would be handing over 27½ cents out of every dollar which was found to be taxable. We would also be paying 16 cents a pound tax on tea, and on certain grades of gasoline the tax would be 18 cents.

The tax which will hit the greatest number of people in that list is the tax on tea. The tax on gas will come on those who are able to drive cars; they may feel it but they will manage to pay it. The fact that they are driving cars shows they have some means at their disposal. The increased income tax will of course fall on those with incomes of sufficient size to make the tax become operative. They are probably hard enough pressed as it is but they are not in the class of poor people.

The tax on tea will catch most of them. It will enter the home where ready cash is a hard enough thing to find. There are many such homes in England; also in Scotland. When one sees the man with the coal wagon going along some of the streets ringing his bell and pauses to see the few lumps which people purchase at a time it is easy to realize how little money there must be in such homes. The struggle for existence is always present. The tax on tea in those homes will hurt.

We have a clearer picture of it in Britain than we have in Germany or Italy or Japan or any of the countries which took the lead and forced the world into a race for armament and for planes and tanks and all such things. The taxes which these other countries are taking from the people must be enormous; they must be bitter and hard things to bear. They cannot possibly be spending the millions they have invested in war preparation without taking the millions out of their people.

We are living in an age of enlightenment (so-called) and in a time when civilization is supposed to have advanced to something like full-orbed proportion, and yet the irony of the whole situation is that a few dictators strategically placed have been able to send the world into a mad race for power which strips millions of their holdings, which makes life harder for the poor people and brings neither peace nor assurance in its wake!

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are to be no passes on Canada's air lines. These days not even the air is free.

Montreal bishop sees danger of Fascism in six Canadian provinces. The others possibly are in more danger of going the other way.

Six new Canadian pictorial postage stamps are to be issued and not one of them carries a picture of the Chemong floating bridge.

T. L. Church says the provinces of Canada are like a bunch of drunken sailors and that should be enough to provoke at least nine heated replies.

A speaker in Toronto said woman's voice should be heard in church affairs. We imagine he has never attended a meeting of the Ladies' Aid.

Britishers can have the satisfaction of feeling that every time they drink a cup of tea they are helping to defend their country.

Public administration courses for municipal employees have opened at the University of Toronto but there does not seem to be any instruction as to how city councils can get hold of sinking funds surpluses.

¶ My Cousin Steve is wealthy now, he doesn't need to keep a cow, or dig a garden spot; his wife has bonds stacked in a vault, of course Steve says that's not her fault, nor do they fade or rot.

¶ And Steve don't need to work no more, and he's got lazy to the core, he's made a bad mistake; and he can't eat at morn or noon, because he knows that pretty soon, he will begin to ache.

¶ And he goes off to springs and such, and most times travels on a crutch, he doctors quite a lot; it seems to work out like a rule, that some days he is feeling cool, and then again he's hot.

¶ When Steve was young why he was hard, he worked around the railway yard, ate from a dinner pail; he ate corned beef and chunks of cheese, and after that and quite at ease, he'd easy lift a rail.

¶ He never went to spring baths then, was numbered with the hardest men, his hours were hard and long; that's what the girl admired in Steve, when he'd call on her in the eve, he was uncommon strong.

¶ And now and then I hear Steve sigh, that he can't eat deep rhubarb pie, from bottom to the lid; when he shoves back most every dish, I know what's Steve's most pressing wish—to eat like what he did.

The Coronation Troops Debated

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. BENNETT: There is no doubt that the contingent that went from these shores in 1937 was a political contingent. There were five privates of the line! I was in London for a little while and this is what they said: "Here come the Canadian colonels." I wonder if the minister has examined into the number of colonels there were in that contingent? I wonder if he realizes that when the guard was to be changed at Buckingham palace there were not enough privates to do it? There were only five and they had to use sergeants and corporals and others to do the work. The photographs are nearly all destroyed now.

Mr. PINARD: What is the objection to colonels?

Mr. BENNETT: None whatever, except that they make bad privates. Sometimes privates make good colonels, but colonels do not make good privates. At one time politics found their way into the Canadian militia with very disastrous effects. There is a view abroad that politics are again present in the Canadian militia. The minister says that the selection was made in a certain way, but I know how it was made. Will he say that there was not one man who had not a uniform in connection with which a specific order went out that he was to be included in the contingent?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I know there were four of them taken on in London, but I do not know whether they had uniforms.

Mr. BENNETT: I am not talking about the ones who had left these shores before this specific order was issued.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I do not know of any.

Mr. BENNETT: Go down and ask the deputy minister, that is all. If the minister will be good enough not to evade the responsibility which I think attaches to this matter—

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I am accepting responsibility for everything.

Mr. BENNETT: Then I recommend strongly that he becomes familiar with what that responsibility is. If the minister will do that, he and I will be at peace with one another. All he has to do is to go and ascertain the facts. All he has to do is to bring in the files and see the directions that were sent out as to that man there and this man here being a member of the contingent for purely political reasons because he had been a handy man. Do not let us have any misunderstanding. Will the minister do that?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I shall be very glad to.

Mr. BENNETT: Thank you. If the minister will do that we will be content. I have nothing more to say because I am satisfied that he will see that I have made an accurate statement. It may well be that he has no knowledge of what I am saying, but it was done. The result was that Canada lost a great opportunity as compared with Australia. I wonder if one realizes the steps that were taken in Australia to deal with the matter? I wonder if one realizes how the men were selected and the training they underwent? When they swung up the street everyone realized the type of men they were.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): They were no better than ours.

Mr. BENNETT: They were privates of the line.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): They were allowed a three months' training period.

Mr. BENNETT: That is what I am coming to. They were allowed a three months' training period and they were a magnificent type of men. By reason of that training, the public of London needed only one look at those men to see the type of men they were.

Mr. PINARD: We are not looking for any favours from London.

Mr. BENNETT: My hon. friend has an antipathy to London which he manifests on every occasion. I wonder what London has done to him outside of giving him the liberty and freedom of the city? I wonder what London ever did for him except give him the right to sit here?

Mr. PINARD: The people give me that right, not London.

Mr. BENNETT: The hon. gentleman's antipathy to that great city always manifests itself. Apparently he dislikes the people who live there. If they knew him as well as I, they might have the same view with respect to himself.

Mr. PINARD: On a question of privilege—I should like the right hon. gentleman to sit down—I have nothing against the people of London and I do not want the right hon. gentleman to state that I am opposed to them. I was there and I believe they are the best people in the world. My right hon. friend can go there, but he will be lucky if he is accepted.

Mr. BETTS: On a question of privilege, I should like it to be made clear that we are speaking of London, England, not London, Ontario.

Mr. PINARD: I would not refer to London, Ontario, when I know that my hon. friend represents that city.

SICK MOTOR CARS.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE SAFETY League is on safe ground when it insists that all used cars should be examined for mechanical defects before they are resold. If they were, many of the death-traps to be seen on the highways would be on the junk-heap. Pending a general examination of motor vehicles, drastic attention should be paid to those that seem to be falling to pieces. These are a menace and should be speedily removed. Special care should be exercised toward making sure that permanently diseased cars, made temporarily convalescent with a paint brush and a monkey-wrench, are kept off the highways.

√Grove School "Old Boy" in London √

Honors Memory of "The Headmaster."

AN "Old Boy" from Grove School at Lakefield is I. Norman Smith, news editor of the Canadian Press office in London, Eng. He is a son of W. Norman Smith, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal. Having received copies of the Examiner with reports of the passing of Dr. A. W. Mackenzie, Mr. Smith desires to say something on his own behalf and probably on behalf of Old Boys in general. In forwarding his tribute from London Mr. Smith explains:

"This last Easter week-end, away from London's bustle, and quiet in Hampshire's hills, I was able to do a bit of concentrated thinking. And I am sending you the result."

EASTER, WITH its message of the triumph of right over wrong, is an appropriate time to reflect on the life of Dr. A. W. Mackenzie. "The Old Man" was drawn to his grave on Bill Stabler's sleigh last March but his memory knows no death in the hearts and minds of thousands of Old Boys. Indeed it is difficult to believe he has passed on, that he is not in his garden this Spring or poking about his workshop in preparation for another Summer's sailing on the lakes.

No, the headmaster of the Lakefield Preparatory School was so essentially a "living" man, a man so aware of everything about him that the people and places to whom he belonged will long enjoy his presence.

The worn chair in his simple study, the favorite post at the rink's edge, the Chapel altar at Communion time, the tiller of the Gey Gilpie—no Old Boy will vision these without him.

And I have the right to say "no Old Boy." For though my words are inadequate I know I speak for the thousands in my ranks. It was characteristic of Dr. Mackenzie that he was to all his boys as he was to each.

What was he to each? There may be a word to answer that in the Latin or Greek which he knew so intimately, but I know of none in English. The word "Father" jumps to mind. But he was less than, yet more than, a Father. You might say he combined the roles of teacher, sports leader, minister and friend. But these in turn would need breaking down: how many things he taught, how many games he played and how we played the game, how simply yet how profoundly he told of God and Goodness, and in what a host of ways was he a friend.

I do not apologize for this obvious inability to present to the stranger what Dr. Mackenzie was to his boys. Think for yourselves of a man who teaches higher algebra and clarifies Virgil to two different lots of students in the same room at almost the same time; of a man who digs a new sewer drain in a backyard when he has finished his interpretation to a literature class of the psychology behind Macbeth's reasoning; of a man who plays a vigorous game of hockey with youths a quarter of his age, the same youths in whom his Chapel sermons instil a love and knowledge of God.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE PRIMATE of Canada who went from Toronto to Lakefield to conduct the funeral service of his friend "Alex," expressed his inability to define Dr. Mackenzie's character. But the Primate added what every Old Boy had in mind: "There is a great deal of scepticism in the world today but there is something the members of this school can never be sceptical about, however tempted they may be by the perverse admonitions of men, they can never be sceptical of goodness for they have lived their lives in the presence of that which was goodness. Goodness—the greatest thing we meet with in life."

Goodness is a word that has been so misused as to attract to itself some suspicion of softness and feminity. No such quality was in Archbishop Owen's mind, yet he will perhaps forgive me for stressing the very masculine nature of Dr. Mackenzie's goodness. Forthright in thought and deeds. Dr. Mackenzie was the living example of that "manliness" which he urged upon us in Chapel. Shunning mannerisms and despising insincerity, Dr. Mackenzie's life seemed indeed based on St. Paul's admonition which he so often quoted to his boys: "Quit you like men and be strong."

Yet Dr. Mackenzie was not just a rough diamond. He had a delicate touch in his handling of men and boys which, without exaggeration, amounted to artistry. He had an instinctive way of straightening out a boy's mind, indeed, of making a boy realize he had a mind. For it was Dr. Mackenzie's fundamental belief that a boy needed not so much a ruling hand as a helping hand, and it was the result of this philosophy that when a Grove boy did the right thing he felt he did it because he wanted to do it rather than because he was ordered to do it.

This is not to say that Dr. Mackenzie's boys were pampered and spoiled. I imagine that when it comes to corporal punishment justly applied Lakefield takes second place to no Canadian school. And no Old Boy has forgotten his trembling fear when the Head's jaw set just a little more firmly than usual and he heard the dread words: "See me in my study." And when Dr. Mackenzie spanked a junior on his rear end or caned a senior on his palms there was something to be remembered. He thrashed vigorously—oh how vigorously!—yet accompanying the fear of his punishment was the inevitable knowledge that it was deserved.

◇ ◇ ◇

IF I MAY do a bit of reminiscing: by far the worst tailing I ever took in 10 years at Lakefield was from Dr. Mackenzie, along with seven other fellows. With that weird sense of humor that sometimes attacks a 14-year-old we had gathered a score or more frogs from the lake and dumped them in one unfortunate's bed. The scene in dormitory No. 3 that night was fantastic. The first episode was a bellow from student x whose toes touched the slimy depths. The second was his hurling them all over the dormitory with what we thought a shameful lack of humor. The third was prolonged for some hours: intermittent hippity-hops in the quiet of night and occasional squashes as a bare-footed Grove boy trod a frog's back on his way to the bathroom!

Alas, this wondrous night was to bring a woeful morning. We frog-catchers had banded together in blood-brother style to conceal which one of us had actually taken them into the dormitory. So that when a junior master questioned the dormitory of 15 he found no less than eight admitting they had each placed the frogs in the bed. Now in the ordinary course of events this junior master might have licked us himself. But to lick eight was not in the ordinary course of events, much less to lick eight for frogging a bed. So we were reported to the Headmaster and in short order given eight (had we been but three!) strokes on the rear with a hardwood stick that left such welts and provoked such wails that we none of us can even now order frogiegs in a restaurant without sitting on the side of our chair.

◇ ◇ ◇

I DIGRESSED into that tale (no pun) on thinking back to the days of corporal punishment. But I must not give in to the temptation to recall the spicier events of days at Lakefield. For it is an established fact that if half a dozen Grove Old Boys get together swapping memories they don't get home until morning.

However the urge to tell stories is perhaps in itself a further tribute to Dr. Mackenzie. In so very many ways Lakefield was to us a place of happy exciting days that only now as Old Boys we realize to the full what kind of a school it was. We laughed hard and we cried hard, we played hard and we worked pretty hard. All in all we developed a sense of well being, a sense of being mighty glad to be alive. And there can be no doubt about the source of that peculiar virility.

Archbishop Owen said he couldn't think of Lakefield without thinking of Dr. Mackenzie. Nor can any Old Boys consider the finer things they got from Lakefield without realizing that the whole fabric of that old school on the hill was woven by "the Old Man" and with the threads of his own personality.

Yet this does not mean a dark future. On the contrary, Dr. Mackenzie willed to his school its own strength and character just as he evoked from his boys their own individuality and independence of spirit. Moreover the staff that remains is imbued with Dr. Mackenzie's principles and trained in his practices, and as custodian of that tradition one can think of no more conscientious and zealous successor to the headmastership than his son Mr. Kenneth A. Mackenzie. Our affectionate farewell to this beloved man is happy in that thought.

LION ON RAMPAGE.

(South African News Letter)

SINCE THE OPENING of the Kruger National Park, the great lion has never been known to attack a European there, though visitors approach them quite closely in their cars and obtain astonishing photographs of them.

But this month a lion that lay waiting at a water hole near Skukuza, the big rest camp in the centre of the Park, sprang upon two native women, killing one outright and barely mauling the other.

The two women were on their way from a beer drink and were walking along a narrow winding footpath between banks of tall grass.

Both women were knocked sprawling as the lion bounded upon them. Seizing one of the women in its jaws, the lion made for a clump of bushes a hundred yards away. The other woman struggled to her feet and ran screaming back along the path.

Attracted by the movement of the fleeing figure, the lion dropped his first victim and gave chase. In a few bounds he overtook the woman, seized her by the shoulder and dragged her to the ground.

A group of natives who came on the scene at this moment saw the lion drop the second native woman and make off into the bush.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

THEN JOB answered and said, I know it is so of a truth: but how should man be just with God? If he will contend with him, he cannot answer him one of a thousand. He is wise in heart, and mighty in strength: who hath hardened himself against him, and hath prospered?

Then answered Zophar the Naamathite, and said. . . . Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? . . . If thou prepare thine heart, and stretch out thine hands toward him: if iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles. For then shalt thou lift up thy face without spot; yea, thou shalt be stedfast, and shalt not fear.—Job ix: 1-4; xi: 1, 7, 13-15.

To The Editor

A LEADER WANTED

Editor Examiner:

Sir: According to Mr. Lincoln, the hardest job in the world is to find an honest partner in a swindle. It appears equally difficult to find a Moses to lead us out of the muddle created by our system of taxation. Politicians we have in super- abundance, but when it comes to dealing with a concrete evil, such as unemployment, they are all dumb dogs with nothing better to offer in solution than increased taxation.

Taxation is the major problem confronting the world today. Whether it is a question of trade, of national defence, of unemployment and relief doles, taxation has the casting vote. Politicians cannot solve the problem because it was politicians, not statesmen, who created it.

If one sent a messenger to deliver a twenty-pound parcel in haste, would he fasten ten pounds to each foot? Would it not be the acme of folly so to do? Would it not make haste impossible? Yet this is exactly what our political leaders so-called insist upon doing, for by placing the burden of taxation upon the productive efforts of private citizens they penalize industry, slow up production and create mass unemployment, as effectively as would the weights impede the progress of the messenger.

We need a leader thoroughly conversant with the incidence and ethics of taxation from the ground up, figuratively and literally. He must know how taxation, correctly applied, will stimulate production as certainly as we know it can and does discourage and penalize industry in every form under the present system. He must have a logical mind and a passion for justice. For such a leader there is urgent and imperative need. Surely there must be some, maybe many, in Canada possessing these qualities, though not found in the ranks of party hacks. The present system is evil beyond any hope of redemption, a new and better method of securing public revenue must speedily be found if civilization would escape destruction.

ICY EVIDENCE.

(Wall Street Journal)

A MAN FAMOUS FOR his zealous advocation of the cause of temperance employed a carpenter to make some alterations in his home. In repairing a corner it was found necessary to remove the wainscot, when some things were brought to light which greatly astonished the workman. Glasses, sundry liquor bottles, a bowl of ice, etc., were comfy reposing in their snug quarters. The carpenter ran to his employer with the intelligence.

"Well, I declare," exclaimed the man. "That is curious. It must be old Captain Bunce who left those things there when he occupied the premises thirty years ago."

"Perhaps he did," returned the discoverer, "but that ice in the bowl must have been well frozen to remain unmelted."

DID THE BOTTLES CONTAIN BEER MAGISTRATE ASKS

"It seems to me there is a serious gap in this case" declared Magistrate Langley in Thursday afternoon's session of the police court after the crown evidence against Joseph J. Emery of Howden Avenue, North Monaghan, of illegally selling liquor, had been completed. The magistrate went on to express doubt as to whether it had been shown that the bottles involved in the case really contained an intoxicant, the only evidence as to the contents having been furnished by two crown witness who said the bottles contained intoxicating beer but who based their opinion only upon the labels, the crowns bearing the name of the Liquor Control Board and the appearance of the fluid inside the bottles.

Crown Attorney McElderry submitted that that was sufficient evidence under the act but Magistrate Langley ordered an adjournment until Saturday to allow him to look up the authorities on the point.

T. J. Carley K. C. who defended Emery and who said he did not propose to submit any evidence for the defence argued that there was no real evidence as to the contents of the bottles.

The most important witness for the crown, a young man, testified that he had driven to Emery's house on the night of April 22, with three companions in an automobile and receiving $2 from one of his companions had gone in and handed the money to Emery telling him that he wanted "two dollars worth" and Emery had replied "Six" and witness had said "yes" whereupon Emery had gone out and come back shortly after with six bottles of Blue Top beer. Witness said three of the bottles had been placed in a paper bag and he had put the other three in his pockets. He returned to the car and the party drove off, only to be picked-up on Park Street south by Officer Bruce Menzies who ordered the party to drive to the police station.

There the bottles of beer were placed on a table in the guard room and witness said the officer marked each bottle with his name and the date. He identified six bottles produced as those he had bought from Emery and had seen marked by Menzies.

Asks For Protection

Before commencing his evidence the witness had asked for the protection of the court under the Canada Evidence Act and Mr. Carley began his cross-examination by asking him who had instructed him to claim protection.

"Inspector Reid" the witness replied.

"And who told you to say the beer was intoxicating liquor?" continued defence counsel.

"The Crown Attorney" was the reply.

Witness denied that he had been given any assurance by the police that if he testified against Emery no charge would be laid against him.

"I understand there is to be a charge against me" he said.

The other three members of the party told of the first witness going into Emery's house and of coming out with a paper bag. They corroborated his evidence as to their arrest on Park Street and as to what happened at the police station.

Had Been Watching

Constable Bruce Menzies testified that he had been watching Emery's house for some time on complaints received and had noticed numbers of cars coming from the direction of Rye's pavilion and turning around at Emery's place. In some cases some of the occupants went into the house. On the night in question he had seen a car backing out of Emery's driveway and had followed it to Park Street south where he stopped it and ordered its occupants to drive to the police station, first taking out a paper bag containing three bottles of Blue Top beer. Later at the police station he had found three other bottles of the same beer on the floor of the car and he identified the six bottles produced in court as those he had found in the car.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carley Constable Menzies said that he was not sure just what material Emery's house was composed of.

"You had been watching it for some time" commented Magistrate Langley.

During the cross examination the witness stated that, armed with a search warrant, he had visited Emery's house later that night and had found the door padlocked and raps on the door and windows failed to produce any response. He returned two or three times during the night but each time found the house still locked up and no signs of life. During his first visit several cars had stopped at Emery's but drove off again when the officers were seen. Finally at about 6 o'clock the next morning he had found Emery at home and had placed him under arrest.

Cross examined as to the contents of the bottles witness said it was beer but admitted that he was saying so because of the labels, the appearance of the liquid and the Liquor Control Board name on the tops.

NORTHBROOK MAN FINED FOR BEATING "WIFE-MOLESTER"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 29.—David Wagar of Northbrook pleaded guilty in the Magistrate's Court to the assault of Ross Peterson, of Elm Tree, on April 2. He was fined $5 and costs, and in default of payment, the gaol term is 15 days.

Young Peterson is the man who was reported missing, but who has since revealed himself. It was stated by Wagar, in explanation of his assault on Peterson, that Peterson had been paying unwanted attention to his wife. Wagar admitted striking Peterson, after having warned him to keep away from Wagar's home.

In giving sentence, the Magistrate stated that no man, whether with provocation or not, has the right to take the law in his own hands.

Alfred Fobert, Elzevir Township, was given one year definite and a further six months' indefinite sentence in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, when he appeared in the Madoc Police Court on Thursday afternoon, charged with the theft of a $1,000 bond from a Tweed residence. On two other charges of breaking and entering and theft, he was given a further sentence, to run concurrently with the first one.

Charged with supplying the Indians on the Tyendinage Reserve with intoxicating spirits, Henry Storms was assessed $50 and costs when he appeared before J. Ede, Indian agent, on Wednesday. Storms was given one month in which to raise the fine. The accused man was apprehended by the R.C.M.P. recently, following complaints that liquor was being supplied the Indians on the reserve.

'Body' Watches Divers Hunt It In Canal

Homestead, Fla., April 29 (AP). SPECTATORS noticed Edward McGarrah showed unusual interest to-day in efforts of divers to enter the cab of a truck submerged in a drainage canal.

Finally he turned to one and said, with a sigh: "I sure hope they get my truck out."

"Your truck?"

"Sure, I was driving it."

"They're not after your truck. They're hunting for your body," said the spectators.

Divers and an ambulance crew left quickly.

FORMER CHAMP AT 32 SEEKING NEW NET TITLE

NEW YORK, April 29—Call it personal satisfaction, vanity, or burning ambition. Call it what you will, but there's something that acts as a terrific driving force to goad ex-champions into believing they're not through...that they still have one good day left under their belt. Helen Wills Moody still believes in herself. At 32 the comely poker face of tennis has an idea she can triumph again at Wimbledon...with her eighth British women's singles championship.

To succeed would be to set a new record for Wimbledon play. Mrs. Moody is tied with Mrs. Lambert Chambers, one of the earlier stars. Centre court at Wimbledon is no place for a faltering stroke, or a pair of legs which have lost the spring of youth. Certainly Queen Helen isn't the performer today she was in her hey-day of 1930.

✧ ✧ ✧

Yet in workouts before she sailed for England Mrs. Moody looked fully as good as she did two years ago when she last conquered the field in the British tourney. If she can maintain the pace—and that is a moot point until proven otherwise — she'll have an excellent chance of not only cleaning up in England but of returning home and outstroking the cream of the crop in the American championship.

This assumption is based on the fact that there are no American players at present—with the possible exception of Alice Marble — who are as good as Helen was two years ago. And neither Senorita Anita Lizana nor Jedwiga Jedrzehowska is quite the performer Helen was in her last time out.

Mrs. Moody's plans call for her to play in several grass court tournaments as preparation for Wimbledon, which begins June 20 and ends July 2. Prior to that she intends to play as a member of the Wightman Cup team which meets the British court aces at Wimbledon, June 10-11. If she stands up as well as she expects to in these tournaments, she'll return to the United States for the Eastern Seaboard Grass Court Invitational — and then the National Championship at Forest Hill in September.

By that time, however, Queen Helen may find that she's overestimated her ability—and what is more important, her stamina. But few women in sports have possessed the quiet purpose of Helen Wills Moody.

CHURCH PUCKISTS RECEIVE SHIELDS

The Church Hockey League closed its 1937-38 season last night with a championship banquet at All Saints' parish hall, with a big turnout. The three winning teams, along with officials and guests, totalled about 50. Ladies' group of All Saints' served the supper. Lloyd Parnall, league president, was chairman; while Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, honorary president, spoke briefly, praising the true sporting and competitive spirit as manifested in the Church League games.

Three shields were presented by members of the Sunday Schools whos teams lost out to the champions in finals. Dr. C. W. Lawrence, Superintendent of St. Paul's, presented the juvenile shield to Capt. Don Eason of Mark Street. The bantam trophy was presented by Gordon Clegg of St. John's to Gerald Ackford of All Saints. President Lloyd Parnall, as manager of George Street Seniors presented the senior shield to Capt. Harold Charlton of All Saints. Snappy speeches accompanied the presentations.

Robert Hardie provided a neat program of magic to round out an entertaining and enjoyable evening. Alex Runnett led the sing-song. The ladies were thanked by Don Charlton on behalf of the gathering.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

SOME SPLASH artists will compete this Saturday night at a dual swim meet at 8.15 in the Y.M.C.A. pool. Local "Y" and Y.W. aquatic experts will play hosts to the Orillia "Y" swimmers, who come here looking for their third straight victory over Peterborough natators. Since their 92 to 78 reverse in Orillia, the George St. boys added several youngsters to their minnow and tadpole sections and hope to cop a nod. The local team includes: Gord Bocock, Stan McBride, Al Marshall, Ted Clarke, Ralph Rogow, Jim Joiner, Ron Burgess, Jerry Corbett, Cliff McKinstry, Jack Lacheur, Bill Gardner, Herb Henry, Bern Hamlin, Gord Wallace, D'Arcy Ryan and Dave Poulson. Ladies of the Silver Finnettes will dish up a short demonstration of ornamental swimming, as well as competing against the visitors. Some diving, too. Ought to be a good water show.

SOFTBALL RE-ORGANIZATION of the men's City Loop this year is sporadic, not to say spurty. Sort of got the hiccups. All deadly quiet for a space and then a bit of sudden action. Takes a lot of work by the ossifers to get the teams in the loop a-rollin for the summer. They will eventually, but some industrious digging is necessary. Not enough sponsors or managers—but plenty of players and a fine diamond. Getting to be an industrial league now, with notik'ng but factories apparently interested in entering teams. And the big Southend Circuit has cut in a lot on the uptown league. Next meeting of the City Loop will be next Tuesday at eight in Duffus', and we hope they have a few more entries in by then.

THE DIAMOND sport of baseball bids fair to shake off the shackles of depression, recession or suppression—which ever it is—which cut in considerably on this game here for several seasons. With the return of the public schools to baseball, the sport received a real tonic locally. There is an independent junior squad, which we wrote of last night, another independent kids' outfit getting lined up, a good possibility of a junior entry in the Lakeshore League (with maybe Lions Club doing the big brother act) and the senior Petes. Possibly an intermediate squad could be formed too, as there is a wealth of material for that series here. We won't have a City Baseball League this year, but this year's revival will help a lot and such a circuit could be formed next summer.

AN EXECUTNVE meeting of the O.B.A. will be held Saturday in Toronto to consider transfers. Three former pro players are seeking re-instatement, Eddie Murphy of Peterborough, Don Gibbard of St. Catharines and Neil Anderson of Kirkland Lake. Applications for transfers, those affecting Central Ontario, include: John Olean, Thorold to Napanee; Robert Bell, Winnipeg to Napanee; Tommy Pointer, Napanee to Port Hope; and Dave Osborne, Bowmanville to Toronto. There will be another executive meeting or two during May to consider further applications. That'll catch those "summer students", etc.

SEVERAL OF the Petes' officers will journey to Cobourg on the morrow for the C.O.B.L. session there in the afternoon. Big problem confronting loop officials and delegates from Peterborough, Kingston and Oshawa, will be the finding of a fourth club. If this can be arranged, it won't be much trouble to arrange a satisfactory schedule, playoff system, umpiring arrangement, and so on. Prexy Max Swanston of the Central League has done some heavy corresponding and telephoning all over Central and Eastern Ontario, but admits things look black for a fourth entry or an interlocking schedule with another circuit. And the Petes' officers are pessimistic now, too. However, some new angle may be brought up tomorrow when the baseball moguls convene and start racking their brains.

CHURCH PUCK LOOP cleaned up a bit of pleasant business last e'en-tide with a banquet for the winners at All Saints' parish hall, the ladies' there catering. Shields were presented to the champs, All Saints' Seniors, Mark St. Juveniles and All Saints' Bantams. President Lloyd Parnall was chairman at the function, while the Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson—who is honorary prexy of this circuit—made a short speech on sportsmanship and the right competitive spirit as fostered in the Church League. This is a first-rate puck loop and our O.H.A. teams have a flock of former members of it in their line-ups—fellows who learned to play clean and effective hockey in the minor setup.

"Y" CIRCUS started off with a bang last night at the Y.M.C.A. before a fair-sized crowd despite heat waves, storms and what have you. It will run again this e'en at 8.15 in the gym and deserves a big gathering of ladies and gents. The boys have drilled long and hard and they really put on a show packed with action, thrills and chuckles. As someone has remarked, they have performed before royalty—before Queen Alexandra, King George, Queen Mary, Prince of Wales, and others of the public schools of Peterborough! A well-handled piffawmance throughout.

AN ATTEMPT will be made to re-organize the Central Ontario lacrosse group with a general meeting called by George Sneyd in the St. Lawrence Hotel, Port Hope, this Friday night. They hope maybe to get teams in from Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa and possibly Norwood or Bowmanville. No mention made of Peterborough, but the locals are trying to line up in a stronger series this summer. Should Oshawa go in with the Lakeshore teams, the Petes might be partially in the spot with the bottle of milk—left out in the cold. But we doubt it. Not a great deal of news yet about the locals or their grouping, but the boys are practising away—and will be at it tomorrow afternoon—and it wont be long now, folks.

Marmora To Have New Net Courts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 29.—Through the generosity of Mrs. Grace Deacon, Marmora is to have three first-class new tennis courts this year. Not only has Mrs. Deacon offered the use of the lots at the rear of her residence for tennis courts, but she has also offered to have them levelled and put in good shape for playing. A tennis club has been organized with a strong executive and the necessary nets, wire screens and other accessories will be purchased. There will be two double courts and one single court. Membership in the club is to be open to residents of Marmora, Deloro, Cordova and the surrounding district.

Tourists at Crowe Lake will also have the opportunity to play by paying a grounds fee. The new tennis courts should be a big asset to Marmora.

Cricket Notes

The Cricket Club will commence the season's activities with practice at Nicholls Oval tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at 2.30. Old and new players are requested to turn out.

CRICKET PRACTICE

The Peterborough C.C. and Whitakers will hold a joint workout at the Oval on Saturday afternoon at 2.30. Old and new players are requested to turnout to help make final arrangements for the season. As an opening match Whitakers will play Grove School at Lakefield on Saturday, May 7.

Humour And Thrills Aplenty In Annual Y.M.C.A. Circus

'Y' Boys Excel Themselves In Snappy Program—Bill Well Handled

The annual "Y" Circus of Peterborough opened its two-day stand in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last evening before a fair-sized gathering. Inclement weather kept down the crowd to some extent, but its previous high mark in attendance may be surpassed at the concluding performance tonight.

A snappy list of events comprised on entertaining and interesting — with plenty of excitement, also — program. The show was sprinkled liberally with action, thrills, clever acting and humor. The senior, junior and beginning boys of the Y.M.C.A. excelled themselves this year with their work and it drew frequent rounds of applause from the gathering of spectators.

Rufus Payne was master of ceremonies for the Circus, with Cliff Cadd the floor manager. George Nicholls played accompaniments on the piano. The affair was promoted by James McClenaghan of the Y.M.C.A. staff. Among the senior stars in tumbling, parallel bar performances, the flying rings and clowning, were: Jack Wolstenholme, Mel Hunter, Jack McMilan, Freddie Williams, C. McKinstry, Ken Gadd, C. Porter, Rollie Rennie, S. Ball, Emmett Creighton, G. Palmer, Steve Csumrik, Nels Stanger, Bill Harle, Bill Hogan and E. Duncan. In fencing, Vince Holmes and Ken Gadd drew applause.

First number on the program was that of two Dozen Dwarfs (members of the Pioneers section) in an entertaining series of relays. It was followed by members of the Beginners and Juniors sections in some fine elementary marching. Young Speed Artists, from the Beginners section, dished up some complicated co-ordination stunts with speed mixed in. Jim Goselin pulled some funny stuff in relation to his exploration via remote control of the tomb of the late lamented King Tut.

The Junior Tumbling followed, with a bunch of smart junior acrobats and gym experts showing the gallery the result of long training with clever work. The Unparalleled Troupe, composed of senior members on the parallel bars, did their stuff in fine fashion on the slender hickories and earned rounds of applause during their entertaining acts. Senior tumbling aces also looked excellent in their clowning performances, being clever and humorous. The fencing match was interesting and proved quite novel to most of the assembly. Like the exhibition on the parallel bars, the stunts on the flying rings, by senior members, proved a highlight on a good program.

On the whole, this show proved up to expectation, with the athletes earning applause for their snappy stunting, clever acting and feats of skill to culminate weeks of intensive drilling. It was a well-handled indoor gymnastic circus and deserved a bigger crowd of spectators. The final showing of the "Y" Circus will be tonight (Friday) at 8.15 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

Campbellford Will Have Softball Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 29. — Local softball enthusiasts have been practicing on the high school grounds during the past week and despite the fact that the ground is be seen each evening trying to imbe a bit too soft a large number may prove their batting average for the coming season. Although no plans have as yet been made, it is reported that a meeting is to be held in the Library during the coming week. Although there is considerable agitation for a local softball group to be formed, it is thought that a team will be entered in the O.A.S.A. grouped with Hastings, Norwood, Havelock and surrounding towns.

LOU GEHRIG HITLESS AS YANKS BOW TO BOSTON RED SOX 6-1

GROVE HOLDS YANKEE BATS FOR SOX WIN

NEW YORK, April 29 (C.P.). — Robert Moses Grove is getting grey round the temples and he no longer can fog his fast ball past the batters for inning after inning, but the tall southpaw at 38 still is one of baseball's master craftsmen.

It's a treat to watch him work now. He used to be with the Athletics, blinding the batters with his speed. Now he is with Boston Red Sox, his prenomenal smoke ball all but a thing of the past, yet he is in some ways a greater figure on the mound.

Watching him throttle the Yankees yesterday 6-1 with five hits, it occurred that he had been forced to learn to pitch all over again. Only a half-dozen times in the entire nine innings did he cut loose with the remnant of his fast one. The rest of the time Lefty was baffling the Yanks with a sweeping curve, control, and a change of pace that he would have spurned in the days when he was blowing men down.

Gehrig Goes Hitless.

He sent Lou Gehrig hitless in three official times at bat, running the highest-salaried player's total to three hits in 34 times at the plate.

While the veteran Grove was doing all this to the Yanks and knocking them out of the first division, his teammates piled into Lefty Gomez for all their runs in the first four innings and sewed up the game.

Henk Leiber, the season's outstanding comeback, propelled the Giants into undisputed possession of the National League lead with a first inning home run at Boston that scored two ahead of him and proved sufficient to beat the Bees 4-2. Hal Schumacher limited the Bees to five hits.

Ducky Medwick returned to St. Louis Cardinals' line-up and drove across two runs with a triple to help set back Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

That dropped the Pirates into second notch, and Chicago Cubs took over third place by blasting Cincinnati Reds 12-5 as Bill Lee held the Reds helpless until the ninth.

Phillies Lose 6-3.

Although outhit, Brooklyn was able to bunch its blows and shove the Phillies a little deeper into the cellar 6-3.

Buddy Lewis drove in six runs with a homer and two singles as Washington Nationals won their fourth straight from the Athletics 7-2.

The victory kept the Nationals hot on the trail of Cleveland for the American League top, only a half-game behind. Home runs by Keltner, Lary and Jeff Heath, one of Fort William, Ont., helped Cleveland beat St. Louis Browns, 11-6 in a free-hitting game.

COSTLY VICTORY TO ORIOLE GANG AS LEAFS LOSE

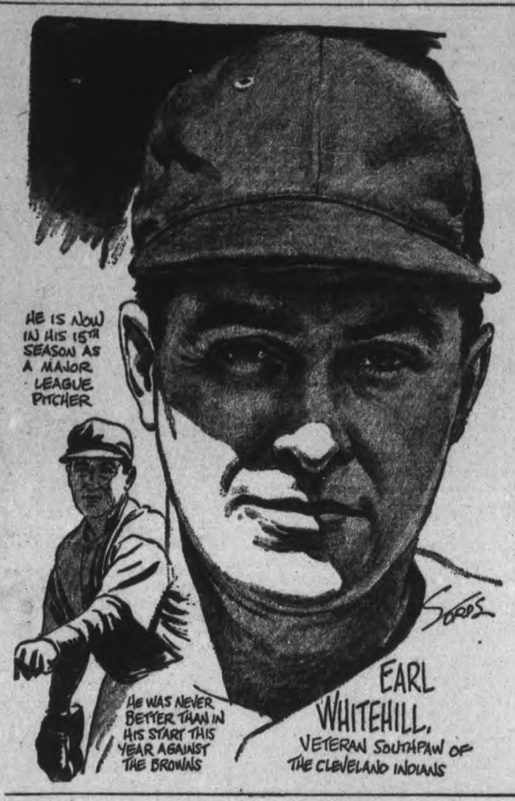
BALTIMORE, Md., April 29.—The Baltimore Orioles made it two straight over the Toronto Leafs by pounding out a 11 to 4 victory here Thursday, but it proved to be a costly victory for the home club. Carl Fischer, the Birds' star southpaw, was sent to the side-lines for six weeks when he was hit on the right wrist by one of Earl Caldwell's pitches in the fourth inning and suffered a broken bone in his arm. Fischer was not the only Bird to go on the casualty list, as Leo Norris, second sacker, pulled a charley horse and had to leave the game.

Baltimore used a make-shift line-up in beating the Leafs. The infield was shifted when Norris left the game and when Ab Wright was sent to the showers for arguing with Umpire Ainsmith, Rogers Hornsby, famous big league player and manager, was injected into the second base post and the inner works again switched around.

The Leafs got to Fischer for four hits, three of them in the second inning, to take the lead. But when Bill Ehrensberger ascended the pitcher's peak they were stopped with two bingles the last five innings. Fischer, however, was credited with the victory. Errors by Flea Clifton and Bill Urbanski spoiled the ball game in the fourth inning. But for Clifton's miscue the Birds would have scored nary a run instead of getting four and winning the game in this frame. Jack Burns also committed a miscue which figured in helping the Birds register two markers in the fifth.

Baltimore pounded the offerings of Earl Caldwell for nine hits and eight runs, sending him to the showers in the fifth inning. John Berly took up the mound work and also proved to be ineffective, yielding three runs on four hits. George Klivak pitched the final two frames without allowing a hit.

Frank McGowan and Phil Weintraub led the Orioles in a twelve-hit offensive, the former driving in three runs, with a single and pair of doubles, while the latter had a one-baser and homer to his credit. Bobby Porter's single and home run put him on top of the Leafs' batting attack.



HOMERS COUNT IN BEARS' WIN OVER MONTREAL

NEWARK, April 29.—(CP).—That home run punch that sparked Newark Bears to one of the most successful seasons in minor league history last year is doing business at the old stand—which is bad news for the rest of the International League.

The Bears spanked out three four-masters yesterday to win their sixth game in seven starts. They defeated Montreal Royals 4 to 2.

The victory kept Newark well in the lead, although Baltimore, Jersey City and Buffalo, the second, third and fourth place clubs, also won. The Orioles took a costly 11 to 4 victory from Toronto; Jersey City shaded Rochester in the ninth, 5 to 4, and the Bisons nipped Syracuse in the same inning, 3 to 2.

Buddy Rosar, Jimmy Gleeson and Ham Schulte did the heavy artillery work for the Bears, with Rosar's round tripper coming with a man on base. Schulte led the attack with two singles in addition to his homer.

Carl Fischer, a pitcher, and Leo Norris, second baseman, were lost to the Orioles in their victory. Fischer's right forearm was fractured by a pitched ball, while Norris pulled up with a Charley Horse. Despite these mishaps the flock hammered away as usual, collecting 12 hits, three of them by Frank McGowan, to win easily.

TRAINERS PREDICT TWO-HORSE DERBY

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP).—The Kentucky Derby will be a two-horse race between Stagehand and Fighting Fox in the opinion of a jury of 12 prominent trainers who were asked to-day to forecast a verdict on the three-year old classic at Churchill Downs May 7.

Stagehand and Fighting Fox, first and second choices, respectively, in the future books, received five votes each. The other two were cast for Bull Lea, hope of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm.

Earl Sande, trainer of Stagehand, naturaly supported his own horse and was joined by George Odom, Mose Goldblatt, J. P. (Doc) Jones and Roscoe Goose.

"My horse has done everything asked of him," said Sande, "and you can't go behind the records."

Six Scottish Clubs Facing Relegation To 2nd Division

Morton Assured Of Demotion, Fate Of Other Clubs Depends On Saturday

GLASGOW, April 29.—(CP Cable.)—Final matches in the Scottish Football League are scheduled for Saturday and hopes of six clubs to retain First Division status turn on the results. Morton is already bound for the junior league but it is impossible to predict which team will accompany the Greenock player.

When Celtic defeated St. Mirren last Saturday the Greenshirts won the championship for the nineteenth time. Hearts are sure of second place with Rangers next in line. Motherwell may yet tie Falkirk in points but the latter's better goal average assures the Stirlingshire squad of fourth place in the final standing.

Dundee, Clyde, Queen of the South and Kilmarnock with 31 points are bracketed above last-place Morton. Ayr United and Hamilton Academicals are one point better off. Queen's Park and St. Mirren, joint holders of the twelfth rung of the league ladder with 33, are just out of the danger zone.

The Killies, defeated by East Fife for the Scottish Cup, may yet escape demotion. They stack up against eHarts Saturday at Tynecastle Park and complete the schedule with a match against Morton. Queen of the South is away to Rangers and the Dumfries squad hopes to duplicate last season's drawn contest at Ibrox Park.

A match against Morton gives Clyde good prospects of remaining in senior company, but Dundee's hopefuls will need their shooting boots against Ayr United. The United gained a point with a midweek draw against Partick Thistle.

Hamilton Academicals and Queen's Park clash on the former's ground and victory for the Accies will keep them in the major league. Raith Rovers clinched the championship of the Second Division some weeks ago, but the fight between Albion Rovers and Airdrieonians for the runner-up position will not be settled until the week-end.

During a discussion of Canadian National Railway indebtedness it was shown that $70,000 in perpetual bonds of the old Grand Trunk Railway were still being serviced at a rate of six per cent interest.

W. A. Tucker (Lib. Rosthern) urged that owners of these bonds be given notice they would be called within a period of five years, otherwise the interest would be reduced to three per cent.

Mr. Dunning deprecated any suggestion that the Dominion government would break its pledged word with respect to these or any other obligations. Considerable argument arose over this attitude with Opposition Leader Bennett supporting the Minister in his desire to maintain Canada's credit intact.

Meant Revolt Abroad.

J. S. Woodsworth (C.C.F. Winnipeg North Centre) observed that violent revolution and illegal seizure had come about in other countries for the reason people could not get redress or find a way out of their difficulties by any constitutional or legal way.

The C.C.F. leader refused to admit that Canada should be bound in perpetuity to pay such a high rate of interest simply because somebody in power years ago had pledged the country to bondholders. The bonds were taken over as a liability when the Grand Trunk system was acquired by the government.

"I do not believe the example of Mexico and other places is a good example for Canada," Mr. Dunning exclaimed during the discussion.

All possible steps were being taken to refund direct and guaranteed obligations of the Dominion, Mr. Dunning said and, although the national debt was $1,000,000,000 higher than in 1924, the total interest payments were about the same.

The average interest on Dominion bonds was less than 3½ per cent and on railway securties, four per cent. But it was impossible to touch some of the issues without the consent of the owners of the bonds.

Not Breaking Word.

"Lest there should be an impression go abroad which, in my judgment would be harmful for Canada," said Mr. Dunning, "I must dissent from a suggestion of any intention on the part of this Government to do something which would involve the breaking of the pledged word of the Dominion of Canada.

"I want that distinctly understood. At the same time I deprecate a discussion of this kind because of the fact that it hinders bona-fide negotiations between parties who may mutually desire to make an agreement, I mean by debtors and creditors sitting down together and working out their problems.

"So far as the Dominion is concerned, to have any idea going out from these halls that we were contemplating deliberately breaking our word either directly or by any device, could not possibly do any of the population of Canada any good and certainly would do the Dominion as a whole a great deal of harm."

Conservative Leader Bennett entered the discussion with the statement if the Dominion cut the interest rate on the six per cent. perpetuals it would make no difference to the treasury because, under the agreement with the Grand Trunk, the Dominion undertook to pay that amount of money as part of its purchase price of the road. If it broke the agreement, it would have to hand back the Grand Trunk system to the old company. In any event, the six per cent. bonds only totalled $70,000.

Will Attempt to Cut It Down.

The average interest rate on Canadian National bonds was four per cent., Mr. Dunning said, "but that does not lessen the necessity of any Government to do everything it honorably can to reduce the interest burden. I again use the word 'honorably,' because if the Government is not the seat of honor, where are we going?"

The average interest rate on the National debt was less than 3½ per cent., and "I would like you to look at the public debts of all the other countries of the world and tell me how many of them can show an average debt charge of less than 3½ per cent. Remember, we have a high public debt in relation to our population."

The discussion arose while the Finance Minister was introducing a bill to empower the Government to refund Canadian National securities up to a total of $200,000,000. It was permissive legislation and the Government generally has authority of that sort to take advantage of market conditions as they arise.

MORE ABOUT—
PROGRESSIVE

Governor's address to 5,000 followers brought an interpretation that the La Follettes must expect to draw heavily on 1936 Roosevelt supporters for party recruits.

Senator Pope (Dem.-Idaho), staunch Administration supporter, expressed the belief that the Progressive movement would not gain much headway this year "because it would have to draw from the strongest supporters of the President."

MADISON, Wis., April 29 (AP)—A new party pledged to the goals of ensuring freedom and security for the people stood forth today upon the United States political scene.

The National Progressive party of America, dedicated to those ideals, was offered to the nation last night by Philip F. La Follette, governor of Wisconsin, who widened beyond repair a breach with President Roosevelt, junked political theories of other cities and set a new course in this direction:—

"Definitely and irrevocably we are in the lists to stay until the American people recapture their heritage."

This heritage he defined as the right of every American "to earn his living by the sweat of his brow" security "founded on a definite, decent annual income for all," and freedom of conscience and control.

To attain these ends, La Follette declared for public, and not private, control and ownership of money and credit, "without qualification or reservation." a staunch defence of the "basic concepts of American government, and, in partcular, that grants of power should always be safeguarded against abuse."

Flatly the governor opposed "every form of coddling, or spoon-feeding the American people," declaring that "whatever it may cost—so help us God—we shall use the power of these United States to restore to every American the opportunity to help himself." After that, said La Follette, "he can sink or swim."

Thus was born the second political party to be conceived and nurtured in Wisconsin. In 1854 the Republican party came into being at Ripon, in the same state. At that time the Democratic and whig parties were dominant.

The governor begins welding the new party into effective organizations at Des Moines, Ia., today, where he is scheduled to make a radio broadcast.

ment, Conservative leader Bennett has announced his retirement and a convention has been called to meet in Ottawa early in July to select a new leader. The long-standing quarrel between the Federal government and Premier Hepburn of Ontario also has burst forth anew.

There is a feeling the government should seek a mandate from the people in view of delays occasioned to the government's social and constitutional program by Dominion-Provincial differences.

The report of the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations usually figures in discussions on this point. The commission will conclude its hearings in June but its report is not expected before autumn or the end of the year.

Assuming the report will recommend constitutional changes and revision of fields of taxation, as between the provinces and the Dominion, it has been suggested the government should have a fresh mandate from the people on the implementation of the report in order to strengthen its hand in meeting an provincial or sectional opposition.

On the other hand many Liberals feel the government should make make definite progress on the implementation of the Rowell Commission report and on the establishment of unemployment insurance and other reforms before appealing to the people.

They think there is no demand from any section of the country for an election the government should get on with its work and forget about an election until next year at least or perhaps until 1940.

Reforestation Scheme Is Being Planned In North By Kiwanis Club

300 Acres Of Land Between Gull And Catachoma Lakes Suitable Site

Kiwanis Club to-day projected their interest in reforestation from the promotional and academic stage to a first step in a contemplated practical undertaking with the announcement at the weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel by Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of the Agricultural Committee, of a tentative plan to acquire an extensive wooded area on a peninsula between Gull and Catchacoma Lakes, forty miles north in the Township of Cavendish, forty miles north of the city.

The Peterborough Lumber Company intend to relinquish their timber rights on the property, and because of the Kiwanis Club activity in reforestation it was suggested that the Government might transfer the area to the club for future conservation of its young and growing timber. Approximately eight hundred acres are included in the area. At the request of Kiwanis, the company is retaining its rights for another year to enable the club to become thoroughly acquainted with the territory and its suitability for the forestry conservation, and to decide whether they will proceed with the proposed enterprise.

H. W. Crosbie of Tweed, district forester, and Arthur Leman, his assistant, were guests of the club, with Fred J. Overend of the Peterborough Lumber Company, of which Kiwanian Gordon Munroe is an executive.

"We have asked the company to retain their rights for a year," Dr. Craig stated, "to give us an opportunity and also time to decide to what extent Kiwanis would involve themselves in the undertaking in a practical way. We also desire to find out how the Government would react to a service club engaging in it. We are virtually holding it for a year, and we hope that during the summer all the members will see the area for themselves. Tuesday afternoon a party composed of Mr. Overend, Mr. Leman, Frank Paterson and myself visited the timber lot."

Assistance Promised

In a short address, Mr. Crosby assured Kiwanis that every assistance would be given by the Forestry branch to "further your plan in every possible way. It would be a demonstration of what can be done with the conservation of wood lots as we receive them from the lumbermen. I know there is a lot of young growth on this property. If you decide to proceed with this plan you will be making a contribution to forestry work in Ontario."

Mr. Overend described the location of the property which he said was known Cavendish as "The Park." J. F. Pierce concluded the noon hour discussion with an interesting talk on reforestation, tracing the importance of forests through ancient and modern civilizations. If the Garden of Eden was located in the vicinity of Ararat its original wealth of precious woods had long since disappeared, with consequent aridity setting in.

International Kiwanis are celebrating this week the 120th anniversary of the Rush-Bagot treaty, which the president, L. J. Pettit, said had made the boundary between the United States and Canada undefended in every military respect. Chas. Saunders read the message sent by the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to the Kiwanis Clubs of the two countries, and he also conveyed the kindly greetings he had recently received in Chicago from a Kiwanis Club of that city.

Mr. D. Watson of Toronto was welcomed as guest vocalist at the luncheon.

18-Year-Old Faces Drunk Charge

Pleading guilty to being drunk, an eighteen-year-old boy told Magistrate Campbell in police court this morning that he had been drinking between the hours of 11 o'clock last night and 3 o'clock today.

"When was this boy brought in?" asked the Magistrate.

"About 3.15 o'clock this morning," Constable Gordon Puffer stated.

"Where were you drinking?" asked the court.

"I am not going to tell you where I got my drink," the accused said.

"Where were you?" asked the Magistrate again.

"Down south," was the reply.

"I don't think you are over it yet," Magistrate Campbell said. "I am going to remand you until tomorrow morning."

RUBBISH FIRES NEED WATCHING

When householders take advantage of this spring weather to light fires and burn rubbish in back yards, they should take all possible precautions to ensure safety of the blazes, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett. Rubbish fires have a tenacity that defies even liberal sprinkling with water, he said.

The Fire Chief cited one instance in which a householder found just how tenacious such blazes are. He received permission from the department to light a rubbish fire last Thursday and it smouldered away all Thursday. On Thursday evening the householder threw buckets of water on the heap of smouldering material; that night and early Friday it rained. On Saturday the blaze broke out again in spite of its drenching. Only by particular care in such matters can dangerous fires be avoided, Chief Gimblett warned.

$4,408 CLAIMED NURSING SERVICES

The claim of Mrs. Mabel Bertha Snelgrove of Port Hope for $4408.00 for nursing services for the late Ann Caroline Janes, who died at Port Hope early in January, 1938, was contested at Cobourg on Thursday with His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor presiding.

Mrs. Janes had lived with Mrs. Snelgrove for about six or seven years, and had paid her regularly, according to the evidence, each week for her maintenance, but Mrs. Snelgrove claimed that this did not cover nursing, as Mrs. Janes was a partial invalid, and the claim was contested by the executors and beneficiaries of the estate of the late Mrs. Janes.

After an all day trial His Honour Judge O'Connor awarded Mrs. Snelgrove $240.00, with the costs of all parties payable out of the estate.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and F. C. Richardson of Port Hope appeared for the resiquary legatees, numbering twenty-one, and W. E. Bonneville of Port Hope acted as solicitor for the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, the executors of the estate, and H. R. S. Ryan of Port Hope, appeared for Mrs. Snelgrove.

Five Meet Death

Four Sundridge farmers met instant death, a fifth died in the hospital and a sixth is lying close to death as a result of a level crossing accident at Sundridge station. The six men had just started out on a carefree fishing trip when their car was struck and carried 300 yards down the track by the train before it was thrown aside. When the train crew reached the car an explosion had set it on fire and the victims were badly burned before being removed from the blazing wreckage. This picture was taken a few minutes after the accident and graphically shows all that remains of the car. Lying on the ground at the RIGHT is the body of one of the victims.

22 NEW UNIFORMS ARE PURCHASED FOR THE FIREMEN

Twenty-two new uniforms for the members of the Fire Department were ordered by the Fire, Water and Light committee of the council last night, accepting the tender of Grafton and Company Limited at $28.50 a suit including extra trousers. Three other tenders were received. The material to be used in the new raiment is 18-ounce blue serge.

It was also decided to buy by tender 500 feet of 2½ inch fire hose and a number of tarpaulins depending upon the price.

Archie McDonald, recently appointed to the permanent position of inspector, was promoted to the rank of captain in the department with corresponding increase in salary as provided by the schedule. Alderman Juby, chairman, and other members of the committee expressed their appreciation of the results of Chief Gimblett's policy of inspection of premises as a successful means of preventing fire hazards.

A resolution by Alderman Cotton instructed City Clerk Armstrong to write to the Fire Underwriters' Association informing them of the appointment of a permanent inspector and the engaging of an additional fireman.

Purchase of shirts for the men was left to Alderman Juby and Chief Gimblett, and the chairman was asked to obtain further information regarding samples of cloth supplied with bids for new overcoats.

KINSMEN TO BACK LACROSSE TEAM

Kinsmen will do their part toward seeing that Peterborough has good lacrosse teams in future. At the bi-weekly meeting at the Empress Hotel last night, the club decided to sponsor one of the midget teams of the city in an effort to bring along young players and see that the ranks of the senior team are never short.

D. G. H. Melton was guest speaker at the banquet, telling of "Observations, Coincidences, and Recollections." He was born in Yarmouth, England, came to Peterborough in 1912, went overseas during the Great War. He recounted a number of his experiences in the Army, and told of unusual experiences while on leave in Italy in 1918, drawing racial characteristics of the Italians from his own observations. The speaker was introduced by Vern Selkirk and H. S. Leybourne moved a vote of thanks. Dr. Mark Crough was chairman.

There will be no meeting of the Kinsmen on May 12, as had been planned. The Peterborough club will hold an inter-club meeting with Toronto at the Royal York Hotel on that date, it was decided. Don Scott gave a report to last night's meeting on the business activities of the convention of District 6 in Cornwall last week-end.

McGEER COMING.

Guests at the Peterborough Automobile Club annual dinner next Monday night, at 6.30 p.m., are in for a treat, as the officials announce Gerry McGeer, M.P. for Vancouver, will be the main speaker of the evening.

SUCCER DRIVE IS HELD AT WESTWOOD

More than two hundred farmers, armed with pitchforks and a few nets, waded in the Ouse River half a mile east of the village of Westwood this morning (Friday) and hurled thousands of suckers to the banks. It was the annual sucker fishing expedition, to which hundreds come from thirty miles around, take home fish by the bagful, pickle them in jars with vinegar. They taste like salmon, is the claim.

Hundreds of cars crowded the river's banks for the annual event. Each wader had his helper on the shore. Fish caught were thrown to the shore, to be picked up and bagged by the helper. Fishermen waded for a mile in either direction from the Hastings Road. They reported a much smaller catch than in previous year, blaming high water.

Like all fishing, it was essentially a man's sport. Only a scattered few women were in attendance, mostly as spectators, two as helpers. From early in the morning until late afternoon the fishermen waded the stream and fish had a difficult time escaped the prongs of their forks. For should a sucker slip past one group of waders, he would meet at least another dozen groups before he got through to safety.

Despite claims that fishing this year is poor, the fishermen were having better luck than do most sportsmen when they try for the more wily game fish. Every few seconds saw a three-to five-pound fish fly through the air from the end of a pitchfork, land on the bank, to be dumped unceremoniously into large bags. Only a few had nets, and they seemed to have poor luck.

Thousands Of Muskrat Pelts Sold To Fur Dealers During Past Season

Women are going to wear a great many seal coats next winter if all the muskrat pelts purchased by fur buyers in this city are made up for winter wear. The season just closed was one of the most successful in years, according to the buyers, and more furs were bought than for some time back.

Largest local buyer appeared to be Harry Jopling, who reported purchasing 12,000 and 13,000 pelts in the district. Next highest was the firm of Wm. J. Lech and Sons, with 10,000 pelts. The W. J. Hamilton Company purchased close to 2,000, and Barrie's, Ltd., declined to say how many they had bought, but admitted the number was greater than last year.

Good weather for trapping accounted for the increase in the number of rats trapped this year, according to buyers, and their quality was generally high. Some buyers found that the best pelts had come from Rice Lake. Price for pelts was down from last year, running from $1 to $1.35, and averaging around $1.10.

NOT TRYING CHIEF DEFENCE COUNSEL IS TOLD BY CADI

Defending Joseph Wheeler, former city policeman, who was charged before Magistrate Campbell in police court this morning with creating a disturbance on Stewart street in the early morning of Sunday, April 10, Emmett Sheehy declared that Chief Newhall did something of the same nature as the offence with which Wheeler is charged to The Examiner, and nothing has been done about it."

"We are not trying the Chief here," said Magistrate Campbell.

"The law should be the same for everybody", declared Mr. Sheehy.

Judgment was reserved in the case at the request of defence counsel who was called out to another court before he would finish his remarks on behalf of Wheeler and asked for the privilege of submitting a brief written argument.

Crown Attorney McElderry had no objection and Mr. Sheehy's request was granted. Magistrate Campbell stating that he would give judgment by next Friday.

The first witness against Wheeler was Harry Spargo, electrician for the Peterborough Utilities Commission, who was the complainant in the case.

Spargo said that he was sitting in a car with Ray Williamson, in front of his own house on Stewart street about 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning, April 10, when suddenly Wheeler opened the door of the automobile and using very bad language, and speaking in a loud angry voice, accused Spargo of having been responsible for his losing his job on the police force and threatened to fight him. Wheeler had thrown off his coat and dared Spargo to fight, had said there was a signed statement from him in Chief Newhall's office making charges against Wheeler and had several times threatened to "get" the complainant within six months. Spargo said that he had denied the accusations made by Wheeler, and had got the latter pacified several times, the two even shaking hands and then Wheeler again repeated his threat to "get" him.

Nothing To Do With It.

To Mr. Sheehy, witness denied that he had had anything to do with Wheeler's dismissal from the force. After the occurrence on the 10th he said he had gone to Chief Newhall and asked how he should take out an information against Wheeler. He said Wheeler had not struck him during the controversy.

Ray Williamson who had been with Spargo on the night in question corroborated the complainant's evidence. He said that Wheeler had used very bad language and had spoken in a loud voice. "You could hear him a block", he said.

In cross examination he said he did not think Wheeler was drunk. "He was very angry", witness stated.

Asked if he had seen anybody else there, Williamson said there was a girl whom Wheeler had called across the street as a witness against Spargo. He did not know where she had been; she came when Wheeler called her.

To Magistrate Campbell, the witness said that the Spargo home in front of which the alleged disturbance took place was a long distance away from Wheeler's house.

Williamson's evidence concluded the case against Wheeler.

"On several grounds I am going to move that the case be dismissed" said Mr. Sheehy.

"You can move what you like but the case will not be dismissed" retorted Magistrate Campbell bluntly.

No Defence Evidence

Mr. Sheehy announced that he did not propose to call any evidence for the defence and said that he had to appear in another court at 11 o'clock, so that he would like a chance to put in a written argument. He submitted that Wheeler's conduct was the natural reaction of a man with a strong sense of having been done an injustice when he saw another person whom he believed to have been responsible for his losing his position.

"Surely 1.30 o'clock on Sunday morning was not the proper time for that kind of thing" commented Magistrate Campbell.

"The better the day the better the deed", remarked Mr. Sheehy.

"Not in this case" said the court.

"What makes it worse," added Magistrate Campbell, "your client was formerly a police officer whom I had always thought had a good reputation. Either he has slipped a lot or he was certainly not himself on the night in question".

The magistrate stated that he would write his judgment by next Friday.

Peterborough Buying Centre For Great Tourist Area

Simply Waiting For Tourist To Come Is Not Sufficient

Peterborough merchants may be able to determine more or less accurately the extent of the business that comes to them from tourists passing through the city and also of the hundreds of others who motor on to the various resorts in the district.

The more tourists that can be attracted to the Kawarthas, the more business will flow into Peterborough and to scores of other merchants all the way from Campbellford to Fenelon Falls. Summer resort men at Bewdley, for instance, report that not only are goods bought from merchants at the west end of Rice Lake, but also that their visitors make frequent shopping trips to Peterborough. Go around the lake to Harwood on the south shore and the same information can be readily obtained.

Nearly all the goods required by the tourists who come to Hiawatha, Keene and other summering places on the north shore of Rice Lake are bought in Peterborough, and this observation is confined solely to that one holiday ground of the many in the district.

A rather striking indication of what the tourist business of the district may mean to Peterborough was found in the statement made to the Examiner a year ago by Tom Potts, proprietor of Killarney House on Crowe Lake. Mr. Potts was emphasizing the essential feature of good food for his guests, and incidentally he said he had a standing order with T. Anthony of this city, whom he described as the "fruit man under the town clock," for regular supplies of fruit and vegetables; and Mr. Potts dealt with a Peterborough merchant because, he said, he could always be certain of the quality of the goods that were sent to him. Presumably the orders were filled and delivered daily.

Killarney House is only a mile or so west of Havelock illustrating the range of business that is available for local merchants, and underlining the obvious fact that the more tourists who come into the district the more business will be developed during the summer months.

Simply waiting, as a community, for tourists to come into this area is not sufficient. It certainly is not go-getting.

The Examiner's mail-it-away edition designed to attract more tourists into the Kawartha and Trent area is essentially a co-operative effort that is primarily more important to all those who are directly interested in this business than it is to the Examiner. And those who are directly interested in the tourist business comprises a large community from the proprietors of summer resorts to the merchants in the city, the towns and villages down to the farmers who have shore frontage for sale, or cottages to rent, and others who are content with an increased demand for milk and eggs, butter and fresh vegetables.

HARD TO GET WORK "VAG" TELLS COURT

"Anywhere in Canada," was the address given by John Storer, 59, transient, when Magistrate Campbell asked him in Police Court this morning where he lived. Storer was charged with begging, and pleaded guilty.

"I was only trying to raise the price of a supper," he told the Magistrate.

"Did you raise it?"

"No, I only got a dime," was the disgusted reply.

Inspector Reid said there was no need for transients to go round begging. They could get meal tickets at the Police Station. "The trouble is," the Inspector remarked, "that many of these fellows beg money for food and then spend it on wine."

"Have you got a jungle here?" inquired Magistrate Campbell.

"We have," replied Inspector Reid, "but they are not using it yet. We never find lions or elephants there, but there are plenty of bums."

Storer said that he had come to Peterborough from Havelock, and told the court that it was a long time since he was in jail last.

"How long is it since you worked?" inquired the Magistrate.

"Over a year since I had a steady job," the accused said. "It's pretty hard at my age to get work."

"Well, I'm older than you are, and I work every day," said Magistrate Campbell.

Asked how he would like a term in order to get rested up, Storer vigorously opposed the suggestion.

"The weather is getting too fine now," commented Inspector Reid.

Finally the court imposed a fine of $10.00, or twenty days in jail, and Storer received the bad news with a laugh.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST.

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend Natalie who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbara about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. Garry begins to make excuses that keep him from seeing so much of Barbara, but the latter doesn't suspect Wenda, the actress, is taking up so much of Garry's time. Then an evening came when she observed that something definitely was wrong. Barbara's world crashes when Garry tells her he has fallen in love with Wenda. Later, Jack Metcalf, an author friend, calls at Barbara's apartment. Barbara goes alone to Natalie's wedding. Garry is there and he talks of the opening of his play. Barbara's remorse grows. Peter, Barbara's former managing editor, comes to New York and she introduces him to Ruth Merryweather, an heiress. Barbara is fond of both of them. No tickets arrive from Garry the day his play opens. Disappointed, Barbara declines an invitation from Ruth to an after-theater party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 23

She could not go. Tomorrow or next week Garry would not recall that his memory had failed him. To night he would. He might even wonder what she was doing at the party. Plainly, he did not want her around.

"Basil and Natalie are coming, too," Ruth was saying.

"Will you count me out?" she asked steadily. "I'd so much rather not come."

BARBARA did not go to the party that Ruth gave for Garry and his friends. As a consequence she did not feel so susceptible to hurt when she dressed the next morning. Steel had entered her soul. Her red lips were sterner than she realized. Her eyes had darkened until the gray was nearly black this morning. She would not be hurt again, she told herself. Once was enough.

Then she slipped the pages of her story into her briefcase and walked resolutely down the stairs as though she went to battle instead of to a desk in a gay room adorned with colored portraits, all of which had been illustrations in the magazine.

More as a habit than because she expected mail today, Barbara fitted her key into her box and opened it. There was one envelope. She recognized the writing. That bold, forceful scrawl! She had seen it first on a note in Martinsville, and she had seen it on post cards with a British postmark. Her heart lost its balance in spite of the unrelenting attitude that had carried her down the steps. Had Garry remembered his mistake and was he atoning, when it was too late

Her fingers trembled as she opened the envelope. Two tickets tumbled out. "I'll be watching for you," Farry had written across a card.

So he had not failed her! The seats were for the previous night. Yet the mystery remained that other people had received their tickets in time, and she had not. She studied the envelope. One address had been crossed out—oh, now she understood! It wasn't the address that was checked, only the direction. The envelope had been delivered to the same number on East Ninth, a scribbled memo said. A day hed been lost! One could lose so many days from the calendar and never miss them. Yet it was yesterday, of all the Mondays and Tuesdays and Wednesday, that had been mislaid.

The are director dropped down in a chair in Barbara's office about the middle of the morning.

"Free for half an hour about two o'clock?" he asked. "I'm going to need you."

"I'm not busy at all today. What's up "

"You know that series of portraits of kids we're going to use on the cover? Well, the first youngster's coming in to be photograhped for the artist. I think he'll need a woman's kindly touch to put him in the right mood."

"I like little boys," Barbara smiled. "What's his name?"

Robert Kerns. He belongs to somebody in the theater. I can't recall just whom at the moment."

The art director went away, and the telephone rang in a few minutes. Even before she answered Barbara knew it was going to be Garry. Yet, she reflected, that was foolish. So many other times she had thought it was going to be Garry and it wasn't.

"Barbara, what happened to you last night?" asked Garry. "I searched the theater for you."

"Oh, Garry, how dreadful! But the postoffice made a mistake and carried the tickets down East Ninth street. They just came."

Garry's voice was serious as he answered. "You thought I had forgotten you!" He seemed to be accusing her of doubting him. "Why didn't you call me?"

"You had so much on your mind —it's all right. Garry, I read the reviews on the subway. The critics are generous with praise, and I'm so proud for you." Not proud of you; proud for you.

He talked for a minute before he said: "Would you like seats tonight, or tomorrow night? I'll send them."

"Tomorrow night would be lovely. Garry."

When she hung up, Barbara sat at her desk in the warm office for a moment, suddenly cold and frightened. It made it worse because Garry had sent the tickets after all and had telephoned. If he hadn't, shew ould have had anger to shield her and protect her. Now even that defense was down. Garry had not failed her. He merely loved somebody else and he couldn't help it.

She was glad when the art director brought the child who was to be photographed. The little boy had large brown eyes and brown hair that had a cowlick, and a dimple in his chin. His face was too pale and his eyes were sad, almost frightened.

"But who picked him out for a cover?" Barbara asked herself. "We want happy children! We need faces that show joy and excitement." A wave of sympathy for the little boy banished the worry. No child had a right to be depressed. Somebody was at fault. Impulsively, she held out her hand and smiled. "Take off your coat, Robert! I'm trying to arrange a puzzle for next month and I'm no earthly good at puzzles. Are you? Oh, would you help?"

The art director stuck his head in at the door half an hour later and nodded his head approvingly. When Barbara stepped to the opening, he said: "Good work. Keep him at it, and I'll come back. You're making him human."

The child's eyes were bright and eager now, as he fitted the simple jagg-saw pieces together.

"Gee, this is fun!" he said suddenly, as though he had not known that anything could be. "I—I'm hungry!" That, too, was a surprise.

Barbara nodded gravely. "So am I. I was hoping you would mention it first. We'll have sandwiches sent in. What do you like—ham, chicken, roast beef?"

The little boy laughed. "Could I have a hot dog with mustard? Aunt Wenda says they're awful—they're pleb . . . pleb . . . you know what I mean."

"Plebeian?" Barbara prompted.

"Yes, that's it."

"Aunt Wenda?" she questioned slowly. She was remembering that the little boy was related to someone in the theatrical world. "Is your aunt Wenda Ayer?"

He nodded. "My mother's got a new husband and went to Paris and Aunt Wenda's keeping me."

"How about school? Isn't it difficult for you to live in a hotel?" Barbara knew that Wenda had a suite in an expensive Park avenue hotel.

"I go to a day school. I thought I was going to one where you live all the time but she said I'd better stay here a while. The boys at school don't like me, though."

Barbara's face did not alter expression. She realized that this was a confidence, a precious one, and she must handle it carefully. Perhaps the little boy had searched for a long time for someone to whom to make it.

"That's funny," the russet-haired girl answered matter-of-factly. "I should think everyone would."

The sandwiches came, and with them the art director who declared that the studio was ready. Robert Kerns was looking the way a happy little boy ought to look now. Fiercely Barbara realized that the child needed love, sympathy, and understanding. His aunt's selfishness was squeezing him dry, frightening him. It would do the same thing to Garry. If he married her, his own laughter and initiative would perish under her selfish demands. Yet sometimes men liked to be slaves to women who were spoiled and petish. But surely, surely not Garry!

The pictures were nearly finished, when the scent of perfume, subtle and quiet and sweet as rain in an old-fashined flower garden, came drifting from the doorway. Barbara looked up, a pleased smile on her face. Then the smile died. She knew the woman who wore the scent only from pictures.

It was Wenda Ayer who had come for Robert. Her eyes were dark brown, under a bang of hair as yellow as honey or new butter. She was taller than Barbara and just as slim. She wore a ridiculously small black hat that revealed her hair, and a mink coat which opened to reveal a dress of the same royal yellow. Her voice was rich and throaty.

"Bobbie, darling, aren't you ready?"

"You're Miss Ayer, of course?" Barbara asked. "Bobbie will be with you in just a moment."

The gray-green eyes were acknowledging Wenda's loveliness. Without malice, the girl in the black crepe frock, whose neck was draped with a huge green handkerchief that Garry had brought her from London months before, admitted that she could not equal Wenda's glamor. If the surface view merited the longest glance, Wenda was leading and would always lead with girls who were sort of red-headed and had seven freckles on their noses, though they were willing to share and give selflessly and lavishly.

Miss Ayer was speaking again. "I wonder if I might borrow a telephone, please?"

"Of course," Barbara nodded. "Won't you come into my office?"

Waiting a moment to see that Wenda Ayer got her connection correctly, Barbara heard her give number that was engraved forever in her own heart. Eldorado 3-4555. Garry's number.

She turned blindly, went out of the office, and closed the door.

Being a Successful Wife Is the Most Complicated Business on Earth; Being a Good Cook and Watching Your Appearance Is Essential

A GIRL who is going to be married asks me to tell her what she will need to know in order to be an ideal wife. Well, daughter, wifehood isn't a standardized profession like law, medicine or merchandizing where you can devote all your energies and intelligence to specializing in one line of endeavor. It is a sort of jack-of-all trades job where you have to make good in pretty nearly every human activity and then throw in all the charms and graces for good measure.

For instance, you will need to be a first-class vamp and have all of her technique for fascinating men at your fingers' end in order that you may keep your husband in love with you and from wandering off after other women. This will involve retaining your girlish figure, keeping yourself young, peppy, well-groomed and generally easy on the eyes, as well as skill in stroking his fur the right way, telling him how big and handsome he is and making him feel that you are the ONLY woman who ever understood him.

You will need to be a financial wizard and to make one dollar do the work of five. It is always a shock and a surprise to a man to find out how much it costs to support a family, that a wife doesn't grow her own fine feathers and can't wave her hands over a pot and turn corned beef and cabbage into filet mignon and champagne. Balancing the family budget is just as hard a chore as balancing the national budget, but you will have to do it. Or else——

You will need to be a good cook. When a man marries he puts his stomach as well as his heart in his wife's hands and her success in marriage depends just as much upon the way she cherishes one as the other. Feed the brute and he will eat out of your hand. Starve him and he will seek greener pastures. Set him down to ill-cooked, messily served meals and he will growl and grouch. Place before him a dinner that is a feast of the things he likes best and he will be so sweet and amiable a babe could handle him. Romance may fade, but a man's appetite holds. And that is God's mercy to wives.

You will need to be a diplomat. Husbands and wives are bound to differ on a thousand things because of their difference of sex and point of view. Accept that as one of the facts of life that cannot be changed. Don't waste your time and energy and provoke strife by arguing with your husband over his beliefs and prejudices. Learn how to gumshoe around them instead of butting into them. Leave strangers to tell him of his faults and correct his grammar and pronunciation. Handle him with gloves. There is nothing that pays such dividends in marriage as tact.

You will need to know how to be a working partner. If you want your husband to succeed, you must make him a comfortable, peaceful home to which he returns with joy each night and from which he goes forth refreshed to his battle with the world. You must be a thrifty manager. You must take an interest in everything he is doing. You must keep his faith alive in himself. You must make him happy You must make him feel that you are worth working for. Very few men ever get anywhere who have extravagant, nagging wives who belittle them.

You must be your husband's press agent. To a large extent the world takes a man at his wife's valuation. If she looks up to him and admires him and respects him and is always singing his praises, other people begin to think that he must be a pretty fine sort of a chap. But if a wife is always criticizing her husband and broadcasting his faults and weaknesses; if she complains that he isn't a money-maker or is a bad manager or that he drinks too much at parties or loses too much in card games, she soon gets him the reputation of being no-account and a drunkard and a gambler. Many a wife ruins her husband's chances in life by her indiscreet talking.

These are only a few of the things you will need to know to be a good wife, daughter. There are a million other sidelines. For being a wife is the most complicated job on earth.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PLAY PARTY

"What happened, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane who was carrying some clam shells.

"Did you get hurt?" asked Mrs. Longears. The rabbit lady wife was carrying some oyster shells. "And what was that slam bang noise I heard?" asked Uncle Wiggily's wife.

"I fell and, I fear, I smashed all my play dishes," said Uncle Wiggily. "I stubbed one of my toes. I don't know which one. Oh, but look at my lovely play dishes," he sadly said.

Scattered over the ground near the playhouse in Uncle Wiggily's hollow bungalow back yard were many pieces of old china plates, cups, saucers and bowls. The rabbit gentleman had picked them up in the fields and woods to take to his playhouse for play dishes. Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears had picked up oyster and clam shells, for these also make play dishes.

Makes More.

"But now they are all broken," said Uncle Wiggily sadly.

"Nonsense," exclaimed his wife. "Some of them are broken, it is true. But that makes all the more play dishes for you, Wiggy."

"Oh, so it does!" and now Uncle Wiggily laughed so hard his pink nose twinkled upside down. "Of course! Look here!" He picked up a piece of blue plate. "This broke into three pieces," he said. "Now I have three blue play dishes instead of one."

It was that way with many more of the pieces of glass and china Uncle Wiggily had found and also with the oyster and clam shells Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears had discovered.

"Now I must have a play party," said Uncle Wiggily when the play dishes were all in the play house. "You must come, and so must you, Mrs. Longears," and Uncle Wiggily blew a kiss from the tip of his paw to his wife, pretending she was a lady friend or something like that. "You must both come to my play party."

"But will there be room?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Your playhouse isn't very large," said Mrs. Longears.

"I shall make it larger," promised Mr. Longears. "I will not have the party for three or four days and by that time I shall have made the playhouse larger."

Three days later the invitations were sent out. The large animals of Woodland near the Orange Ice Muntains and also the small animals were invited.

Such excitement as there was in Woodland! The animal boys and girls, going to and coming from the Hollow Tree School, talked of nothing but Uncle Wiggily's play party.

Fur Bob

"I am going to wear my blue fur ribbon," said Baby Bunty.

"I shall wear my pink one," said Jingle.

"I am not going to wear any!" said Jangle.

"What! Not going to wear a fur ribbon to Uncle Wiggily's play party?" asked Baby Bunty in surprise. "Why, Jangle?"

"Because I am going to bob my fur. I won't need a ribbon! Ha! Ha!"

The other animal children also laughed and a little while after that they all started for the playhouse and Uncle Wiggily's party.

"I'm so glad you could come," said the rabbit gentleman as he shook paws with each guest. "It was sweet of you."

"I'd rather have some sweet ice-cream!" said Buster, a boy rabbit. And Uncle Wiggily called out:

"The play party is ready to start. Take your places for ice-cream!"

And just then something happened. I'll tell you about it to-morrow when the story will be Uncle Wiggily puts them out. But of course I hope the spelling book doesn't try to hide under the multiplication table.

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

In a team-of-four match the two teams reached 4-Spades on this deal and in both cases the diamond K was West's opening lead. One opposing team set South two tricks and at the other table only succeeded in setting the contract one trick.

At table one, East played the diamond Q on his partner's K lead. In response to this, West led the diamond 8 and East won with the J. As West in both cases had opened with a diamond, East knew his partner held something in hearts, so his own play of the diamonds was to insure his getting into the lead to switch to that suit. He returned the heart 2 and West cashed two hearts and later the spade Q.

Where this was not the defense, South trumped the third round of diamonds and then played two rounds of trumps. A club was then led to the J and the two high clubs laid down, a heart being discarded on the last. A diamond was ruffed and a spade was then led to West, who was forced to return a heart, so that South was set only one.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

With delegates from Cannington, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Peterborough, the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association held its annual meeting in the club rooms of the Peterborough club last night (Thursday). Ken Sloane welcomed the visitors and President E. Hircock in his opening remarks claimed that bowlers had a lot to be proud of, that they made the very best of citizens and any lawn bowling club was a credit to the community. He compared the association to a big family who were always able to iron out little difficulties without the aid of a dictator, the object of he association was to promote good bowlers and good fellowship all around.

The report of P. Jones, the secretary was favorably received, as was his report of the finances of the association. A long drawn out discussion took place regarding the joining of the Central Association with the provincial and a motion to that effect was made by the Oshawa delegates. After a long period of verbal cross fire, they finally withdrew the motion and matters stand now just as they were before the meeting.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents— H. Rosevear, Port Hope; Major McCullough, Cobourg; J. Fitzpatrick, Peterborough.

President— E. Hircock, Cobourg, (re-elected).

Vice-Pres.—E. Goodman, Oshawa, (re-elected).

Sec.-Treas.—C. Keith, Cobourg.

Executive (re-elected)—W. Cooke, Cannington; M. Wickett, Port Hope; P. Ingram, Port Perry; H. Freeman, Peterborough.

Dean Does 'Crawfish' When Fists Are Flying, Joe Medwick Charges

CHICAGO, April 29. — Dizzy Dean telephoned Joe Medwick in Pittsburgh Thursday to make sure his eyes weren't deceiving him when he read that the hard-hitting St. Louis outfielder was accusing him of "crawfishing."

"He told me he said it, all right," Dean said. "But I didn't try to make no peace with him. That's baby stuff, by George."

Medwick's accusations were contained in a letter written to Sports Editor Lloyd Lewis and published in the Chicago Daily News.

It referred to statements attributed to Dean in which the Cub pitcher, formerly of the Cardinals, accused Ducky of starting the battle at Tampa, Fla., in April, 1937, in which the Cardinals scrimmaged with Jack Miley of New York and Irv Kupcinet of Chicago, sports writers assigned to the team.

"Dizzy started that row at Tampa, getting into an argument with Miley," Medwick's letter said, "and we didn't even know he was rowing with baseball writers. We merely protected Dizzy from getting his ears pinned back, as Kupcinet really would have taken him apart.

"Miley and Kupcinet will tell you the truth about it, which is that we merely came to Dizzy's rescue. We always were doing that, as he always did a crawfish whenever a row got hot."

Dean said Medwick told him he had been asked to make a "comeback" to the statements attributed to Dean. Dizzy said he would refuse to answer the charge.

"Confidentially, I think they're just trying to build up the St. Louis gate," he said.

SIX-LEGGED LAMB

CHINESE MORALE IS REVIVING FAST

HANKOW, China, April 29 (AP)—China entered the 10th month of the Japanese war with her armies apparently recovered from the succession of staggering losses of men, morale and armaments which culminated in the debacle at Nanking last December 13.

Gaps in the ranks left by an estimated 500,000 dead and wounded have been filled with provincial levies. Twenty new divisions have been trained, equipped and put in the field. New artillery already is in action against the Japanese along the Yellow River front.

But above all, more intelligent and better co-ordinated generalship is taking advantage of China's terrain, native aptitude for guerrilla tactics and the enemy's increasing difficulties with transportaton and communication to reduce Japanese superiority in organization and armaments.

Chinese military leaders do not claim China's guerrilla tactics and stimulated fighting spirit are alone responsible for bogging down Japan's armies, but from the lowest private to General Chiang Kai-Shek the Chinese believe they are hastening the stalling process.

The Japanese are being forced to sacrifice attacking power in order to consolidate earlier gains and to pacify "conquered" areas.

Little Damage Done During Windstorm

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 29.—For about three minutes last evening a violent wind storm raged in this village. There were no reports of any serious damage done, but several minor damages were reported.

A car parked at the curb on Front Street was blown for twenty feet till it bumped into another auto. The glass shade on a gas pump on Bridge Street was blown off and crashed to the pavement. A few shingles were torn off at least two buildings. Following the wind, an electrical storm passed over, but was not local.

CANCEL JAMAICAN TOURS

Tourist travel to Jamaica during the winter was so small that many cruises were cancelled.

Campbellford W.A. Plans Festival

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — Following considerable discussion, members of St. John's Women's Association decided to hold a Strawberry Festival in the month of June in place of the annual garden party. The feeling of the members seemed to indicate that the amount of work involved in putting on a garden party was not justified by the money raised in this manner.

Mrs. C. K. Stephens, the president, presided at the April meeting which was held in the ladies' parlors of the church Thursday afternoon. Mrs. James Saunders gave the Scripture reading, and the prayer and refreshments were in charge of Miss Stella Keir and Mrs. T. J. Craighead.

Commons First Met To Curb Spending, Idea Now Reserved Says Dunning

Ottawa, April 29 (CP).

PARLIAMENT'S FUNCTIONS had changed since its original institution, Finance Minister Dunning observed in the House of Commons yesterday. The House was discussing debt and spending, and in particular the pressure to add to the national debt.

"It would seem to me the functions aof parliament have changed completely," Mr. Dunning said.

"As originally constituted parliament was a gathering of the Commoners, representing the taxpayers, to prevent the king from spending too much of their money.

"Listening to speakers from all sides it would seem today the character of parliament is reversed. Parliament now gathers for the purpose of persuading the king to spend more and more of their money."

RHEUMATICS? Get Relief Similar to a "Spa" in Your own Home

They say conscience makes cowards of us all—but what about Rheumatic troubles? You never know where Rheumatic pains will strike next. You become worn out with anxiety.

And it's probably because your liver isn't working as it should! For this is often the cause of Rheumatic pains. See what happens. Your liver gets clogged, poisons creep sluggishly through your system. Uric Acid crystals form. Pain begins. When you move, these crystals catch you with their spiky points.

This message is not to remind you of your aches and pains but to help you to escape from them. You have heard of the famous European Spas where wealthy leisured people go to take the waters for their Rheumatic pains, Lumbago and Neuritis? Well, among the chief properties of these Mineral Springs are the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium. Now, similar elements have been combined in Fynnon Salt. Stir a ½ teaspoonful in a glassful of water every morning. Drink this relief-giving saline—and enjoy a similar treatment that Spa visitors pay heavily for! Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists. 30

Annual Spring Tea Local Council of Women

The many guests who attended the annual Spring Tea of the Local Council of Women in the Green Room and the Library at the Y.W.C.A. Thursday afternoon found that a most delightful occasion had been planned for them.

Some excellent youthful talent had been procured to make a charming program in the Green Room, where red and white flowers, tulips and begonias were attractive decorations. The tea table situated at the entrance to the library followed the same striking and rather unusual color scheme, and was arranged with embroidered white linen cloth, low ruby red glass bowl holding white Easter lilies and gypsophila, and deep ruby red candles in white holders. Little red candles were also part of the picture.

One of the handsome silver trays used on the table and lent by Mrs. T. W. H. Young, was of especial interest, having first belonged to Mrs. Young's grandmother, the wife of the Hon. William McDougall, one of the Fathers of Confederation. The tray was presented to Mrs. McDougall by her children on the occasion of her silver wedding anniversary.

The guests were received by Mrs. C. M. Scott, president of the Local Council of Women, Mrs. B. W. Harvey, past president, and Mrs. E. Wand, provincial corresponding secretary.

General convenors for the tea were Mrs. P. M. Somerville and Mrs. C. S. Thompson, who arranged the table. Fouring tea during the first hour were Mrs. Joseph Mills and Mrs. G. S. Helson, and later Mrs. N. Stanger and Mrs. Thompson presided. Assistants were Dr. Agnes Moffat, Mrs. T. Hendry, Miss Margaret Ferguson, Miss Zita Kearney and Miss Leta Brownscombe. A home-cooking table in the library contained great variety and was in charge of Mrs. B. F. McNeely, Mrs. C. Simpson and Mrs. T. W. H. Young.

The musical program announced by Mrs. J. Cridland was much enjoyed and was as follows: Group of songs, Alga Westbye, accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. M. Orrman; piano duet, Barbara Jean Craig and Jackie Sutcliffe; recitation, Joan Reid; instrumental trio, trumpet, Davis Graham, clarinet, Robert Graham, piano, Merrill Smith; group of piano solos, Ruth Gaskell; group of songs, Olga Westbye.

Mrs. H. Tremain and Miss Leone Walsh were treasurers.

Calgary Arrests Red Chief's Wife

CALGARY, April 29 (C.P.). — A morning skirmish with police was followed by peace on Calgary's relief strike front yesterday. No picket parades were held during the afternoon, given over to conferences of strike leaders at the Labor Temple.

First woman to be arrested during the strike, Mrs. Ann Lenihan, 27-year-old wife of Pat Lenihan, secretary of the Calgary Local of the Communist Party of Canada, was released from jail yesterday. She was freed on bail of $100, and will be arraigned on a charge of unlawful assembly.

Mrs. Lenihan was leading a group of women strike pickets when arrested after she allegedly failed to obey police orders for the marchers to disperse. John Johansen, a strike leader, arrested, was also released on bail.

Strikers, seeking higher living allowances, were pledged support of Calgary jobless war veterans while the local constituency directorate of the Alberta Social Credit League prepared petitions for city-wide circulation demanding immediate settlement of the strike, which started on April 5.

The petitions urge Mayor Andrew Davison, through the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, to take action to have the Federal Government "recognize relief as its problem."

Yellow Is Smart

By Central Press

Have you noticed the flair for yellow this spring? One shop window featured nothing but yellow suits, dresses and accessories. That is because it is daffodil time right now.

Yellow accessories are worn with this smart spongy wool, full-length black coat with the open-work detail at neck and sides. The coat is a fitted model with seven-eighths sleeves and collarless.

The hat is a rough yellow straw with black ribbon and quill trimming. Yellow doeskin pullover gloves and a corsage of daffodils further emphasize the yellow note. Bag and pumps are black.

Unlined, pliant-soled moccasins in suede or fine-grained Morocco are perfect for travel type lounging footwear.

❖ ❖ ❖

Boutonnieres of fruits are advocated for lapel ornaments to be worn on the mannish tailored suits.

Play Clothes

Play clothes grow more and more important in the modern woman's scheme of living. They are the first thing she thinks of when planning her vacation wardrobe at any season of the year in any place. And to be smartly—if not expensively—dressed for her particular type of recreation is the height of her ambition, and even more important than that she shall be chic for her formal hours.

Florence George, blonde young screen player, shows what is the correct thing in play clothes in Southern California.

She is modelling a two-piece linen creation which includes shorts with a halter top attached, and a coat dress with a short, flared skirt.

Red and blue bias tape is used for color contrast, and at the waist, not to miss the amusing note which seems this season to be an integral part of fashion, are two bunches of firecrackers fashioned from the tape for a waistline accent.

The beach soled shoes Miss George is wearing are the new cork soled raffia sandals that have been so successful at the southern beaches this winter.

Mrs. Roxburgh announces the re-opening of Cessnock Tourist Home, and Tea Room, on Saturday, April Thirtieth, at Norwood, on Highway No. 7. Lunch and tea served every day, dinner by appointment. Telephone 273.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

The disadvantages of youth far outweigh the advantages, and even the latter, when examined closely, turn out to be full of hidden flaws."
—Godfrey Winn.

Dear Friends:

Do you know, I often feel sorry for the young, and far from envying them their youth, I am glad I am past and done with it. There is so much to learn when you are young. So many mistakes you are sure to make through lack of experience. I smile when I hear someone say, "oh to be young again," for without the things they have learned youth would be no better than it was.

Young girls think young men should do this or that. Young men thing the same about girls. Neither truly knows how to act with the other, and it is a wonder more blunders are not make in marriage, for so many mistake the mating urge for true love, then wake up too late to find out their mistake.

How very modest we all are. We have schools for most everything, but we will not have schools for the most important thing in the world, how to choose a life companion, how to get along with one when we do choose, how to adjust ourselves to life as it comes along.

We make boasts so that they balance, we make machinery to balance also, our scales must register accurately, but human beings are left, generation after generation to make the same old mistakes.

As it is now, the younger ones seem to think if we try to guide them, that we are trying to fit their lives in our own mold. But if it were taught cooly and scientifically by other than close relations, life would be much easier and pleasanter for the young of today.

We think when we have gone through high school and university that we are well learned, educated fitted to take our place in the world. But how seldom do the things we have learned fit in with the things we meet up with and must do, once we are out in the world trying to make a living.

It is like saying to yourself: "When I meet so and so, I will say this, then when he says that, I will retort with something." It never happens that way, and so all we were prepared to say is never uttered.

Same with the young. They get a lot of supposed situations to meet, must find an answer to these problems, but are never faced with them in real life. How can we expect the young to be so wise, when they have had no experience Oh yes I know that many of them think they know it all, but weren't we like that too? Of course we were.

Learn them courage, and self-esteem, and determination. Learn them about their own bodies, self-control, continence. Learn them how to amuse themselves, how to depend on themselves. They are tired of too many "thou shalt nots" without any reasons being given.

Start early with them, (and I don't mean by that to tell them things their young minds shrink from in disgust because they lack understanding) but how can you expect them to stand alone when they are grown, if you have coddled them too much when they are young?

Let them depend on you, on your deeds. Make contact with God pleasant as it should be when you tell them of Him, not holding Him up as a mighty ogre ready to pounce on them for the least mistake. Show them in your own life how good it is to know Him, or how can you expect them to honor One whom you yourself have scorned?

And so I say to the young. Be courageous, learn all you can, for only in that way will you make the least mistakes. Learn about your own body, what makes your temper rise, control of your desires, then life will not be so disappointing, and you will have less to hurt you. Fully realizing how many disadvantages you have, and in entire sympathy with you for a full happy life, I am, Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Relief Recipients Picket Reeve's House

Relief demonstrators, demanding more relief, have camped on the doorstep of Reeve E. D. Maguire, of Toronto township, upper LEFT. On arriving at the reeve's home in Clarkson the demonstrators were informed that Mr. Maguire was not at home so they settled down on his lawn with blankets and food to wait for him, upper RIGHT. Some of the demonstrators brought their children with them, and are shown waiting for the reeve, lower LEFT, outside the reeve's home. Mr. Maguire did not return to his home at all the day the picketers chose to call so they decided to wait through the night for his arrival. Overcome by sleep two women demonstrators curled up in blankets against the fence surrounding Mr. Maguire's home, and spent the night sleeping under the stars, lower RIGHT.

Famed Sculptor, Dr. McKenzie, Dies

PHILADELPHIA, April 29 (CP) —World renowned sculptor and expert in physical education, Dr. Tait McKenzie, 70, died at his home here last night. He planned to go to Ottawa next week to confer with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other government officials on the memorial he designed to the late Sir Charles Doughty, Dominion archivist.

Then he had planned a reunion with boyhood friends at his native Almonte, Ont., where he had a summer residence.

His death called forth expressions of sympathy from friends all over the world. In Ottawa Mr. Mackenzie King expressed keen regret. He had known Dr. McKenzie for 30 years and regarded him as one of his closest friends.

Retired professor of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania to which he was attached for more than three decades, and before that medical director of physical training at McGill, Dr. McKenzie was even more widely known as a sculptor.

His work stands in public places throughout the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States.

Two of his pieces are in the Parliament buildings at Ottawa—the memorial of 60 years of confederation erected in the hall of fame as the gift of Canadians resident in the United States, and the Baker Memorial.

The King has his "Blightly" in Balmoral, Scotland. The people of Canada gave England his statues of General James Wolfe.

The American Red Cross garden court in Washington contains his ministering angel, a Great War nurse. "The Call," a kilted warrior, stands in Princess Street Gardens, Edinburgh.

He carved the "Joy of Effort." three wing-footed athletes clearing a hurdle, which stands in the stadium at Stockholm. Figures of men in various sports fields, from the discus thrower to a football line buck came from his capable hands. He worked in stone and bronze.

Born in Almonte in 1867, Dr. McKenzie was educated at Ottawa Collegiate Institute and McGill University, receiving a degree in medicine in 1892. In 1921 McGill conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws and literature.

During the Great War he was an inspector of physical training for the British forces with the temporary rank of major. His widow, the former Ethel O'Neil of Hamilton, survives with two brothers and a sister.

Style Whimsies

For beach wear, slacks, shorts, shirts and jackets in men's seersucker suitings are smart. This shows the feminine preference for material that will not crush easily and that launders well.

❖ ❖ ❖

Always wear flowers heads up—never upside down. Put your orchid corsage in the refrigerator as soon as you take it off if you want to wear it for four or five days. If the orchid is wired, put the wire at the base of the stem so that water can get up into the stem, and if it has a good cool drink it will immediately revive.

❖ ❖ ❖

Embroidered gloves are very "hot stuff" this year. Whether the glove material is dark or light, the effect of gaily colored embroidery in flower designs is charming.

❖ ❖ ❖

For country wear, Scotch tweeds in loud checks for toppers are popular with the juveniles.

❖ ❖ ❖

Dotted veils tied under the chin are being used on the bonnet styles of hats for the youngsters.

❖ ❖ ❖

For crisp soft dresses for daylight dining and dancing, cloque sheers are very flattering.

❖ ❖ ❖

❖ ❖ ❖

Ostrich is replacing marabou for capes and jackets for evening dresses.

❖ ❖ ❖

Suspender dresses with lingerie guimpes have summery appeal for the young folk.

❖ ❖ ❖

Imported tie silk is being sold for blouses. It is featured in 24 to 36-inch widths.

❖ ❖ ❖

Unpressed pleated skirts are something new. The pleats are held in by being stitched down flat, or tucked at the hips. Often they are grouped only at the center front.

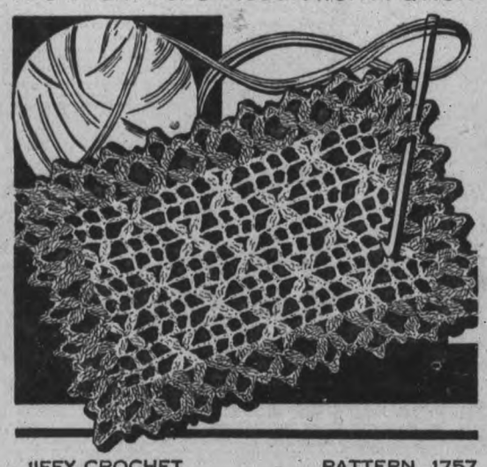
❖ ❖ ❖

A white eyelet bolero imparts a crisp, spring-like appearance to a simple slim black crepe basic dress.

Wife Preservers

Keep your electric light bulbs clean for the sake of your eyes. Bulbs are best cleaned by wiping with a soft cloth wrung out of soapy water. Care should be taken not to get the metal part wet. If it does get wet, however, do not screw the bulb back into the socket until it is perfectly dry, as moisture may create a short circuit.

The Examiner's Needlework Pattern



JIFFY CROCHET PATTERN 1757

Get out that large crochet hook—use four strands of string and crochet these jiffy mats or a runner. They're smart for summer entertaining. Pattern 1757 contains directions for making the mat shown and a runner; illustrations of mat and of stitches; material needed; photograph of the doily.

Send 20 cents in coins or stamps for this pattern to Examiner Needlecraft Dept, Peterborough. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES.—In loving memory of a dear Wife and Mother, Mary Robinson, wife of John C. James, who passed away seven years ago today, April 29.

When the evening shades are falling
And we are all alone,
In our heart there comes a longing,
If you only could come home.
Oft we think of you, dear Mother,
And our hearts are sad with pain;
Oh, this earth would be a heaven
Could we hear your voice again.
From our happy home and circle
God has taken one we loved,
Borne away from sin and sorrow
To a better home above.

—Always remembered by Her Husband, Daughter and Sons.

PRESS IS HOPEFUL DALADIER'S VISIT MEANS NEW BOND

LONDON, April 29. (CP-Havas). —London newspapers express hope progress will be made in the Anglo-French discussion opening today on the three main questions to be dealth with, central Europe and the independence of Czechoslovakia, Anglo-French cooperation in national defence, and Franco-Italian negotiations.

"The value of the French ministers' act of courtesy in coming to London will consist not so much in making decisions," said The Times (independent), "as in an exchange of views in a mutual understanding of outlook, in giving and taking those shades of opinion and personal impressions which are only derived from intimate oral discussions, and in adding precision, perhaps to one or two matters already agreed upon in principle.

"On the other hand, neither membership in the League nor British interests permit indifference, and undoubtedly the British and French ministers will discuss every possible means of appeasing the discontents and grievances that undoubtedly exist in central Europe.

Questions of Defence

"Military questions will probably be raised on the French side, and measures for mutual defence of the two countries can always with advantage be re-examined. There is indeed ample material for useful discussion between people whose relations have been uniformly friendly for many years, and whose interests are concordant.

"Each approaches every problem from its own standpoint of view and in its own interest, but knowing beforehand that its position is well understood by the other and that the other is anxious to cooperate.

"Both countries are devoted to the same ideals of democratic liberty and both are determined to defend them for internal as well as external dangers. It is not the least of reasons for a warm welcome to Mr. Daladier that he has committed himself to the aim of restoring the shaken self-confidence of his country, an aim of high significance for Europe."

"It must be made clear to the world," said The News Chronicle (Liberal), "that in the event of aggression on Czechoslovakia the pacts with Russia and France will operate, and that Britain will stand by the side of France.A clear statement on these lines will remove the danger.

"Only if the Nazis think that Britain intends to wash her hands of Czechoslovakia will there be trouble.

Friends in The Balkans

"There is one direction in which the Anglo-French talks could do a great deal of good. The Balkan countries zealously want Anglo-French friendship. Hitherto very little has been done to encourage that desire.

"Accordingly they have tended to drift into the totalitarian camp. By trade and diplomatic action Britain and France should immediately set about raising their stock in Southeast Europe. Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece and turkey could be valuable friends of this country, and their peoples would like to be."

"It should be emphasized," said the Daily Herald (Labor), "that the decision to hold staff talks in no way implies that either government believes that war imminent. It does imply that both assume that if war should come Britain and France will act in unison, and it is simple common sense to plan beforehand instead of improvising should the need arise."

"No countries in the world are united by closer bonds than France and Britain," said the Manchester Guardian (Liberal).

"It is not to be expected that the two governments will agree on every point. But these differences need not matter if only the two governments can agree on vital questions so that when the crisis comes there need be no more wondering 'what Paris is doing' or waiting 'for the lead of London.

"But it is the first duty of the two governments to consider what they should do to preserve the peace of Europe.

LEADING FIGURE IN SAMOAN CASE JOHN KLEIN DIES

NEW YORK, April 29.—(CP). —John C. Klein, a retired newspaperman who was a leading figure in 1889 in the dispute between the United States and Germany over control of the Samoan Islands, died Tuesday.

As correspondent for a San Francisco newspaper Klein went to the islands and was forced to take refuge aboard a United States warship when German officials accused him of conspiring with the natives and set a price on his head.

At this time the islands were governed by the United States, but Germany, seeking control, had deposed a native king and set up a puppet in his place. Civil war between native armies followed and Klein arrayed himself on the side of the deposed king.

Learning 300 opposition natives were aboard a German ship ready to be landed for a surprise attack, the American newspaperman ranged the defending warirors on shore. When his warning to the attackers not to land was disregarded, shooting started and 23 Germans were killed and 34 wounded. The invaders were repelled.

Germans demanded the surrender of Klein and an uneasy international situation developed. Then a hurricane swept the islands, destroying the German vessels, sinking two American cruisers, and diverting attention from other matters.

Klein, born in Liverpool, was corresponding for the New York Herald during the Boer war and also served on the staff of the New York Times.

SUDBURY JEALOUS

SUDBURY, Ont., April 29.—(CP). —Hard rock men and burly smelter workers here are annoyed at success of Rouyn in forging ahead of Sudbury by getting a lady barber. Sudbury miners have learned she shaves the toughest beards with ease.

Looking Back On This Date

If I had my way there would be to-day everywhere along the border between Canada and the United States (as well as at other central points) a joint display of the flags of both countries, side by side, to indicate that April 29 is the birthday of our line of international peace from Atlantic to Pacific.

Fred Williams

It is 121 years to-day since Sir Charles Bagot, for Great Britain, and Secretary Rush for the United States signed that great document which made the peace which has now continued for over a century, and which, God grant, may never be broken. The original agreement for the limitation of armed vessels on the great lakes and the dismantling of all vessels of war built or building on the great lakes has since been modified, the United States having been permitted by Great Britain and Canada to break it to the extent of having several larger and more heavily armed vessels on the lakes for use as training ships and coastguard service. This modification has been really a proof of the confidence felt in Canada in the present intentions of her neighbor, and "though" (as was written by the late Prof. W. L. Grant) "both countries are justly proud of brave deeds done and chivalry shown during the war we may now say with confidence:

No more shall the war cry sever
Or the winding rivers be red.

One incident that followed is but little known to Canadians. President Monroe, who had only been inaugurated the March 4 previous, made a tour of all the naval posts and dockyards along the eastern seaboard and the great lakes, ending up at Niagara and Buffalo. At both these latter places, particularly Niagara, Canadians, who three years before had been busy defending their country from invasion, joined with their former foes in acclaiming the new president and in cementing the new cousinship proclaimed at Washington on April 29.

Six years later Britain reciprocated. Spain, eager to regain its power in South America, formed the holy alliance with Russia, Prussia, Austria and France, and in 1823 asked Britain to join them in their proposed attack upon America to restore monarchial government. Britain's reply was to invite the United States to join with London in a declaration to warn the holy allies not to meddle with the South American republics.

From this resulted the famous Monroe Doctrine, promulgated by the president of the United States Dec. 2, 1623, telling the world that no more interference in American affairs would be permitted by the United States or attempt to colonize on this continent be allowed. Britain thus paid her debt to America and secured assurance that any attack upon Canada by a foreign power would be challenged by the United States.

POPULAR FRONT IS GAINING GROUND IN BRITAIN

Out Before Dawn

NORTH ENDERS WIN CUP GAME SCORE OF 1 TO 0

English Cup Game Is Forced Into Overtime

WEMBLEY STADIUM, London, April 30—(CP Cable)— A last-minute penalty converted by G. Mutch gave Preston North End its second English football cup victory today. Deadlocked 0-0 after the regulation 90 minutes with Huddersfield Town, the teams went into 30 minutes overtime, the penalty kick ended a dogged battle before 93,000 persons.

WEMBLEY STADIUM, London, April 30 (CP Cable) — Invading thousands from all parts of the United Kingdom arrived in London today for the English football cup between Preston North End and Huddersfield Town. Brought in by 114 special trains enthusiasts crowded the capital's famous streets at an early hour. About 93,000 persons attended.

The royal box was a riot of color, red, white and blue flowers bordering enclosure. Ticket scalpers reaped exorbitant profits, many one-pound ($5) tickets selling for nine pounds ($45).

The King and Queen arrived a few minutes before three o'clock and the teams took the field. His Majesty went down the line shaking hands with the players.

Lineups:

Preston North End—Goal, Holdcroft; backs, Gallimore, A. Beattie; halfbacks, shankly, Smith, Batey; forwards, Watmough, Mutch, Maxwell, R. Beattie, O'Donnell.

Huddersfield Town—Goal, Hesford; backs, Craig, Mountford; halfbacks, Willingham, Young, Boot; forwards, Hulme, Isaac, MacFayden, Barclay, Beasley.

First Half

Preston won the toss and played with the wind.

Preston continually made ground but Huddersfield's defence gave nothing away. The Town conceded the first corner but nothing came of it.

At the other end Holdcroft narrowly beat MacFayden in a race for a loose ball. Play generally was scrappy, many passes being missed by both sets of forwards.

First real scoring chance came shortly after when O'Donnell crossed to Watmough on the other wing. Mutch and Hesford collided when the former went after Watmough's pass and the ball went out of play.

Hulme, old Arsenal winger, put in an accurate centre and MacFayden momentarily caused Preston supporters to hold their breaths. He made headway but was robbed by Hesford before shooting.

Preston nearly scored when Bob Beattie lobbed the ball into the goalmouth and Huddersfield's goalkeeper was forced to fist a difficult shot over the bar.

End first half Preston 0; Huddersfield 0.

Second Half

Going down on the right Bob Beattie lobbed a shot over the bar and this was followed by Preston rearranging its front line. O'Donnell exchanged positions with Maxwell, the centreforward. Two minutes afterwards Bob Beattie hit the crossbar but was ruled offside.

Perhaps the poorest feature of the game was the aimless kicking of backs on both sides. They cleared wildly and rarely the ball went to a colleague on the forward line. End second half Huddersfield 0, Preston 0.

Party Discontent Is Most Obvious Among Workers

Fusion of Liberal and Labor Parties Into Common Popular Front Is Forecast

LONDON, April 30 (CP Cable).—A popular front for Great Britain gains ground. Among the rank and file of party workers, both Labor and Liberal, the move for joint opposition to the national government, particularly in its attitude to the dictator states, has found fertile soil.

The party machines either openly condemn the popular front or treat it with chilling reserve. The national executive of the Labor party holds that participation in popular front activities must inevitably lead to serious disunity and confusion, thus weakening the party's organization and electoral force.

The opposition Liberal executive is no more prepared than Labor to merge its party into a common popular front. Between Labor and liberalism lies the fundamental doctrine of a socialist state which is the Labor party's declared aim.

Discontent is Evident

Yet discontent among workers in the field is obviously growing. They see small likelihood of Labor alone securing such a majority at the polls as to give it a mandate for putting wide socialist schemes into operation.

But they do see the need of Liberals and Labor getting together in the creation of a democratic peace front to give strenuous opposition to the government's foreign policy. In this policy they see the collapse of collective security under the League of Nations, with a return to the pre-war era of rival alliances, with the great powers maintaining a precarious peace only by the weight of huge armaments.

Spain, which caused this week's break between the Duchess of Atholl and the Conservatives, is their rallying cry. The constant theme of Liberals and Labor alike is that the "tragic farce" of non-intervention, while denying British armaments to the Spanish Government, failed to prevent Italian and German assistance to General Franco's insurgent administration.

Thus, they argue, the Spanish Government has been denied its recognized rights under international law.

In the Aylesbury Division of Buckinghamshire, where three candidates are in the field, efforts are under way to induce Labor to with-

TORIES POSTPONE ANNUAL MEETING CALLED FOR MAY

TORONTO, April 30 (CP).—Ontario Conservative headquarters today announced postponement of a Provincial Convention to discuss leadership and policies was decided on because the proposed May 28 gathering would conflict with the scheduled Federal Conservative convention in July.

The announcement followed publication today of a letter from a "committee for Conservative action," signed by R. C. Wood of Toronto, criticizing delay in calling the Provincial convention and charging the postponement until October was "effrontery and colossal stupidity."

Too Close Together

M. J. O'Brien, an official of the provinicial executive decided against May 28 meeting "because it would not be fair to delegates to bring them here in May and then to Ottawa in July."

"We thought it would have serious effects, having the two so close together," Mr. O'Brien said. "It would take too much of the time of delegates and cost them too much money."

The Wood letter, addressed to William H. Ireland, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, suggested the delay in calling the meeting was for two reasons:

"First is that influential Conservatives who seek to dominate the Dominion convention at Ottawa do not wish to see a change in the executive of the Ontario Association which has the right to choose 82 delegates-at-large for that Dominion convention.

"The second explanation is that you and your executive are conscious of having lost the confidence of Ontario Conservatives and that at any general meeting a new executive would be elected."

SIXTH OF SALARY OF $2,500 GOES TO GOVERNMENT

Average Briton Works Two Months for Gov't

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Great Britain's average citizen with a $2,500 a year job in a city office, a wife, two children and a $4,000 suburban home works two months each year for the government.

Professional calculators estimated today that he pays one-sixth of his income in taxes, figuring in recently announced increases in income and other taxes.

For a start the government takes $50 annual income tax. Another $60 based on the "rated" value of his home is assessed. Local government authorities take about $125 in "rates"—local taxes to maintain police, streets, poor-houses.

On top of that comes the water "rate" averaging $10 annually.

The early morning cup of tea his wife brings him in bed is already taxed like the cigarette he smokes while dressing and the match he uses to light it.

Patriotic Satisfaction

But he has the patriotic satisfaction of knowing that one-fourth of the 48 cents a pound he pays for tea goes partly to buy airplanes, guns and battleships.

At breakfast time the radio music reminds him he pays $2.50 yearly for the privilege of owning a "wireless" set.

Breakfast is a sort of sacrificial feast honoring the lord high tax collector.

Nearly four cents of the 20-cent a pound price for prunes is import duty—as is one-eighth of the eight cents a pound he pays for sugar.

Two of the eighteen cents for a four-pound loaf of bread goes on wheat import duty and the milling tax to aid the British farmer.

The lunchtime pint of beer costs 16 cents—eight cents of it tax.

$2.00 a Quart Tax

He probably cannot afford to drink Scotch at $3.12 a short quart except to celebrate a special session. The government takes $2 a quart tax.

His 10 horsepower automobile nets the government $37.50 annually. A driving license costs another $1.25. Of the 40 cents he pays for a gallon of gasoline, 18 cents goes to the government.

If he keeps a dog another $1.87 goes for a license. When he takes his wife to the suburban movies each 24-cent ticket includes a six-cent tax.

Fourteen cents of the 24 he pays for an ounce of pipe tobacco also goes to the government.

A box of 50 matches costs two cents, but nearly one cent is tax.

And when he dies, the widow pays death duties—$10 if he leaves $1,000, $60 if he leaves $3,000 and $180 if he was thrifty enough to have accumulated $6,000.

First Fishing

Out of bed in the middle of the night, long trips over hazardous roads, wading in streams to their waists, plodding over rough, wet ground, fishermen today had the best time since the trout season closed last year. Some caught a few. Here are some of the fishermen on Bigelow's Creek.

Trout Fishermen On Creeks Long Before Daylight

Waiting For The Breaking Of Dawn To Cast Into Streams

The hands of the town clock had scarcely passed the midnight hour last night when a strange breed of men began to stir restlessly in their beds. And long before dawn lights began to burn briefly in their houses, were turned out, and oddly-garbed figures stole out, shoes in hands.

It was the beginning of the 1938 trout fishing season, and the veterans woke from a winter long lethargy. Life had a meaning once more.

Wrapped in all the attic's most aged clothing, their eyes sleep-laden, the strange race drove for fifteen or fifty or a hundred miles over hazardous roads to little, fast-moving streams all over the country. A can of worms in one pocket, a can of hooks in the other, they waited for the chilly break of dawn, pipes lighted, perfectly content, dreaming of the wily fellow that was lurking in the shadows, knowing they had a good chance of hooking him again this year, hoping for better luck than the last time he struck at their line.

Despite to-day's dull weather, hundreds of Peterborough residents, mentally balanced at all other times in the year, were standing beside or wading in the waters of a dozen

Police Start Drive On "Curb Cruisers"

Buffalo, N.Y., April 30.

POLICE COMMISSIONER Glenn H. McClennan today ordered a drive against "curb cruisers"—those motorists who accost unescorted women while they walk along the city's sidewalks. He branded curb cruisers "the lowest form of humanity, contemptible fellows not fit to be at large, a source of annoyance to unescorted females."

One Killed, 4 Hurt In Auto Crash

LONDON, Ont., April 30 (CP)—Mrs. Bell Telford of Toronto was killed and four other persons were injured when two automobiles collided on a highway near here last night.

Ross Bennington, Toronto, his wife and a child and Clark L. Hodgins, London, were brought to hospital here., Mrs. Telford was a passenger in a car driven by Bennington which collided with one driven by Hodgins.

Hodgins was taken to hospital in custody of police. No charge has been laid.

Chief Coroner A. R. Routledge ordered an inquest.

BALLOON STORY PROVES TO BE HOAX

MONTREAL, April 30 (CP).—Eric Titt, 14-year-old perpetrator of the Verdun-Singapore balloon hoax, collected newspaper clippings today for Chinese Pen-pal in the far-off seaport whose help played a major part in the prank that amazed Canadian scientific circles.

Story that a hydrogen-filled five-cent balloon had soared 13,000 miles from nearby Verdun to Singapore blew up last night. Titt decided the hoax had gone far enough and he didn't want to see his schoolmates lose the pound sterling they collected for the "old Chinese man" whose letter brought the "news" the balloon had been picked up. The note was to have been sent today.

Titt said he and Edmund Wong, 14, with whom he had been corresponding, got together to play the prank on the 14-year-old Verdun high school students class mates.

Eric was one of four chemistry students who inflated the balloon and released it March 1. It disappeared into the air and nothing was heard of it until "Tchatung Lee", an "old Chinese man," said in a letter to Titt's chemistry teacher that it had landed in Singapore. "Tchatung" said he would return the balloon if postage were forwarded.

Protection Of Men, Public Life Is Urged By Tory Leader

Premier Reminded Of Action Sir Wilfrid Laurier Once Took While In Office

OTTAWA, April 30 (C.P.)—Conservative Leader Bennett reminded the House of Commons last night a man who had reflected on the public conduct of a member of Parliament once had been hauled before the bar and forced to apologize.

He made the observation while discussing the Ontario Government's Bill to construct an international bridge at Niagara Falls. Although he did not mention his name, he referred to comments of Premier Hepburn of Ontario and once quoted him.

Men in public life should be protected from unwarranted attacks by men on the outside, Mr. Bennett suggested. When public men were attemping to discharge their duties, it endangered democratic institutions to leave them open to attack by men who did not see eye to eye with them.

Up to the Premier.

The Conservative Leader said the rules of the House and its general conduct were not in his hands, but he would remind the Prime Minister that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while Prime Minister, once sponsored a motion calling a man to the bar of the House for reflecting on the public conduct of a Conservative.

The Bridge Bill was "talked out" again for the seventh time, the private members' hour expiring without it being passed. But progress was made. The House accepted an amendment sponsored by Mr. Bennett which would have the effect of preventing the bridge company from buying land while waiting for the New York Legislature to pass companion legislation.

Criticizing Hats Sign Of Lack Of Vision

Hollywood, April 30.

MEN WHO criticize women's hats—no matter how screwy they are—haven't "any imagination or vision," says Virginia Bruce, the screen actress.

"Why shouldn't a hat be shaped like a pancake or a church steeple if it's interesting?" she inquired.

RELIEF STRIKERS FACING CHARGES

TORONTO, April 30 — (CP). — Premier Hepburn struck to-day for the second time in two days at Lakeview relief-strike leaders, ordering that charges of assault be laid against Edward Lace, Fred Bailey, William Finch and four women.

The three men, leaders of a march on the Legislative Buildings yesterday, were arrested on Mr. Hepburn's orders during a conference with the Premier and several members of his cabinet. The charges were unlawful assembly.

To-day Mr. Hepburn instructed the additional charges be laid. They arise out of a disturbance at suburban Lakeview Tuesday when Relief Officer R. S. Moore of Toronto Township was detained in his motor car.

Lace, Bailey and Finch were remanded until May 9 on bail of $2,000 each when they appeared in Brampton Police Court this morning.

YOUTH IS ARRESTED IN RAILWAY CASE

OTTAWA, April 30 (CP).—Kenneth Edingsborough, 22-year-old farm hand of Bell's Corners, Ont., near Ottawa, was under arrest today charged with placing an obstruction on a railway track, thereby endangering life and property.

Police claimed a motor-propelled handcar, valued at $500, was placed on the tracks near Bell's corners early Tuesday morning. They said an attempt was made to start it and in some manner it caught fire.

The Canadian National Railways eastbound transcontinental express struck the burned car. Considerable damage was caused to the locomotive while about 250 yards of track were also damaged. The train did not leave the tracks and no one was injured.

Edingsborough will be arraigned inc ourt Monday.

Last Day To Pay Your Income Tax

OTTAWA, April 30 (C.P.). — Jack Canuck held out his hand to-day and told Canadians to "give." He wants in his possession by to-night at the latest details of their earnings and payment of a tax on that income. Otherwise, there will be the little matter of a penalty for lateness to consider.

Health Service Not Adequate Although Cost $222,000.000

Individuals Average $17.10 For Services Rowell Commission Told

TORONTO, April 30 (CP)—Despite the fact $222,000.000 is spent annually on health services in Canada, that high percentage of the national expenditure fails to meet the national need of adequate medical service, according to the Toronto Welfare Council.

Although individuals spend an average of $17.10 and governments, industry and philanthropy spend another $4.25 for each person, known methods of disease prevention and adequate medical facilities are not available to all, nor are the availbale modern services used because of the heavy cost of the individual, the council says.

Evolutionary Type Of Policy

"It would seem possible, however, that there could be formulated for Canada a health policy of an evolutionary type by which all groups of the population would receive the benefits which the preventive and curative medicine of the day had to offer," Prof. E. J. Urwick, of the University of Toronto, contended yesterday before the Rowell commission.

During the day the commission heard six other presentations as well, including teachers and school trustees, farmers' mutual insurance groups, librarians and social workers.

The Ontario government will open the presentation of its submission Monday afternoon when Premier Hepburn will lead off with the introduction. It is expected the pro-

Hamilton Girl Is Jabbed With Needle

Hamilton, April 30.

A 16-YEAR-OLD girl, Elsie Ferguson, was jabbed with a hypodermic needle last night as she was strolling through the midway of a carnival on Barton street. At the General Hospital officials said she had been pricked several times in the hip and side. The patient, who lives on Province street, North, collapsed shortly after she felt the pain of the injections.

No Unemployment In North Renfrew

OTTAWA, April 30 (CP)—Doubt was expressed in the House of Commons yesterday by R. M. Warren, Liberal member of parliament for North Renfrew, that there was not as much unemployment in Canada as some persons seemed to think. He said there was none in his riding for the past six months. Boys and girls from the district came into Ottawa and readily got jobs.

"One of the curses we are drifting into is this propaganda going out that the federal government should look after all our troubles without us having to work for them," he said.

He believed there was work for many of those on relief if they were willing to exert themselves.

Washington, D.C., has the highest pneumonia death rate of any large city in United States.

People Demand Business Control Of Corporations

Government May Have to Assume Greater Control Over Organization of Industry, Minister Says

OTTAWA, April 30 (CP).—A hint the government would have to assume greater control over the organization of corporations has come from agricultural minister J. G. Gardiner.

As the House of Commons last night debated the price of farm implements, he said:

"If government cannot find ways of establishing at a reasonable level the prices of farm products it may be necessary to find ways of preventing industry from so organizing as to drain the last dollars out of our basic industries to pay for a business which establishes a group of individuals in luxury while those contributing to that luxury exist in poverty.

"The people of this country are sick and tired of that kind of business control and organization."

He was speaking in the debate over a motion for adoption of the report of the Commons committee on farm implements tabled more than a year ago.

Prices Should Come Down

The minister added:

"If the cost of the financial set-up of the implement business necessitates the present prices, the cost ought to come down, if agriculture is to continue to be practiced in that part of Canada which depends upon machinery for its continuance."

Debate on farm implements climaxed a week's struggle over unemployment relief which saw the 1938-39 relief measure still in committee of the whole at adjournment last night with not even the first clause adopted.

Caustic criticism which claimed the Government, after three years in office, had failed to bring in anything but a "palliative" for the problem came from members of the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups, while Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) continued his violent attack upon the National Employment Commission and its chairman, A. B. Purvis.

Some color was given the debate when Mr. Pouliot, declaring the Commission had brought in a "rotten report" concluded by throwing it to the floor of the Chamber with the suggestion the minister do the same with his copy so that it might be swept up and placed in the garbage "which a Jew ca nsell to some one."

Riots in Vancouver.

Warning that riots might be expected in Vancouver within the next few days came from Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South). The riots might come because of he congregation in that city of some 5,000 single unemployed men recently let out of forestry camps, he said. Mr. Green urged something be done to relieve the situation faced by the people of Vancouver.

J. S. Woodsworth (C.C.F. Winnipeg North-Centre) also warned the Government of trouble ahead, and bitterly assailed the Labor Minister for failing to give any indication of what the Government proposed to do under the permissive powers contained in the relief measure.

"It seems to me," Mr. Woodsworth said, "that by this time relief cannot be regarded as an ordinary emergency. It has settled down to be almost a steady thing with us, and I think we ought to know just how the present Government proposes to deal with a problem of this vast extent, involving as it does almost a million of our population.

Mr. Woodsworth asked particularly what was proposed with respect to housing.

Mr. Rogers said this had been under consideration by the government but he was not in a position at present to announce what would be done in the way of legislation.

Full details of the governments plans with respect to relief programs would be disclosed with the presentation of supplementary estimates, Mr. Rogers said. It was not possible for him to anticipate the announcements that would then be made.

M. J. Coldwell (CCF Rosetown-Biggar) told the minister there was all across Canada "a rising tide of discontent with the inactivity of this parliament."

"As one who believes in democracy and the maintenance of our democratic institutions I say that the present government of Canada is doing more to undermine those democratic institutions than all the propaganda that can be spread across the country."

Mr. Woodsworth wanted to know if it was the government's intention to wait until riots broke out. He referred to the "trek" of unemployed from British Columbia two years ago which ended with bloodshed in Regina.

He asked:

"Does this mean, that the practice of the government is to wait until there is rioting in British Columbia and then turn out the mounted police and men will be killed?"

Earlier in the day Labor Minister Rogers tabled the annual report of the Dominion commissioner of unemployment relief. Harry Hereford, which showed that since 1930 Canada had disbursed $308,742,859 for that purpose.

Of that amount Ontario received $84,755,715, and Quebec $52,307,404 while Saskatchewan comes third with $47,581,902.

Last year relief cost $44,338,190, of which $17,241,326 was distributed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

vincial submission will take a full week, with Attorney-General Conant, provincial comptroller and deputy treasurer Chester Walters and D. W. Lang, government counsel, sharing the honors.

The fact known preventive methods were not uniformly available across the country was indicated by a typhoid fever death-rate which varied from 1.1 per 100,000 to 5.3 among the provinces; from diphtheria, 0.9 to 4.9, and from tuberculosis 35.5 to 92.6.

Maternal mortality under the Victorian Order of Nurses service, averaging 14,000 cases a year for the past five years, was approximately half the maternal mortality rate for Canada.

Services Not Available.

In many remote areas even the services of a general practitioner were not readily available, the professor said. Where modern medical services were available, many individuals could not make use of them because of the increase in medical costs due to the great advances made in medical science in recent decades.

The Council urged a national health policy which would cover: Utilization of all preventive measures against disease as rapidly as these become available; control of the distribution of diagnostic centres, hospitals, laboratories and provision where required; generous financial provision for medical education, medical research and hospitals; medical care of the indigent and compulsory contributory health insurance.

In proposing more centralized guidance in relief administration, the Council contended there was urgent need for uniformity in the quantity, quality, and standards of relief administration.

RELIEF STRIKERS ARE BEING HELD FOLLOWING MARCH

TORONTO, April 30. — (CP). — Stage for one of the many dramatic acts in the strike and attendant march on Queens Park of relief recipients from Lakeview, 14 miles west of here, moved to the courts to-day where four strikers will appear. They were arrested on instruction of Premier Mitchell Hepburn.

Arrest of George Kellett, Edward Lace, Fred Bailey and William Finch came yesterday as a startling climax to a 14-mile march by 50 strikers from Lakeview to the Legislative Buildings, where they were granted audience by the Premier. The Premier, however, turned down the deputation's request that relief grants be increased in Toronto township.

Kellett's arrest was made by Maj.-Gen. Victor Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, on charges by Mr. Hepburn that Kellett had stolen $310 from the Agricultural Government Board in 1931 when employed by the Government. The three others were arrested on charges of unlawful assembly. Arising from a disturbance Tuesday when Relief Officer R. S. Moore for Toronto township was detained in his automobile.

Will Seek Bail.

Immediately after the arrests the delegation gathered at a band stand —only a stone's throw from the Premier's office—in Queen's Park, where plans were made to return home. George Harris, secretary for the Ontario Federation on Unemployment, said his organization would seek bail for the four men and indicated more mass marches were likely.

"Premier Mitchell Hepburn evidently is taking the side of the municipalities who want to reduce schedules," said Harris. "We will start a policy immediately of resistance to this. We will make it one of the chief issues of May Day. We will organize a public campaign and a public agitation and send as many delegates to Queens Park as we can."

Another feature of the dramatic episode in the Council Chamber came when the Premier instructed the Provincial Police Commissioner to charge Albert Carey, one of the deputation, with a violation of the School Attendance Act. The Premier charged Carey had kept his child, who was older than eight years, out of school to make the Lakeview to Toronto trip. He intimated truancy charges may be preferred against other members of the deputation.

By-elections Against Government.

Parliamentary by-elections reveal strong movements toward Liberal-Labor co-operation in a peace front. Labor's sweeping victory in West Fulham recently was largely due to Liberal support. In Lichfield, where opposition Labor and National Labor candidates oppose each other in the May 5 polling, prominent Liberals openly support the Labor candidate.

Uneasy over the trend, the Government has rescinded its ban on Cabinet Ministers participating in by-election struggles. As a result three leading members of the Government will enter the Lichfield fight over the week-end.

The Co-operative party, the Independent Labor party, the National Union of Shops' Assistants, the South Wales Miners' Federation all are on record in favor of a popular front.

The Mine Workers Federation, representing 400,000 workers has sent a demand to the Trades Union Congress that it should call together all affiliated unions to discuss new ways of giving practical help to Spain and reversing the British government's hands-off policy.

At the national committee of the Amalgamated Engineering Union meeting, opening at Morecambe today, Scottish delegates will submit a resolution demanding that the national committee should definitely refuse to pledge the organization to support the government's reorganization program "until we have specific assurance that the national government will unite with those peaceful powers who are working in conformity with the league policy of pooled collective security."

Still others came from adjacent Cavan, bound that strangers would not take all the fish away with them. Boys and grown men were as one; dads had no authority this morning; he who had the largest catch was the best man.

Caught Few Fish.

At Scott's Mill on Bigelow's Creek were gathered more than a dozen ardent sportsmen. They were having much fun, but catching few fish, averaging less than one apiece at 7 o'clock. Veteran fisherman Louis Anthony waded the stream for miles, returned with only one little fellow. Further upstream at Carver's Pond, another dozen or more men and two women had lines in the water at daybreak.

The Ouse River was a favorite spot and Westwood residents reported a large contingent were fishing in the neighborhood. Plato's Creek near Havelock attracted another large group. Kelly's, on the Ninth Line of Dummer, was a spot for more hardy fishermen who liked to travel to catch trout. Harding's, north of Warsaw, was another favorite spot. Between Bewdley and Cobourg were a dozen fishing sites, all well patrolled.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 30 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures receded from maximum gain of 2c yesterday on liquidation induced by nervousness at the approach of the first day of the May delivery month. Final quotations were ⅝ to 1¼ cents lower, May $1.19⅝, July $1.09⅝ to ¾, and October 88¼ cents.

Weakness at Chicago in late stages added to selling pressure that forced the October future almost a cent lower near the close.

Despite reports, overseas firms were good buyers of May wheat, Canadian overnight export sales were difficult to confirm. Later selling increased on late reports of showers in Italy which promised to relieve the drought situation there.

Chicago closed 1⅛c to 2c lower, and Liverpool ⅝d to ¼d higher. Buenos Aires noon values were slightly improved.

ROGERS DEFENDS WORK BY PURVIS

OTTAWA, April 30 (CP)—A defence of the work of A. B. Purvis of Montreal as chairman of the National Employment Commission was entered in the House of Commons yesterday by Labor Minister Rogers.

J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) last night suggested Purvis, a prominent industrialist, should be deported because he took advantage of his position to gather confidential information from his business competitors.

The labor minister said a further investigation by him had shown the information solely for public purposes."

In 1936 and 1937, the commission sent a questionnaire to big employers of labor, Mr. Rogers continued. From the answers, a report was written.

"In no sense was it the thought or intention of the commission to look into the affairs of individual business," Mr. Rogers said.

The commission gave an undertaking to every firm the information would be confidential and it would be made public only in a general way. It would not be made available to any other part of the government.

Reports from individual firms were studied by a statistical staff under V. C. Phelan, a civil servant, and neither the chairman nor any member of the commission had ever seen the individual reports. No complaints had been received from any quarter of the information being wrongly used and it was doubted that the information would have been of any value to business competitors.

"I regret exceedingly," the minister said, "that the member for Temiscouata has made these accusations."

The chairman and commissioners had devoted themselves and their talents whole heartedly to a difficult task.

Co-operatives of Switzerland sold 400,000 tons of commodities last year.

SERVICES IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES TO-MORROW

St. Andrew's United Church Marking 105th Anniversary

Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, Secretary Of United Church, To Preach

The 105th. anniversary of St. Andrew's Church will be held on Sunday. The special preacher will be Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, M.A., D.D secretary of the United Church of Canada. Dr. Sisco is well known througout the Dominion of Canada as an able preacher, and an outstanding leader. He was eminently successful in his pastorates at Port Hope, Central Church Sarnia, and Danforth Avenue Church Toronto. In these places he conducted forums for men which attracted large numbers who seldom attended church. He gave these men free scope for the discussion of social and religious problems. It was on the strength of these gifts that he was elected by the General Council in Ottawa in 1936 to succeed Rev. T. Albert Moore D.D., who retired from the office of General secretary of the Church.

Dr. Sisco's subjects will be morning 'The Expediency of Christs Departure,' evening 'Journeys out and Home'. The special soloists will be Mr. John Houston of Sarnia in the morning and Mr. Clifford Hall of Peterborough at night.

Eventful History

St. Andrew's church has had an eventful history. The congregation was organized in 1833 by Rev. J. Morrice Roger, M.A., from Aberdeenshire, Scotland. Mr. Roger at that time had a roving commission to visit settlers in different parts of this country. The first place of worship was a hired building on the north side of King St. west of Ayimer. The first church on the present site was erected in 1835 and stood for 50 years of useful service. The present handsome building was erected in 1885. The Sunday School premises was remodelled and extended to its present capacity in 1924 at a cost of $36,000. It is one of the finest auditoriums for Sunday School and Young Peoples Work in the city, and is occupied with various groups on practically every week-night. The manse was remodelled and furnished last year at considerable cost, and the grounds have recently been made more beautiful by the addition of a number of maple trees, and two small rockeries.

St. Andrew's has always been noted for the public spirit of its members. There is scarcely a philanthropic or religious object in the city or province in which the church is not well represented. Never in its history has St. Andrews had a finer staff of officers than at the present time.

Following Vision With Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By ALVIN E. BELL)

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 1 is Mark 9:14-29, the Golden Text being Mark 9:23, "All things are possible to him that believeth".)

THE DAZZLING splendor of the vision has faded; the mysterious voice from heaven is silenced; Moses and Elijah have disappeared; "and Jesus came and touched them and said, Arise, and be not afraid. And lifting up their eyes, they saw no one save Jesus only." But the Jesus they saw was the same Jesus of Nazareth they had known before the vision, though heaven's testimony in the vision was, "This is my beloved Son." Though Jesus had companied with Moses and Elijah in the vision he is still willing to company with the Galilean fishermen, and they set out for the valley below to minister to human need.

"My Son—Mine Only Child"

What a contrast they found in the valley below! On the mount they had heard the heavenly Father say, "This is my beloved Son." Now they hear an earthly father crying out in anguish: "I beseech thee to look upon my son; for he is mine only child." But this only begotten son of the earthly father is held in the power of the enemy of God and man. The nine apostles in the absence of Jesus were helpless to bring relief to the afflicted child. So the father appealed to Jesus, "Teacher, I brought unto thee my son, who hath a dumb spirit; and wheresoever it taketh him, it dasheth him down . . . and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast it out; and they were not able." This explains the eagerness of Jesus to come from the place of glory to the place of gloom. His whole earthly life was a coming down from divine majesty to human misery.

"Help Thou Mine Unbelief"

In the presence of his impotent church, whose impotence to relieve this human misery was due chiefly to the disciples' lack of faith to make use of the powers Jesus had given them, Jesus rebuked that lack of faith, saying, "O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I bear with you? Bring him unto me." And when the father brought the child, he said to Jesus, "If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us." To which Jesus replied, "If thou canst! All things are possible to him that believeth." And "straightway the father of the child cried out, and said, I believe; help thou mine unbelief." What a confession this is of mingled faith and doubt! But how truly it represents the experience of all of us at one time or other of our lives! But this father preferred to believe rather than to doubt. He chose faith to walk by his side, and could not help it that doubt dogged his steps. He was proud of his faith and ashamed of his doubt. And our Lord graciously overlooked the doubt he fought against and rewarded the faith that triumphed over the doubt as "he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I command thee, come out of him and enter no more into him." And Jesus took the child by the hand and lifted him up and he arose and Jesus gave him back to his father fully restored to health. Then to his disciples' inquiry as to the reason for their helplessness to bring relief, he replied, "This kind can come out by nothing save by prayer." As he prayed on the mount he was transfigured.

The purpose and privelege of Israel is "Ruling with God". This is the meaning of the "Israel" name. (See the word "Israel" in Young's Analytical Concordance, for instance). Among the nations of the earth, this is the nation over whom he rules, and this is the nation through whom he rules the nations of the earth.

But Israel put away His altar, under Jeroboam, and Israel put away his constitution under Omri: therefore Israel was put away from joint rulership with God and was scattered through the nations.

As an organized nation Israel was not usable by the Lord as a ruling power under Him during the ages of her humiliation. But He scattered the people of the race through the nations as individuals, and so influenced the nations by them that Israel became the salt of the earth, the channel through which the Gospel made its way into the hearts of the nations which accepted Christ.

As time progressed, the Lord "assembled the outcasts of Israel" in the Islands, and there, when in due time the period of Israels punishment were passed, He gradually restored the nation to her associate rule with God over the nations of the earth.

Now the period if Israels blindness has also passed, and she is conciously emerging into the glory of her associate rule with God again as manifest in our Anglo- Saxon nation, and on a larger scale than ever.

But she will not attain to the full glory of her destiny without a further fight with her competitors and enemies. Already Germany and her organizations have challenged her right to such rule; Germany has fallen shattered as an empire but has re-armed and re-organized as a republic and claims to be stronger than ever.

Soon Russia and her organizations, greater and mightier than that of Germany, will take the field. The culmination of that struggle is referred to as "The great day of God Almighty". Then shall "all nations be gathered against Jerusalem to battle". The line up of forces is graphically portrayed in the thirty eighth, and thirty ninth chapters of Ezekial.

In Zechariah the great conflict is also shown, and the fact that at the cricis of it the Lord shall appear, foe. "His feet shall stand in that day on the Mount of Olives" (Zech. xiv. 4)

From the overwhelming disaster which at that moment will threaten the destruction of Israel, the coming of the Lord shall preserve the nation.

Thereafter there is established beyond challenge in the earth the rule of the Lord over the nation of Israel, and through Israel over all the nations.

Thus the story of the return of the Lord is interwoven in the combined line of history and prophesy regarding the nation of Israel.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Many very sincere and devout people are troubled by the existence of evil. They refuse to face the fact that God permits its existence, and so, unable to reconcile their idea of God with the facts of things as they are, fall back on the dualism of the ancient religions. One of the stock arguments of the atheist is: If God is all powerful and all love, why does He not interfere and put an end to the intolerable evil of this world. Or knowing as He must know what would eventually happen, why did He create man at all? But looking at the matter impartially, we can see that intervention in the affairs of man on the part of Heaven would at once nullify the educative effect that earth life is intended to have. Further, it would destroy our freedom of choice and action. In other words, we would be mere puppets. Goodness, imposed on us from without, is not and never can be, a virtue for it is not of our own choice. Furthermore, to know good we must also have known evil for the tree of knowledge is two-fold and evil is synonomous with ignorance, selfish ignorance at that.

In what school would the pupils learn if their teacher did all the work himself and the scholars idly looked on? So also in this earthly school of life we must learn of and by ourselves. If we refuse to learn, as most of us do refuse, we cannot escape the sure results of our indifference. Evil is the result of man's ignorance of his own true nature, the result of his fall into self-hood, and the devil, if devil there be, is naught else than the spirit of self. The cabalistic maxim that the "demon est Deus inversus" is very true. The world has never lacked guidance. It has had Moses, Buddha, Plato and the Christ amongst many others and all, from the greater to the lesser, have taught the great truth that human happiness and well-being is in the hands of man himself. If he lives in harmony with the Love of God all is well with him. If, in his self-imposed ignorance, he lives to himself, all is ill. If our lives here are based on the celestial harmony, there is no need to worry about the next world, that will take care of itself in due time. What we believe is of comparatively little importance to what we become within ourselves, for the Love of God and of man (the two go together) makes us other than what we now are.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE CLEARING OF GOD'S CHARACTER

WHOM GOD raised from the dead, EVEN JESUS. 1 Thess. 1; 10.

This is the first reference to the resurrection of Our Lord in all Christian literature; for first Thessalonians, according to modern scholarship, is the earliest of St. Paul's letters, written about 52 A.D.; that is, within twenty years of the death, resurrection and ascension of the Christ. It is but twenty years since the victory of Vimy Ridge by Canadian troops.

These letters of St. Paul were written for the first generation of Christians, who were daily expecting the second Coming. He makes the statement of Our Lord's resurrection as an accepted truth and doctrine of his readers. They believed in "Jesus and the resurrection". The Gospels were written for the second generation of Christians that they might know the facts of Our Lord's life, death, resurrection and ascension. That second generation believed in Jesus Christ not because of the Gospel stories but on the ground that they had been taught by their teachers. They had been baptised in the faith that Jesus Christ rose from the dead by the power of God. Within twenty five years after the death of Jesus Christ St. Paul, a man of the highest intellectual and spiritual qualifications, was going about the world preaching that Jesus Christ rose from the dead and ever liveth. This is the central truth of St. Paul's preaching.

The death of Our Lord on the Cross was a tremendous blow to the Apostles. It meant three things. First, that they had lost their Master and Teacher, whom they had followed and loved. Then it meant destruction of their hopes and expectations of a temporal kingdom of Israel by the overthrow of the Romans. The Jewish authorities were swift to act and crush this movement. "If we let Him thus alone all men will believe on Him; and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation". St. John 11; 48. They had no doubts as to the ability of the Roman legions to mercilessly crush them. So He was crucified under Pontius Pilate, He died and was buried. On Good Friday night failure was the word in the mouths of both friend and foe.

But the heaviest blow to the Apostles was spiritual and menial. For three years they had followed Him. They were convinced He was the best and purest of men. They knew He put His whole trust and confidence in God. "I must be about My Father's business" is His dominating thought. "I am come to do the will of Him that sent Me" is the keynote of His ministry. They were sure He was the most obedient Son of the Father. Even Jews had wrong mental ideas of God. By His life and parables He showed God to be merciful and compassionate, full of loving-kindness and tenderness.

Yet the pure and sinless One went to a death of agony and horror on the Cross and died, with the bitter cry:— "My God, My God, Why hast Thou forsaken Me?" There was no answer. A great silence. God did not answer. Jesus Christ seemed to be utterly forsaken of God. He had gone down to defeat trusting in God. The Apostles passed through two whole nights and a day of mental horror and agony. "Does God care"? is the agonising question upon their hearts and minds.

Then on the first Day of the week God raised Him from the dead. God's character is vindicated. If Jesus Christ did not rise from the dead we can only think of Him as a great Dreamer and Teacher Who was self deceived. It means that God, though He is mighty and powerful, does not care what happens to man Goodness in the final analysis goes down to defeat. The Devil conquers.

But all the time God was caring, loving and suffering. He is God. He is also Man. In Christ Jesus God desired to sympathise with man in every way. God in Christ Jesus died for man that when you die you may know that God is near and understands your loneliness and horror.

By the resurrection of Our Lord God answers man's question:— "Does God care",? Yes, God cares because He raised Jesus Christ from the dead. This was the inspiration of the Apostles and every generation of Christians. This is the uppermost thought in St. Peter's first sermon:— "Whom God raised up, having loosed the pangs of death —this Jesus did God raise up". And again:— "The God of our Fathers raised up Jesus Whom ye slew, hanging Him on a Tree". These statements from the Acts of the Apostles are clear and definite that the resurrection of the Lord is the vital truth clearing the character of God from indifference.

God's silence in your hour of agony and distress does not mean His absence or indifference. He is near you in all times of doubt and trouble and especially in the hour of death. "Lo, I am with you all the days".

"I AM HE THAT LIVETH AND WAS DEAD AND BEHOLD I AM ALIVE FOR EVERMORE".

St. Catharines Gets New Highway

ST. CATHARINES, Ont, April 30 —(CP)—A new highway to run between St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie in conjunction with the new lake shore highway, now under construction, was announced here today. The highway should be ready for traffic about the same time as the four-lane highway, about 1940 or 1941.

The new road will parallel the the Niagara, St.-Catharines and Toronto railway high speed line to Port Dalhousie and will join the present Ontario street highway at the village limits.

Nearly 2,500 miles of railways are to be constructed in North China.

Following Vision With Service — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 9:14-29

Peter, James and John had the high privilege of witnessing Christ in glory on the mount talking with Moses and Elijah. From the mount Jesus took them down to join the other disciples.

Here they found a father with his young son afflicted by an evil spirit and the nine apostles helpless to bring relief. Thereupon the father appealed to Jesus to heal his child.

To Jesus the father said, "If thou can't do anything help us." Jesus said, "All things are possible to him that believeth." "I believe," said the father "help thou mine unbelief."

Jesus graciously overlooked the doubt of which the man was ashamed and rewarded the faith of which he was unashamed, as he restored the child (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 9:23.)

Would Be Too Simple

Word from Goderich in Huron county is that relief will end there on the first day of May. The information is also offered that at present there are 25 families on relief with a total of 130 individuals.

Goderich is a pleasant town of some 4,500 population. There is considerable shipping activity in season, but it is not what can be called an industrial centre. During the summer season due to its lake-shore location it would be busier than at other times of the year. But in a general way there will be nothing more for the members of those 25 relief families to do on or after the first of May than there was before that date which has now become a dead line for relief.

Saying that there will be no more relief after the first of May settles nothing at all. If the relief question could be dealt with by a resolution of the town council, the village council, the city council or the township or county council then the thing would be splendidly simplified. All that would be necessary would be the passing of a number of resolutions and the relief problem would disappear.

Goderich is not the first place where such a stand has been taken, but it can have the distinction—if successful—of being the first place to do away with the need for relief by merely stating no more relief is available.

There is nothing said regarding what these 25 families in Goderich are going to do. They have been getting their means of a livelihood from the municipality, and there is no other agency ready to step in and fill the breach. We might well hope that the report from Goderich had been of greater length, giving information of what people were going to do when cut off relief if the need for relief continues to exist.

Why Use The Streets?

People who have had occasion to be in Toronto recently may have been puzzled when they noticed men carrying signs in front of fur-working establishments. The signs which the men carry do not agree. One has a placard saying there is a strike in progress, while the next man has a sandwich-board arrangement which says there is not a fur-workers' strike.

A report from Toronto gives this explanation:

> The dispute, according to labor officials, centres not upon wages and hours, but a dispute of jurisdiction between three American Federation of Labor locals and the International Fur Workers' Union, which is affiliated with the C.I.O. and with the Toronto District Trades and Labor Council.
>
> The international Union, which originally was chartered by the American Federation of Labor, was organized before the others, and contends that the others were started not to meet the needs of workers, but solely to oppose the union already in existence.

If the whole business is merely a dispute between two or three different kinds of unions then it is something which the people involved should settle in their own back yards. What right they have to be parading up and down the street in front of any place of business is something which is difficult to understand.

Organizers and business agents live by receiving their wages from members of the unions, and if there are three unions in the same field it looks as though the number of agents and organizers was going to rise to the point where it would be greater than the traffic would bear.

Paying A Visit

On May 3 Adolf Hitler will visit Rome and plans have been under way for weeks to make such a demonstration on that occasion that all the glory of Italy will be on parade. Old Rome under the Caesars would not have been able to present any greater spectacle.

The visit of Hitler will be extended to Rome, Naples and Florence, and we read that agents of the Nazi government have had special men working in these places for several weeks. The result is there are several thousands of people who will be invited to leave the community until after the Hitler visit has come to an end. Many of them have been furnished with railway tickets to border points, and the ticket is so arranged that the return stub is not good for use until after Hitler has left the country. The meaning of all this is that any one of these residents might put an end to Hitler if opportunity was given.

The business of one dictator going to pay a visit to another is not as simple as a neighbor going next door to make a call on a friend. Nor was it as simple as the time when the premier of Britain paid a visit to the president of United States and much of the discussion took place when sitting on a log at a mountan summer resort.

The whole business seems to be forced, unnatural and engineered. The chief desire on the part of Rome seems to be to parade its man power and show what a nation is centred at Rome. It lacks the charm of the visit of the queen of Sheba to King Solomon and the crowd will have the mechanical exuberance of prior instruction rather than the spontaneous outpouring of a free people greeting a man whom they delight to honor. Probably neither Hitler nor Mussolini will see anything humorous in the situation, but the element of humor is there just the same.

Hard To Understand

There was a picture in the paper the other day and the lines explaining it told that the man on the right was Horace E. Dodge, sportsman, son of the late automobile manufacturing pioneer. It went on to explain that he was having his picture in the paper because he has filed suit for divorce against his wife, Muriel Sisman Dodge. It was also told that she was the lady on the left. You may have noticed the picture, but we thought it best to get the thing well explained.

Horace Dodge is charging his wife with cruelty, but not in the ordinary meaning given to that word. It is not claimed that she actually bites him, strikes him or scratches. The cruelty of which Horace complains is of a more subtle type. Muriel is said to have been in the habit of making "disparaging remarks" about him and we dare say that is rather tough.

We admit this case is none of our business, but it looks bad to see Horace at odds with his wife after having been married to her for ten years. Shortly before this ten-year union he had divorced his first wife, and that little operation cost him a cool ten million dollars, and we take it that his pioneer father would have found it necessary to turn out a good many cars to put that much to one side for the son's use or misuse.

We admit readily enough that these ten million cases are rather deep for discussion; they are well past the editorial chin. But we have a suspicion at times that if Horace Dodge were busy earning a living he might be having less trouble with his wives. When the day was far spent Horace might be coming home and looking weary, and if his wife was worth her salt she would not be minded to make "disparaging remarks" about her man. She would probably be interested in filling him with victuals and telling him he was working too hard. But when people get in the class where they can pay ten million for the privilege of shifting one wife from her marital moorings, and when they come under the classification of "sportsman" and are ready to cut loose for the second time it's hard to understand them or say anything which would cause peace to come and light on their porch. They are living in an atmosphere which we do not understand, and we are quite content to leave it that way.

When Premises Are Vacant

At a recent meeting of the Peterborough Police Commission a letter was received from the owners of a vacant factory building saying that sufficient police protection had not been given the premises. The building in question is on George St. South adjacent to where the C.N.R. tracks cross. The windows on the south side of the premises have been fairly well attended to by boys throwing stones, although on the George street side the windows are intact. The owners say there has been damage done to the interior; glass partitions have been broken and parts of the heating equipment carried off.

It is possible to see a number of empty factory buildings in various places in this province which have received similar treatment. Just why a boy wants to throw a stone through a window has never been explained. There was also a fine example of what happens to vacant property in the old Lundy home in East City. That place had been apparently open raiding ground for all who cared to go in and wreck it or take material away. Fortunately for the old home itself and the community it has since been restored.

The owners of the building formerly owned by the Canada Crayon Co. claim there has been insufficient police protection, but that is about as far as they can get with it. The contention is, and it is reasonable enough, that when a building is vacant and likely to remain so, the windows should be boarded up and the doors securely fastened. Then there would be small opportunity for damage doers to ply their trade. It is not well to depend on police protection because that is given in only a general way and it is by no means a 24-hour service. The owner of a vacant building is in much the same position as the owner of a home or any other premises. It may be that such premises would be entered during the absence of the family and goods would be stolen. That would mean there were no police around at the time in that particular locality, but that in itself does not give the owner of the robbed premises grounds for anticipating reimbursement from the municipality. Owners of the vacant factory premises on George St. South have complained to the Police Commission, and that is about all they can do.

As It Was On The Tenth

Eastern Canada Livestock Union had several speakers at a dinner during its gathering in Toronto. It seems to run that way pretty much all the time. When there is a convention there is a dinner, and at the dinner there are speakers, and of course the speakers produce speeches.

There were several at that dinner, among them President G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario College of Agriculture, who predicted some day the health of cattle would be checked just as people "see their dentist twice a year." The general theme of his address had to do with nutrition of animals.

It is hard to see how Dr. Christie's plan could be applied to bacon hogs on the theory of visitation by a veterinary surgeon twice a year. If they were on the premises during the first visit of the vet the poor little beggars would not be there for the second visitation. They have to live their full lives inside of six months or so; they are regulated by a calendar and a set of scales. When they are six months of age and weigh 200 pounds or slightly over they depart. A twice-a-year inspection might catch them and again it might not.

On the Tenth Concession there never was much done at trying to find out about the health of cows or horses or sheep or pigs. Perhaps the system was all wrong but it was taken for granted that they were all right until some person found them to be definitely ailing. Just what effect it might have on the live stock to have some person looking around every six months is something we do not know. In human beings we believe it is correct enough to state that a number of people are poorly when they get a chance to be poorly. If the chance doesn't come then they just keep on going.

The place where they attended to most of the animal doctoring on Lot 4, Concession Ten, was on a sort of bench at the back of the drive shed. When grandfather started puttering about in there then it was known something was wrong. He had vaseline, iodine, linseed oil, animal charcoal, turpentine, stuff for the making of a blister, etc., and that etc. can be repeated many times. Just how much he put in of this or that no one ever seemed to know. Grandfather could prescribe and mix his own remedy for anything from cow fever to heaves in horses. When a horse showed signs of heaves he always would insist on dampening the hay and giving bran mash three times a day. But he never did make any periodic inspections to see if anything was ailing the live stock. His belief was that as long as a cow was milking and eating and was able to get up in the morning she was all right. The same with horses. If they were laying back too far in team harness he'd look for a lame shoulder, and if an animal picked up a cold he'd use a mustard plaster.

When the little porkers were about four or five weeks old he'd keep an eye on them to see that they were going through weaning all right. He always held that if a pig didn't go stiff on him at that age he could bring the whole litter along all right after that. But he never did anything which might look as though he were suggesting to the stock that there might be something wrong. If trouble came he attended to it, but he never expected it was going to come. Perhaps that is why he lived to be 92.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Central Liberal women want more women senators appointed and we have an idea that they mean Liberal women.

It is predicted that within five years both old political parties will be ready to legislate against excessive drinking. At present however it is difficult to find any ground for that supposition.

Fred Perry, after all, has declined to coach the Canadian Davis Cup team. Mr. Perry seems to be the one of those realists who knows it is difficult to make an omelet without eggs.

A scrub woman was called in by a Hollywood studio to show film actresses the technique of using soap and scrubbing brushes. At least there is some indication here of a clean picture.

GOOD OLD DAYS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I've often thought of David Tongue, whose words were far and often flung, a spouter in his way; it was suggested now and then, when he met with the village men, he'd have a word to say.

¶ When they had dinners in the place, then David Tongue filled up a space, the programmes then were long; the toasts were always freely drunk, at midnight half the men were sunk, but things still going quite strong.

¶ When folks were thinking of their bed, and feeling achy in the head, and longed to get it through; the chairman would blow up his lung, suggesting how that David Tongue, might say a word or two.

¶ And David seemed to get enthused, and never once had he refused, he simply longed to talk; they knew when he got under way, they'd have to linger there and stay, to well nigh two o'clock.

¶ For David came of pioneer stock, the flannel shirt and woolen sock, log houses and wild bears; he'd heard the story from his folks, of cattle wearing wooden yokes, of basswood logs for chairs.

¶ And David traced down through the age, and never missed a single page, he might have said some more; but when it came to two o'clock, then David had to cease his talk—for men began to snore.

The Red Ticket Secured the Job

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Right Hon. R. B. BENNETT (Leader of the Opposition): I had not intended to speak at any great length during this debate, but I think it must be abundantly clear to all that anyone who is a taxpayer in this country has some feeling of just resentment that his taxes thus paid can be utilized only to give employment to those who support the government. That is practically the proposition that was put forward in Victoria. I was rather surprised at the minister. He knew perfectly well that the red card to which he referred was the military card, but no one could get a red card who did not have the card of the Liberal association.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): That is not correct.

Mr. BENNETT: That was correct at the time. What is more, the witnesses can be produced; all you have to do is issue a royal commission and you can get them.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): No; they got them straight from the military organizations.

Mr. BENNETT: They got them only where they had to enter certain particular localities for the purpose of doing their work. The defences of Victoria were being proceeded with at the very time the by-election was being held, and those who were given employment were those who secured these tickets from the Liberal organization.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): No, no.

Mr. BENNETT: And they got the red tickets that enabled them to have access to the areas in question. I cannot help who gave the contrary information to the minister; that was the fact, because men came and showed me—

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): But I have the direct information here from a list of ten ex-service men's organizations.

Mr. BENNETT: That may well be, but the minister had ex-service men's organizations being given employment during Christmas in Vancouver, but all the men were passed by his representative.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): They did not.

Mr. BENNETT: Well, practically.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): They did not.

Mr. BENNETT: I am bound to accept the hon. gentleman's word, but his representative was there and saw them, or the greater part of them; that was apparent also. I mention that because it is no good to say this is not being done. I am a moderate taxpayer in this country, and I did find it a little difficult to accommodate myself to the thought that my taxes go to supply work only for Liberals. That I find a little difficult to understand.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Mr. Speaker, that is absolutely incorrect.

Mr. BENNETT: I do not say the practice is limited to Victoria, because it is not; it extends to the other parts of the country as well, but this resolution puts it forward with respect to national defence and does not deal with other matters at all. It is difficult thing to say that a man who pays large taxes can only thus provide employment for those who may be opposed to his political beliefs. It does not seem very just or right, with respect to matters of national defence at any rate.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): It does not happen.

Mr. BENNETT: Well, it has happened. I am going to give the minister some information that will possibly enable him to go down to his department and find things which he has not heretofore found.

There was a by-election in Victoria. The minister made the opening speech with the candidate. The former Minister of National Defence had not then arrived. Certainly I was not then in Victoria, but I read his speech, which has been quoted by the former minister and placed upon Hansard. In that speech the minister made a direct appeal to the citizenry of Victoria to support the government of the day because of what it had done for defence. At the same time he pointed out that the government's predecessors in office had not done what they should with respect to defence. The former minister has pointed out that the conditions to which he had committed ourselves had to deal with disarmament. Everyone knew what took place in that connection. We sent to Geneva a delegation headed by the late Sir George Perley.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I mention that also.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, later.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): No, in that address.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not so reported.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I do not mind that; I have the complete text of what I said.

Mr. BENNETT: Perhaps it was like the address delivered in Toronto, the one where the copies were not quite the same as the address delivered. I am quite familiar with that kind of address.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): You should be.

Mr. BENNETT: I can say that with a good deal of satisfaction, for I never have a manuscript. You see, that is the difference. The manuscript handed out to the press and the speech delivered do not synchronize.

IMPARTIAL JUSTICE.

(Manchester Guardian)

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE not to admire the conscientiousness of the North Berwick constable who has just appeared in court, on his own summons, and paid a fine for allowing his chimney to catch fire. Perhaps the nearest parallel to such impartiality in the administration of justice was displayed by two East African magistrates. Having both offended by riding a bicycle at night without a light, they agreed that the majesty of the law could best be upheld by each appearing before the other for judgment.

The senior magistrate, taking precedence, tried his deputy, and fined him five rupees. The deputy then tried his senior, and fined him fifty rupees, justifying his severity by pointing out that since this was the second case of the kind that day, the offence was becoming far too common to be dealt with lightly!

THE LOVE OF CHANGE.

(American Boy)

THE DEPARTMENT store hired an efficiency expert, whose obsession was to move the departments to a different part of the store every day. One day a section would be on the top floor, the next it would be in the basement, and on the third it would be placed where the restaurant had been.

After three weeks of this an old lady approached a harassed floorwalker and asked him if he could tell her where the notion department was.

"No, madam," he said wearily; "but if you'll stand here for a few minutes I'm sure you'll see it go by!

A Bit of Nonsense

Father (fed up): "Don't be absurd, my dear. They all use gas."

Life History of the Ivanoskis.

(From The "Printed Word")

FROM A TOWN in northern Saskatchewan comes a story illustrative of some of the difficulties of administering unemployment relief. In 1933 a Polish laborer and his family, consisting of a wife and four children, applied for and obtained a relief allowance. The allowance still had to be paid in 1934, at an increased rate, due to the arrival of another little Ivanovski, plus a capital outlay of $120 for the expense of bringing him into the world.

When $120 accounts had again to be paid in 1935 and 1936, the relief administrator decided that the Ivanovski expense was getting beyond the town's resources. After a little detective work, he discovered that there was in Winnipeg another Ivanovski who had a small contracting business and could be induced to provide a job for his Saskatchewan brother. Relief funds were drawn upon to pay the railway fare of the father and it was understood that as soon as he got established he would move his wife and seven children to Winnipeg.

Months passed and nothing was heard of Ivanovski senior. The relief administrator made further inquiries in Winnipeg, found that his man was working and earning good wages, and accordingly in March, 1937, Mr. Ivanovski returned to Saskatchewan under escort to face a charge of non-support. The morning after his arrival, the magistrate issued an order that in future he would pay $11 a week to his eight dependents. Next day he returned to his Winnipeg job.

At the date of writing, Mr. Ivanovski, who is evidently a poor correspondent, has neither written to his wife nor sent her money. But the Saskatchewan town is hesitant about taking further legal action. Last December there was another $120 medical account to pay.

BRITISH LABOR VIEW.

(London Daily Herald)

FRANCO IS smashing down the Republican defences by sheer weight of arms, particularly by an immense superiority in the air. A few months ago he did not have that superiority. He did not have these aeroplanes. He has not manufactured them. They are loaned to him by the Germans and the Italians. They are winning the war. They must win the war unless the Government obtains aeroplanes with which to defend itself. By refusing to allow the Government to purchase arms and by frightening the French from doing so, this "National" Government is strangling the Spanish Republic as effectively as if its own hands were round its throat. Non-intervention is more than a farce. It is a lie. Italy and Germany are winning the war for Franco. No less, Britain and France are losing it for the Government.

KULTUR!

(New York Times)

ONCE MORE the books are to burn. Once again German Kultur will assure its continuity this time by purging the Vienna National Library and disposing of all that is of "non-Aryan" origin or otherwise proscribed. As the flames feed on these volumes from the Hofburg, they will cast queer flickering shadows against the background of a day's news—of elderly men and women, citizens of Vienna, forced to dance before crowds of hoodlums and sing, "I am a dirty Jew"—of children, made orphans by so-called "suicides," shipped for export to the closed border of a neighboring State—of a girl obliged to kneel and rise continuously while carrying a placard urging boycott of the store in which she had previously earned her living.

The blood-red flames rise high. The shadows cast are long and black.

SUDETEN NAZI IS SHOT IN THE LEG BY SECRET POLICE

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, April 30. (AP).—A member of Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German (Nazi) party was shot through the leg by police at Bratislava last night as patriotic pro-Germans and Czechoslovakians prepared to celebrate May Day.

Karl Potzy, the Sudeten German, was caught posting May Day placards by a Czech service officer, the police report said. When the officer intervened he was attacked and beaten.

His calls for help brought to his rescue a second secret service man who fired the shot which injured Potzy.

May Day celebrations throughout Czechslovakia will see no marching of political parties. An order of the government forbidding all political demonstrations will be enforced.

In Praha all political parties from Communists to the extreme right, with the exception of the Germans, agreed to have a common celebration on Wenzel Square with the consent of the government.

Flags Will be Absent

By agreement party flags will be absent and the only speaker will be the mayor of Praha.

In the Sudeten German region all May day celebrations will be conducted by the Henlein party. Here, too, demonstrations will be prohibited.

Patriotic fervor throughout the country was kindled by developments of the week, including last Sunday's Sudeten German party congress at which sweeping demands for autonomy were voiced.

The large gymnastic societies, Sokols, the social democratic workers' turnverein and the Roman Catholic turnverein, hitherto divided, launched a joint appeal in the face of the German wheat, declaring the solidarity of their 1,500,000 members in defence of their independence and democratic liberties. "Death rather than life without freedom," their appeal read.

A kitting club for men only has been organized in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Looking Back On This Date

APRIL 30

On this date (April 30), 1775, there arrived at Montreal a commission from the revolting colonies to the south which had it succeeded would have altogether altered the history of America and would have forever obliterated Canada from the map of the world. That commission was composed of Benjamin Franklin, who had been north before in his capacity of deputy postmaster-general, and Charles Chase of the Revolutionary Congress, together with Charles Carroll, the most influential Roman Catholic layman in the colonies. To them was added Father John Carroll, afterwards Archbishop of Baltimore, in the hope that he would be able to sway the French clergy to the side of the colonies.

Fred Williams

But they had not been long in Montreal before they (especially Father Carroll) realized they were up against strong opposition from Bishop Briand, of Quebec. For thirteen days the envoys stayed, only to receive the cold shoulder from the government and the church. Bishop Briand forbade his clergy to show any courtesy to the envoys, even to Father Carroll. One Roman Catholic commentator has written: "Bishop Briand used every power of his office and the strictest and most forceful sanctions of the church, even suspension and excommunication, to bring into line and silence the few dissentient clergy, and to threaten the people so they would not falter in their allegiance to the British government."

Of course, he had good reason for his course. He was acting in the best interest of his church. He feared absorption of his people by the Protestants of the south, and he knew that in the Quebec Act of 1774 he had a magna charter of Roman Catholic rights in Canada, guaranteeing to the Roman Catholics of Quebec the free exercise of their religion.

Furthermore when Arnold and Montgomery later in the year captured Montreal and besieged Quebec, it was the loyalty and firmness of the clergy which saved Canada to Britain, just as it did in the war of 1812-14. Had Bishop Briand and his clergy and their successors acted differently the United States would have extended from the Gulf of Mexico today. Some ultra-Protestants do not like this statement, but "facts is facts," and no one can deny that it was because of Bishop Briand that the province of Quebec did not join the revolt of the American colonies.

Little Damage Done Head-On Car Crash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30.—Two cars met in a head-on collision Friday night at five o'clock, but neither received serious damage. The accident occurred on Oliver Road when E. J. Willmink, who was driving south is reported to have turned out to avoid hitting a child who was playing on the road and in so doing failed to see C. W. Palliser, who was approaching in the opposite direction. Neither car was going fast at the time but the sudden stop was enough to throw little Anne Palliser, who was riding in the back seat of her father's car, against the front seat and she sustained a slight head injury. Chief Constable George Hardy was called to investigate the accident.

SHANGHAI'S FATE TRAGIC QUESTION

SHANGHAI, April 30 (AP).—The fate of Shanghai, developed in a century from a mudbank with scattered Chinese hamlets to one of the great cosmopolitan, financial and industrial centres of the world, ranks as one of the important—and tragic—questions to the Far East.

There is the actual war destruction and directly attendant losses, to begin with. This has been estimated at $300,000,000, including actual physical destruction and first-hand losses in trade.

More than that, the war has smashed what might have been Shanghai's most prosperous year in a decade.

Trade Off 70 Per Cent.

Trade has dropped 70 per cent.—directly attributable to the war—according to reliable survey and analysis. From February to July in 1937 Shanghai's trade, exports and imports, totalled $659,400,000 in Mexican dollars. From August, 1937, to January, 1938, they totalled only $196,820,259. It follows that factories not destroyed are idle, warehouses empty or locked.

Shipping has been curtailed. The financial situation, due to the new exchange restrictions, new Japanese note issues in North China, and the like, is in a state of highly nervous flux.

Even if peace should be established, on the basis of a Japanese-controlled North China regime, it is pointed out, some of Shanghai's normal trade from the interior might find new orientation. There is the possibility that the bulk of trade from what would be left of old China would be routed towards the southeast, by Canton for example.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 1.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one for affairs of the church and clergy as well as all manner of charitable, social, educational and progressive enterprises. Finances should thrive, social engagements may enhance personal popularity and romance may lend glamor to an altogether enjoyable and prosperous holiday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a particularly happy, progressive and prosperous year, with all departments of life under splendid promise for success and gratification, with fulfilled ambitions, personal prestige, financial security and romantic satisfactions.

A child born on this day may be efficient and capable, ambitious and of high personal stature. It may be noble, generous and sympathetic, and a lover of beauty, art and culture. It may enjoy high honors in social, cultural and in business or financial affiliations.

For Monday, May 2.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and eventful day, with things moving along under rather high tension. New ventures as well as old ones are under high stimulus for progress and enduring achievement, with industry, employment, and property also well aspected.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively and enterprising year, with affairs, old and new, moving along at high tempo. Both business an demployment are under excellent promise, and property and sound investments should be dependable.

A child born on this day may be vigorous, aggressive, enterprising and ambitious, with much sturdiness and dependability to back its energetic and creative urges. It may be resolute and determined, with intention to hold its own even by resorting to shrewd and undercover manipulation or expediency.

Fortune Of $21,000,000 Is Awaiting Homeward-Bound Norwegian

VANCOUVER, April 30—(CP). —The Vancouver Sun said to-day that Henry Gunderson, 42-year-old Norwegian, was boarding a ship at Halifax, bound for Oslo, "where a fortune reported at approximately $21,000,000 is awaiting him."

The paper said Gunderson, who came to British Columbia in 1926, received wires from a law firm and banking house in Oslo, Friday, advising him that a big international syndicate had just taken over the Norwegian Pulp and Paper concern controlled by his father before his death.

The paper quoted an unnamed friend of Gunderson's as saying the Norwegian didn't expect to get anything out of his father's estate until he received word that the syndicate had taken over the paper concern. How this enabled Gunderson to claim the fortune was not explained.

What Is Caliosis?

Most people with weak feet suffer from Caliosis — and don't know it. In weak feet—the heel bone leans inward—throwing ankle in and foot out—straining muscles until arches go down—cramping nerves and blood vessels. The results are poor circulation and nerve reflexes—causing trouble often mistaken for arthritis or rheumatism.

GIRLS END SUCCESSFUL BASKETBALL YEAR AT BANQUET

Sports DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

AT THE Junior City Hockey League banquet earlier in the week, one of the speakers pulled a remark that surprised us. He said athletes should stick to one sport, become proficient in it and let other chaps shine in other lines of athletics. In other words, do not mix your sports. We see no reason in the world why a fellow shouldn't participate in a number of sports and star in 'em, if he is good enough. Any more than a business man making a success out of several different lines of business. Why keep good exponents of more than one sport out of all but one. Guys like Mick Magee, Eddie Starr, Don Crowe, Red Creighton, Jim Ellis, Bill Calladine and a whole host of others. There is always room at the top for the stars—whether they be one-sport aces or all-around gees.

* * * * * *

WE SEE an item in the Brockville Recorder where one of the Ogdensburg players was named Joe Pryzbiki. But not any more. "Padre" Knotty Lee, quick-witted skipper for the Colts, took unto himself the duty of re-christening this Prizebike hombre, and he will henceforth be known in baseball circles as Joe Prescott! It is a first-rate idea and everyone, but the player's parents, will figure it an improvement. Had we Knotty around the C.O.B.L. last summer, this Tony Paczkowski of Kingston—the writer's headache—would probably have emerged as plain Tony Packs. Yes, indeed.

* * * * * *

AND WE liked this truism as exemplified in the Detroit Times: "After the opening game, we butted into the Indians' Wigwam to sa yhowdy to Vitt and other former Tigers. One of them was Earl Whitehill, curly headed southpaw, who is never at a loss for a few ill-chosen words to say. When we ventured to declare that Rowe looked like the Rowe of old, Earl snarled: 'Nuts! He didn't have a thing.' Whitehill received loud vocal support in this from the other sweet and charming character, Johnny Allen. 'He was pitiful, just pitiful,' said Mr. Allen in the tone he has adopted for conversations with umpires and other low forms of life. All of which heartened us a great deal. Any time the enemy speaks pityingly of a pitcher you can mark it down as double talk. If a hitter hits only the breeze he invariably makes the sour observation: 'That bum ain't got a thing today.' But if he is lucky enough to tee off on a swooning pitcher, he says: 'That baby is plenty pert out there today.'" Ain't it so?

* * * * * *

OUR RECENT columnistic plea for a revival in minor ball here may be bearing quick-sprouting fruit. At anyrate, there will be a lot more baseball locally this year than last summer. The School Baseball League, of boys 13 and over, starts its schedule Monday after four in Riverside, King George playing Queen Alex. Wednesday sees Queen Mary meet Prince of Wales, while Friday it's King Edward vs. Central. These six teams play games in Riverside, till the first week of June. The School Softball League schedule, for six teams of boys under 13 years, will be played at the schools. Queen Mary opens against King Edward next Tuesday. Both schedules were published yesterday.

AND WE are asked to run another notice of a baseball meeting for juvenile teams at the Parnell St. ball field for Monday eve at seven, those interested being invited. The boys plan to run an independent loop of four teams, if they can dig up a couple more, and possibly elect officers and make all plans this Monday. Perhaps, that proposed junior outfit of Dinny Armstrong's might work in there somehow. Anyway, 'tis an open session, and we hope heartily the boys put it across. It is such responses as this that causes sports scribes to toss in these pleas from time to time.

A HOT hockey fan yesterday told us he didn't like the name Wolves as applied by lots athletes and scribes to fans. Like "listen to the wolves howl" when the customers roar disapproval. Said he: "If there is anything more wolfish than a winning hockey team fighting over a split as a season ends, then it is a writer pursuing the pack with columnistic howls from time to time and gloating as the enemy falls!" Them thar are harsh words, podner, especially as we don't refer to cash customers as wolves. Some disgruntled players do at times, but not so often. However, it is healthy sport when the fans, who pay the freight in athletics, can kick back like this. It's oke by us—or a case of wolf eat wolf. Which inspires us to poetize: If we had a bounty on our pelt, someone would skin us and up and sell't—this awful fear we oft have felt, in our futile search for gelt!

OVER 80 damsels and their guests sat down to a swelegant banquet to wind up the Ladies Basketball League in the Y.W.C.A. last night. Winning teams, St. John's Teenites and Quaker Maids, received trophies and every coach in the place was presented by a pretty lass with a gift from his team. Felt kind of tempted ourself to remark that we once managed the local lacrossers—though not for any great length of time—just to see if someone in the big gathering wouldn't pop up with a shelf of books, a set of dueling pistols or something. Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's was guest speaker, with Joe Cooper the charge d'affaires of the spread. Ladies of the Y.W. excelled themselves with the table service. Mrs. R. Turner and Mrs. R. Cutting presented the trophies. 'Twas a good ending to a good season and the officers, coaches and players deserve much credit. And so does Miss C. Littlefield, physical director. The girls expect a bigger gym next year.

PRESENT GIFTS AND TROPHIES TO THE WINNERS

A successful season was officially terminated last evening at the annual banquet of the Ladies' League in the Y.W.C.A. A gathering of 80 guests, officials and players sat down to an enjoyable repast, followed by singing, entertaining speeches and the presentation of trophies and gifts to teams and coaches.

Mrs. R. Turner of the Y.W. Board of Directors represented Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, absent through illness, and spoke a few words of welcome. She informed those present that active plans were in progress toward the building of a larger gymnasium for girls' sports and club room facilities for next winter. "Basketball is a wonderful game," she said, and went on to point out how much it meant in all its phases.

Fine Banquet

Ladies of the Y.W.C.A. served a tasty meal on brightly decorated tables, the large one in the centre being for guests of honor and four others accommodating the many girl players and their coaches. Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson said grace. The sing-song was lead by Jessie Pattison, with Mrs. Foster at the piano. A solo by J. H. Vernor was much appreciated. Jos. Cooper was the competent toast-master. Following the banquet and presentations, a dance was held in the gymnasium.

After the league president, Joe Cooper, had thanked all for their co-operation for a fine season, Agnes Bowler of St. John Teenites gave a toast to basketball, which was responded to by Mary Sullivan of the Quaker Maids. These were the winning teams which received the cups and pins, the Teenites taking senior honors and the Quaker Maids winning out in the junior series. Mrs. R. Cutting and Mrs. R. Turner made the presentations to the championship teams, the senior runners-up, Westclox, also getting a presentation.

Guest Speaker

The Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's was guest speaker of the evening. He spoke quite briefly but entertainingly, taking a few sly digs at the referees in good-natured badinage and ending on a serious note by asking those present to remember that they should play the game for the Great Referee and abide by His definite set of rules. He received much applause in conclusion.

The presentations to the coaches followed, with captains of the six league teams and of the Orfuns (an L.O.B.A. squad) doing the honors on behalf of their teammates. Westclox made a presentation to Whitty Thirnbeck and he was immediately recalled to receive a present from Gladys Mortimer for the Orfuns. He thanked them and introduced the Orfuns' seven players. Miss Sybil Ecobichon received a gift from St. John Teenites to mark a successful finish to a season after long association in quest of a title. Quaker Maids remembered Joe Cooper, who coached them to a junior title. St. John Stars did not forget Sybil Ecobichon, who served a dual role for the Saints' teams as instructor. Ken Gillespie was thanked by the "Y" Gym girls and presented with a gift. Quaker Debs made a presentation to Harlow Cutting, and were thanked. The coaches all made short, snappy speeches of thanks to their teams.

Miss Caroline Littlefield, physical director at the Y.W.C.A., thanked especially Joe Cooper and Whitty Thirnbeck for their work in connection with girls' basketball during the past season. The ladies who did the decorating and serving of the banquet were thanked, with Mrs. Fred Craig responding.

DIVERS PATCH SHIP

COLLINS LANDING, N.Y., April 29.—(AP).—Divers descended into the St. Lawrence river to-day in an effort to make repairs to the damaged hull of the 100-foot tanker "Pendarbis" aground on a reef off Peel Island.

The craft, owned by the Canadian Boat Line of Montreal, was driven aground late last night when it began to ship water after striking rocks in a narrow channel.

NORTHERNERS ARE HARD HIT

TORONTO, April 30 (C.P.).—The northern clubs of the International League which only a short 10 days ago started on a tour of the southern teams of the loop with the hopes of mailing a few scalps to their belt are running into one ambush after another.

Newark's Bears, Jersey City's Giants, and Baltimore's Orioles have been standing by the wayside and hacking away with a vengeance. So far this season, this trio, along with Syracuse Chiefs, who have been somewhat more inhospitable, have beaten the northerners in 22 of 33 games.

Yesterday was no exception as the champion Bears downed Montreal Royals 10-7 and the Little Giants eked out a 4-2 decision over Rochester Red Wings.

The spell was broken only in Baltimore where Toronto Maple Leafs belted out a 6-3 decision over the Orioles via the home run route. Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse's Chiefs were forced to suspend hostilities by threatening weather.

RAIL WAGES TO DROP

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP).—The Association of American Railroads adopted to-day a resolution under the Railway Labor Act to serve notice of a 15 per cent. wage reduction effective July 1 for all classes of labor.

Farr's Manager After Third Fight With Maxie Baer Before Year Is Out

NEW YORK, April 30 (C.P.). — Jaunting around the big town these days after a Hollywood argosy is Thomas George Paul Farr, the Welsh thumper, who lost three straight fights since coming to these shores, yet made more fame in reverse than any fighter of the current era.

Little less than a year ago, when he came here from Tonypandy to tackle champion Joe Louis, Farr was the walloping Welshman. To-day one might call him the wallopless Welshman. But with it all, Tommy rates as a fistic success.

Many are the bouts offered him, the latest being that by W. J. Galbraith of Toronto for Tommy to defend his British Empire heavyweight title in Toronto this summer against Maurice Strickland of New Zealand. But Manager Joe Gould has been cool to this offer of $22,500, just as he was to a bid from Mike Jacobs for a May 6 Madison Square Garden date with Gunnar Barlund.

Farr has his mind on a rubber fight with Maxie Baer. If Max Schmeling defeats Joe Louis, figures Farr, Der Moxie will scurry to Germany with the title and hibernate. If Louis wins, the income tax angle would make a further 1938 fight unprofitable. Which, in Farr's opinion, leaves Baer little to do but fight Farr for a third time.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Close to 200 post-cards have been received by men members of our club, and prospective members, with the following printed on them: "An open meeting to all men bowlers will be held in the Club House on Monday, May 2, at 8 p.m." The idea of holding this meeting is not new, but the method of making a direct appeal to each member is—this time the invitation comes straight from the Board of Directors, and no one say that they have been overlooked.

At this meeting the season's activities will be discussed and particularly the rules governing the playing of the schedule. The Games committee have made some changes that they believe will be better for all concerned. Don't miss this meeting. The committees have been working hard and long, so come out and ask a lot of questions and get acquainted with what is going on.

Now, this is not official, but we may get a little bit of entertainment after the business is finished.

OPERATION A SUCCESS

TORONTO, April 30—(CP).—Dr. Max McCutcheon said to-day he believed the recent operation a success in which the cornea of one of Miss Florence Hayward's eyes was transferred to that of Nick Popiak.

"The stitches have been removed successfully from Pokiak's eye," the doctor said.

DEAN FORCED TO RETIRE FROM MOUND THROUGH SORE ARM

CUBS WIN 6-4 DESPITE HURT TO DIZZ'S ARM

NEW YORK, April 30 (C.P.). — That Dean fellow is in the news again.

When he wasn't pitching this week, Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean was warring verbally with his old St. Louis teammate, Ducky Medwick. When he did start to pitch yesterday he did some sort of damage to that expensive pitching arm. And when you hurt $250,000 worth of baseball material and some good pennant prospects that's big news.

Dizzy maintained it was nothing serious and he probably could have remained in there while Chicago Cubs went on to bat out a 6-4 decision over Cincinnati Reds. He expects to take his next regular turn on the mound. Nevertheless, he did pull a muscle in his salary wing while pitching to Lew Riggs in the fourth inning and Manager Charley Grimm hauled him out of the game.

While Dean, as usual, was the day's No. 1 headline man, some other major leaguers who attracted special notice included Boots Poffenberger and Dixie Walker, whose efforts gave Detroit Tigers a 5-1 decision over Chicago White Sox, Bob Feller and Ken Keltner, the young Cleveland athletes who accounted for a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Browns, Bill Werber of Philadelphia Athletics, Buddy Hassett of Brooklyn Dodgers, and those four Boston Red Sockers who handed New York Yankees a 6-4 decision on errors.

Star Individual Play.

Werber pulled off the day's rarest individual play with the bases full after Washington had rallied in the ninth to tie the score against the Athletics, he grabbed a good chance and stole home with the run that gave the A's a 7-6 victory.

Although the Yankees felt somewhat brighter after Lou Gehrig got a couple of hits, Bill Dickey returned to help the clouting and word came out that Joe DiMaggio was due back to-day, they won mainly because four Boston errors gave them three unearned runs.

Hassett's only contribution was to draw a base on balls, but that came with the corners loaded and enabled the Dodgers to turn back the Phillies 5-4 after 12 dreary innings. Cold weather forced postponement of the New York-Boston and St. Louis-Pittsburgh games.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Werber, Athletics — Stole home in ninth inning for run that beat Washington.

Ken Keltner, Indians, and Beau Bell, Browns—Keltner drove in all Cleveland runs in 3-2 victory with homer and single; Bell touched Bob Feller for three doubles in four times up.

Boots Poffenberger, Tigers — Limited White Sox to seven hits for 5-1 triumph.

Augie Galan, Cubs—Batted in four runs with homer and single to help beat Reds 6-4.

TORONTO RANKS IN LEAD CITIES OF BOXING BOOM

TORONTO, April 30 — (CP). — Springing from the deepest obscurity boxing to-day stands at the top of the local sports realm. A world's championship joust for the bantamweight title is almost certain to be staged here next month to climax one of the most spectacular booms in Toronto's leath swinging history.

Back in 1932 boxing was so dead a club with 1,500 capacity could not be filled. The fans were sour on the mitt tossers and the whole business in general.

Two men of striking contrast had leading roles in returning the art of self defence to a high spot in the sports schedule.

Corcoran, who has staged boxing and wrestling shows here for more than 20 years, dropped the mitt game entirely in 1932. Not until last year did he feel the fans were in receptive mood for leather pushing displays.

Fans Turn Out

His initial tests were "white hope" heavyweight tournaments. Then followed a series of bouts featuring Gordon Wallace of Vancouver-Canadian welterweight champion at the time, Frankie Genevese, present titleholder, Sammy Luftspring and Tommy Bland. The fans greeted these bouts warmly.

Enter Yack. The Baby turned professional after winning the Canadian flyweight crown. Yack was a sensation. The fistic faithful swarmed by the thousands to see the little Jewish boy outpoint some of the leading bantams and win the Canadian championship from Frankie Martin of Montreal. So complete was boxing's rejuventation 13,000 paid their way into Maple Leaf Gardens last winter to see Yack belt out a decision over Spider Armstrong of Toronto.

Average attendance at bouts involving George Pace, Cleveland miniature of Joe Louis; Henry Hook, Indianapolis; Johnny Gaudes, Winnipeg; Mog Mason of Wales; Martin and others during the last eight months, has been around 11,000. The average gate was $9,000.

Corcoran aims at having Sixto Escobar, world champion, mix it with Indian Quintana with Yack pitted against Gaudes, or possibly Tod Morgan of Detroit, the winner of each bout meeting for the championship at Maple Leaf baseball stadium in June.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, this is kinda an off week in sport around these parts with the first workouts of Mister Eddie Murphy's ball club being the only local excitement. If the skipper himself gets his amature status back and with the reinforcements that is available it looks like we oughta have a pretty fair club and if they can locate a 4th club for the lopp, we should see some interesting ball. The only bad news of the week is the announcement that Mister Eddie Starr has about decided to retire from the diamond and instead of slicing doubles down the left field foul line is going to do some slicing with a golf ball. Mister Starr will be missed from the roundup, his peppery catching and that useful habit he has of kicking in with a base knock at the right moment being handy things to have around the bench.

Some Surprises

The big leagues races is only nicely started Mack and while they has been some surprises so far, the strong clubs will come to the front in a few weeks. So far the biggest upset has been the lack of punch showed by the New York Yanks. The powerhouses of the McCarthy clan aint been stinging the old apple with any degree of gusto and Mister Gehrig especially has been having about as much success with the war club as he did in his Tarzan adventure. Larruping Lou didn't do hitting to speak of during the spring training games and since the season got under way his batting has been anaemic, if that much. However they ain't anybody foolish enough to bet that he's going to be as impotent as that all season. He'll get clouting again soon and Mister DiMaggio's return oughta get the Yanks started again.

He's a Great Old Boy

A treat to me so far Mack has been the twirling of Mister Lefty Grove. That old boy has always been a prime faborite of mine and I'm willing to predict that by the time he finally gets through he'll have a pitching record that will make tough shooting for any heaver to equal. So far he has been as effective as ever in 3 starts and the way he mowed the Yanks down the other day in holding them to 5 hits siws hat while he has lost most of shows that while he has lost most of developed a new repertoire that is puzzling the best of the American League swatsmiths. Grove was a star long before the Dizzy Deans and the rest was ever heard of under the big top and he'll probably outlast a lotta of them newer birds at that.

Giants Going Nice

In the National loop Mac, my selection the Giants has been going along like real champs. Mister Hubbell has been absent with a battle with the flu and Mister Whitehead, star second sacker has also been outa the game but the Terry Tribe has been coasting along just the same and Chicago may need more reinforcements than the great Dize to beat the New Yorkers to the Wire.

Well, old timer, the trout season gets under way today and that means, the butcher is going to take a cut for the next week or two.

Seems to be about the works for now so I'll get going.

Sportfully Yours,
A. Wise Cracker.

TORONTO HANGS UP SECOND WIN AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, April 30. — Toronto made it two victories in eight starts here yesterday by defeating the Baltimore Orioles in the third of a four-game series, 6 to 3. The defeat dropped the Birds from second to third place, Jersey City moving up. The victory also allowed the Leafs to slip out of last place, Montreal losing to Newark to be shoved into the cellar position.

Big Ted Olson, late of the Boston Red Sox, who pitched good ball against Newark last week, made his debut in a starting role for Leafs. Olson pitched effectively in the pinches, scattering eight Baltimore hits and forcing them to leave sixteen stranded on the bases. Olson also sent seven back on strikes, George Puccinelli being his victim four times.

Bill Urbanski and Jack Burns drove in all six Toronto runs to share the hitting honors. Urbanski connected for a pair of home runs, each coming with one of his teammates on base. Burns had a four-base smash with the bases empty and drove in another run with a single. Ted Petoskey crashed out a trio of singles.

SIX NEW MARKS AT PENN RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA, April 30. — The Lone Star twins—Wayne and Blaine Rideout of North Texas Teachers' College — stole the show from some 3,000 other varied athletes as the forty-fourth annual Penn relays opened with a parade of record-shattering performances on Franklin Field's speedy track on Friday.

With their team in fourth place when they took over, the fast-moving brothers broke loose with a pair of spanking legs on their sections of the 2½-mile college distance medley relay and won the race in 9.59.4, surpassing all other marks for the distance.

Before a crowd of 10,000, Blaine running a 4.10 mile on the anchor leg, crossed the line fifty yards to the good to score the most smashing victory of the opening session of the two-day meet. Indiana held the unofficial world record of 10.00.3, which it set last June in Columbus, Ohio, and also the meet record of 10.04.7 which it created here a year ago. There is no official world mark for the race because the International Athletic Federation does not recognize the distance.

The Texas record was one of six set yesterday. The other five all were meet marks. Ranking second to the Texas performance was a 3.24.5 mark turned in by Pittsburg in winning the medley mile relay for the second successive year. Pittsburg, anchored by Olympic Champion Johnny Woodruff, bettered its own meet mark of 3.26.4 set last year, and fell only a little more han a second short of the best time ever run for the distance—3.23.4, set by the United States Olympic team in the British Empire Games in London in 1936.

Played Three Seasons With Notre Dame Only To Be Put Out In Argo Practice

With a rather rueful memory of occasional irony of sport, J. R. Maynard of Toronto, sales manager of O'Keefe's Brewing Company Limited, recalled in a conversation with a reporter this morning that after playing three seasons with the famous Notre Dame varsity football team without serious injury he fractured a leg in his first practice with Toronto Argonauts and was out for the entire season.

Mr. Maynard was associated with the celebrated Four Horsemen, Layden, Miller, Struhdeler and Crowley, and learned his football under the Late Knute Rockne.

He was born in Ottawa and for some years was a member of the Ottawa Rowing Club and made the crew when under the coaching of Harvey Pulford they won the highest rowing titles on the continent at Philadelphia and St. Catharines. Mr. Maynard retains his active interest in sports but is especially wrapped up in the Argonaut rugby team.

POWELL PAROLED BUT DEPORTATION IS NOT MENTIONED

OTTAWA, April 30—(CP).—Justice Minister Lapointe today issued an order paroling G. F. Powell British Social Credit advisor to the Alberta government, and commuting the remainder of his six-month sentence.

Powell was convicted in Alberta Supreme Court November 15 of publishing defamatory libel knowing it to be false and was sentenced by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives to six months in jail with hard labor. The sentence was accompanied by a recommendation for deportation.

Mr. Lapointe's order made no mention of deportation.

Joseph Unwin, Social Credit member of the Alberta legislature for Edson, was convicted of a similar charge November 10 and sentenced to three months in jail. The charges arose from publication of a pamphlet entitled "Bankers Toadies," which named nine Edmonton men.

Both Unwin and Powell appealed against conviction and sentence but the appeals were dismissed in judgments handed down by the appellate division of the Alberta Supreme Court on February 7.

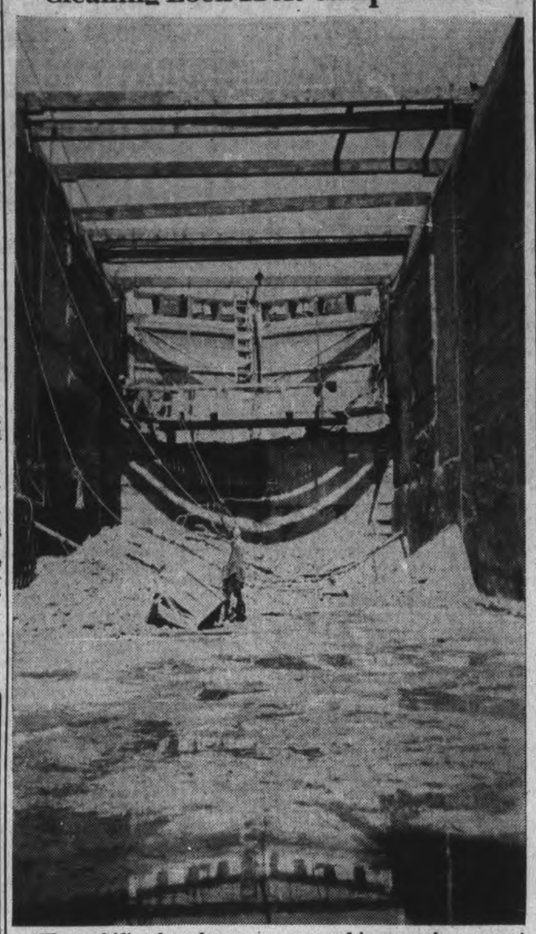
Cleaning Lock 11 At Campbellford



Three shifts of workmen are engaged in removing cement and refinishing the wall with pressure concrete at Lock 11 shown BELOW, situated at the south end of Campbellford, in an effort to have the work completed for the opening of navigation on May 25th. Already much of the old surface has been removed from the north end of the large double lock and part of the metal screening has been put in place ready for the cement to be blown. Forty-five men are engaged on the project which was begun several weeks ago.

ARMY ASKS PART OF 'PUMP-PRIMER' FOR ITS AIR BASES

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP).—Congressional leaders disclosed today the war department wants to use part of President Roosevelt's "pump-priming" fund to construct giant army air bases for Alaska and the United States coasts.

Chairman May (Dem-Kentucky) an influential member of the appropriations committee, said the "pump-priming" bill probably would be worded to permit use of the funds for the aviation program.

May said one base would be located in Alaska, probably close to Fairbanks. Army officials have recommended that it be equipped to accommodate between 500 and 1,000 planes.

Earlier this week the navy department asked Congress for more than $5,000,000 to establish a naval air base on Kodiak Island in Alaska bay.

A 1936 act authorizes bases in the Atlantic northeast, the Atlantic southeast and Carribbean areas for defence of the Panama Canal, the southeastern states proper, the Rocky Mountain area and the Pacific northwest. Work on the latter base, near Tacoma, Wash., already has been started.

May said the war department had assured him that if the funds made available, work could be started on the program within 30 days.

BASKETBALL

"They went down fighting." The P.C.I. senior boys' baksetball team was eliminated from the Ontario championship finals. In Hart House gymnasium, the Glebe Collegiate basketball team of Ottawa ousted P.C.I. by a score of 52-7. The game was clean and fast, but, being hard fought, gave rise to many foul shots. Due to a difference in backboards and poor shooting the P.C.I. squad scored only three out of a possible 14 of these free shots. They dominated three quarters of the play.

The team, however has brought much honor to the school in winning the C.O.S.S.A. championship and entering the finals. Much credit is due to Mr. H. L. Bamforth, who coached the team and also to Ralph Johnston, the captain, who acted as coach while Mr. Bamforth was in the hospital. Congratulations anyway, gang!

Previous to the P.C.I. game Kennedy High School of Windsor eliminated Niagara Falls by the score 42 to 28. The two winners, Kennedy and Glebe played for the championship of Ontario, Kennedy winning, 24-23.

P.C.I. played an exhibition game with Niagara Falls and won by the close score 20-19. The P.C.I. team, however, offered no excuse other than that of meeting a better team for the loss. They spent some of the night at the Prince George Hotel.

CADETS.

The first open cadet drills were held this week. On the cadet drill days the cadets are dismissed at 3 o'clock. The rest of the school remains in until 4.

The date for the inspection is definitely set as May 18. Captain Manette will be the inspecting officer. With only two and a half weeks left to drill each cadet is expected to co-operate with the officers to ensure a successful battalion.

The officers were present at a mess meeting held in the gymnasium. Three officers from the Prince of Wales Rangers, Lt.-Col. J. A. Dewart, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and Colonel Hall sat at the head table with Capt. H. A. Craig, cadet instructor; Colonel Bill Wheeler, O. C.; Major Don Duncan, second in command and the other senior officers.

Immediately following the dinner dancing began. The music was supplied by Stan Northrop, pianist. About 45 officers and N.C.O.'s attended the mess and dance in uniform, accompanied by their ladies, some of whom acted as waitresses at the mess.

TRAVELOGUE.

One of the feature events of the week was the Travelogue on Switzerland, given by Capt. Fred H. Reid of Toronto. The show was the most interesting and educational event of the year, but only a small crowd attended. The response given by the pupils was very poor in regards ticket selling. For such an event the auditorium should have been filled to capacity instead of a crowd of slightly under two hundred. Captain Reid was introduced by Mr. V. R. Henry who was responsible for the travelogue.

The speaker then presented his travelogue, consisting of colored slides and movies in an interesting fashion. Capt. Reid introduced his subject with a brief summary of the location and history of the country and then proceeded with the slides and pictures.

The lecture was repeated in the evening to a fair sized adult audience.

OBSERVATION PLATFORM.

Easter holidays have come and gone. . . . School has now begun its final term. The middle and upper schools will have much work to cover between now and May 25. At that time the exams will again start. If the results of the papers written then, when averaged with the February marks show 66 per cent, the pupil will be excused from writing the departmental exam in that subject in June.

Mr. Bamforth returned to school Monday morning after a three weeks' absence . . . Miss Isobel Weddell is still supplying for Miss Montgomery who is reportedly "doing well" after her recent operation. . . . The Cadet Officer's Training Corps met in the Armouries on Friday night under Sgt.-Maj. Frape. It has been rumoured that there may be a baseball team in the school this spring. So far, there has been no practise however . . . Dr. Kenner read to the pupils in the assembly hall an invitation extended to the students and teaching staff of P.C.I. by Mr. F. L. Roy, to attend the art exhibit, featured at the opening of his new photography studio this week . . . Applications for departmental exams were supposed to be returned to the office this week . . . The pictures of the senior rugby team, taken last fall, arrived at the office. . . The boys' hockey team, which won the Junior City League title was tendered a banquet in the Paragon Hall and presented with the Coffee Shop Trophy donated by Mr. Ross Payne. The cup was shown to the school by Dr. H. R. H. Kenner. . . . Tuesday was the final day for receiving contributions for the six western schools P.C.I. adopted. A large supply of clothing was donated but not many pairs of shoes. . . Where has the promised morning entertainment been taking place. We haven't seen anything of it in the morning assemblies . . . The only new thing in assemblies (we believe it is new) is that suit the president of the Student's Council is wearing. Apologies to Al.

ECHOES.

At long last the Echoes have arrived. On seeing them, one notes that it was well-worth waiting for. This year the magazine is the smartest appearing Echoe's published in the history of P.C.I. The format has been completely changed. The Purple Patches section which contains the literary efforts of the students is enlarged and presents very interesting and well-written prose and poetry. The magazine is well illustrated with numerous cartoons and sketches. Even the humour section is new this year. The jokes of the past four or five years have all been discarded and a new series begun. The book has a very attractive cover which is done in the school colours, Garnet and Gray, on a cream background. The whole edition is an outstanding success. Much credit should be given the executive of the magazine and to Ronald Dick, the editor as well as to the several teachers who acted in an advisory capacity, for publishing such a clever and attractive edition of the P. C. I. year book, The Echoes.

After Pneumonia Couldn't Get Strong

After many severe illnesses the patient is often left in an extremely weak and exhausted condition.

To all those convalescents needing a tonic to strengthen and build up their weakened system we would recommend Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to assist them to recover the full enjoyment of robust health. They help to tone up the nervous system and bring back bodily strength and vigor.

Buy a box and be convinced.

MRS. GEORGE CLARK, Wallace, N.S., writes:—"Some time ago I had a severe attack of pneumonia. I never seemed to get my strength back, and was always in a weak, nervous condition until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

After I had taken two boxes I felt as well as ever, so I will recommend them to any one who is suffering as I did, for I could not have taken any medicine that would have done me so much good."

Outlook For Rangers Bright As New Recruits Join Up For Spring Training

Battalion Hopes To Be At Full Strength Within Next Week Or Two

Peterborough's Prince of Wales Rangers advanced their organization this week at the Tuesday and Thursday evening parades, and expect to reach full strength within the next week or two. The bugle band is complete, and becomes the anti-air craft section of the battalion. The signalling corps has not more vacancies, and the companies are rapidly filling up with young men who are coming in as recruits and with a keen interest in the preliminary work.

Thursday night's muster was one of the most encouraging the Rangers have experienced since the amalgamation of the two old units into the specialized machine gun battalion.

"We are permitted to enroll only 250 men," Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne told the Examiner the other night, "and at the present rate at which young men are signing up we are confident it will not be long until we are full strength. They are an exceptionally fine type and the interest they are displaying in the work is most encouraging. The militia has become so mechanized these days that we need men who have not only an interect but also the ability to learn the mechanical details of machine gunnery and also such fine points as determining ranges and so on."

Keen Activity

When a reporter called at the armories Thursday night the companies were winding up the session's demonstration of the setting up of four machine guns. The latest recruits were confined to the rudiments of drill, and there was a keen activity on all sides. Colonel John A. Dewart and his staff of officers were all present, and the final parade prior to dismissal was an evidence of the progress the Rangers have already made this season. They will march out with both bands next Tuesday night, and by that time it is hoped that few more men will be needed to make the personnel complete.

"We want the type of young men who will apply themselves to the mechanics of this work," Major Hicks-Lyne said. "It is the desire of Colonel Dewart and all those associated with him that our men will equip themselves to become instructors, to seek promotion and to look forward to qualifying for commissions."

The ambition of the officers is to make the Rangers one of the smartest militia units in Ontario, and as that spirit reaches out to the citizens it is felt that the whole community will co-operate in any way possible in making the Peterborough battalion worthy of all the traditions that have come down from the old 57th and the Prince of Wales Dragoons.

CONNELLY CASE IS IRONED OUT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30 — The case of the Crown vs. Connelly was discharged Friday afternoon when the Crown offered no evidence after W. B. Gordon appearing for the accused and Chas. Payne, K.C. for the informant Richard Mahoney, had ironed out the difficulties between the two parties and requested the Crown to drop the charges against Connelly. The accused was charged with unlawfully taking trees from the farm on which he resided while it was in the custody of the court and when satisfactory arrangements were made for restitution, the case was dropped.

Only one other case was heard by Magistrate Langley when a local citizen pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk in a public place and was assessed ten dollars and costs.

FEDERAL PARTY ON SOCIAL CREDIT

EDMONTO, April 30. (CP).—A Western Canada Social Credit association is organized with Premier Aberhart of Alberta as leader and a Dominion body is envisioned after a two-day conference here of representatives from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Colombia.

The western association will participate in the Saskatchewan election campaign on invitation of that province's delegates.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, Alberta Minister of municipal affairs, issued a press statement last night at the close of the conference.

"The conference prepared a draft constitution governing the Social Credit forces in the western provinces, setting out the principles, policy and objectives of the western association," said the statement.

"The main objective of the Association is to gather and focus the will of the people most effectively upon all sources of government authority for the ultimate purpose of enabling the people to enjoy the benefits of association now denied them by the present financial system."

HUNGER CAUSED COLLAPSE

WINDSOR, Ont., April 30 (CP)—Police said today severe hunger and exhaustion caused the collapse of Roy McCauley, 21, Quebec City, on the highway near St. Jaochim, 22 miles east of here Thursday. Two St. Joachim truckers picked up the man after being informed of a body lying on the highway. McCauley remained in a coma several hours. Regaining consciousness, he told police a futile search for work had brought him from Quebec to Windsor. He was on his way to London when he was overcome.

BRITISH AIR DRIVE CLAIMED EUROPE'S 'MOST ELABORATE'

NEW YORK, April 30 —(AP). — The British air rearmament program probably is the "most elaborate" in Europe. More than half of France's warplanes are unfit for service against a first-class Power. These are two of the outstanding statements in the "Aircraft Year Book," published to-day by the United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

For the first time in four years, Howard Mingos, editor, did not include an estimate of the relative strengths of world Powers in the air. In a statement coincident with publication he said:

"A wartime censorship exists practically the world over on air rearmament. To attempt to list the air strength of the principal nations would be guesswork. Statements issued from time to time by air ministries on the progress of their own rearmament programs largely are misleading."

Some European Powers, says Mingos in the initial chapter of the Year Book, a treatise on American aviation developments, have tried to "disguise their military aviation programs under the cloak of civil aircraft development or, at the most, moderate defence measures.

"This was especially true of nations such as Great Britain, France, Czechoslovakia, Poland and others.

Plan Frustrated

"There was real justification for it, of course, because Germany, Russia and Italy were known to be building up huge air forces which might conceivably force an early decision in any conflict, and might encourage the precipitation of war if other possible belligerents remained unprepared in the air."

He commented that "Great Britain's policy was to postpone hostilities, if possible, until her air strength surpassed Germany's. The British program probably was the most elaborate in Europe early in 1938." The situation of French air rearmament was ascribed to "political unrest and a wayward program of testing Socialistic theories by nationalizing the French aircraft factories.

Mingos described Italy and Russia, where "Russian woman had demonstrated that they could perform much more effectively than men in nearly every branch of aircraft manufacture," as being well prepared against the chance of war in the air. Japan, he added, had speeded up its program of warplane manufacture.

He contented himself with quoting from the annual reports of the war and navy secretaries for descriptions of the United States air armment, warning however that America must increase its research work or fall behind foreign powers.

Ottawa Is Called Terrible Looking

OTTAWA, April 30 (C.P.). — G. G. McGeer (Lib. Vancouver-Burrard) yesterday told the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club that "one of the most terrible examples of incompetency, inefficiency, and national slovenliness is evidenced in the Capital City of Canada."

Ottawa in its setting of natural loveliness lends itself to be the most beautiful capital in the world, he declared, but under present conditions it is a "terrible looking city" and "an awful place to look around."

"I doubt if tourists are anxious to come back after a first visit," he said.

Huge Power Plant Is Operating Again

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 30. —(CP).—Spring had a firm grip on Niagara Gorge to-day, but the memory of the winter ice jam lingered on as the huge Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission plant resumed full-time operations.

The 1,000,0090 plant was supplying electricity to the Ontario Hydro-Electric system for the first time since last January when ice from the worst ice jam in 30 years smashed through windows of the plant and covered the generators.

Three months have been required to put some of the generators back in commission and three months more will be needed to put all the machinery in working order, A. S. Robertson, the District Superintendent, said.

A few weeks ago small generators were repaired to supply power to illuminate the Falls.

Eighty thousand tons of rock were blawn up in a recent blast in Scotland.

In 1643 all unemployed men in what is now New York State were hired to serve as soldiers.

Reforestation Project Planned

The precept of reforestation is insufficient scope for the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough. Promotional phrases, the members realize, will not plant trees or conserve those already grown, and if you believe in an idea why not actually do something about it? That was the spirit which led Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of the Club's agricultural committee, into Cavendish township one afternoon this week, to look over a broad acreage of woodland which is about to become available for reforestation. With Dr. Craig (on the left) were in order to the right: Frank A. Paterson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Arthur Leman of the district forestry office at Tweed, Herb Cochrane, official wood ranger in the Ketchecum-Gull Lake area, and Fred J. Overend of the Peterborough Lumber Company. The picture was taken against a background of trees along the park lined shore at the north end of Gull Lake. Kiwanis have a year to decide whether they are going to engage in forest conservation on a practical basis, and primarily as a means of stimulating interest throughout the district in the whole problem of care and development of forest resources in Central Ontario. BRITAIN PROPOSES TO STORE FOODS ALL OVER NATION

LONDON, April 30 (CP Cable). Following the announcement that the Government had purchased large stocks of wheat and other supplies to tide over the country temporarily in the event of an emergency, it became known to-day a survey has been launched to ascertain available cold storage facilities for wheat and other perishable foodstuffs.

A questionnaire has been sent out from the Food Defence Department to all public storage depots asking for fullest information on technical equipment and refrigeration space available. It is estimated 50,000,000 cubic feet of space is available, of which no more than one-third is occupied at any time in the year.

Meanwhile the press is loud in its praise of the Government's cautious policy of accumulating reserves without creating an artificial rise in prices against the Government and the consumer. Most of this credit is given to Sir Henry French, Chief of the Food Defence Plan Department.

The Department is reported concentrating on plans to ensure the safety of these emergency supplies in the event of air raids and any resultant disruption of communications. In due time, it is learned, reserves will be distributed to stores less vulnerable to bombardment than dockside warehouses. Centres of supply will be established in every part of the United Kingdom.

Made As Ordinary Purchases.

The wheat purchases are reported to have been made by two of the largest flour milling firms in the country, who used the storage accommodation of the trade. This led the trade to assume the purchases were ordinary transactions during the recent buying spurt.

When reserve stocks begin to be called into normal use in the autumn they will be renewed from the world crop as a safeguard for 1939. It is believed the same secrecy in purchasing new stocks will be pursued.

E. L. Lewis, presiding at the annual meeting of the Liverpool Corn Trade Association, said assurances had been received that in the storing of wheat reserves care would be taken that normal requirements of the ports will not be interfered with.

A meeting has been arranged between grain trade representatives and the Food Defence Committee when, it is hoped, the trade will be given full details of the transactions. The trade also is seeking a fair share of the handling of the wheat stored.

The Government's wheat purchases, placed in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 tons, will not have an adverse effect on the price of the home-grown commodity. Under the Wheat Act of 1932 the British farmer is guaranteed approximately 1 dollar and 35 cents a bushel. This is made possible by wheat quota payment which is levied on millers and importers of flour, and at present amounts to 2 shillings (50 cents) per sack of 280 pounds. The levy, which varies according to the fluctuations in price, has been as high as 4 shillings ($1.00).

BAILIEBORO

SPRING SEEDING WELL ADVANCED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, April 30. — Seeding in the district is well advanced and many farmers will complete their seeding in April. It is many years since this has been possible, as last season a considerable amount of seeding in this district was still to be finished in June.

Fall wheat, seeds and pasture is also well advanced, and some fields of early oats and barley are now beginning to show above the ground. The soil has gone in in excellent condition, and it is generally considered that prospects for a good crop have seldom been brighter.

Some farmers are already planning putting their stock out to pasture.

Tent caterpillars are now beginning to hatch, and it is feared in this district that they may prove a serious menace to trees. Literally millions of nests can already be seen among the trees, and it will take a great deal of labor to destroy the insects.

A resident of Emily township named Hamilton was fined $2.00 and costs for driving a horse and buggy after dark without a light. The accused figured in an accident near Omemee last Saturday night.

A big road program for this district, that will give employment to quite a number of men was announced here. The sum of $395,000 will be spent on roadwork in Victoria-Haliburton Counties, and work will be under way by May 15. Allotments will be made for the following highways: Cameron to Fenelon Falls; Fenelon Falls to Burnt River; Minden to Kinmount, Haliburton to Wilberforce.

FICTION AND FEATURES

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Barbara Kingsley, in New York only a few months with a child magazine, has just told Garry Page, New York newspaperman, that she will marry him. They became interested in one another when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Barbara's close friend, Natalie, who has just announced she is going to marry an older man, Basil Worthington, cautions Barbara about seeing too much of Garry. Garry has a play which is soon to be produced, starring Wenda Ayer. Garry begins to make excuses that keep him from seeing so much of Barbara, but the latter doesn't suspect Wenda, the actress, is taking up so much of Garry's time. Then an evening came when she observed that something definitely was wrong. Barbara's world crashes when Garry tells her he has fallen in love with Wenda. Later, Jack Metcalf, an author friend, calls at Barbara's apartment. Barbara goes alone to Natalie's wedding. Garry is there and he talks of the opening of his play. Barbara's remorse grows. Peter, Barbara's former managing editor, comes to New York and she introduces him to Ruth Merryweather, an heiress. Barabara is fond of both of them. No tickets arrive from Garry the day his play opens. Disappointed, Barbara declines an invitation from Ruth to an after-theater party. Barbara's editor asks her to entertain a young boy named Robert Kerns whom the magazine is photographing for a series of cover porrraits. She likes the child. Then his aunt comes for him. It proves to be Wenda Ayer. When the actress calls Garry's familiar number from Barbara's office, Barbara rushes out.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 24

THE ART work ended swiftly, and Wenda took young Robert Kerns away. The afternoon was nearly gone. Barbara closed her desk, took her hat and coat with her to the dressing room, and carefully made up her lips and dusted powder over her nose. She would go to a newsreel and lose herself in military maneuvers, target practice, winter sports or whatever else the news dictators were showing the public today.

As she stepped through the outer door, a long roadster was swinging from the curb. She recognized it as Garry's, and she caught a glimpse of him with Wenda and Robert Kerns. Was she never to get away from his shadow? Once she had thought that she would watch for his face, his smile, his laughter. Now she knew that she was afraid only that she would see them. It would be better if they could walk on separate streets.

Maybe she would not go to his play. Curiosity won, though. She called Ray Pipton to ask her if he would like to go with her.

Barbara had told Ray that she would meet him at the theater. She had refused to have dinner with him preceeding the play. Somehow, three hours of anyone was all she could endure tonight.

Yet, when she met Ray, she was so relieved and pleased because he was with her, that she was surprised. She looked at him from eyes whose jade green was intensified by her new green dress. "Ray, why I'm glad to see you!"

"Whew! What an admission," he grinned.

"I mean—" she laughed hopelessly, "I mean I've been sort of fed up with people but I like being with you. It's a compliment, honestly."

"I'm sure it is." His eyes were serious. But when he spoke again it was a light remark about the orchestra that played until the curtain should rise. Of Garry and his growing interest in Wenda Ayer, he said nothing. Carefully Barbara avoided all mention of it, too. They skirted it, like two sailors, going around and around a rock, frightened at the damage that might come should they touch its end.

They did not escape Garry, though. He found them between the first and second acts.

"You'll come back and meet Wenda after the play, won't you?" he asked. Then he corrected himself. "The whole cast, of course. What do you think of the play?"

"It lives up to the things I expected, Garry. It's honest and fine."

"Do you like the changes we've made?"

She nodded. "I was watching for the old lines, though. The new are much better, of course, but the others were old friends."

If Garry, too, remembered how some of them had come into being as he sat in the great stuffed chair by her fire and read the manuscript to her, changing and revising as he went on, his expression did not show it. His answer was as impersonal as the throng who laughed and chatted in the lobby.

The play went on. The audience was silent at times and mirthful at others. It was not a great play, Barbara admitted. It might have been had the producer left Garry free to develop his theme in his own manner. But it was a good play and it would be a successful play. He had pretended that he liked the changes but she knew that he did not. The very thing he had tried to create was gone. His genius—she admitted that he had it—had been tied to earth because boxoffice receipts were important and this earthiness would bring more people. When Garry's name was made, then he could choose his own heights.

And Wenda would fly with him!

Wenda's dressing room was filled with people and flowers as Garry brought Barbara and Ray into it. It was almost as though she was the star of the play, Barbara mused. She admitted, with her innate honesty, that Wenda was a mighty good actress, though.

Wenda held out a friendly hand to her and her eyes smiled as though she were glad to meet her. Barbara knowing that this was part of her off-stage act, still marveled at the skill with which the other girl carried out her role. Then Wenda's eyes grew puzzled.

"I've seen you before, Miss Kingsley. Not long ago. But my mind is such a kaleidoscope of names and faces these days, I'm ashamed of myself."

"We didn't exactly meet," Barbara hastened to explain. "It was this afternoon at the children's magazine when Bobbie was having his picture taken."

"Oh, of course! I telephoned to Garry from your office. You were so kind!" Barbara caught the patronage but she knew neither Garry nor Ray could tear away the golden cords and find it.

"I've told you about Barbara—the girl I knew from Martinsville," Garry added.

"You did?" That Wenda remembered Barbara knew, but she was refusing to admit the memory. "Perhaps. One hears about so many people, you know!"

Wenda was a little surprised to find that the girl of the magazine and the girl who had been first in Garry's heart for a while were the same, Barbara sensed. She was glad that she was chic and well dressed tonight. Now she murmured a complimentary phrase or two and turned to the door. Garry was welcoming some more guests. Ray, who had been watching with a sardonic glint in his eyes, said clearly:

"You have a fine chance in this play to do something big, Miss Ayer."

"Meaning that I don't live up to it?" she flashed back.

"Just a remark," he answered. "Ready, Barbara?"

Wenda wasn't through. "Oh, Miss Kingsley," she called to Barbara, "Bobbie adored you. It broke his heart that he didn't even learn your name. Any time you want to hire out as a governess, we've a spot for you."

"Bobbie's a nice kid," Garry came back to say. "Funny I didn't know he was talking about you when he came down. Come to think of it, I didn't realize it was your magazine even. This play's getting me batty."

"If I ever want a job—" Barbara murmured vehemently when she was back on the street with Ray. "Ray, I don't exactly love that woman."

"I shouldn't wonder," Ray agreed. "Lots of her kind around. But don't go getting the theater filled with people like that in your mind. It's got swell folk in it—most of them are tops. Now and then a Wenda Ayer, who has talent, goes along."

"She does have ability. She'll probably be sitting on the moon some day. She and Garry should travel far. I'm proud of him, Ray. Thanks for coming along."

Thus, it became natural for Ray to call Barbara, now and then. He maintained his bantering, lighthearted air. Nothing was serious to him. Nothing was worth too much effort, he said. He wanted to get assigned to one of the foreign posts and watch history in the making. He had been promised the next berth in central Europe.

The magazine became more and more important in Barbara's life. A department devoted to children's styles was being opened and she was assigned to assist with the new venture. Therefore, late one afternoon, she went to keep an appointment with an important courturier who had promised to design a dress or two for eight-year-olds as an amusing sideline. (To Be Continued)

Too Much "Supervision" and Selfish Interest by Mothers Dwarf Their Children Mentally and Make Them Weaklings Unable to Cope With the World

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a boy of 18. Have had one year of college and am taking a business course that I am just about to finish. My problem is what to do about mother. My father is dead, but mother is a young woman in politics and successful, perfectly able to take care of herself, but she insist that I be always at her beck and call. I had to quit my fraternity because whenever I went out I always had to call home every hour. About the second time she would begin screaming that I would get killed if I didn't get home. An automobile would run over me. When I went to the phone and tell me to tell the people that my mother was ill and I had to go home immediately. The result is I have given up going anywhere because it is so embarrassing to have to leave as soon as I get to a place. If I make a date with a girl, she makes me break it. But if she goes out to visit a friend or to play cards, I have to go along and sit around and read a book just because "she wants her baby with her." When I speak of leaving her, she declares she will kill herself if I do. What must I do? Must I stand this all my life?—L. A.

Answer:

No mother has a right to wreck a child's life as your mother is doing yours, and you will be perfectly justified in leaving her because that is the only way in which you can save yourself. If you stay with her, you will not only be a prisoner who will not have one hour of liberty, but you also will be a slave who will do nothing but fetch and carry and wait upon her whims.

You will never even be a man. She will keep you in a perpetual babyhood, for she will never let you grow up and use any of the strength or intelligence that God gave you. If we saw a woman who was physically maiming her child, or doing something to its brain that would make it a moron, we would put in a hurry call for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children to come and rescue the poor little victim from its inhuman parent.

But we constantly see mothers like yours who dwarf their children mentally and spiritually and make them weaklings who can never stand alone, or walk without being held by the hand, and we do nothing about it. Yet the one is no less a crime than the other.

No doubt your mother excuses her cruelty to you by saying that it is because she loves you so much more than other women love their children that she must always have you right with her; she cannot bear to be parted from you for an instant. But love like that is worse than hate. No enemy could do you the harm she is doing you. Malice itself couldn't invent the torture that she is inflicting upon you, and you should protect yourself from it as you should from any other evil that would blight your life.

The right sort of mother love doesn't tear down a child. It builds him up. It doesn't seek to weaken him. It strengthens him. It does not consider its own pleasure, but only the good of the child. It is only rank selfishness that takes no heed of anything but its own gratification that makes a mother so possessive that she takes her own happiness at the expense of the child's.

A mother's tears should be sacred, but when she sobs over the telephone until her son comes home from his fraternity meeting, weeps until he breaks a date with a girl, cries until he gives up every pleasure to sit at home with her, she is only using a coward's weapon to get her own way. She is only shedding crocodile tears and he should pay no attention to them.

Nor need he worry about her committing suicide. She hasn't the faintest notion of doing it. She has found out that she can terrorize him into doing her bidding by holding that fear over his head and she works it for all it is worth.

* * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—What can you do with a mother-in-law who is too good for you? My mother-in-law spends the money she should use on herself in giving us expensive presents that we don't need and don't want, and that are always exactly the wrong thing. For instance, my taste is simple and hers is fussy. I like simple furniture, she adores the grandiose, so she is continually presenting us with a huge piece of furniture that don't fit into our house and that swear at everything else we have. We are now moving into a new house and I picked out in my mind just the kind of a kitchen I want to furnish, but I am scared to death that she will get ahead of me and furnish it for us as a surprise with things that will set my teeth on edge. What must I do? Must I tell her that I would like to buy my own things, or try to be grateful?—MRS. E. T.

Answer:

I think you will have to tell her that you do not see eye to eye with her about furniture and clothes, and that inasmuch as you have to live with the things it is more important that you should be pleased than for her to be. It will hurt her feelings, of course, because none of us can quite bear to have our taste aspersed, but even so it is better to have the matter settled once and for all.

Long ago I found out that the secret of giving welcome presents is to give what the receiver like and not what you like yourself, and, as it is almost impossible to know just what it is that strikes another's fancy and what he or she craves, it is far better to give money when it is possible and let the recipient pick out his or her own present.

Of course, this can't always be done and it doesn't matter in little things, but when it comes to big things a check is the most welcome of all gifts.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—For the last seven years I have been keeping company with a young lady who makes an income sufficient to support a family of five. My health is being ruined because of the fact that I cannot marry this girl, as I have only a small clerical position and she has to take care of her family. We could marry if it were not for the burden of her family. What shall I do?—L. G.

Answer:

Evidently you take the position that it would be better for the girl to support you than her family. Maybe so, but if she makes the money it seems to me that he has the right to decide which one she prefers to take care of.

UNCLE WIGGILY PUTS THEM OUT

"Unkle Wig! Unkle Wig! shouted Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, at Uncle Wiggily's play party.

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit gentleman whose pink nose was twinkling in the most jolly way. For he was giving a play party in his own playhouse and with play dishes made from oyster and clam shells and bits of glass and china. "What's the matter, Baby Bunty?"

"Did you say all aboard for the ice cream or something like that?" asked the orphan rabbit.

"It was Buster who said that," said Jingle and Jangle who were tapping little sticks, for spoons, on the edges of clam shells which they were to use as dishes. They hoped to have the clam shell dishes filled with ice cream.

"Well," spoke Baby Bunty, "there's been a lot of talk about ice cream but I haven't tasted any yet," and the orphan rabbit clattered her dish which was made from a piece of blue china that had once been a plate.

"Daddy has gone out to get the ice cream," said Buster.

"You mean out to the store?" asked Jingle.

"It's a funny play party where they don't have the ice cream all waiting for you," said Jangle fussy like and fault-finding.

"I'll put them out alright!"

"No, I mean daddy has only gone to the back door of this playhouse of his to get the ice cream," Buster explained. "It's in a freezer at the back door."

"The sooner it gets into my clam shell dish the better I will like it," said Jangle, tapping her wooden spoon again.

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily, who was at the back door of his playhouse, began shouting:

"Oh! Oh! Oh!"

"What's the matter?" asked Nurse Jane, the muskrat lady housekeeper, who was helping serve. "Did you fall in the ice cream, Mr. Longears?"

"There isn't any ice cream to fall into," said Uncle Wiggily.

"WHAT? NO ICE CREAM?" cried all the animal children at the play party.

"No ice cream," said Uncle Wiggily firmly but sad like.

"But I ordered it and Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, left it on the back stoop," said Nurse Jane.

"Maybe he did, but now it is gone," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Who took it?" asked Bunty.

"I did!" cried a loud voice all of a sudden and from back of some sassafras bushes near the playhouse up popped the Bob Cat.

"Did you take my play party ice cream?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, I did!" boldly mewed the Bob Cat. "And, what's more, I'll take you and some of these children, too!"

"So shall I!" yapped the Fox.

"So shall I!" growled the Wolf.

And my goodness sakes alive and a thimble full of orange juice! Those three Bad Chaps jumped right inside the playhouse.

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" cried Baby Bunty and all the others. "Put them out! Put them out!"

"I'll put them out all right!" cried Uncle Wiggily. With that he began throwing clam shell play dishes and oyster shell play dishes and bits of broken china and glass dishes and sand for play sugar and stones for play raisins at the Bad Chaps. He pelted them in their eyes, noses and mouths until the Bad Chaps ran away.

"There!" said Uncle Wiggily, dusting his paws, "I put them out."

Then he sent for more ice cream, the party went on and everybody had a lovely time.

And if the Police Dog doesn't think the garage door is speeding when it clams shut, and give it a ticket, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's May flowers.

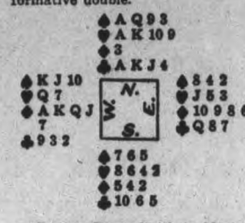
WHO WANTS BIG CARDS?

HANDS MADE up entirely of small cards are not necessarily worthless, even though devoid of a long suit. If the only four-card length is matched by four in a strong hand held by your partner, you may still find plenty of activity. You may even become the successful declarer in a game contract if your partner transfers the initiative to you by making an informative double.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Diamond and North doubled. East passed and South called 1-Heart, which North jumped to 4-Hearts.

The opening lead was West's diamond K, followed by the diamond Q, trumped with dummy's heart 9. In order to attempt to create an entry into his own hand, declarer immediately led the club J, which East won with the Q. The diamond return was ruffed with dummy's heart 10, and the hearts A and K laid down. The club 4 was now led to South's 10 and the spade Q finesse tried. When this held, the clubs A and K were played. East ruffed the last one and South discarded a spade. East returned another diamond, which South trumped. The last two tricks were won with the spade ace and a ruff of the spade 3.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play 4-Spades after two hearts have been cashed by West and followed by a third?

Plans were also discussed for the Fall rallies, and much detail work in connection looked after.

At the conclusion of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Helen Bannister and a social hour enjoyed.

Among the members present were Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mesdames A. I. Brown, J. Bradbury and E. Mesley, representing the Bay of Quinte Conference branch, and Mesdames A. E. Junior Welfare League Dance Is Popular Event at Kawartha Club

The Junior Welfare League dance held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club Friday evening proved one of the gayest, most popular and most colorful events of the whole season.

Light and movement, music and laughter were everywhere and as the clubhouse filled with guests the glamorous array of charming evening gowns contrasting with the more sombre attire of the men showed with stunning effect against the lavish and lovely decorations.

The whole solarium was transformed into a gorgeous flower garden. Pale pink and deeper red roses, tulips and other flowers climbed the small white fences surrounding the room and the orchestra stand, where the flowers became mauve, pink and yellow, combined with wine hollyhocks. Behind the orchestra at the corners huge sunflowers in shades of orange, yellow and brown reached to the ceiling. Pink and rose apple blossoms decorated the wall lights and tall colorful baskets of hollyhocks were placed about the lounge and corners of the dance room.

The guests were received by Mrs. Graeme Falkner, president of the Junior Welgare League, and Miss Claire Mason, vice-president. Music was by Jack Marshal and His Orchestra, and bridge was played in the lounge. During the evening Mrs. J. B. Blaiklock and Mrs. D. Lawrie sold roses for "whatever you like to give."

Floor Show.

Highlight of the evening was the floor show, in which twelve talented dancers took part, including Mrs. J. E. Esson, Mrs. H. I. Bradburn, the Misses Lahring Parsons, Betsy Scott, Isabel Duffus and Isabel Duthie, also Dr. R. K. Magee, Ross Thompson, John Hedley, S. Grisdale, Ken Weldon and J. White.

For the first number the girls wore most effective costumes of glistening cellophane over red 'tights' with red cellophane bows in their hair and silver slippers. The program commenced with a routine danced to "Rosalie." Miss Isabel Duthie, whose lovely voice is well known, then sang "One Rose" to each man in the chorus in turn as she waltzed from one to another, followed by the whole chorus singing and dancing. This was followed again by "Rosalie," with an encore enthusiastically called for, for this delightful number. After supper Miss Isabel Duffus and Ken Weldon wearing sports outfits, gaily did their version of the Big Apple as solo, with the chorus joining in. Other splendid numbers included a solo tap dance by Dr. Magee, clever 'Snake Charmer' dance by Ken Weldon, and Ross Thompson portrayed a gentleman who has imbibed a little too freely to "How Dry I Am." Miss Isabel Duffus gave a charming tap dance as a solo, and the men's chorus did the "Dopey" to "High-Ho," with all finally joining in. It was a gay show and added much to the evening's fun.

Supper was served at midnight. Mrs. L. W. Magie and Miss E. Morrow poured coffee at a tabel beautifully arranged with pink carnations, snapdragons, and other flowers. Five bridge prizes were awarded, and were won by Miss G. Reinhardt, 1st ladies, H. Pounder, 1st. mens; Mrs. E. V. Morphet, 2nd ladies'; E. V. Morphet, 2nd men's; Miss Mary Harstone, consolation prize. The door prizes were won by Miss Isabel Reid and Mr. Fred Hills. Tickets were sold on an electric clock, donated by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vernor, and which was won by Mr. Cyril Lech.

The lovely decorations were all made by the members of the Junior Welfare League, with Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne as convenor of the committee, assisted by Mrs. H. Bradburn, Mrs. Clare Collins, Mrs. D. Lawrie, Mrs. Blaiklock and Miss Mary Mulholland. Mrs. Paige Rowell and Mrs. T. D. Diplock had charge of the floor show and costumes; Mrs. G. H. Munro and Mrs. Walter Perks looked after the bridge tables; Mrs. Fred Hills, Mrs. Keith Lech and Mrs. Fred Collins were in charge of the door prizes; Mrs. D. B. Falkner and Mrs. W. J Stevenson looked after the tickets and Miss Helen Munro was convenor for the refreshments.

Branch Notes

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

A short business meeting was held on Monday last. The branch accepted the invitation extended to us by St. Mary's, Lifford Line, to visit them on Wednesday. A very enjoyable evening was spent in playing games and contests. We also had the opportunity of meeting St. Paul's, Lindsay, and listening to clever skits and recitations given by the three branches present.

The branch members are keeping busy rehearsing the three-act play, "Sis Perkins," to be presented next Thursday and Friday evenings in the Parish Hall.

Will all the members and their friends please keep open the 13th of May for the Bowling League dance and presentation of prizes.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH.

Thursday night St. George's A.Y.P.A. members held a social evening. Art Busby was social convenor. Different games were played and dancing was enjoyed by all, with Mrs. R. King at the piano.

All members are kindly asked to attend next week's meeting as election of new officers is to take place.

St. George's congratulate the Hurons of St. Luke's Branch in winning the cup in the Bowling League.

IN MEMORIAM

SHEARER.—In loving memory of Mrs. E. Shearer, who passed away April 30, 1937.
The one I loved is gone to rest,
Her fond, true heart is still;
The hand that always helped me
Now lies in death's cold chill.
She had a Nature you couldn't help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew her and loved her
Her memory will never grow old.
—Sadly missed by her daughter, Mrs. Ian McKenzie.

McCAULEY. — In memory of our Mother, Mary Jane McCauley, who departed this life April 30, 1933.
Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile.
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering one she knew
Some gentle act of love she'd do;
No thought of self, but of "the other,"
I know He said: "Well done, dear Mother."
—Ever remembered by her son and Daughter, Mrs. W. Sanderson, and Mr. Sam McCauley.

PAYNE.—In loving memory of Ted Payne, who passed away May 1, 1937.
Words cannot express how much we miss you;
Ever since you went away
Things seem the same,
But oh so different,
With no one to comfort
Or ease the pain.
—Sadly missed by his Wife.

McCAULEY.—In loving memory of my dear Mother, Mrs. Robert McCauley, who fell asleep in Jesus, April 30, 1933.
Oh my darling Mother, how I miss you,
Only God alone can tell;
But I know that thou art happy
In that heavenly home to dwell.
Oh, the days are long and lonely,
And it's such a weary walt;
But you will be there to meet me,
Standing at the golden gate.
—Sadly missed by her Daughter, Mrs. S. Wilson.

Opportunities Of Housing Act Are Unknown To Many Citizens

There Is An Unquestioned Demand For Smaller Houses In Canada

MONTREAL, Quebec, April 30.—Low cost housing is the crying need of Canada today and anybody who sets about supplying that need is performing an important social service, H. M. Moore, assistant secretary of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, declared in an address before the general sales convention of Building Products, Limited.

"There is an unquestioned demand for small houses," Mr. Moore stated, "entirely apart from the economic need for new home construction. The depression, with its cessation of building, has resulted in doubling up of families and this doubling up still continues because there is no other place for these families to go. The Dominion Housing Act was put into force to remedy this situation and to enable the Canadian people to own their own homes. Unfortunately, too many people have been unaware of the opportunities that are presented by this legislation. Should the construction industry give their full co-operation and should this housing movement gain the popular favor which it deserves it would be difficult to set any limit to its possible future. Its results would be bounded only by the ability of builders to build fast enough."

Provides Machinery.

The Dominion Housing Act, according to Mr. Moore, provides the machinery necessary to solve the home-owning problem for thousands of wage-earning Canadians. At the same time, he added, it offers a solution to business problems generally by stimulating construction, the basic industry on which the prosperity of many other businesses depend.

The Housing Act, he explained, applies solely to new construction and is entirely distinct from the Home Improvement Plan. Houses built under the D. H. A. must be used for dwelling purposes and loans are made available on three classes of property, owner-built homes, houses built by speculative builders for sale and multiple homes, flats or apartments. Up to 80 per cent. of the total cost, including land, is advanced by the government and the loaning companies, repayable in monthly payments over a period of ten, fifteen or twenty years.

During the period that the D.H.A. has been in operation, Mr. Moore explained, there has been a constant decrease in the average of the amounts of loan sought. At first, he said, the average loan was around $8,000. These loans were made, he said, "but with them the Dominion Housing Act was obviously missing its target. The Act was aimed at the little fellow. The first people to take advantage of the Act did not need it. They used it because they liked the cheap money and liked the monthly repayment plan.

"But, as more and more people became acquainted with the plan the trend was steadily downward. That's where the big demand and largest number of loans is now coming from. This trend proves that the Act is finally coming into its own and serving the people it was intended to serve.

Public Apathetic.

"The general public, however, is still apathetic. It needs to be told and has to be sold. That is the function of companies in the construction industry, such as Building products, Limited. On December 12 last some 2,150 loans had been made in Canada, totalling $13,000,034, but this figure will be greatly increased when the people of anada realize that they can purchase their own homes at very low cost. Higher rents will help the movement, for an increase of two to five dollars a month means a great deal to a tenant paying between five and thirty-five dollars. They can buy a $3,000 home cheaper than renting, with their monthly payments working out at only $15.70. And all they need in cash is $600. The average man in Canada has never before had a chance to live in a new house. He has not even lived in a second-hand one. It has gone through three or four or five or more hands before he moves in.

"Now the average Canadian has a chance to have a home of his own. He knows in advance just what it is going to cost him to live and nobody can raise the rent. He has security of tenure.

"A nation-wide campaign to build small homes would mean the solution of one of Canada's gravest social problems. It would provide better housing for the people who need it most and a strong stimulus to business recovery."

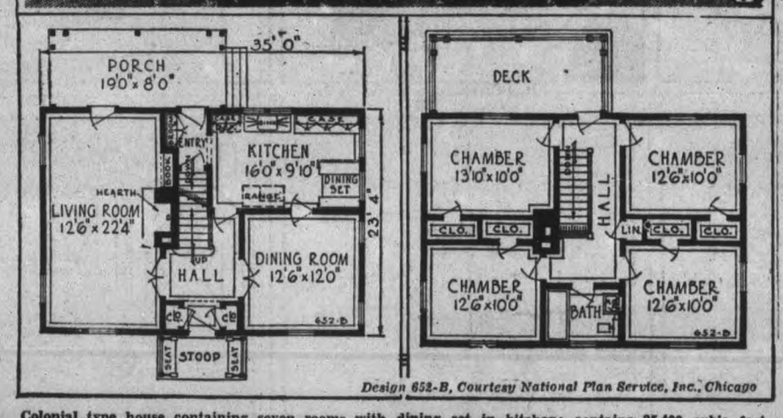
Colonial House Is Very Popular



Design 652-B, Courtesy National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

Colonial type house containing seven rooms with dining set in kitchen; contains 25,400 cubic feet.

COLONIAL architecture is not spectacular, but it is extremely popular with discriminating people for its simplicity, dignity, and the fact that it allows an excellent layout of rooms.

This seven-room frame house has the usual central hall associated with this type of architecture, with benches on each side of the front stoop. It has a large living room with hearth, on one side of the hall, dining room and kitchen with dining set on the other.

Upstairs are four bedrooms, each with its adjoining closet, and a bathroom. A large porch which leads out of the living room, makes a deck on the second floor, which can easily be made into an upstairs stairs outdoor sitting room or a sleeping porch.

The entire house contains 25,400 cubic feet. The size of the main building is 35 feet by 23 feet four inches; size over all, 37 by 37 feet.

Woman Feeds "Pet" And Gets Bitten

Kingston, April 30 (CP).

MISS JESSIE COOPER of Wolfe Island, who was isiting north of Kingston, was rushed to the Kingston General Hospital yesterday, suffering frm a badly mangled left leg. She was attacked by a police dog.

Miss Cooper was feeding the animal, considered a pet, when the dog without warning bit her.

LOTS OF CUPBOARDS ARE ALWAYS HANDY

Cupboards are an essential part of every home. This is especially so in the kitchen. The housewife who hasn't sufficient cupboard space in her kitchen is kept continually on the run. Everyday dishes probably have to be kept in the china cabinet and this necessitates carrying wishes from one room to another at every meal. Pots, pans and cooking utensils should be kept in cupboards conveniently placed in the kitchen.

Very often much kitchen space is wasted. For instance, the space under the sink might quite well be transformed into a convenient and inconspicuous cupboard with two or three shelves for pots and pans, etc. A cupboard of this kind could be painted the same color as the dado around the kitchen.

Of course, ample cupboard space is essential in bedrooms. In addition to the regular clothes closets, every house should boast a large linen cupboard. The shelves, door and jams should be painted white.

A novel arrangement is a cupboard with glass doors over the living-room fireplace. This provides an excellent place for a collection of colored glass or china.

Cupboards may be built under the generous terms of the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan.

PLAN COMFORTS FOR NEW HOME

Comfort should be the first thought in planning a home. A great many people are, however, living in homes which they did not plan themselves and which are far from measuring up to that ideal of genuine comfort which we would all like to achieve. Sometimes it would be necessary to make very drastic changes in order to achieve that combination of convenience and restfulness we call comfort. In other cases a few alterations will do wonders.

In homes with large families and incidentally large bedrooms, installation of a second bathroom will do a great deal to promote peace and harmony. Under the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan, money may be borrowed for this purpose; and a new shining bathroom, created by cutting a piece off one of the large bedrooms will help to take care of the morning rush.

Downstairs, it might be a good idea to use a corner of the kitchen for a breakfast-nook. This is a most valuable adjunct to a home particularly where members of a family must breakfast at different times. It saves all the running in and out to the dining-room, the setting of a more formal breakfast table and incidentally the time of the persons who want to get some coffee and toast fast and clear out.

These are just a couple of suggestions. The Home Improvement Plan can help with them and a score of others.

VICE-CHAIRMAN QUITS

LONDON—(CP).— Disagreement with the Chamberlain government's foreign policy led to resignation of Harold Nicholson, National-Labor M.P. (Leicester), from the vice-chairmanship of the Foreign Affairs Committee of government supporters in Commons.

DRUMS ON THE STREET

HULL, England—(CP).—A Salvation Army adjutant in charge of a Sunday street march, apologized to a Church of England vicar who claimed his service was disturbed. The army officer said he thought the church service was over.

HALL'S BRIDGE

The members of the Hall's Bridge Y.P.S. were entertained on Wednesday evening by the Community League of Wesley United Church. Howard Gillespie took charge as fellowship convenor, and the following program was presented: Hymn, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds"; prayer; Scripture lesson read by Vera Haines; solo by Mr. Muchan, "Through Grace He Lifted Me"; story, "The Artist Who Forgot Four Colors," by Miss D. Menzies; community singing. Recreation was enjoyed by all under the leadership of Mrs. Blewett and Miss Leona Harris. Lunch was served by members of Wesley Y.P. Miss D. Menzies moved a vote of thanks to the Wesley Y.P. and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

BUILT-IN SHELVES AID IN FURNISHING

Built-in shelves often help to furnish a room. For instance, corners are sometimes hard to furnish satisfactorily. Shelves take away that empty feeling and at the same time use little space. Two long shelves, one on either wall and meeting in the corner will hold books or knick-knacks. They might be of different heights and lengths.

If you have a window that you do not want to cover with side-curtains, but still want a colorful effect for your room, try a series of small shelves at each side, holding potted plants.

One housewife used the space above the fireplace for built-in shelves instead of hanging a painting or a mirror above it. Pieces of an old china collection were displayed on these shelves and the effect was very pleasing.

Built-in shelves of all descriptions are eligible under the Home Improvement Plan.

Special Poll Tax On "Family-Duckers" Advocated By Teachers' Group

Toronto, April 30 (CP)

A SPECIAL poll tax on bachelors and spinsters who dodge their duty by failing to raise families on which Canada can raise taxes was suggested before the Rowell Commission today by the Ontario School Teachers' and Ratepayers' Association.

"Bachelors and homes without families are enjoying the benefits of the state and are relieved of the expense of raising families on which the state depends for its national existence," the association brief said. "They should assume a greater share of the cost of education of the children of the state."

Fred H. Rutherford, spokesman for the association, put it in another way: "A young fellow will be glad to pay $5, $10 or $15 or he might have to pick up something that doesnt agree with him and that he doesnt want to live with the rest of his life. The same thing goes for the women, too."

CONSTABLE SAVES FIVE

GRIMSBY, Ont., April 28 (AP).—Night Constable W. W. Turner aroused five persons last night and guided them to the street as fire threatened their apartments on Grimsby's main street. Stock and equipment in stores below the apartments was destroyed with undetermined loss.

Flames which started in a beauty shop on the ground floor of the Sutherland Block ate their way inside the back wall to the roof of the building before firemen extinguished them.

Spain Bans Fights Bulls Are For Sale

Valencia, Spain, April 30 (AP).

ALL BULLS in Valencia stock yards are to be sold, in view of the recent ban on bullfights. Several bullfight meetings were held here during the first year of Spain's civil war, but only one minor meeting was held last year.

GRANDFATHER SAVES BABY

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 30 (CP)—Two-year-old Graeme Dougherty was saved from drowning in a well on his father's farm at nearby Onondaga Thursday. His grandfather slid down the 25-foot wall of the well and held the child above water until help came.

Falling in when he lifted the top from the well, the youngster dropped into four feet of water. The grandfather climbed down to his aid and shouted for help. The boy's father and neighbor hauled the pair out with a rope.

100,000 To Guard Adolf Hitler On Rome Visit

Railway From Brenner Pass to Rome Double Guarded; Berlin Officials Say No New Pacts Contemplated

ROME, May 2 (AP).—Troop trains rolled into Rome hour upon hour today bringing 100,000 soldiers to be on hand for the visit of Chancellor Hitler.

There was everywhere the turmoil of last-minute preparation to make the welcome of the German leader tomorrow night the greatest pageant in the ancient city's modern history.

Parks were converted into military camps. Merchants refused deliveries because their trucks could not move through streets choked by soldiers, police and tourists.

Persons of questionable record were jailed or ordered from Rome, Florence and Naples during Hitler's six-day stay. Unofficial estimates fixed the number involved at between 6,000 and 7,000.

Soldiers stopped automobiles entering or leaving Rome and checked identification papers. Police doubled their regular guard along the railway from Brenner Pass to Rome, the route of the Hitler train.

There is in the southern Tyrol an especial air of excitement, and its predominantly German population is prepared to turn out at dawn tomorrow when the Fuehrer's train rolls from Austrian Germany onto Italian soil.

Italy received this tyrol region from Austria as part of the 1918 peace settlement. Otherwise it would have become German when Hitler annexed the rest of Austria March 12.

There will begin tomorrow the main conferences designed to show that Rome and Berlin still are good friends, despite the annexation and the new Italian accord with Britain.

A History-Making Trip.

BERLIN, May 2 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler departed for Italy to-day to visit Premier Mussolini and take an inventory of their close friendship

DOOMED WOMAN NOT AFRAID TO DIE

COLUMBUS, O., May 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, condemned to be electrocuted on Wednesday night for murder, protested her innocence to-day in a death cell interview, but asserted "I wouldn't be afraid to die."

The Bavarian-born former housemaid said she was treated unfairly in the trial at which she was convicted of killing by poison Jacob Wagner, 78, a retired gardener, to gain his meagre fortune.

She described as untrue testimony doses of the poison allegedly used to kill Wagner were found in her purse's lining.

"I never even knew what the poison was, and don't believe there was any in that purse," said Mrs. Hahn.

"I feel that maybe I have a chance yet to save my life," she added, "but if I have to go, I've always felt I wouldn't be afraid to die."

"I still believe they wouldn't want to take my life; if not for my sake, at least for the sake of my child."

Her son Oscar, 12, is living with relatives.

The condemned woman indicated she expected Governor Martin L. Davey would spare her life if a projected appeal to the United States Supreme Court fails.

SHOT IN CHASE

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—James Russell, 25, Montreal, is under police guard in hospital here with a bullet wound in his leg and charged with shopbreaking.

Police Constable J. Hawkins saw two men running from a warehouse here early today and called on them to stop. He fired two shots, one in the air and one downward. Apparently one bullet ricocheted, for when it hit Russell, it was travelling upwards. The other suspect escaped, police said.

Tons of gold were flown recently from Brussels, Belgium, to London.

BETHANY BARBER TRAPPED UPSTAIRS AS HOME BURNS

(By Staff Reporter.)

BETHANY, May 2.—The crackling sound of flames and the acrid smell of smoke awakened Harvey Ginn from sleep at four o'clock Sunday morning with scant time to escape with his wife and two children from the fire that almost completely destroyed his home and adjoining barber shop and nearly all the contents of the upper rooms.

"Neighbors carried out a lot of the furniture down stairs, but we saved practically nothing from the bedrooms, not even our clothing," Mrs. Ginn told the Examiner Sunday afternoon. "After my husband got me and the two children, five and six years old, safely out of the house, he rushed upstairs again to try to save something, and was trapped there by the flames. He had to be helped out of an upper window by men who had responded to the alarm."

Cause of the fire could not be determined. It seemed to have started on the second floor over the barber shop which was under the same roof as the dwelling. Flames spread across the second floor to the residential section of the house and down to the lower section. It was stated that there had been no fire in the barber shop stove for three or four days, and also that Mrs. Ginn had got up about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and gone into the children's room. At that time there was no smell of smoke or any warning of the fire that nearly caught the family in their sleep about two hours later.

A volunteer bucket brigade and the hand pump that was purchased by the Women's Institute finally subdued the fire before it had levelled the clapboard house and shop, but the damage appeared to be almost complete. Had there been two hose lines instead of one, it is believed the flames would have been extinguished with comparatively slight loss.

Harvey Ginn and his family came to Bethany two years ago from Blackstock and bought the house and shop formerly occupied for years by Herb Patterson. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

PRAIRIES' WOES LAID TO GREED ON WHEAT LAND

Hepburn Opposes East Helping Pay "The Shot"

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—The balance of economic advantage resulting from Confederation lies with the Prairies, despite the West's repeated charge that the east has benefitted most, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn asserted today before the Rowell Commission.

If the west had suffered more than the east there were several explanations, apart from any Federal policy, he contended. The claims of the Prairie Provinces for compensation "at our expense" rested on the fallen fortunes of the wheat growers.

"While wheat is still important, it is not the life and soul of the west," the Ontario Premier said.

"I have every sympathy for those 99,000 farmers whose main source of revenue (wheat) has declined, but really I do not see that it is necessary to upset Confederation on their behalf. Nor do I believe that we should be called upon to re-make a fiscal policy that was established long before most of them ever turned a furrow, with a tractor, on Canadian soil."

Solution Coming Slowly.

The west was working its way out of the crop specialization that came with early settlement and was working into a "diversity designed to utilize its resources of men and materials, a diversity of the factory as well as the field," he said.

As far as the wheat situation was concerned, a committee of the League of Nations had concluded that the over-production of wheat was responsible for the agricultural crisis and that Canada, "in this instance Western Canada," was responsible for the 'greatest absolute and relative' over-production of the world's wheat supply.

"Then the Prairie Provinces are themselves the makers of their own, and other people's, misfortunes," Premier Hepburn said.

Not Well Grounded

Another reason for the suffering for the West under strain was that western farmers were not as well "grounded" in their holdings as eastern farmers, about one-third of them having been on their farms less than five years, he argued.

"Not only were thousands of western farmers 'new' to the lands they occupied, a large percentage of them were also quite 'new' to the country," he added, noting one-third born elsewhere than in Canada, the British Empire or the United States.

Between 1931 and 1936 the number of prairie farms had risen from 288,079 to 300,523, the premier said, expressing difficulty at reconciling those figures with statement of "loss through political injury." Only in Saskatchewan had been a net loss of acreage under cultivation.

While the Prairie Provinces had claimed disability because of the monetary policy followed by Canada in 1931, Premier Hepburn contended western wheat growers would have lost, rather than gained, from devaluation of Canadian currency at that time, as the prairies advocated.

Is Under Fire

W. H. Ireland, Right, president of the Ontario Conservative association, has been bluntly informed that "you and your executives no longer have the confidence of the party" by a "Committee for Conservative Action," composed of a large and influential group of Ontario Conservatives. In a letter to Mr. Irland from R. C. Wood, Left, acting secretary of the newly formed committee, the president was severely critized for postponing the annual meeting of the party.

Two Children Die In Ottawa Fire

Father and Three Firemen Burned in Rescue Efforts; Mother Taken Seriously Ill at Party Shortly Before

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP).—Two children were burned to death and four others received slight burns when fire swept through the home of Nelson J. Lacasse, former alderman, today.

The dead were two-year-old Jennine Lacasse and her three-months-old sister, Alice, daughters of Rene Lacasse, 24, who were staying at the Lacasse home.

Rene Lacasse received serious burns to his hands in an attempt to rescue his children from the burning house, located on Lyndale avenue in the west end of the city. Three firemen, district chief Langdon, Lieut. P. D. Dunnigan and fireman Emile Dore, suffered burns to their hands and faces.

Unaware her children were dead, Mrs. Lacasse lay in hospital with little hope held for her recovery. She took suddenly ill last night while playing cards with the family.

Awakened by heat and smoke in the rear bedroom where he was sleeping near his children, Rene Lacasse aroused other occupants of the house and went back to the bedroom in an attempt to save his two daughters. Dense smoke and flames forced him back.

Mrs. Nelson Lacasse and her three daughter, Alice, 16, Lucille, 19, and Jeanette, 12, awakened by Rene's shouts, had no difficulty in getting down the front stairs from the upper floor of the two-storey, frame building.

Former-Alderman Lacasse, who had been sleeping in one of the front bedrooms, said he had got up early and made a fire in the kitchen stove. Stepping into the woodshed to cut more wood, he heard someone yelling "fire."

Believing it came from the street, he ran around the side of the house and discovered it was his own home that was burning.

MEAT EXPORTS HIGHER

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—With the United Kingdom still the best customer, Canada exported $3,265,953 worth of meats during March compared to $2,901,109 in the previous month and $4,028,674, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

United Kingdom took $3,014,027 worth and most of the $2,837,219 worth of bacon and hams also went to the same market.

CONANT REFUSES KINGSTON DEMAND FOR POLICE PROBE

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—Attorney-General Conant released today the text of a letter he wrote the Kingston city council refusing its request for a commission inquiry into Kingston police and police commission affairs pending submission of written charges.

At a recent city council meeting a member made statements reflecting on police department and commission efficiency and a resolution was passed asking for an investigation by the Attorney-General's department.

Mayor A. H. Stewart of Kingston received the letter from the Attorney-General, but would not release it pending a city council meeting tonight which will deal with the letter.

The letter, addressed to C. C. Wyatt, city clerk, follows:

Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 21 with the resolution passed by the city council asking for an investigation into the affairs of the Kingston police commission and the Kingston police department.

This would entail the appointment of a commissioner under the public enquiries act. There is nothing in your letter indicating any specific charge whatever, and I am sure you will realize that before any consideration could be given by my department to the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the police commission of the city of Kingston, written charges would be required to be submitted.

Then they would be considered on their merits as to whether the charges would warrant the expense of a royal commission. If these are forwarded, the latter will be given my careful attention.

Suggests Federal Powers Be Reduced

Premier Informs Rowell Commission He Believes Jobless Insurance Is Better Left With Provinces

TORONTO, May 2 (CP).—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario today declared his government's emphatic opposition to any enlargement of the power of Canada's Federal government. Any changes should be in the other direction, he said.

"Canadians ought to strengthen the hands of government closes to the people—or get ready to look back on the past 75 years as merely an interlude of freedom," he told the Rowell Commission, citing as an example what had happened in Europe "under the iron hand" of concentrated power.

In an outspoken statement "keynoting" the provincial government's presentation, the Ontario premier sharply criticized the manner of the commission's appointment and claimed lack of notice of himself and "the premier of another province," although he "suspected" several provinces were consulted.

He devoted a large part of his time to an attack on the submissions made by the Prairie Provinces, warning that if they had not broken down in the telling, one can well imagine a very, very serious situation might have arisen within confederation."

Sticks Up For Right

The premier left no doubt as to his stand for the complete maintenance of existing rights. "Decisively, we are not here to bargain away functions with which he have been charged, not here to trade off the resources we are sworn to preserve," he asserted.

Equality between the provinces he held impossible. Living standards as well as general ecenomic conditions varied so widely he considered it advisable for the provinces to administer their own social services. Finances should be provided by broader provincial taxation and prior provincial right to the income tax field, the Federal government stepping in "only when the provincial needs have been satisfied."

Jobless Insurance Stand.

For the first time he made public his altered conviction that unemployment insurance was one of the services which might better be left with the provinces.

"During your investigations, sir, you have heard much of the "social services," the Premier said. "May I suggest, sir, that the need for those 'social services' has come largely through the lack of a national economy that fnsures a wide distribution of the proceeds of productive effort.

"The State is largely responsible. The State will pay with its life—unless it shapes its policy for the profitable employment of the great mass of its citizens. The government that arranges an economy under which one family out of every 10 lives on 'social services' cannot survive; and does not deserve to survive."

PREDICT FRICTION AS HITLER MAKES DEMANDS ON DUCE

LONDON, May 2.—(CP-Havas).—If Premier Mussolini follows the course Chancellor Hitler is expected to plot for him during the next few days in Rome, Italy will be placed in a position analagous to that it held in 1914-1915, suspended uncertainty between the Anglo-French entente and Germany, informed quarters believed to-day.

Hitler's agenda, it was said, would contain four main points:

1. An outlet for Germany to the Adriatic.
2. Demilitation of zones of influence in the valley of the Danube.
3. Discussion of the proposed four-power pact.
4. A German promise to help Italian expansion in the Mediterranean at French expense, notably by Italian annexation of Corsica.

It is the general expectation here that whatver the external trapplings and display of Hitler's visit to Rome, the Duce will prove a somewhat cool customer as far as Hitler's program is concerned. The great military and naval display will be meant to impress Hitler with Italian ability to give emphasis to its stand on these points, it was believed.

Clash on First Point.

On the first point, the German demand is certain to meet a frigid reception if couched in the form of a territorial claim. It is more likely to be proposed on an economic basis, through the conversion of Trieste into a free port.

Thus Trieste would regain the trade it has lost since Anschluss diverted Austrian business.

On the second point, concerning "spheres of influence" in the Danube Basin, it is wondered here how far the Duce is likely to go in giving way before Germany in such regions as Hungary where its political and economic position has borne some weight for a long time.

Concerning the four-Power pact, favored by Rome but opposed by Berlin, there will also be differences of opinion. The source of Germany's opposition is said to be the belief that the U.S.S.R. might eventually be included in the pact.

In return for Italian compliance to Germany's demands, according to information here, Germany would promise full support and encouragement to Italian aims in the Mediterranean at the expense of France, and would insist, among other things, that the Duce proceed to annex Corsica.

PACIFIC CITIES YIELD MILLION IN DOPE RAIDS

Eight Major Seizures Triple Narcotic Prices

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2 (A.P.).—A world-wide drive against smugglers of narcotics has resulted in the seizure of contraband valued up to $1,000,000 on the Pacific Coast, it was learned on indisputable authority here to-day, and has more than trebled the price of dope.

Eight major shore-side raids, including the frustration of a daring attempt to smuggle 81 tins of opium, worth $40,000, from the navy transport Chaumont a month ago, have netted narcotics for which addicts would have paid more than $500,000.

The major hauls, and there were countless others away from the waterfronts, have captured 317 tins (132 pounds) of smoking opium, 32 pounds of morphine, and 54 pounds of heroin.

Opium is so rare it has jumped from $80 to $260 "wholesale" for a five-tael (6 2-3 ounce) tin; morphine has skyrocketed from $50 to $160 an ounce, and heroin is scarcely available.

Narcotics are smuggled in double-lined oil cans, in innocent looking containers labelled everything from "ties" to "toys." The Chaumont's mail clerk was caught with 40 tins in a mail pouch as he went into a cafe to deliver his cargo. Another 41 tins were found on the vessel in a pouch not comingled with mail that was subject to customs inspection.

Dr. J. Holdcroft of Havelock sustained a broken left arm and facial lacerations and J. Vance, of Cordova suffered a cut above his left knee when a car driven by Dr. Holdcroft left Highway No. 7 while turning out to pass another machine and plunged through a fence into a field.

The accident happened at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon near Lorne Braden's farm, ten miles east of Peterborough.

The machine got out of control as it was turned out when another automobile came along and after hitting a bump shot across the ditch and into a fence the rear wheels coming to rest on the rails of the fence. Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton investigated.

Nazi Insignia, Salute Borrowed From American Indians

Bullet Sneaks Up Wounds Man

New York, May 2. (AP).

THE ONLY way Harold Rush, 34, could figure it out today was this—a bullet crawled up his coat sleeve and bit him. Walking on the fringe of "Hell's Kitchen," on the West Side, Rush noticed blood running down his right wrist. That was the first he knew, he said, about being wounded.

At the hospital it was discovered that the wound had been inflicted by a bullet. But—Rush heard no shot. He felt no pain. And there was not bullet hole in his coat or shirt sleeve.

Michigan Expert Delves Into History Charging Hitler With Plagiarism

ST. IGNACE, Mich., May 2 (C.P.).—Dr. W. C. Edmison, a student of Indian customs, charges Adolf Hitler with plagiarism. He said the Nazi salute, oral salutation, and insignia were borrowed from the North American Indian.

"In the Nazi salute," he said, "note the upraised arm, extended slightly forward—a gesture identical to that with which the great chiefs of the Algonquin tribe greeted Jean Nicolet, first white man to sail the Great Lakes; when he landed at Pointe St. Ignace in 1634 in the gaudy garments of a Chinese mandarin."

Nicolet thought he had found a western passage to China when the Redskins of the Ojibway and Ottawa tribes greeted him at the Mackinac Straits.

"It is the same peaceful gesture that was elicited by the arrival of Pere Marquette at St. Ignace in 1671.

"Even the first word the Indians used in greeting the white man has been made part of the Nazi salute," continued Dr. Edmison. He pointed to the similarity between the Nazi "heil" and the Indian "how."

The Nazi swastika, Dr. Edmison said, is the same good luck signal used by the Indians since time immemorial, and is still used by Ojibways in decorating hand-woven and carved souvenirs.

Lindsay Barber Loses On His Appeal Slot Machine Only Amusement

Toronto, May 2 (CP).

APPELLATE COURT at Osgoode Hall today dismissed an appeal of J. P. Mangan, K.C. of Oshawa, on behalf of Lawrence Cunningham, Lindsay barber, against a conviction of operating a common betting house. Mr. Mangan contended the slot machine in the barber shop was played only for amusement and the player could not win or lose anything. A nickel, he said, might be inserted for which he would receive slugs to continue playing the game.

Acting Chief Justice Middleton said that this was where the element of chance came in. C. R. Magone, for the Crown, said the Barber received half the profits from the operation of the machine and the owner who installed it the remainder.

Kaiser's Grandson Takes Bride From House Of Romanoff

Weds Grand Duchess Kira In Double Ceremony With Another To Follow

POTSDAM, Germany, May 2.—(AP).—Prince Louis Ferdinand of the House of Hohenzollern and the Grand Duchess Kira of the House of Romanoff were married in civil ceremony in Cecilienhoff Castle today.

Crown Prince Wilhelm of Prussia, the bridegroom's father, and Grand Duke Cyril, father of the bride and pretender to the lost throne of old Russia, were the only witnesses.

In keeping with the private character of the wedding, no reigning houses were invited except that represented by the Queen of Denmark, sister of Crown Princess Cecilia. The Queen attended with the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark.

At a Greek Orthodox ceremony later an altar had been erected in a bay window of the great hall of the castle. A Russian chorus of 16 voices sang from an alcove to the left of the altar.

The bride wore a gown of richly embroidered silver brocade, nearly 100 years old.

When the ceremony was ended, Rev. B. Doehring, who will perform a third ceremony at Doorn, the Netherlands, Wednesday, spoke a word of blessing. The Doorn ceremony wil be Lutheran.

NOT A road hog, but a hog on the road was blamed for a traffic crash on No. 7 Highway, two and one-half miles east of Ailsa Craig, that brought injuries to two London women. Miss Harrison, daughter of Bremmer Harrison, London, suffered bruises and a shaking-up, and Miss A. Ross of the same address was shaken up and received cuts and bruises.

Miss Harrison's father was driving an automobile which struck a hog, then left the concrete and rolled over into the ditch. Alex. Hodson of R.R. 1, Ailsa Craig, was driving the pig.

Cornwall, Ont., May 2 (CP).

CRACKSMEN who left nitro glycerine in a safe at the office of the British-American Oil Company here 10 days ago, leaving police the problem of rendering it harmless, muffed another job here early today.

The safe in the Imperial Oil Company, half a block from the scene of the last attempt, was blown open with such violence the entire contents were destroyed. It contained no money, but papers and record books were shredded by the blast. The steel safe was twisted out of shape and brick lining pulverized. The interior of the office was plastered with soap and debris.

SHANGHAI FEARS AS TERRORISTS POUR INTO CITY

5,000 Chinese Guerillas In Band to Harass Japs

SHANGHAI, May 2 (A.P.).—The danger of widespread terrorism revived tension in Shanghai to-day as reports circulated thousands of Chinese guerillas had slipped into the city to haras sthe Japanese.

International Settlement police doubled their patrols and searched refugees camps for guerillas, equipped with firearms and explosives, hiding there. The arrest of two bomb throwers, after an attempt to blast a truck loaded with Japanese soldiers, and information that more than 2,000 terrorists had infiltrated the city, aroused police apprehensions.

One report said 5,000 special agents of the National Salvation Association and other patriotic organizations were in Shanghai and the surrounding area under orders to conduct a terrorist campaign against the Japanese.

Fierce fighting continued on the Shantung front, where Japan has been struggling to gain control of Central China. Latest despatches indicated the new Japanese offensive against Suchow and the Lunghai Railway has been blocked, but neither side claimed important successes.

(Reports from Peiping said foreign sources there confirmed the fact the Japanese lost 21 planes in their raid on Hankow, temporary Chinese capital, last Friday. The Chinese lost six or eight planes.)

BUTTER MARKET SHOWS WEAKNESS

Weakness in the butter market was reflected Saturday in a slight decline from the steady level it had maintained for weeks. Although many farmers obtained the price of 35 cents, some of the offerings were quoted several cents below that quotation. Eggs were firm around 18 to 20 cents and chickens at 25 cents a pound. Maple syrup was $2.20 and $2.25 a gallon, one of the producers beings Mrs. R. E. O'Connor from east of Marmora.

Certified Dooley potatoes were $1 a bag, and selected small samples of the variety were 75 cents. Erle Tully reported an improvement in the demand as compared with recent weeks. James Moore of Campbellcroft was offering white winter potatoes at 50 cents a bag. Apples were plentiful and some of the prices were 60 cents a peck for Spies, 50 cents for McIntosh Reds, and $1 a hamper for Starks.

Several farmers brought in young evergreen trees. Balsams were priced at 25 cents. They were seven years old. Younger spruce trees were also 25 cents each. Viking red raspberry canes were $1.50 a hundred.

still preserve self-government? I resolutely refuse to think othrwise. The Federal system, with its balance of powers, was willed to us less than 100 years ago.

'Ontario's government believes, with the exercise of present economy, the people of the nine provinces can be prosperous and still preserve their political heritage."

Urges New Conferences.

While the Premier did not hold the Canadian constitution inviolable he contended changes could be brought about only "by renewed conferences of the representatives of the people and with unanimity of approval."

"It would have been better to discuss provincial relations in conference, rather than by trying to 'make cases' before a commission," he said.

"As it is, the account rendered at Winnipeg was broadcast across Canada as a piece of economic injustice to the Prairies, established by sober calculation of the statisticians. Over a conference table set for 10, Manitoba's tariff brief would have been disposed of in the course of minutes as a bit of political arithmetic awry with reality."

Premier Hepburn, in his welcome to the five-man commission, expressed warm admiration for Chairman Newton W. Rowell as a distinguished son of Ontario.

"Few there are so richly endowed for service and few, if any, who have served their country in so many capacities—and served so well. You have been rewarded with the admiration of the Canadian people, the affections of the people of this province," he told Chief Justice Rowell.

His First Notice.

"And now may I express a long, deep note of discontent," the Premier continued, stating the first notice he received of the appointment of the commission "came at the breakfast table, from a morning newspaper."

"I was perplexed. Perhaps I should have surmised something of the sort was around the corner from something the Prime Minister had said a year ago in the House of Commons. My attention is frequently called to the right honorable gentleman's speeches but somehow I missed that one, and, upon inquiry, I learned that the Premier of another province had also missed it."

He suggested the objective of the commision bore so directly on the affairs of Provincial Government that all provinces should have been consulted about the commission appointment. "And I suspect several of the provinces were consulted."

In the recent Manitoba budget speech "several cats" were let out of the bag, the Premier submitted, for it was then disclosed Manitoba had conferred at Regina with Saskatchewan and Alberta about proceedings on June 3, 1937, "before most of us, at least the Premier of Ontario, knew there was to be a 'Rowell commission'."

Two American Experts.

"Not the least significant act of the Regina conference was the employment of two professors of American universities, and one of them 'an adviser to the United States treasury,' to assist in preparing a case against the Canadian treasury," Premier Hepburn declared.

"The matter I have been discussing has several folds of significance. For one thing, it illustrates the manner in which political business is conducted, and perhaps throws a sidelight on the decline of democracy."

At its Winnipeg hearing, the commission received from the Manitoba Government briefs including two "accounts rendered," one for $47,000,000 a year for 1931-36, and the other for $58,000,000 a year without time-limit, he said. That made the commission reference of even more concern to Ontario than it had been.

"Further, it is the considered opinion of this government that this commission should not have been appointed by order-in-council. The dignity of this commission, the gravity of its mission, warranted appointment by the Parliament of Canada.

"Only a few weeks ago the Prime Minister of Canada held that the export of a certain commodity should not be licensed by Order-in-Council, although to issue a license was clearly within the power of Council and, indeed, for years the practice. It was contended that relations with a foreign power deserved parliamentary action. The provinces are entitled to no less regard."

Not a Commission Matter.

Matters concerning the structure of Confederation, further, should not have been assigned to a commission at all, regardless of the distinction of its membership, the Premier argued. Confederation was the outcome of conferences and any change should be brought about only by renewed conferences.

"It follows that the Province of Ontario is not before this commission either as an applicant or as a governments were called upon to perform functions not foreseen at the time of Confederation.

"How people may adapt themselves and their political institutions to the social and economic pressure of today is quite the most important thing on earth. Are modern demands upon governments such that people may no longer govern themselves? European nations seem to have generally answered in the affirmative.

"Is our vision blurred at home? I do not, for a moment, suggest there is a formidably deliberate plan to destroy our parliamentary institutions. I do say, were the men of 1837 to take stock of our politics in 1938, they would find little left of the political ideals on which they placed such store."

He considered it strange that "the Manitobans" had protested against the setting of import duties by Order-in-Council, while "swallowing" apother Order-in-Council empowering a re-examination of the terms of Confederation itself.

By rearranging the public services, government might be able to eliminate waste, increase efficiency and "bring government closer to the people—all without changing the constitution," he suggested. Departments requiring frequent public attendance would "probably" be better for decentralization, as would federal departments which overlapped provincial departments, he said.

Noting the growth of federal government functions since Confederation, he mentioned control of credit and aviation as two. "The Fathers of Confederation never dreamed of the radio—and the Federal Government now uses it to broadcast news and advertise coffee, and other things, even on the Lord's Day, taxing the people for the privilege of listening in," he commented.

The Federal Government has acquired transcontinental railways, losing about $50,000,000 a year, and "now the Federal Government reaches out for a share in the control of the traffic on the highways."

"Shall we place the 'new services' with the Federal Government or with the Province? The answer does not depend wholly upon what we want governments to do for us. It depends upon what governments may do to us, once they are seized with power.

The Way to Autocracy

"For we are a stupid people if we imagine ourselves immune from the consequences of concentrating power in few hands. We may not disagree over the lessons of the time; and all time. The accumulation of power leads to autocracy. Its distribution is the safety-zone of democracy. . .

"It is not sufficient to say: Canada is unlike Germany and unlike Italy and unlike European countries that changed their constitutions to place power in the hands of governments that they might have a 'common standard of public and social service'."

His government was committed to a policy of unemployment insurance, he said, and he had promised co-operation when the Prime Minister stated the Federal Government was prepared to provide that service.

"Subsequent events have led me to consider the matter may be better left with the provinces, for no sooner had the matter been talked about than the capitalized wheat-growing interests of the West began a drive for 'crop insurance,'" he explained. Injection of the prospects of wheat crops altered the picture. Farm employment in the West was also a "highly uninsurable risk."

Arranged By Compact

He suggested when codes covering social services were required, they might better be arranged by "compact" between the provinces than by federal legislation. Ontario had already held helpful conferences with Quebec over proposed social enactments. "And Ontario is ready to co-operate with all the provinces, whenever it is found desirable to equalize social conditions."

"If it is proposed that readjustment be in the form of assigning more duties to an already overburdened, central government, more power to a government that has already departed from the well-thumbed practices of parliamentary institutions, then, sir, we have but to look across the Atlantic to read the destiny of the Canadian people."

Royal Commission Now Sitting In Toronto

The Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations is now conducting its hearings in the legislative chambers of the Ontario parliament buildings. Premier Hepburn will present the first part of Ontario's brief to the commission on May 2. Members of the commission are shown as they sat in the Ontario legislative chamber from LEFT to RIGHT: Dr. Robert A. MacKay, Dr. Joseph Sirois, Hon. N. W. Rowell, chairman of the commission; John W. EXPECT BUDGET DATE THIS WEEK

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP). — Resumption of Senate sessions and possible announcement of the budget date in the House of Commons held the interest of Parliament today as members assembled for another week of work.

The Senate will meet tomorrow after the long Easter recess—a week longer than Commons members took. Attention will be centered on the work of the special Senate Committee on Railways, which will begin its study of amalgamation proposals soon.

Finance Minister Dunning may tell the Commons this week the date on which he will bring down his budget. Mr. Dunning advised the House last Monday he was not able to name the date and this was interpreted as indicating he is waiting for completion of negotiations being conducted in Washington for a new trade agreement between Canada and the United States.

Norman Robertson of the Department of External Affairs, one of Canada's negotiators, was in Ottawa during the week-end and it is possible he advised the minister when the discussions may be completed.

Sessions of the Commons Railways committee which is studying the Transport Bill will share interests with the Senate study of amalgamation. Objections have been taken to some provisions of the bill which would enlarge the powers of the railway commissioners and enable them to regulate air and inland water transports as well as rail transport.

Relief Bill Up.

In the House of Commons members will consider the unemployment relief bill which would authorize expenditures on direct relief and projects for the provision of work This bill occupied the House most of last week.

Some observers believe the bill, backed by the Ontario Government, to give authority for Ontario and the State of New York to build a new bridge over the Niagara river will be passed this week. It has been talked out in private members' hour seven times. But acceptance of an amendment sponsored by Opposition Leader Bennett may have lessened Conservative opposition.

The amendment removed authority for the sponsors of the bridge to buy land and do other things authorized by the bill before a companion measure becomes law in the United States. Mr. Bennett charged the bill gave authority for the bridge backers to engage in real estate speculation.

C. A. Scadding Requests Aid For Crippled Young People

Describes Experiences In Moose River Disaster Before Millbrook Audience

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 2.—"As probably you will recall, it was two years ago that we were rescued", was the statement of C. A. Scadding, narrating his experiences in the famous Moose River mine disaster, before an audience listening with absorbed interest, in St. Andrew's Church on Wednesday evening, the event being under the auspices of the Woman's Association.

The guest speaker was introduced by the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, as "the Honorary President of the Crippled Children's Stamp Club of Ontario, and interested in all young people who have suffered physical disabilities." Before he closed his address, Mr. Scadding made an appeal "for any collections of stamps you may have around the house, and with which you would be willing to part; please mail them to 15 Queen's Park, or to C. A. Scadding, Toronto".

"We require 200,000 stamps to start with, and about 100,000 each month, that we may carry on with this hobby for the crippled children of our province; we give each child a membership card, a stamp album, 100 stamps, and a package of hinges, and we would greatly appreciate your help with this work."

"I have lost all my toes; both feet are now healed, but they are still very tender, and it is painful to walk, or to stand on them for any length of time," was the explanation given why the speaker of the evening sat throughout his lecture. "The experience we went through is not very terrible now as I look back upon it; we could sleep, and we did sleep, half the time we were underground. Our greatest terror was lest we should be drowned; I opened my penknife and determined I would slash both my wrists and bleed to death, rather than suffer death by drowning."

The fact that water was dripping on the trio, Dr. Robertson, Mr. McGill, and the speaker, all the time they were in the mine, and that it was steadily rising and was only eighteen feet from the survivors when they were rescued, led to the information that gold mines are always damp, from seepage and springs, the miners wearing oilskins and rubber boots, while in coal mines the contrary is true.

There was a touch of humor in the fact that the rock on which the three took refuge, and on which they lay down necessarily close together, was so limited in size, "that when we became stiff and wished to move to relieve our cramped limbs, all three would be disturbed, and there would be a dispute to get the right allotment of space when we settled back again".

"Apparently owing to some atmospheric change, we were under the impression that the rescuers ceased work at nightfall, and did not resume until the following morning—and what we were going to do to them when we got out was just to bad. We pictured them sitting down to hot suppers, in lighted homes, while we waited in darkness and uncertainty for release. We knew day from night all the time we were in the mine, and it is a fact that old miners can tell, without a watch, and quite correctly, when it changes from a.m. to p.m., and so know when to knock off work for the day."

Speaks of Drastic Cure

The familiar details of how food, flash lights, candles, medicine and other necessities were finally passed down to the imprisoned men through 160 feet of hose, were graphically described; incidentally it was mentioned that while soups, coffee, barley broth, etc., were poured into the tube boiling hot, they were ice cold when removed at the bottom, "and tasted of sulphur and rubber, since the hose was new, thus making us sick to our stomachs when we attempted to drink them." Pathetic in detail, the death of Mr. McGill was described, the result not of a fractured skull from the frightful blow when his head struck a rock as he fell, but from a perforated stomach, caused by a gastric ulcer. Both 'Mac' and Dr. Robertson were affected in mind during the long detention underground, but the latter 'snapped out of it' when he overheard Mr. Scadding phoning details to the surface after he thought the doctor had fallen asleep. "I had the 'phone under my coat and spoke softly, but he heard me and said I saved his reason by that action". It appears like a drastic cure, but the speaker declared it true that while Dr. Robertson suffered from rheumatism when he went into the mine, he has never had it since; "possibly the enforced fasting had something to do with driving it out of his system". Mr. Scadding's trouble was the gangrene which developed in his feet, making necessary the amputation of his toes in the hospital at Halifax after release.

The thrilling story of how the rescuers finally broke a twisted passage through the tumbled rock, and brought the entombed men to the surface, made so familiar through radio and press in the anxious days two years ago this month, climaxed a tale that was recounted simply and naturally, and with vivid word pictures throughout.

Musical selections that prefaced the lecture included a piano duet by Esther Might and Marie Douglas; a vocal duet, "Beautiful Night," by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss Eva Hansman; a piano solo, played entirely with the left hand, by Leslie Unitt, and a song "London Town", by his little son, Billie; William Edworthy played while the audience was gathering.

Warning Issued To Bicycle Riders

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 2. — The number of bicycles operated by 'teen age boys and girls in this village has increased to such a degree recently that they have become a hazard to motorists at the main intersection.

Practically every evening they have made a habit of congregating at the main intersection in groups and motorists have complained that several near accidents have resulted.

Chief of Police William Wellman has issued warning that this practice must be discontinued. He also forbids more than one on a bicycle and prohibits them from riding on the sidewalk.

Sunday lacrosse and softball at the village park will in future be prohibited. The park is situated on front street and in a central part of the village.

MAGISTRATE TO RETIRE

TORONTO, May 2 — (C.P.). — Magistrate Janes Edmund Jones will be retired immediately from the Toronto Police Court Bench, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today. A successor has not yet been chosen.

The Premier explained that when Magistrate Jones reached the retirement age of 70 two years ago, it had been agreed that he would remain on the bench for only one year more. "He has remained nearly a year more than the agreed time," said Mr. Hepburn, "and we have decided to ask him to retire."

NEURITIS

"Kept from work for 3 weeks"

Anyone who has experienced the pain of Neuritis knows only too well how this ailment will put a shoulder, arm or leg out of action. Not only do you have the sharp pains to contend with, but perhaps fear of lying up and losing your job, too. Mr. V. H. says:

"My left arm kept me from work for three weeks with Neuritis. I went to one man, and he gave me oil, but it was no use. I then went to another, he gave me ointment, that was no use. Then I tried a bottle of Fynnon Salt, and within a few days, I was ready for work."

This is only one of the many cases where the regular use of Fynnon Salt has helped Rheumatic ailments. Why is this particular remedy so beneficial? Because it gets down to the cause. A ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water releases a combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium—"Salts of the Earth" similar to those that give famous Mineral Springs their beneficial properties. They work through your system, assisting in breaking up the painful Uric Acid crystals, driving out poisons, and assist the liver to fuller action. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt 75c at all druggists'. 32

Many A Man

Has escaped a nervous breakdown

It is now becoming generally known, by word of mouth from one person to another, that scores of nervous, worried business men attribute their escape from nervous collapse to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Business cares and worries of recent years have made men old before their time. Almost daily you read of prominent men dropping out in the very prime of life.

Others have survived, because they learned in time of a way to restore nerve force to the body. As a result, weak, halting vital organs have again assumed their natural functions. Rest and sleep have become possible, and mind and body have been restored to normal. If you find yourself slipping ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In almost every family there is some one who has profited by use of this modern restorative.

North American Life Salesmen Meet

Bringing to a close President's Month in honor of Thomas Bradshaw, the Company's President, Central Ontario representatives gathered in Peterborough on Saturday to mark the successful conclusion of this effort which resulted in an unprecedented volume of new business. Plans were laid for the coming months, this aggressive Central Ontario agency declaring war on all other agencies of the Company, the military strategy being decided at a secret meeting in Company headquarters at Fort Empress. It was a most enthusiastic meeting with over 40 representatives present. This agency, for three consecutive years the premier agency of the Company, is now planning to add additional laurels by again leading all the Company's agencies in 1938. Announcement was made of a 60 day effort culminating in a three day fishing trip in July to the Northern Lakes. Golf, entertainment and dinner at the Kawartha Club brought a very successful convention to a close. Those present from Peterborough were: D. V. Ketcheson, P. A. Martyn, H. J. Tudhope, J. A. McLaren, C. N. Taylor, T H. Blanchard, E. G. Jones, L. M. Begley. Seen in this picture are, in front row from left to right, Bram Hawkins, Barrie; Miss Evelyn Bateman, Oshawa; Gord McMahon, Kingston. Memorial Service For Dr. Pogue Is Held In St. Paul's Church

Readings From Sermons Of Dr. Pogue Form Part Of Service

"Your presence here tonight betokens the blessings that come from such a ministry as that of the beloved dead. We meet to express esteem and affection for him with a warm response of sympathy to his family in the lass they have sustained, while what we too know as a great loss makes us feel how closely brought together we are in the Spirit of Jesus, knowing we are all one in the Unity of Christ Jesus."

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr addressed a large congregation that filled St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday night at the special Memorial Service for the late Rev. Robert Pogue, D.D., who for seventeen years was minister of St. Paul's.

Taking as his text, St. Paul's words (Heb., ii., 4), "He being dead yet speaketh," Dr. Barr devoted the greater part of his sermon to readings from sermons by the late beloved minister, selecting for quotations a wonderful series on "The Victorious Life." Speaking of the example shown by long ministries in the church, with reference to the years the late minister served in St. Paul's, Dr. Barr said: 'He went up and down the streets of this city, into the highways and byways, entering homes with a word of cheery greeting, and in the pulpit proclaiming the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Some may say he belonged to the 'old school,' but in these chaotic days in which we live, it is the preaching of the old school that tells," declared Dr Barr, "the church is compelled by sociology, psychology and so on to get back to the job of preaching simply the Gospel of Redemption."

Divided Into 3 Sections.

Dr. Pogue's sermons on the "Victorious Life" was divided into three sections, "Life of Self," need for "Self-Examination," and by progressive steps to "The New Life." In the first section he said the "self-life"—what the Scriptures speak of as "the flesh"—is our greatest enemy to the enjoyment of the Victorious Life in Christ. It, the self life, is "the sum total of our life as untouched and unguided by the Spirit of God" and not to know "what it means in all things to be Christ-controlled and Christ-guided."..."If you do not in all things take His Will for your life instead of your own then you will never know the peace of God which passeth all understanding."..."Self-seeking—the smallness—meanness—utterly unchristlike character of it! Yet that too is one of the unseemly things we too often see in the church of God," wrote Dr. Pogue. "Oh, to be like Him, Who came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life a ransom for others."

Quoting from the second section of the series, "Self-Examination," Dr. Barr exclaimed, "I can almost hear his voice as he says, 'I plead with you'!" Dr. Pogue was pleading with his hearers to be honest with themselves in the work of self-examination, and in the light of God's Word to acknowledge all sin to be sin, not excusing or condoning any wrong thing in their lives. "I would ask you to begin with your secret life—where no eye sees you but the eye of God—pray the prayer of my text, 'Search me, O God, and know my heart, try me and know my thoughts.' Think of your thoughts of God—and thoughts of your fellow-men."

In the third section, "The New Life," Dr. Pogue took the texts, "Nevertheless I live, yet not I, Christ liveth in me," and "Yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead." "These verses," wrote the late minister, "bring us back to that precious truth—our union with Christ. Previous to conversion self is on the throne. When I receive Christ and yield myself to Him, He takes the throne and begins to reign over and control my life. And in addition there is the communication to me of a new life, the very life which is in Christ Jesus, which makes it possible, not only to die unto sin but to live unto God."

Preserve Democracy.

In concluding, Dr. Barr said there is no life worth while that is given over to self-interests. People all up and down North America are anxious about the preservation of democracy, but the real danger to democracy is not from without but from within, from the self-seeking of our own people. "Let me add a word to the pleading word of him, who 'being dead yet speaketh,' that we consecrate our life to Jesus, find new life in Him, new faith, new sense of brotherhood and a new idea of the coming Kingdom of God."

The impressive Memorial Service included appropriate music, the hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Hush, Blessed are the Dead," a quartet of male voices, "That Beautiful Land," and an anthem by the choir, "What are these arrayed in white robes" from Stainer's "Crucifixion." Dr. Barr offered a prayer of thanksgiving "for the beloved minister, his courtesy and devotion to duty that made Thy servant now asleep in Jesus so beloved of all."

The family of the late minister, Mrs. Pogue, two sons and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pogue, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pogue, three unmarried sons, Paul, John and Russell, and one daughter, Miss Mary Pogue, were present at the service and occupied the pew they formerly used.

ROBBERIES TRAIL FOUR CAR THEFTS

LONDON, Ont., May 2 (C.P.). — A trail of stolen and abandoned motor cars led across Western Ontario and back again to-day and in its wake came reports of a series of thefts, robberies, and safeblowings from Toronto to the Windsor border.

London police are holding Fred Jones, 24, of Windsor, Ont., on a vagrancy charge and in the meantime investigation is under way of car thefts at Toronto, Chatham, London, and Wardsville, and attempts to break into gas pumps at Kent Bridge and London.

Jones was taken into custody early yesterday. Police said he and a companion were driving in a stolen car. Stopped by an officer and unable to produce a licence for the car, police said the pair bolted from the automobile. One of the men escaped.

Safe-blowings at Windsor and Toronto and an attempt to break open the safe at Maple Leaf Milling Company here are being investigated.

GREEKS TO RALLY

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP).—The first national Canadian convention of the Order of Ahepa, the Anglo-Hellenic Educational Progressive Association, will be held here tomorrow and Wednesday with approximately 600 Canadians of Greek descent from all Canadian chapters participating.

DENY DETECTIVE CHASING A THIEF IN FATAL CRASH

BRAMPTON, Ont., May 2 (CP)—Police said they established today Detective James Watson of Toronto was not chasing a stolen car when his automobile struck an iron bridge structure 12 miles north of here yesterday, killing the officer instantly.

Witnesses said the Watson car was speeding at 90 miles an hour when it failed to negotiate a sharp curve in the highway and crashed into the bridge.

Watson was driving from Mount Forest to Toronto with Marvin Breadon, 17, of Guelph, and Joseph Glinski of St. Catharines who were not seriously hurt in the crash.

The fact Watson had been investigating a case of car theft at Mount Forest was believed to have led to reports last night that he was pursuing a stolen car when his machine got out of control.

26 DEMOCRATS SEEK NEW TERM

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP).—Twenty-six Democratic members of Congress, some for and some against the Roosevelt Administration, made last minute appeals to their party members in four States to-day for renomination in to-morrow's primary elections.

Three United States senators and 23 representatives sought party support in Indiana, Alabama, South Dakota and Florida. Failure to win would mean they either would have to run as independents in the November elections or relinquish hope of another term.

Republicans will hold primaries at the same time, but only two of the House of Representative seats are involved—those of which Representatives Case of South Dakota and Halleck of Indiana seek renomination.

In some districts, the Democratic vote will afford the first test of administration strength since the party's overwhelming victory of 1936. In others, local issues predominate.

JURY TO TRY LAWYER

TORONTO, May 2—(CP).—John H. Naughton, lawyer of suburban Richmond Hill, elected trial by jury today on three charges of theft of money totalling $5,313.

Naughton is charged with theft from 1934 to 1938, of $2,300 from Marjorie and Alice Willis, $1,150 from John A. Bowes and Laura Bowes, and $1,863 from Lizzie Taylor, Wesley Gohn, Sadie Brooke and William F. Brooke, executors of the estate of the late William J. Brooke.

A Serious Charge

Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew makes a great many addresses, and the subjects on which he speaks cover a wide range. He is not at all afraid to say exactly what he thinks and for that reason he is usually an acceptable speaker. Recently in Toronto he said that funds collected by the Canadian National Railways from employees for pensions, to be held in trust, are being used to meet the current operating expenses of the road.

That was indeed a glaring charge. When we first noticed it the feeling was divided two ways: (1) if that charge were correct then it would constitute a thoroughly glaring breach of trust on the part of those responsible for the collection of such funds, or (2) that Mr. Drew was wrong in his statement.

W. A. Kingsland, an official of the C.N.R., has not let the matter rest long, as he has come forward with a statement which says the charge of Lieut.-Col. Drew is wrong all the way through, and intimates it is the equivalent of slander. Mr. Kingsland says all the money collected for the pension fund is invested in Dominion of Canada bonds of Dominion of Canada guaranteed bonds, and these securities are all registered in the name of the C.N.R. Pension Annuity Trust Account.

Mr. Kingsland did well to make his statement at once. We hope it overtakes the charge made by Lieut.-Col. Drew so that none will be in doubt. If there were any truth whatever in the claim made by the speaker in his Toronto address it would have been sufficient to shake the confidence of every employee of the Canadian National in the honesty and good faith of the road for which that employee is working. It would be sufficient to bring the system into national disrepute.

Lt.-Col. Drew can hardly afford to let the matter rest where Mr. Kingsland has placed it—squarely on Mr. Drew's doorstep. The man made straight-worded charges of a nature which was serious to the last degree; it struck plainly and openly at the integrity of a national railway system. Mr. Drew should now state whether Mr. Kingsland is suppressing any information of which he has knowledge—or he should say plainly he was misinformed and regrets what he said.

Gardening Plan Ends

At the peak of the city's assisted gardening scheme members of the council had talked of a permanent development contemplating lots of small acreage with adequate houses as a means of helping some citizens to avoid recourse to relief. It was probably last year that extension of the gardening scheme was cautiously mentioned. Today nothing remains of the original scheme and its broader variant. Members of the council have intimated that the community gardening plan, recognized as a successful venture from year to year, and extolled as practical means of helping quite a number of citizens from becoming dependent upon relief, is not likely to be continued this season. An explanatory reason is that relief schedules and costs are higher and the gardens were an additional expense that need not be incurred. From the reports in other years of the number of persons engaged in the community gardening project, from the quantities of their products, and from the spirit of industry, employment and self-help, all assets to be credited to the scheme, and from the experience in management the council has acquired, it seems rather a community loss that the council is now closing a chapter that had been frequently mentioned as one of the brighter experiences of the years during the depression.

A Matter Of Confidence

Controller Nora Henderson of Hamilton created quite a stir in her own bailiwick recently when she charged she was offered a bribe if she would switch her vote on some question affecting the application of a gas company. The bribe in question was something like a good job for the rest of her days. Miss Henderson was annoyed and came forth with her charges. An investigation was held and a good deal of evidence was heard. The finding is that there was no ground on which to fix a bribery charge.

When the case was being heard it was shown that Mark Lynch-Staunton had interviewed Controller Henderson regarding the stand she was taking on the gas deal. Before discussing it with her he made it plain he was speaking to her in confidence, and Miss Henderson agreed the conversation was to be on that basis. Controller Henderson was for some years a journalist. Still is we believe. With her knowledge of journalism she would have known that when a conversation was stated to be confidential the person to whom she was talking was trusting her entirely. Mr. Lynch-Staunton would take it for granted he was not speaking for publication, and he would also be showing that he understood journalistic ethics and would believe he was speaking in confidence. After having agreed to that basis of conversation it seemed strange that Controller Henderson would seek to afterward depart from it. Any person in the newspaper business knows that breaking confidence is something which is not done. There have been cases where reporters and editors have gone to jail rather than disclose where they secured certain information because they secured it on the understand that the source of that information was a matter of confidence. It is also an accepted fact among newspaper people that breaking confidence is something which is not tolerated. It is one of those unwritten laws which is more binding than the printed word. Miss Henderson may have felt her duty to the public was to make an exposure; she has done so and a fair inquiry has made it plain she was not offered a bribe.

Addressing A Letter

There is a new sign over the inside letter slot at the post office, and duplicates of it are going to be just as prominently affixed to all the receiving letter boxes throughout the city. The sign bears this simple advice: "Be sure your mail is properly addressed". Every day people in Peterborough write letters and postcards that are destined for the dead letter office. Perhaps they have concentrated so much on the message in the letter that their attention lapses at the finishing touches on the envelopes. Psychologists would probably explain that this weakness is a proof of the old experience that people really don't like writing letters, with the possible exception of those effusions of sentiment by which men "impale themselves on their pothooks".

The postal department has at times performed miracles in delivering letters that were insufficiently addressed. It seems the dead letter office in Ottawa, and also in Toronto, have street directories of all the cities and towns in the country. When they get a letter to "Rip Van Winkle, 67 Amsterdam Avenue" and nothing else, some clerk has to pore through directories until they find a town with an Amsterdam Avenue, and then they look along the street to see if there is a house number 67 occupied by Rip Van Winkle. Sometimes the postal clerks in the local office can divine the address that has been omitted, because they usually know a lot more than is published in books, and some of them have surprisingly retentive memories.

In any case and by whatever method finally supplies the letter writer's oversight it is all an impediment to efficiency in the postal service, and the department is all the time trying to make the way smoother for its mail to go through promptly and with the least necessary effort. Moreover, it adds to the cost of the department, for dead letters have to be handled by clerks in the central office, and the people have to pay them their salaries. So if you write a post card to Rosamond Crusoe telling her to meet you in Hamilton on Saturday, at least for the postal department's sake write the address on it. Probably it is asking too much to add a return address on the back or up in the left hand corner, but that is one of the ideals the postal directors are seeking.

How People Live

There has been a marked tendency in recent times to discuss how people live. The discussion ceases to be an academic affair on economic conditions in general, and has a tendency to look closely at salaries, taxes, prices of goods and all such things.

When the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations was in session at Toronto the Canadian Association of Social Workers presented a brief, and back of it was a deal of experience from practical people who had studied the problem for themselves. This commission has at various places heard people presenting evidence on the manner in which we are governed, on the effects of tariffs and freight rates, but that Toronto delegation stuck to that one homely topic—how people live.

The problem presented dealt almost exclusively with low-income families, and that is right enough. Families with sufficient income can probably care for themselves. The low-income group are those where earnings are $900 per year or less. Figures quoted for food were based on reports of the Ontario Medical Association as being minimum for the average family. On a weekly basis it was worked out this way:

Rent	$ 5.30	Light	.35
Food	8.50	Water	.19
Clothing	5.00	Soap, etc	.35
Fuel	1.32
Gas	.58	Total	$21.59

On top of this is placed 10 per cent. for extras, such as replacement of furnishings, insurance, car fare, sickness, etc., bringing the total to something close to $24 per week, and below that it is claimed a family should not be expected to live.

The Examiner asked several housekeepers what they thought of that list, and the answer of one was virtually the answer of them all. About like this:

"In a city the size of Toronto it would not always be possible to get a house for $5.30 per week which would be about 22 per month. I think clothing at $5 a week is a little too high for a family; I can do it on less than $260 a year for my family, but it means that I must do a good deal of sewing myself. I could not guarantee to heat a house for $1.32 per week. If there were a furnace in it I do not think it could be done, and I could not cook on 58 cents' worth of gas for a week. I can feed our family of four on $8.50 per week, but there is not much for what one might call extras or new things as they come in, but it can be done."

One of the women answering the question said it was possible to live on $24 per week and keep out of debt because she was doing it. The Toronto report dealt as well with the case of one man who has a position with the city and he is paid $28.80 per week, but his work lasts for only seven months of the year, and for that reason his fixed income comes down to $17.17 per week for the entire year. If he were able to find anything to do in the other five months that figure would be increased. That family is an illustration of the effect of the lay-off on family income. Perhaps an extreme case, but for that reason all the more real. In all though it makes an interesting and rather wholesome discussion because the conditions under which people live have a great deal to do with the trend and nature of their thinking, their outlook and their actions.

SYSTEM

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Neighbor C is keen indeed, in getting in some bulbs and seed, he purchases his right soon; he visits all the stores he knows, and looks at everything that grows, then takes it home at noon.

¶ When C is buying all this stuff, he always seem to talk enough, in fact he boasts out loud; he loves to work with seeds and soil, he's not ashamed of honest toil, he tells it to the crowd.

¶ He bought a hoe that's rather small, it's not a man-size hoe at all, the smallest thing that's made; he bought a rake about the same, it's small and dainty in its frame, likewise a gentle spade.

¶ And C explains when he gets home, he does not like to plan alone, he wants them all to share; so when the posies turn out real, why all the folks will know and feel, a family affair.

¶ His wife and daughter both agree, how that's the way things ought to be, they like his compliments; and they go forth to break the soil, and put in hours of honest toil, with tiny implements.

¶ Then C brings out the seed and stuff, but he don't use the soil too rough, he neither heaves nor bends; he gives advices on how things grow, and measures off each drill and row—and sort of superintends.

All Fishing Laws Are Not Perfect

BY "HOOK AND LINE"

IT SEEMS TO ME that the best way to get to the base of our conservation problems is by frank and open discussion of the laws that now govern activity in hunting and fishing throughout the province. Admittedly, the present laws are not perfect and they will hardly become perfect unless we bring our grievances into the open. It is human nature to do a little ranting in private and then close up like a clam when the proper moment arrives, but such an attitude has never performed any useful service.

Now, it has been brought home to me, by word of mouth and by letters, too, that all is not well as regards to new regulations covering fishing for pickerel during the closed season for bass and maskinonge. It appears that, while the majority are pleased with the rule permitting fishing from shore, some are not at all enthused over the banning of artificial lures. Since these rumblings reached me, I have given the matter considerable thought and must say (though I have still to hear from you), that when the motive for such a ruling is known, that it appears to be a just one.

It must be apparent to those who read the regulations that practically all of the restrictions placed on pickerel fishing have not been made with a view to protecting pickerel but are aimed at the indirect protection of the bass and maskinonge during their period of spawning. The restriction of artificial lures seems to fall into this class. It bars the illegal fisherman from casting a plug under the nose of the spawning bass and more or less precludes the possibility of the same people from fishing those waters where pickerel are seldom, if ever, caught. Now if such restriction accomplish these objects, they no doubt perform a service which amply justifies their existence.

* * *

THOSE IN FAVOR of fishing with artificial lures during the above mentioned period put forth two main arguments. First, that there are a great many of the more enthusiastic pickerel fishermen who do not possess cars or bicycles which would enable them to obtain the minnows necessary to successful pickerel fishing. If they could get minnows without any great effort the Department could bar plug-baits and spoons indefinitely—that's their opinion. And in the second place, they argue, the pickerel supply is not lowered by forbidden artificial lures because most of the pickerel caught (legally) in the spring are taken by minnows. Why not bar minnows if the pickerel need protection?

The second item is answered by the explanation in the preceding paragraphs. The protection of the pickerel does not at present appear to be of prime importance—in fact there is an element that would like to see them removed at the earliest convenience. This is unfortunate because when the day of the bass and muskie becomes a legend, the pickerel will be the fish we will have to advertise to our tourist friends—and it would be a good idea if we learned a few of its better points now.

But the other argument presents a problem. I have fished with those fellows that make the annual pilgrimage to Lower Locks, the Bonnet and the other spots on the river, and I know the way that they feel about such a regulation; the people who conceived it, and the Fish and Game Protective Association, even though the latter had no hand in it. Included in this group are the boys from the various factories who work till five each night or later and therefore have little time to get out after minnows, the unemployed who have no means of getting out and those fishermen whose knowledge of the art of minnow fishing is a minus quantity.

It is a question whether the results obtained justify the ill feeling created among this group. I have heard of too many bass and maskinonge taken off the spawning beds to minimize the necessity of some sort of ruling designed to cut down on such unsportsmanlike practice. We can't afford to leave loop-holes through which the unscrupulous may leap.

The only alternative would be to name certain specific waters where artificial lures may be used—endeavouring in some way to tie the restriction down as tight as possible in those areas where pickerel are non-existent.

Undoubtedly, the readers have some ideas on the subject.

* * *

AND BY THE WAY, since I have made reference to the art of fishing with minnows, (and it is an art), I have a little suggestion that I am passing on to you for what it is worth. One of my best friends passed it along to me several years ago. He believes that a minnow caught on a barbed minnow-hook in the afternoon or morning and used for bait that same evening is a very sick and inefficient fellow, devoid of those essential qualities that pickerel recognize as 'it'. When my friend and I go fishing we get our minnows several days ahead of time and allow them to recuperate in a specially designed aquarium. After several days' convalescence they go about their allotted task with renewed vigor.

The only flaw in his theory is that you have at some time or other caught pickerel with dead minnows. I asked my friend about this and he assures me that if you have caught pickerel with dead minnows, they must have been a particularly ferocious brand of pickerel with no respect for the dead and even less for theory.

WEEK-END DIVERSION.

(London Daily Herald)

THOUSANDS of week-end trippers seriously handicapped the police in their hunt for the murderer of Mrs. Margaret Peel, the Fewston shopkeeper. All roads leading to the village were blocked for hours with cars, buses and bicycles. Police had to be called from the hunt to straighten out the traffic.

People peered inside the window of Mrs. Peel's cottage. Others tried to make purchases at Mrs. Peel's shop. They were told by a police constable on guard that the shop was closed. Picnic parties also besieged Mrs. Peel's grave.

Some Bonds Still Pay 6½ Per Cent.

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. HEAPS: I was pleased to learn that the minister was exploring every possible avenue in an attempt to reduce the interest load on the Canadian National railways system. I notice that by the refunding of the present loan approximately $3,000,000 is to be saved.

Mr. DUNNING: No; $3,900,000 has been saved under the authority of the act which has now exhausted. Perhaps I conveyed the wrong impression.

Mr. HEAPS: It is so difficult to hear what is said in this chamber that possibly I misunderstood the minister. There has been a slight reduction on account of refunding operations by the government. We were informed in the railway committee that if we could reduce the total amount outstanding and convert those loans to a three per cent. level the annual saving would be about $12,000,000, about one-quarter of the total annual interest charges on the Canadian National Railways. There are still outstanding some loans that pay six and a half per cent. interest. These loans were negotiated in 1921 and today they bear a rate of six and a half per cent.

Mr. DUNNING: Six and a half per cent?

Mr. HEAPS: Yes; it will be found in the Canadian National report. I believe that that represents some $25,000,000.

Mr. DUNNING: There is $24,000,000 six and a half per cent. Canadian Northern guaranteed by the Dominion.

Mr. HEAPS: I remember there was a loan of approximately that amount bearing an interest rate of six and a half per cent. I do not think that any government guaranteed loan ought to bear an interest rate of six and a half per cent. It is far too high. The minister will recognize that. Personally I should like to see the Department of Finance use every means at their disposal in an effort to get the interest structure down to a level where there shall be no outstanding loans at more than three per cent. per annum. That is a fair rate to pay. When we begin discussing questions of economy in connection with the railways, that is the first place where in my opinion economies should be affected.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I have no desire to discuss this question today or to do anything that would embarrass the minister in his negotiations, but when he suggests that anyone who makes a plea for a change in existing arrangements is guilty of urging the government to break its pledged word—

Mr. DUNNING: I did not say that.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: —then I challenge that statement. I do like the high moral tone assumed in the case of perpetual bonds while on the other hand the people of Canada are allowed to suffer under an injustice simply because someone speaking for the government years ago committed this country to certain obligations—call it obligations if you like— that were unjust and unwarranted. It does not seem to me that we should take the ground that simply because certain legal obligations were incurred at that time there is no way of getting out of the difficulty. A good many people are suggesting that some way must be found—

Mr. DUNNING: I agree with that.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: —and I do not think that we ought to be told that we are immoral—

Mr. DUNNING: I must take exception to that; I never used such a word—

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I know the minister did not.

Mr. DUNNING: —nor did I intend to convey any such implication. So far as I am concerned the imputation should be withdrawn.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I gladly withdraw it. But the minister took very high moral ground when he said that we must maintain our honourable obligations, and so on. That is hardly fair in a matter of this kind. We should not have had perpetual bonds. No one should be permitted, in the name of the country, to put this country under tribute as it is under tribute today. There are certain ways of adjusting these debts on a fair basis. We have had examples in the west, under the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, in which very definite changes in arrangements have been made. If it could be done with the small mortgage holder it can be done with the larger mortgage holders that we call bondholders, whether resident in this country or outside.

Mr. DUNNING: Does my hon. friend suggest that we should put the railways into bankruptcy?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: The railways should have been put into bankruptcy many years ago, before they were taken over.

How to Pay For a City Hall

(Ottawa Journal)

MAYOR LEWIS suggests raising by public subscription the money for a city hall in Ottawa, suggests it would be a fine thing if each of our 142,000 people gave $5 towards it. That, with the assistance of the occasional tag day and perhaps a slice of the Community Chest fund, ought to do the trick. Or perhaps the Mayor was being facetious.

What the Journal would like to suggest, in all seriousness, is that we take a long vision of this city hall problem, raise the money for it out of taxes, save it up, and when we build pay cash on the spot for every last stone and timber and bit of labor.

Let us see how it would work. If we put aside out of taxes $100,000 a year for eight years, invest it at three per cent., invest the income, let the whole thing accumulate, let it stand working for us two years after the final payment, we should have in ten years' time a fund roundly of a million dollars. Then we could go ahead with the building.

On the other hand, if we do the ordinary thing, borrow a million dollars, pay interest on the debentures for fifteen or twenty years, we shall still have a million-dollar city hall but it will cost us probably a million and a haf before the last bond is retired.

In other words, on the one hand we get a million-dollar building for $800,000 of the taxpayers' money; on the other, we have the same building for $1,500,000 out of taxes.

There is nothing urgent about a city hall. We are doing nicely without one. It would seem, in fact, a perfect set-up for a highly profitable display of unconventional finance.

"Closed" Shop Stayed That Way.

(San Francisco Argonaut)

THE BOSTON Transcript carried a story of labor relations under the Wagner Act that was typical in everything but its ending of the way countless other disputes have been settled by the National Labor Relations Board.

In this case a group of employes in a trunk factory in Chicago; dissatisfied with conditions and demanding the usual "sole "bargaining" powers went to the Board in Washington following a strike of a month's duration. Before the Board, they charged that an illegal company union had been formed, and asked that the working agreement between the company and the "inside" union be voided.

The usual hearings were held and what has come to be the usual decision was rendered by the Board. That is, the employes won their contentions; the "inside" union was ordered disbanded, the group which originally took the matter to Washington was recognized as the sole bargaining agents for all employes in the plant, and the back pay lost while on strike was ordered restored.

But, while the pattern of events up to this point was similar to the pattern in hundreds of other cases, the conclusion of this case struck a note of warning that all parties will do well to heed. The trunk company found that it had lost so much business and good will as a result of the strike and the cost of its defense before the Labor Board in Washington (for the manner in which proceedings of this kind are conducted virtually makes a criminal out of the company before the "trial" starts) was so great that the only thing left to do was to go out of business.

"So," comments the Transcript "a concern which has been operating in Chicago for seventy-eight years and has been employing 125 men, is now in process of liquidation. In another month the factory will be abandoned and the machinery dismantled."

It was a Pyrrhic victory indeed that the employes won before the Labor Board in this case. And while this is but an isolated instance with relatively little at stake, it must be clear that as long as the one-sided decisions of the National Labor Relations Board persisted so long and so constantly in favor of C.I.O. unions that even William Green of the American Federation of Labor has come out against granting the Board more power) there can be no industrial peace.

The Transcript concludes: "The moral is plain and it is time that it was learned particularly by the More Abundant Lifers down in Washington. No power on earth, labor union, or National Labor Relations Board, can force an employer to run his business permanently at a loss. The Wagner Act has deprived him of most of his privileges but he still has the right to close up shops when the odds against him are too great."

BIG BUSINESS

(St. Catharines Standard)

A quarter of a million people in Canada secure small loans of $500 or less from the chartered banks. The amount approximates $100,000,000, including big and small loans. It is big business and the least advertised big business in the whole Dominion.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

IS NOT destruction to the wicked? and a strange punishment to the workers of iniquity? . . . If I have walked with vanity, or if my foot hath hasted to deceit; let me be weighed in an even balance, that God may know mine integrity. If my step hath turned out of the way, and mine heart walked after mine eyes, and if any blot hath cleaved to mine hands; then let me sow, and let another eat; yea, let my offspring be rooted out. . . . If my land cry against me, or that the furrows likewise thereof complain: if I have eaten the fruits thereof without money, or have caused the owners thereof to lose their life: let thistles grow instead of wheat, and cockle instead of barley. The words of Job are ended.—Job xxxi, 3, 5-8, 38-40.

To The Editor

THE CRISIS IN EUROPE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Though A. L. Kennedy the former associate editor of The Times lays the blame for the present rearmament madness of Europe squarely upon the shoulders of France for refusing the terms and guarantees offered by Germany and accepted by Great Britain and Italy. The latest advice show that Great Britain has formed a complete alliance with France with Germany as the "enemy."

Germany's extraordinary development in Europe is the cause. The treaty of Locarno was a failure because France refused to include the air as one of the elements of disarment. The deadly enmity of France and Germany is about to plunge the world in another war.

THE LITTLE CHURCH.

(New York Herald Tribune)

THE Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration (the Little Church Around the Corner) has observed the fifteenth anniversary of the rectorship of the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, and this event serves as a reminder of the unique place which this church, which nestles among the high buildings in East Twenty-ninth street, has upon the affections of the people not only of this city but in many [illegible] of the earth.

The parish, now in its 90th year, has been hampered little, if at all, by the shifts in population or the changes in the character of that section of the city. It is still the favorite place of all for romantic couples to be married. "The Family of the Little Church Around the Corner", of which Dr. Ray is head, has a membership of more than 20,000; these people are scattered from Cape Town to Nome, but they remember the Little Church.

During his rectorship Dr. Ray has upheld the traditions of the church, which include marriages that endure, a vast amount of human tolerance and an attitude of friendliness toward the members of the theatrical profession. This church is one of the beloved landmarks of New York and should endure forever.

DESTROYING COFFEE

(Montreal Star)

SOMETIMES thoughtful housewives who read the newspapers have been a little piqued, when their grocer tells them the price of coffee, to remember that down in Brazil they are busy heaping the stuff on to bonfires. According to reports from Rio de Janeiro, the Brazilians are stoking up the fires again for a new coffee-burning spree. The National Coffee Department is proposing to buy and destroy 30 per cent. of the 1938-39 crop, or about 7,500,000 sacks. Of last year's crop 70 per cent has been burned.

CLAIMS HEPBURN HAS 500 SPECIALS

WINDSOR, Ont., May 2 (CP). — A May Day audience of 800 last night heard Fred Collins, Toronto Labor organizer, charge that Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario had maintained 500 special police which had cost approximately $11,000 up to the present time.

"I want to know why," he said. "Is it in the interests of the automobile workers or the unemployed? We should tell Mr. Hepburn we don't want an army of police. We should say to him, 'What you do need is to call your government into session and give to workers the right of organizing'."

Collins predicted Quebec's padlock law would be removed from the statute books because of a growing movement to have it declared illegal. Both Collins and Charles P. Millard of Oshawa, the principal speakers at a meeting in the Windsor Labor Lyceum, pleaded for a greater united front as the only solution of economic problems and higher wages. Millard is regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America in Canada.

At the conclusion of his address, Collins expressed hope that through solidarity workers here would be able to say "Yes, dear comrades of the Soviet Union, we are trying to emulate what you have done, and what you have achieved."

EXPERT ON TANKS BACK FROM COURSE

WINDSOR, Ont., May 2 (CP).—Major F. F. Worthington, M.C., M.M., commandant of the Canadian Tank School, Camp Borden, who has just returned from England after spending 16 months studying training methods employed by the Royal Tank Corps of the British Army, came to Windsor over the weekend to bring the official greetings of the British corps to Lt.-Col. George Y. Masson of the Essex Tank Regiment. He confirmed the alliance of the local regiment to the famous British Tank Corps, the first such alliance made in Canada.

The Royal Tank Corps, Major Worthington told Col. Masson, was greatly pleased with the alliance. The greatly increased armament program in the Old Land is having its effects throughout the colonies, said the Major, and tank units are among those being most eagerly formed and trained. The Essex regiment, although quite recently organized, has the distinction of being the "pioneer" in the opinion of Major Worthington.

Two arms of the service are the basis for the British Army program of the future, the Major explained, the mobile or mechanized army composed of the armored fighting vehicle and the motorized machine gun units which will gradually take the place of the former infantry forces. Horse units are generally being replaced, although some still exist.

Major Worthington, a member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, leaves almost immediately to take his post at Camp Borden.

MAY DAY TROUBLE SCARCE IN CANADA

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—Canadian labor, a week-end of orderly parades and peaceful demonstrations ended, returned to work today after traditional May Day observances that marked the 52nd anniversary of the calling of a general strike by the American Federation of Labor in 1886.

Only minor incidents in two cities marred the Dominion's observance of May Day as parades and mass meetings were held Saturday and Sunday in almost every centre. Four men were arrested in Montreal when police broke up a march and in Toronto University students and opposing political factions engaged in a brief melee. Three persons were slightly hurt.

In a May Day rally in a Toronto arena, Tim Buck, general secretary of the Comunist party in Canada, told 6,000 persons last night Canada was fast approaching a new stage of crisis which "is a challenge to the labor movement." There was a "very real danger fascism will show its ugly head right here in our own Dominion," he said.

At many demonstrations, speakers denounced Quebec's "padlock law" under which the Quebec government can close premises where Communistic doctrines are expounded. Democracy's non-intervention in the Spanish civil war, which many speakers said worked to the advantage of the Insurgents, also was criticized in many gatherings.

MILLBROOK

LADIES' AID MEETS AT GIBSON HOME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 2. — Mrs. Robert and Miss Mina Gibson were joint hostesses for the April meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian church, at their home, King Street East, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., the president, Mrs. J. R. Thompson, occupying the chair.

The roll was answered with each member producing the earliest photograph of herself which she had in possession, and during the social hour, the task of guessing "who was who" was enjoyed, Mrs. E. L. Armstrong winning the prize—a pair of shoe horns nicely enamelled.

A letter of sympathy will be sent to the vice-president, Mrs. J. J. McKnight, who recently lost her mother. After full discussion on the matter of holding the annual garden-party, it was decided to have this event on the church lawns, on Tuesday, June 28. The program committee includes Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, Misses Ruth Thorndyke, Vanita Ingram and Mina Gibson. They were empowered to spend up to five dollars and more if necessary, to secure suitable talent.

The annual bazaar will be on December 3, and if that date is already taken, the event will be held November 26, with the usual hot supper as an added feature. The president announced that if the members wished they might bring their work for the bazaar to the regular meetings. The May gathering will be at the home of Mrs. J. H. Paul, Ida, by invitation, and the group headed by Mrs. Suttle Pritchard will serve the lunch.

Miss Agnes Johnston read a poem, "This Morning," and after the Mizpah benediction, adjournment was made to the dining-room for refreshments. The table was lovely with lace cloth, a central silver basket filled with daffodils, and runners of green in big bows at the four corners and in the middle.

Thirty guests sat down for the tea, smaller tables centred with bud vases of spring blossoms accommodating those who could not find room at the larger dining table. From the small charge of fifteen cents, a neat sum was added to the treasury.

Mail Buggy Badly Damaged In Runaway

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, May 2. — What might have proved a much more serious accident occurred at Fleetwood on Tuesday when Clayton McGill of Janetville was making his daily trip delivering His Majesty's mail.

Mr. McGill was accompanied by his four-year-old son Ross and providentially they had both decided to get out of the buggy and walk up the hill for shortly after a large police dog made a sudden appearance frightening the horse which galloped off at full speed with the vehicle careering wildly behind it.

As the run-away approached Fleetwood school Clairemont Morgan, the teacher, managed to catch the horse and bring it under control. The buggy was badly smashed, particularly one which in which only two spokes remained.

The mail, however, escaped serious injury and the driver was successful in borrowing a buggy and making the remainder of the trip home in safety.

BELLEVILLE MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

BELLEVILLE, May 2.—The body of Frank Van Norman, 20, was found west of the Front Street crossing on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, just after dawn Sunday morning. Charles Summers, night switchman for the C.P.R., noticed the body. It was lying about thirty feet from the sidewalk, while the amputated left foot was about thirty feet further west. Both shoe and stocking had been ripped from the foot and could not be found. Letters in the pocket of the trousers, addressed to Frank Van Norman, King Street, identified the body.

The accident was investigated by Sergeant A. Harman and P. C. Ellis. Sergeant Harman said he thought the man had been struck by a west-bound train at 4.06 a.m. The accident was not discovered until 5.45 a.m.

BANKS live by lending.

That is their major source of income, their principal business. They are always on the lookout for good risks. They have to avoid poor ones.

Let us give an instance. Suppose, say, a man seeking a bank loan, is known to the banker as having no business capacity to carry out the purposes for which he wants the money. He is not credit-worthy—he has accumulated nothing, has no stake.

The banker, anxious though he is to make loans, knows there is not the remotest chance that this man would succeed in his purpose and tells the would-be borrower that the bank cannot take the risk.

But this man has a friend—a man who has accumulated something and has a stake. Hearing of his neighbour's difficulty, he goes to the bank and urges that the loan be made.

"Whose money would you have me lend him?" asks the manager. "You have a deposit here. Would you lend your own money?"

"Not on your life," retorts Mr. Blank. "Lend him the bank's money."

The bank manager, as custodian of this very man's own money, then takes pains to point out that what the substantial citizen is really expecting, is that the bank should make a loan which the citizen's own common sense and caution would compel him to refuse.

Before such a man leaves the bank he usually agrees that he had expected the bank to lend where he himself would be unwilling. Banks have no magic source of credit.

Here is the core of the whole business of a bank's extending credit. Because of the bank's responsibility to its depositors it can make loans only where repayment is reasonably certain.

To obtain a loan from a bank a borrower must have credit of his own. Seldom, if ever, is his credit spendable. You cannot spend cattle, goods in process of manufacture, uncaught fish, uncut timber, or wheat in the granary.

The bank has credit too. Millions of small depositors have, in effect, lent it their money. A percentage of this money, based on bank experience of withdrawals, is kept in cash, some more in items of a cash nature, more still in assets quickly convertible into cash, and more in safe investments such as marketable government and other bonds. Based upon this, the bank can extend credit.

Because people have confidence in bank credit, and because every promise-to-pay of a chartered bank is redeemable in cash, on demand, or on a fixed date, this form of credit is spendable.

In the case of the borrower, credit is the personal possession or attribute of the individual—you yourself, if you are the borrower — in character, goods, possessions, integrity, ability and willingness to repay.

Your credit is not social, in the sense of belonging to the community. When you have credit, it is your own just as your money in a savings account is your own. The people at large have no conceivable claim upon it.

Who exchanges non-spendable credit for credit that can be spent?

The answer for all practical purposes is this: The man who owns and therefore controls his credit takes the initiative. The bank does not go to him. He goes to the bank and asks it to enable him to obtain credit in spendable form in exchange for his own unspendable credit. The bank does so; and charges him a rental in the form of interest, until he repays.

What happens when he secures this credit in spendable form?

He spends it.

He pays the wages of labour, the cost of raw materials and of manufacture; the cost of seed, of feed for hogs and cattle, or the expenses of cultivating and harvesting; of buying bait or catching fish; of cutting trees or transporting goods.

The whole banking process is made possible by the concentration and cautious handling of other people's money.

Banks simply dare not risk their own solvency and so jeopardize the safety of their depositors' funds, by making loans to people who have neither character nor credit—nor by making loans even to those who have both, without taking every reasonable precaution to ensure repayment.

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience. The next article in this series will appear in this newspaper. Watch for it.

CHICAGO CUBS, CINCINNATI WIN NATIONAL LEAGUE GAMES

GIANTS BEAT DODGERS 7-6 FOR 10TH WIN

NEW YORK, May 2.— (AP).— The Giants put their newly discovered sluging punch on display again yesterday and stretched their winning streak to ten straight by nipping Brooklyn Dodgers 7 to 6 before the National League's largest crowd of the spring, 40,248, at the Polo Grounds.

Featured by Johnny McCarthy's four homer of the year, with two mates aboard, they put on a five-run spree at the expense of Luke Hamlin in the second frame, and then, after the Brooklyns had tied the score, they pushed over another tally in the eighth to make it five in a row over the Dodgers so far this spring.

They collected fourteen hits off four Brooklyn pitchers, with old Waite Hoyt being charged with the defeat by letting in the winning tally on Dick Bartell's double and Jim Ripple's single. Harry Gumbert, the Giants' starter, also failed to last, and Bill Lohrman took credit for the win, although he had to call on Dick Coffman for help in the ninth.

The Reds made it two straight over the Pirate, already surpassing their last season's mark of one victory over the "jinx" team. The score was 4 to 1.

While Al Hollingsworth was holding the Bucs to five hits, the Reds collected nine off Bill Swift and Rip Sewell. The Reds scored one in the first and two more in the fourth as Harry Craft was hit by Swift and Linus Frey knocked a homer. Hollingsworth then singled, sending Swift to the bench.

Don Gutteridge's fumble of a grounder was a major factor in St. Louis Cardinals' 6 to 5 defeat by Chicago Cubs at St. Louis.

After Frank Demaree singled to start the Cub second inning, the St. Louis shortstop muffed Joe Marty's blow on what appeared to observers a cinch double-play ball. Then Tony Lazzeri hit into the left field seats for a home run.

Hugh Mulcahy limited the Bees to two hits as the Phillies nicked Jim Turner, veteran Boston pitcher, for eleven to pocket a 5 to 1 victory, at Philadelphia.

Chisox Purchase Gabler Of Bees

CHICAGO, May 2 —(AP)—Chicago White Sox were enroute east today with another pitcher—Frank Gabler of Boston Bees—slated to join their ranks.

Gabler, a big right hander who also has played with the New York Giants, was obtained today by the Sox on waivers. Gabler went from the Giants to the Bees in the Wally Berger deal. He won four and lost seven for Boston last year.

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP). — Although the Giants have been impressive against the weak eastern teams with 11 victories in 12 starts, their real test will come on their first western trip which they open in Cincinnati tomorrow...John Roxborough is on the spot in Detroit for not talking Mike Jacobs into staging the Louis and Schmeling bout there ...Most top flight jockeys think Stagehand most likely to grab off the Kentucky Derby.

In Saturday's world's fair preview parade Babe Ruth, Jimmy Braddock and Jack Dempsey stole the show... The parade was an hour late getting away and these three big shots got the writers' cramp from obliging autograph hounds...During one of the traffic stops a good looking blond dashed out of the crowd and asked Dempsey to kiss her..."Sure," replied Jack, and popped her a good 'un.

Dempsey left the party at the last Manhattan stop...Eddie Egan, twice Olympic heavyweight champion, who looks a little bit like Jack, stepped into the breach as pinch hitter...Time and again he was hailed and modestly took his bows... When Babe Ruth was approached to participate in the parade, he asked: "Can I wear a uniform?"..."You bet you can, too"...Babe left completely satisfied. SEA LION BACK TO EASY TIMES

NEW YORK, May 2 (CP)—Charlie, elderly and accomplished sea lion, has retired from the stage after 18 years of vaudeville. From now on he will pass his days in aquatic ease in a big pool in the New York Aquarium, eating herring, taking an occasional swim, but mostly reclining on a platform resting from his years as a trouper.

With a dignity born of his 21 years and his standing in the theatrical world, he poses on the platform idly watching the capers of Frisco and Cally, the two juvenile sea lions that share his pool.

His owner, Ray Huling, said Charlie can neigh like a horse, coo like a dove and bark like a dog. He does four dances including a tap dance and a hula-hula. But Charlie has retired. Huling said Charlie earned $300,000 as an actor, but refused to retire to a private tank which was built for his declining years.

Gumbo Useful For Modelling

WINNIPEG, May 2 — (CP). — Sticky prairie gumbo is being used successfully for modelling figures by Miss Alice Montgomery, school teacher, in her classroom here. The rich mud was substituted for other plastic materials which proved too costly.

The mixture of prairie soil and water gives the sculptured figures a realistic appearance.

Chinese Player Beats Bunny Austin To Win The British Tennis Title

BOURNEMOUTH, England, May 2 (CP-Havas).—A 24-year-old Chinese Davis Cup player, Kho, Sin Kie, topped his tennis career by defeating H. W. (Bunny) Austin, England's No. 1 star in the finals of the men's singles of the British hard court championships.

It was the first time Austin and the young Chinese had met in singles play. The score was 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

It was also the first time a Chinese player had won a first-class British championship.

Austin played well, but Kho Sin Kie out-steadied him, and placed winning drops just over the net.

The match was fought in a windstorm, and under overcast skies. Clouds of dust off the courts were so bad that the referee looked up the rules to see whether it was possible to suspend play while the court was watered.

Peggy Scriven of England defeated Nncy Wynne, Australian No. 1, 7-5, 6-2, in the women's single finals.

The women's doubles title went to Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman, who defeated Freda Janes and Kay Stammers, 8-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Reading from LEFT to RIGHT, the girl is June Hammill, from Ocean City, N.J., and the boy is W. E. English, Jr., of Narbeth. Just to put W. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

THREE WEEKS from tomorrow, May 24th, Oshawa GM-men will open the C.O.B.L. schedule against the Petes here. Yep, the Central Loop will operate again but cut down to three teams, the Petes, Ponies and GM-men. With the withdrawal of Napanee—by the way the loop hasn't even yet been officially informed that the Gibbards are out—they tried everything but a hookup in the International League, but 'twas no go. The E.O.B.A. was out, the T.A.B.A. was out, the Bay of Quinte loop was out—in fact, it appeared as if the C.O.B.L. might be out, too. Couldn't get a fourth colub anywhere, nor could they get an interlocking schedule anywhere. Finally decided to carry on for this summer with three teams, and filling in open dates with exhibition games against outstanding squads—especially pros.

* * * * * * *

FOLKS HERE won't be at all fussy about the three-team senior setup, and we aren't either. But don't think the club delegates wanted it a bit, nossuh! Prexy Vern Dawson and Secretary Jim Dorris of the Petes emphatically stated they couldn't see a three-team circuit. So did Bob Elliott—who, incidentally, will be playing manager of the Ponies this year, replacing the retired Joe Daley—and ditto Pud Lane of Oshawa. And Prexy Max Swanston, Vice-President Art Casterton and Secretary Newt Thompson of the league. So did everyone. But it was a case of either disbanding or making a try of it with three teams for one year. And they reluctantly decided 'twas better to have some senior ball than none at all.

* * * * * * *

IT WAS a good decision and, after looking it over from the perch in the canary's cage, we can maybe whistle a fairly cheery tune. And the fans and fannettes will find out that they'll have just as much good ball, and maybe better, as they did last year. The clubs agreed that the Napanee team didn't draw too well last season, and that there were quite a few one-sided games. So this season, instead of Napanee, the Petes, Ponies and GM-men will be meeting some fine opponents in exhibition tilts on open dates. This year, the O.B.A. clubs are allowed to play professional teams, such as House of David, Colored Stars, Knotty's team, etc. Even Toronto Leafs. So we'll have ball again and no weak sister in the whole setup.

* * * * * * *

THE SCHEDULE will be a quadruple one, meaning Kingston comes here four times through the summer, and so does Oshawa. Top two playoff at the end in three out of five games for the right to continue in the O.B.A. playdowns. The Petes obtained two preferred dates, May 24th and July 12th, for home games. Schedule will be submitted shortly to the clubs for their approval. As in other years, the Petes an Oshawa get mostly Saturday home games while Kingston wanted mostly Wednesday evening frays. You've got to give the loop officials and the club officers a lot of credit—they really do have the good of the game at heart. They knew that if the loop disbanded for one season it would be tougher than keeping your mouth shut the day before election to get it revived again, and so they decided to "carry on".

* * * * * * *

AN IMPORTANT bit of business was done when they voted to have neutral umps and they picked four dandies: Ken Colling, the chief, Walter Gerow, J. Kinkley and Don Thomas. Two from Napanee and two from Belleville—and they must not travel with the teams. That's good stuff, and they're all ace arbiters in our book. And it's a tough book for umps to crash! And yours truly was named official scorer for the C.O.B.L. this season, getting a little dough for a lot of work. But it's oke by us. We knew if we kept our eye on the figures—both on the diamond and at the beaches—we would eventually get somewhere. Our secret of success is pluck, boys and gals. pluck—that is if you can find someone to pluck!

* * * * * * *

AT THE O.B.A. executive gabfest in Toronto on Saturday, a flock of player transfers were granted. Several former professionals were re-instated, including Eddie Murphy of the Petes. He will manage the locals and is eligible to play after June 4th. Transfers granted around Central Ontario include: John Olean of Thorold and Robt. Bell of Winnipeg to Napanee, Tommy Pointer from Napanee to Port Hope, Dave Osborne from Bowmanville to Toronto, John McIntyre from Carleton Place to Kingston, and Ross Thornton from Peterborough to Toronto. Very few transfers were held up. There will be another O.B.A. session or two before the ball season is going long to check on further applications for a change of residence.

HERB RALPH is calling a junios baseball practise for this Tuesday evening at 5.30 in the Exhibition Grounds and all players are invited. Herb has high hopes of the Lions' Club sponsoring the squad this season and of Max Swanston giving him a hand with the team. Lakeshore Junior Ball Loop may meet in Port Hope this Thursday and the locals are liable to be on deck to seek entry. With the loss of lads like Giardino, Vitarelli, Thornton, Thorburn and a few other stars of the '37 juniors, diamond material will be much in demand by Herb as well as by jewellers in June.

* * * * * * *

CRAVING A couple of more entries like a sailor wants shore leave, the men's City Softball League has a huddle at eight tomorrow e'en in Duffus' and those interested are invited. The cost of operating a men's softball outfit is not exorbitant by any means, and the loop this year will play two or three nights weekly at the Ashburnham Bowl where the coffee-pot take should double that of the silver collection at Central. This has always been a good league, with crowds witnessing classy contests and the winner drawing plenty of doubloons in O.A.S.A. playdown affairs. And so we'd like to see another good circuit set to take off shortly, but there are a couple of openings yet. Maybe Tuesday eve will see 'em filled.

DESE, DEM and dose: Lacrosse workouts will be held nightly now at the George St. Arena . . . . And baseball drills will be held each evening this week in Riverside . . . . Juvenile ball meeting at seven tonight at the Parnell St. field . . . . Church Softball Loop entries should be in right away as schedule starts this week. . . . . A crowd of 18,000 persons braved intermittent showers to see Burning Star romp home in the 1 1-16 mile feature by 1½ lengths.

The 4-year-old colt ran last to the half-mile pole and closed fast to oust Busy K. from the lead and receive the winner's purse of $7,950.

Burning Star, the favorite after the late scratch of J. A. Manfuso's Aneroid, paid $5.90, $3.60 and $3.

DiMaggio Leads Yank Batters But New Yorkers Lose 4-3; A's Secure 8-6 Victory

Foxx's Two Homers Fail To Help Red Sox—Indians Down Tigers

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—Chief Elon Hogsett scalped the Yankees with five hits yesterday, the Senators beat the world champions, 4 to 3.

Joe DiMaggio—returning to the line up after being injured in an outfield collision Saturday—led the Yanks' attack with a home run and a single. Joe Gordon, Yankee second baseman, who also was hurt in the collision, watched the game from a box.

Lefty Gomez, pitching for New York, allowed eight hits. An overflow crowd of 32,000—larger than the opening day throng—saw the game.

A single by Lewis, a triple by Stone and a single by Travis gave Washington two runs in the fourth. The Senators pushed across a second pair of runs in the fifth. DiMaggio's homer in the sixth ended the Yankee scoring.

Though Jimmy Foxx crashed two home runs over the left field wall his first two times up, four Boston pitchers couldn't hold Philadelphia in check and the A's walked off with an 8 to 6 victory before 17,200 Boston fans.

Two were on base when Foxx made his first homer in the first, but the bases were empty when he made the second. Foxx, who has driven in nineteen runs so far this season, made both homers off Luther Thomas, who went seven innings and was credited with the victory.

Thomas's victory merely continued his jinx over the Red Sox. The A's won only three games from Boston all last season and Thomas won two of them.

Ninth-inning relief pitching by Al Milnar, a Cleveland sandlot product, helped Cleveland Indians to a 4 to 3 triumph over Detroit Tigers at Cleveland before 23,782 spectators. Relieving Mel Harder, the youthful southpaw retired Dixie Walker, Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg in succession with the tying run on base.

The triumph gave Cleveland a 4 to 1 edge over the Tigers for the season so far. Harder received credit for his second victory of the year and the loss was charged to Elden Auker, the submarine southpaw twirler.

Pete Fox collected five of the ten Detroit safeties.

St Louis Browns staged a rally in the ninth inning to defeat Chicago White Sox 7 to 5 and gain an even split in the two-game series at Chicago.

Buck Newsom and Jull Bonetti combined to hold the Chicagoans to five hits, but a homer by Mike Kreevich and nine bases on balls kept the Sox in the game. Newsom, who was the winning pitcher in three of the Browns' previous four victories, was removed for pinch-hitter Roy Hughes in the eighth

Sled Dogs Save Trappers' Life

ROULEAU, Sask., May 2—(CP).—Joe Kernaghan, 69-year-old trapper in The Pas district, 250 miles north of here, was pulled eight miles by his dog team after freezing both feet.

Mushing 30 miles to a camp to get food for his dogs, Kernaghan was caught in deep snow on the return trip. With both feet frozen, he found it impossible to snowshoe, so climbed into the cariole. The dogs arrived home after four hours in the heavy snow.

"The dogs seemed to know something was wrong—they hauled with all their might," he said.

WATCHES OVER SICK HUSBAND

EDMONTON, May 2 (CP)—An 18-year-old Beaver Indian girl keeps 14 hours a day vigil beside her ailing husband in Misericordia Hospital here and then will leave his bedside only after much coaxing The first night, after arriving here by airplane; she resolutely refused to leave at all.

She is Madeleine, wife of 25-year-old Simon Burke, also a Beaver Indian, who is suffering from tuberculosis and peritonitis. He was gravely ill on arrival from Fort Nelson, 620 miles north of here; but is expected to recover.

"She stays at his bedside all day long," said hospital officials, "and we have to coax her back to her own room at 10 p.m."

It requires much persuasion by nurses before she can be led to her bed. Then, bewildered, she jumps between the sheets clad in her fur-trimmed parka.

This is the first time the couple have been away from their northern home.

FIND FILM SHOW GETTING BETTER

LONDON, May 2 (CP)—Marked improvement in tone and presentation of films is welcomed by the Public Morality Council, in its annual report for 1937. The council notes with gratification the almost complete absence of the "sex" film in the old sense of the term. On the other hand there have been elements in 26 films which called for comment such as caricatures of religious acts, cruelty, daring and suggestion, actions or scenes or themes sordid throughout.

The council's reviewer says: "The need of today with pictures is fierce sub-editing, such sub-editing as marks the conduct of the most successful newspapers.

SAYS HORSE-BACK RIDING A HAZARD

DARWIN, South Australia, May 2 (CP).—Tom Cole, north Australia's most successful buffalo shooter, found horse-back riding the most dangerous part of the trade he follows when not operating his two cattle ranches near here.

He returned from his latest trip after game with a slight limp to remind him of the hazards of riding on a slippery trail. His horse slipped three times on the journey, once dragging him several hundred yards before his foot cleared the stirrup.

Profits gained from selling buffalo hides have enabled Cole to establish himself as a successful cattle rancher.

Pete Fox Surprises Self At The Plate

DETROIT, May 2. (AP).—Ervin (Pete) Fox, Detroit Tigers' hustling rightfielder, seems to be outfoxing a lot of people, including pitchers and himself.

A sensational hitting spree topped off by a five-for-five against Cleveland yesterday, the Tiger veteran is up in the headlines.

Hard-working Pete has a .451 batting average, about 200 points more than he customarily hits in the spring, and his friends are saying "Petey's finally done it."

In the six years Fox has been with Detroit never before has he hit hard in the early season, but today he is second highest batting in the major leagues and wondering why. Only Hal Trosky of the Indians, with .438, leads him.

THREE TEAMS TO OPERATE IN CENTRAL ONTARIO BALL CIRCUIT

NEUTRAL UMPS TO OFFICIATE IN '38 SEASON

The Central Ontario Baseball League will operate with three teams this summer, Kingston, Oshawa, and Peterborough. Following a lengthy league meeting in Cobourg on aSturday, the three-team circuit was decided upon by officers and delegates. Exhibition games with pro and amateur teams will fill in open dates, since the withdrawal of Napanee.

May 24 will see the opening of the quadruple schedule, Oshawa G-Men coming to Peterborough to start it off. Secretary Newt Thompson of Belleville will draw up the schedule shortly and submit it to the three clubs for approval. Another holiday date, July 12th, will be awarded to the Petes for a home fixture. The first and second teams will playoff in three out of five games at the conclusion of the schedule.

President Max Swanston of Peterborough conducted the session, aided by Vice-president Art Casterton of Kingston. J. A. Lane and Neil Hezzlewood represented Oshawa, Bob Elliott and William Walshe were delegates from Kingston, and Vern Dawson and Jim Dorris were on hand from Peterborough. There were several others present, also, including President Ken Colling of the Bay of Quinte Intermediate League.

The delegates threshed the matter of a possible fourth team or an interlocking schedule for the league out for over two hours without getting anywhere. They discussed a team or arrangement from the E. O.B.A. and also some agreement with the T.A.B.A. And they talked of an interlocking schedule with the Bay of Quinte circuit. In the latter case, it was felt that Quinte crews would not care for this idea and that they would probably not draw well in any case in senior cities. The loop president even telephoned Bill Smith, in O.B.A.A. session in Toronto, and was informed that there could be no possible tie-up between the C.O.B.L. and the E.O.B.A., now would any Toronto team play in the Central League, having their own association.

Mr. Smith advised carrying on for one season with three clubs and working in a number of exhibition games to help out.

None of the delegates were anxious to enter unless a fourth club could be found, but it finally boiled down to one of two things: The league must operate this year with three teams or it must disband. And they finally decided to carry on and make the best of it. Each club will make a strong effort to line up a number of outstanding exhibition contests to take care of open dates, caused by the absence of Napanee to operate in senior company this year.

A neutral umpiring system was decided upon for this season, with four officials named. Ken Colling of Belleville is in charge of the arbiters and will have Don Thomas of Belleville, and Walter Gerow and J. Kinkley of Napanee as his assistants. These umpires must not travel to or from games with teams, but will receive a fee each game of $10 apiece (for two) for games in Oshawa and Peterborough, and $7.50 for those in Kingston, They will pay their own expenses.

An official league scorer, C. J. Perdue of Peterborough Examiner, was appointed at a stipend to be paid at the end of the season. Several other matters came up, such as permitting clubs to use any type of ball approved by the umpires, before the gathering adjourned.

Had Many Boils On His Neck and Body

While the skin seems to be the cause of the irritating and painful boils the real trouble is rooted in the blood, and when you think you are rid of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your agony.

All the poulticing and lancing you may do does not, as a rule, get rid of them. What is most essential is to give the blood a thorough cleansing.

When the blood is purified, cleansed and vitalized by Burdock Blood Bitters the boils disappear, your misery is at an end, your health and strength renewed, and the skin clean and smooth.

Mr. Alfred A. Ferrier, Falkenburg, Ont., writes:—"Several years ago I suffered greatly from numerous boils on my neck and body, and had three blind ones on my knee.

Our druggist advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters, so I took two bottles, and in a short time I was completely rid of the boils."

Fred Perry Not To Coach – Von Cramm Not To Play

In the tennis spotlight these sunny spring days are the two famous figures ABOVE. Fred Perry, LEFT, is touring the continent with a professional tennis troupe. Rumors had been heard that he would coach the Canadian Davis Cup team this year and word came out of Montreal that this was finally so; and there was much rejoicing. On reaching Toronto Perry said he would be glad to help, but he was not coaching anybody's Davis Cup team. Baron Gottfried von Cramm, RIGHT, on the other hand, cant even play on a Davis Cup team, despite his court wizardy. He remains incarcerated in a German prison for political reasons, while the German team, composed of two Germans and two Austrians, practise without him. The German press makes no mention of Von Cramm whatever.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press).

Hugh Mulcahy, Phillies—Handcuffed Bees 5-1 with two hits.

Elon Hogsett, Senators — Beat Yankees 4-3 with five hits.

Al Milnar, Indians—Got Dixie Walker, Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg in order in ninth-inning relief role to save 4-3 decision over Tigers.

George McQuinn, Browns—Hit double and drove in three runs to beat White Sox 7-5.

Bucko McDonald And Clapper Only Pro Stars In Lacrosse

Defence Hockeyist Of Boston Bruins May Play With Local Team

TORONTO, April 30. — (CP).—They do come back—once in a while—but most of Ontario's professional hockey players who ever played baseball will have a hard time trying to fit into amateur baseball ranks this summer.

The Ontario Baseball Amateur Association paved the way for hockey pros to mix with baseball amateurs by passing enabling legislation this year. The move wasn't as revolutionary as expected, though, for when veteran pros turned out with those who have stuck to amateur ranks they found several seasons' absence hadn't done their baseball eyes any good. Most of the few hockey professionals who will make the grade are youngsters.

Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer, who made good with Boston Bruins last winter in their first season in the National Hockey League have prime chances to catch on with Kitchener Panthers of the Inter-County League. Howie Mackie, the property of Detroit Red Wings, is expected to turn out with the same club when his wrist fracture heals.

But Kitchener will benefit more than any other city under the new code. In most other centres the hockey pros are just getting exercise out of baseball—or aren't turning out at all.

Two in Lacrosse Ranks.

Lacrosse, which is allowing pros in other sports to mingel with its amateurs for the first time, offers one sparkling example of a team benefitting under the advanced law. Bucko McDonald of Detroit Red Wings, who gained his first fame in lacrosse, will be playing coach of Orillia Terriers, many times Dominion senior lacrosse champions.

The lits of pros who will get into lacrosse just about ends here, although Dit Clapper of Boston may wield a gutted stick again in the Peterborough district.

Charlie Conacher, hockey's big bomber who retired in mid-winter because of a kidney ailment, will play softball if the Toronto Amateur Softball Association lets the pros in.

Jeff Kalbfleisch, still nursing a sore shoulder that kept him out of International - American League playoffs, likely will earn a berth with Niagara Falls' senior Cataracts. Obs Heximer and Max Kaminsky, other Falls' contributions to the pro puck ranks, aren't so sure.

Teddy Graham and Jackie Markle have been out of baseball too long to catch on with Owen Sound's ball teams, though Markle was spry enough to lead the International-American hockeyists in scoring last winter.

Remember When—

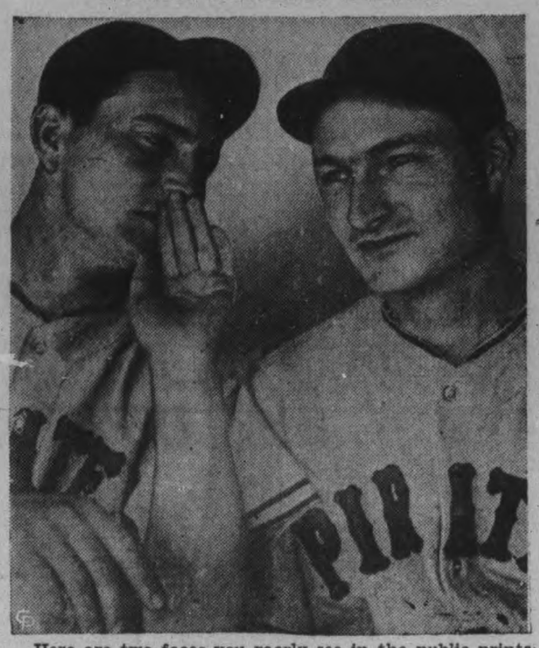
(By The Canadian Press)

St. Louis Cardinals farmed Pepper Martin, outfielder on option, to Rochester of the International Baseball League eight years ago today. He rejoined the "Gashouse Gang" in 1931 and almost single-handedly routed Philadelphia Athletics in the world series, getting 12 hits in 24 times at bat.

THEY FINISHED GAME

LONDON—(CP).—Two men, accused of stealing a car, were found playing football at a park here by police who waited until the match ended and arrested them in the dressing room.

Pirates' Pitchers' Poison



Here are two faces you raerly see in the public prints, and National league pitchers wish they could see them as infrequently. On the LEFT, "Big Poison" (Paul Waner), and on the RIGHT, "Little Poison" (Lloyd Waner). They've been doing the brother act for the Pirates for 12 years now and they're so good everybody takes them for granted. In 1933 the hurlers held Paul to a .309 batting average, but that's the best they've been able to do. Three times he has taken the league title, his lifetime average is .348, and if he bags 200 hits this season he will equal Ty Cobb's major league record. Brother Lloyd, best centerfielder in the circuit, sports a lifetime mark of .324. What a pair!

BLOND FLIER SAID SECOND JESSE OWENS

CHICAGO, May 2.—Aided by star athletes from the West, Penn's historic relay carnival held its own over the week-end in a comparison of records with its "feuding" rival at Drake, despite a spongy track on the final marks in the Penn games were superior in four relays—and slower in four runs during Saturday's showers.

Pittsburgh's famed half-mile and sprint medley relay teams, anchored by Olympic 800-metre champion John Woodruff, contributed two of Penn's superior records, but the others came from four-mile and distance medley teams which might as well have been at Drake—Indiana and North Texas teachers.

Another Track Great.

Wolcott, hurdle sensation of the season, captured the 120-yard highs, anchored the sprint medley team which saw a new meet record of 3:23.5, and the 440-yard team, which tied the meet mark of 41.5 seconds.

Of the three record-breaking races at Penn, the greatest was run Friday by the North Texas Teachers' distance medley team built around the travelling twins, Wayne and Blaine Rideout.

The Rideouts puled their team out of a bad hole on the last two legs of the race and finished with a tremendous spurt in 9:59.4 which bettered all existing records. They failed, however, to make much of a showing in the four-mile relay which Indiana won easily for the second year in 17:26.8.

NEWARK BEARS STILL WINNING

NEWARK, N.J., May 2 (AP)—A last-inning homer by Les Scarsella—his second of the game—with two teammates aboard and two out, gave Newark Bears a 9 to 7 victory over Rochester Red Wings in the nightcap of a doubleheader yesterday, and a sweep of the twin bill. The Bears also won the opener, 12-8.

Scarsella had hit his first homer of the nightcap in the second inning, but despite that wallop the Bears went into the seventh, and final, frame of the abbreviated struggle trailing by 7-4. Jim Gleeson's double and Charlie Keller's single each drove in a run and set the stage for Scarsella to cap the five-run rally with his playoff blow.

The Bears also outslugged the Wings in the first game, but with Merrill May clouting two homers in the first six innings, and collecting a double and single as well, it wasn't even close, although the Wings came back with six runs in the eighth and ninth frames to throw a scare into the league champions.

Bisons Pound Birds Hard To Win Double

BALTIMORE, May 2.—(AP). — Buffalo Bisons opened their International baseball series with Baltimore Orioles yesterday by rapping out thirty-three base hits and taking both ends of a doubleheader, 12 to 9 and 16 to 2. Seven home runs and nine errors marked the wild games.

The Herd shelled three Baltimore pitchers in the opener for seventeen hits, including homers by Wilson,Mulleavy, Carnegie and Abernathy. The Orioles got eleven hits, including circuit swats by Cissell and McGowan, off four Buffalo hurlers.

ROYALS BREAK LOSING STREAK

JERSEY CITY, May 2 (AP) — Montreal Royals finally snapped their losing streak at 6 games before 25,811 fans yesterday by coming back to win the second game of a doubleheader 7 to 3 after Jersey City Giants took the opener 8 to 5.

Harry Smythe limited the Little Giants to five hits in the seven-inning nightcap. Bob Carpenter, who started for Jersey City, lasted five innings and was belted for five runs.

The Jerseys wasted little time in the opener. They belted Ben Cantwell out in the second with a six-hit attack featured by Babe Herman's home run, and picked up four more markers over the next four frames.

Rollie Stiles was batted out in the seventh, but was credited with the victory when Roy Joiner halted Montreal over the remaining distance.

LEAFS REACH FIFTH PLACE IN AA LEAGUE

SYRACUSE, N.Y., May 2.—Toronto's Leafs paid a one-day visit to Syracuse and headed home with two victories, achieved by 9-5 and 4-3 scores. The double-header was manufactured by moving up Monday's game, Tuesday's game was postponed and the Leafs then have a scheduled day of idleness before opening against Jersey City at Toronto Thursday. Syracuse generosity, which included eleven walks and four errors, made the first game a romp for Mike Meola, who allowed eight hits. The Leafs teed off on long John Gee for five hits in the first inning and added six more off a wild assortment of hurlers who succeeded him. Bobby Porter batted in three Toronto runs.

Triples Better Than Singles.

The Leafs were outhit in the nightcap 9 to 7, but four triples helped Earl Caldwell gain a close decision over Jake Mooty, who, like Gee, was unbeaten until yesterday.

Seven Killed In Coal Mine Blast

A flame-seared body is shown being removed from the shaft of the St. Clair Coal Company's huge mine at Pottsville, Pa., after a terrific blast killed at least seven miners and seriously injured 10 more. Fire followed the blast which is said to have been caused by gas. Rescuers were forced to don gas mask as a precaution against "black damp," a dangerous mine gas which snuffs out life without warning.

NORWOOD DRAMA FULL OF LAUGHS

NORWOOD, May 2.—On Friday evening a splendid presentation of the comedy drama, "George in a Jam" in three acts, was ably given to a well filled hall, by some of the members of Mrs. Binkley's Sunday school class, under the auspices of the United Sunday school. The theme of the play settled around George Forbes, who was a ward of Jim Gray. George got in difficulty over money matters and had to find some way of making things right again. Following the departure of Jim Gray and another ward, Missy Brown, on a trip to Paris, George and his friend Jack Carson decided to convert this lovely home into a boarding house for the summer.

Their first boarders were the Larkins family, who had come from the country, bringing with them a school teacher to instruct them in the ways of the city and to have the daughter, Sara Jane Larkins, who was a rustic heiress, educated as an heiress should be. During their stay in the city the country folks encountered many amusing trials as did the two boys who had undertaken to run a boarding house. In the last act happiness was found for all. The play was well presented and much credit is due to those responsible for the play which gave the large audience many good laughs.

in the light of Europe's changing political affiliations.

"A history-making trip," the newspapers put it, and Berlin's crowds turned out to cheer and wave Italian and German flags along the Fuehrer's route from the Chancellory to Anhalten Station.

There have been three outstanding developments since the dictators met at Munich September 25, and these may well determine the nature of their future collaboration:

First is Hitler's bringing of Austria into greater Germany on March 12, putting German troops at Brenner Pass on Mussolini's back doorstep.

Second is Mussolini's entrance into an agreement with Great Britain on April 16.

Third is the understanding of last Thursday by the British and French Prime Ministers for increased cooperation.

The visit to Italy will be cloaked in splendor, and outwardly will be Premier Mussolini's return of the hospitality shown him on his visit to Germany last fall. Official informants say no new treaties will be announced, but the make-up of the delegation accompanying the Fuehrer indicates the visit will be more than purely "representative"

Looking Back
On This Date

MAY 2

Today (May 2) may be considered the legal birthday of Victoria Day in Canada, because it was on this day in 1901 that the House of Commons passed a bill establishing May 24 as a public holiday with the designation "Victoria Day" in honor of the great Queen, whose loss the empire was still lamenting. (She had died January 22 previously.) This did not, of course, give Canada a new holiday. The 24th of May had been celebrated for 63 years, and by reason of its character of climate in this latitude had for two generations been considered the first real spring holiday. The Canadians of that day were not inclined to change the Twenty-fourth for November 9, which was King Edward's birthday, and public opinion made itself felt upon the legislators, with the result stated.

Fred Williams

Ever since, May 24 has been Victoria Day, the first summer holiday of Canadians. There are some people who would now abolish the Twenty-fourth, because it is old-fashioned. But when Edward VIII was on the throne and it was proposed by some ultra-loyalists that June 3 should be substituted for May 24, public sentiment rebelled, and so the Twenty-fourth has remained.

Today there are some people, who like long week-ends, who want the 24th observed on the nearest Monday, but unless I miss my guess they would find themselves in a great minority if a vote were taken on the question. The advocates of the change assert that when the 24th falls on a Sunday it is kept on the Monday. That is true, but to make Victoria Day a changeable date like Thanksgiving would, in my opinion, detract from its sentimental value at least. Why not write to the editor and tell him what you think about the Monday idea? And don't forget that May 24 is not Empire Day in Canada. It may be in England and in some of the other dominions; but in Canada the statute says it is Victoria Day, and Victoria Day it will remain until new legislation is passed.

It was on another May 2 (1670) that King Charles II granted a charter to the Gentlemen Adventurers Trading into Hudson Bay and inaugurated, without knowing it, a new empire for England, or, perhaps, in view of the record of the H.B.C., it would be better to say for the Scots. And by one of those coincidences of history it was on May 2, 1818, that the first Roman Catholic missionary left Quebec for St. Boniface, and in 1832 that the first Presbyterian church on Red River was opened at Kildonan.

VOLUNTEERS SAVE JANETVILLE BARN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, May 2. — During the high wind storm of Thursday afternoon a serious conflagration was averted at the farm of Laverne McGill, two miles south of the village.

Mr. McGill was busy working in the fields, but a neighbor passing by on the road noticed smoke from the vicinity of the barnyard and investigated, only to find the yard a mass of flames.

A hurried call was sent to the neighbors by telephone, and R. J. Burn, general merchant at Janetville gathered all available barrels, pails and men on his truck and proceeded hastily to the scene of the fire, filling the barrels en route at Sam McGill's pond.

Fifty men had soon assembled, and after a strenuous battle, the fire which had also consumed part of the straw stack, was successfully extinguished.

105th Anniversary Is Marked At St. Andrew's United Church

Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, D.D., Of Toronto Was The Special Preacher

The 105th anniversary of St. Andrew's Church was held on Sunday, with Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, M.A., D.D., of Toronto, secretary of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, as guest speaker. Rev. E. W. Young, local pastor, conducted the services. The congregation of Trinity United Church joined with St. Andrew's in the evening, and Rev. George Easton, M.A., took part in the service.

Dr. Sisco's subject in the morning was the expediency of Christ's departure. It seems strange, he said, that Jesus, a young man, should tell the disciples that He was going away from them. They could not understand it. His presence meant everything to them. But He knew that it would be a real gain to them to lose His physical presence.

Sometimes those who are absent from us exert a more vital influence than those who are present, Dr. Sisco said. They exert a spiritual influence which does not belong to the material world. Influence cannot be measured by distance in time and space. Some person in the front of the church may be able to observe some features of the preacher's appearance and gesture but may have little knowledge of his message; some one at the back may be in vital contact with his spirit and purpose, the speaker gave as example.

The generation in which Jesus lived were too near him to appreciate His greatness. The people of Nazareth rejected Him. Lloyd George, in his book on the Great War, said that the folk of this generation could not perceive the tremendous issues that were involved. New York society criticized Abraham Lincoln's clothes, his awkward manner. In later days great writers have written about him and biographies have followed one another in quick succession.

Achieve Very Little.

If Jesus appeared again in physical presence in Jerusalem, multitudes of the curious and casual would flock to see and hear Him. But His appearance there would achieve very little, the speaker claimed. Many of His most devoted followers could not make the journey and would be unmoved by His material presence. Our religion is spiritual, our true life is hid with Christ in God, the speaker asserted.

In the evening, Dr. Sisco spoke on "Journeys Out and Home," taking his text from Psalm 21, verse 8. The great Hebrew leaders, he said, went out not knowing whither he went. The men who have led the advance movements in the world were men of daring spirit. In the world of science, of business, of religion, we owe much to those who blazed new trails. Charles Darwin in his book, "The Origin of Species," set men thinking and opened up a new vision in the world of science. Some of the Puritans of England went out and colonized America, and wrote the American constitution. They faced dangers on sea and land, and made their names immortal.

The church that has no vision will perish, Dr. Sisco said. One of the gravest dangers affecting Christian people is a smug complacency, a false contentment with things as they are. We usually associate sin with some trifling naughty act and forget that one of the worst sins is to "hold up the traffic." God is ever seeking to impress Himself in our lives, but that expression must mean adventure and sacrifice.

Man Needs Sanctuary.

God not only keeps our going out but our coming in, he said. Man needs a sanctuary, a refuge for his soul. We are not to look upon this rest as a release from the pain and sorrow of the world. A man in New York built a tower around his house to shut out distressing sounds and lights. The refuge which God affords is meant to furnish the soul with new energy. The homing instinct is very real. Our true home is in God and our ultimate destiny the eternal life.

The music was led by R. B. Harle, organist of the church. The choir sang two anthems and the soloists for the day were John Houston of Sarnia, Clifford Hall and Mrs. Ross Williamson; A.T.C.M.

11 FREIGHT CARS ARE BROKEN INTO GOODS ARE STOLEN

Manufactured goods of undetermined value, but estimated as running into hundreds of dollars, were stolen from Canadian National Railways freight cars here some time during Saturday night.

The thieves broke the seals of eleven out of a string of seventeen cars that had been left on the Ware street siding of the C.N.R. on Saturday night. Police decline to state what merchandise was stolen, but it is known that a large quantity of manufactured goods, the products of four or five local favtries were included in the contents of some of the cars.

The string had been placed on the siding at 6 o'clock Saturday night and the break-in was discovered at 4 o'clock Sunday morning when a C.N.R. freight crew started to make up a train and found that eleven cars had been entered. The cars were taken to Belleville and an inspection made there.

Canadian National Constable R. Morden of Lindsay was notified and spent Sunday here investigating the robbery. Some of the broken seals from the cars were found in Edwards' woodyard where they had been thrown away by the thieves. The robbed cars had been left just south of the woodyard.

Allan Patterson, Robert Adams, Ernest Darling, Stanley Alexander, Jackie Chambers, and Stanley Collins passed book balancing. Jack White passed knots, and Union Jack. The Red Six were unfortunate in losing the six pennant to the White Six. Akela Ingham of St. Andrew's, made the presentation.

A blue silk neckerchief was presented to Sixer Cameron Shannon from Akela Brooks, as winner of the Sixer competition. He will wear it for the coming month.

Then the crowning feature of the evenifig came in the investing of Douglas Dyer, Tom Griffin and Douglas Kidd.

St. John's was the scene of a very happy event on Friday night, when the scout group entertained the scout and cub parents.

The program was of films taken of Chief Baden Powell's visit to Canada, and a picture entitled Cubs Courageous.

Talks on summer camp were given by Scouter Ford and Akela Pammett. Mrs. J. Cridland gave a brief view of the activities and objects of the group mothers' auxiliary. Commissioner Lew Grant spoke on the scout uniform. The draw for the quilt was made by A.D.C. Grant, the lucky winner being Mrs. T. Chapman, 412 London street, with Ticket 455.

Geoffrey Cridland and Glen Grierson won prizes for selling most tickets, while every Cub received a small gift for his efforts. Thanks goes to Mr. C. Sporle for his services and use of his movie projector in showing the films.

A meeting of leaders will be held at the headquarters on Tuesday night at 7.30 p.m., and it is hoped a good number will turn out. Then on Thursday week, May 12, the Scouter Club will meet. So let us book that date now.—The Skipper.

9-POUND BROWN TROUT

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y., May 2 (A.P.)—A monster brown trout that weighed nine pounds four ounces today overshadowed even the big ones that got away on the opening of the lake trout season. Ralph F. Hill, Glens Falls, a deputy sheriff, landed the 28-inches beauty while trolling in Northwest Bay. A veteran angler said there wasn't supposed to many brown trout in the lake. They couldn't recall when the last catch of the species was made.

MAN IS ARRESTED IN CELLAR OF STORE OF GORDON HUDSON

Arthur Wilson pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley K.C. in police court this morning to breaking and entering by night the store of Gordon Hudson at the corner of Lansdowne and Lock streets with intent to commit an indictable offence.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked for a remand for a few days so that the man's record could be looked up and Magistrate Langley set next Monday as the day for giving sentence.

Telephoned Police

Wilson was arrested in the cellar of the Hudson store at 3.55 o'clock Sunday morning by a police squad composed of Sergeant John Thompson, and Constables John Rogers and Leo Murphy who visited the place in response to a phone call. Eric Nicholls, 342 McGill street had been on his way to get Ford Campbell to start out on a trout-fishing expedition when he noticed a man near the Hudson store. After he had gone some distance down Lansdowne street he heard the sound of broken glass. Nicholls and Campbell stopped a taxi-cab along just then and the passengers telephoned the police from their home nearby.

When the officers arrived, they found the glass in the front door of the store broken and Sergeant Thompson crawled through the opening and searched the store. He found two large stones just inside the entrance and then going down cellar located Wilson hiding behind a pile of empty boxes and placed him under arrest. Wilson was equipped with a flashlight and screw driver.

GREEK FRATERNITY PLANS CONVENTION

To show appreciation of Canada and pride in its citizenship the first national convention of the Order of Ahepa, a Greek fraternity, will be held at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Mr. Yeotes said today there are 50,000 members of this order in the United States, and President Roosevelt is an honorary member.

"This order has been in Canada only two or three years," Mr. Yeotes said, "and the convention will be the first one of national scope. Among those who have accepted invitations to the banquet on May 4 are Hon. J. L. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, Mayor Lewis of Ottawa and V. I. Chebithes, the Supreme President of Ahepa. Canadian citizens of Greek origin are in a way introducing themselves to Canada by this convention. We want to show our progress as citizens, many of us having been here a long time. We have also invited the Greek Minister to the United States and Rev. Athenagoras, Archbishop of the Greek Church for North and South America. As members may invite friends, I invited Mr. and Mrs. Duffus, Mr. and Mrs. Rork Ferguson, A. L. Elliott and Hon. G. N. Gordon, but I don't think the last two can come."

ANNIVERSARY HELD AT PARK STREET

The 43rd anniversary of the Park Street Baptist Church was fittingly observed on Sunday. At the morning communion service, one of the largest at Park Street in recent years, five new members who had been baptized on Easter Sunday, were received into the fellowship of the church. The evening service was conducted by the Men's Brotherhood with Gordon Young in the chair. Mr. C. Corbett conducted a fifteen minute song service. The male choir consisting of twenty men sang two numbers, "Master the Tempest Is Raging" and "Stand Up Stand Up For Jesus." The scripture was read by Harvey Collison and prayer offered by George Batley, Byers Smith and E. W. Young.

Rev. C. C. Boyter, the new minister, was the speaker at both services. His subject in the morning "Love's Longing" was a brief meditation on Christian consecration. In the evening the subject was entitled "A Voice worth listening to." The speaker said: "There are many voices clamoring for our attention these days. With thousands of books pouring off the press, the radio, and the soap-box orator, we seem to have every kind of huckster calling out his 'cure alls' for all our ills. Everywhere we hear voices of criticism of the state and of the church. But the voice worth listening to is the one who speaks on the authority of a personal experience. It is worth while giving an ear to the one who can tell us what is right with God as revealed in Christ, and who speaks from his personal experience of God. With the personal knowledge form of experience that God is that God cares, that God is for us. we are fortified against all the tests of life and easily able to find the sunny side of life."

McDonald was asking this question on Saturday. He acknowledged that the association was doing a lot of good work in the county, but according to the information he had received there seemed something queer about any arrangements that deprived a farmer of the ordinary rights of a property owner. ST. PAUL'S CHOIR TO GIVE CANTATA THE ROSE MAIDEN

"The Rose Maiden," by Frederic H. Cowen—the cantata to be sung by the choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Monday, May 9—is one of the happiest and most tuneful of this famous British composer. The argument is as follows:

The Queen of the Flower Fairies, weary of a life of unbroken calm, prays of the newly returned spring that he will bestow upon her also the gift of love that he bestows upon man. He warns her of the risk she runs, but finally yields to her entreaties by changing her while she sleeps into the form of a beautiful girl. Under the name of Roseblossom, she wanders through the world to find the love she seeks, and meets with a girl who, having been deserted by her lover, loses her senses and dies broken-hearted. But, undeterred from her search, Roseblossom becomes the wife of a forester, with whom she lives for a time in perfect happiness that she cannot survive his death. The elves bewail the fate of their Queen, and curse love as fatal to peace and happiness.

Fourteen separate and group numbers, solos and choruses, comprise "The Rose Maiden," soloists from Toronto: Edna Reid Carrow, soprano; Helen Raine McHugh, contralto; Herbert Mulloch, tenor, and Frank Oldfield, baritone, taking the solo parts; and John Duncan, harpist, with Gwen Craw, accompanist. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., will conduct the performance.

Two charges against two local men of stealing four hams, the property of the Canada Packers and of receiving the hams, knowing them to have been stolen, were dismissed by Magistrate Langley, K.C., in police court this morning when the Crown offered no evidence in any of the charges.

"I cannot possibly give you an order to that effect," said Magistrate Langley. "If you can prove ownership you can take action against the police department to recover them, but you can't do it in this court."

Mr. Sheehy gave notice this afternoon that proceedings were being taken to recover the hams.

It was decided to hold a picnic on Saturday, July 9 to Hiawatha. It will be restricted to members and their families and a charge of 25 cents for each family will be made to pay for the transportation of the less fortunate who do not own a car.

As already announced prizes will be given for the largest pickerel, lunge and bass caught by a member during the coming season, and a prize also for the largest pickerel caught by any ex-service man of the district. Prizes will not be given for the big ones that got away. Each fish must be brought in, weighed and recorded.

Entries for the gardens and lawn competition must be made not later than June 30th.

During the past ten days the following new members have been made: J. Airess, J. Pontaine, Eric Kimball, E. Baumer, W. J. Swanger, L. Dunstan, C. E. Long, A. Pickles, W. A. Clark, P. Simpson and A. Gray.

ASSAULT CHARGE IS DISMISSED

A charge against Arthur Delore of assaulting Mrs. Myrtle Lee with intent to do serious bodily harm was declared "not proved" by Magistrate O. A. Langley K.C. in police court this morning. The indictment alleged that the offence took place in the township of Douro on April 12.

Delore who pleaded not guilty was defended by W. J. A. Fair.

Mrs. Lee the complainant swore that on the night in question she had gone with Delore to a show in Peterborough and said that the accused had given her some cigarettes, one of which made her feel very dizzy.

After the show they had returned to the home of complainant's cousin and there was an argument as to whether Mrs. Lee should be taken home by Delore or by her brother Wesley Clapper. She said Delore assaulted her brother, threw him out and broke his wrist watch and then had kicked her on the leg, causing black and blue marks.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fair, witness said she had been employed for some time by Delore as housekeeper at his camp near Apsley.

"Are you accusing him of trying to dope you with cigarettes?"

Witness replied in the affirmative.

"You do smoke cigarettes?" asked Mr. Fair.

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Lee, adding that one of the cigarettes Delore had given her made her feel dizzy.

Did Not Part On Good Terms

She denied that she and Delore had parted on good terms on the night in question or that he had kissed her good-night. "I am fussy about who I kiss" she said.

"He is in love with you?" queried defence counsel.

"He needn't be," said the witness, who said she did not know whether accused had his boots or not on when he kicked her.

Wesley Clapper, brother of the complainant told of the affair at the Stevenson home in Douro but he said that his sister had been sitting on Delore's knee and that when an argument started between himself and Delore the accused had got up to strike him and as he did so his foot came into contact with Mrs. Lee's leg.

In cross examination Clapper admitted that he himself had been convicted on two serious offences in regard to women.

Delore took the box in his own behalf and denied that he had kicked Mrs. Lee, either purposely or accidentally on the night in question.

Magistrate Langley dismissed the case without an address from either counsel.

TROUT FINGERLINGS PLACED IN STREAMS

A BITING AFFAIR

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—A dog started the argument and a man got bit—but not by the dog. It began when Walfreid Brating, a movie ticket taker, refused to let Mrs. Silvina Febles enter the theatre with her chihuahua dog. Brating told police she bit him; Mrs. Febles said he bit himself—by slapping her in the mouth and knocking out one of her false teeth.

FORUM OPPOSES AMALGAMATION OF CANADA'S RAILWYS

A resolution opposing amalgamation of Canada's two railways was passed at a meeting of the People's Forum Sunday afternoon at which the new Labor Hall was officially opened with an incidental celebration of May Day.

Michael English, chairman, gave a brief review of the origin of May Day celebrations by organized labor throughout the world. The guest speaker was Thomas Tooms who outlined the railway problem of this country and introduced the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted, and copies of it are to be sent to the Rowell Commission on federal and provincial relations: "That we, the People's Forum of Peterborough under the auspices of the labor movement, protest any attempt at the amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific Railway, privately owned, and the Canadian National Railway, owned by the people, for the following reasons: (1) private ownership of the C.P.R. works for direct profit for the benefit of the shareholders; their first great objective is dividends. (2) Public ownership of the C.N.R. works for the public welfare and national benefit first; direct profit is a secondary matter, believing that profit would accrue indirectly through the expansion and development of our natural resources.

Joint Board

It is our opinion that a joint board composed of men with different ideals and objectives would have very little in common and could lead to nothing but confusion. We believe a railway in Canada, where there are thousands of miles of undeveloped land, and billions in undeveloped natural resources, minerals, lumber, etc., should be run on a safe speculation of opening up a glorious volume of the wealth of our country, if profits be indirect in the form of royalties on new mineral ventures and lumbering, taxation on increased population, agriculture and increased manufacture. This we believe to be a national obligation and should be administered with that viewpoint, more than the modern form of direct cash profit such as would be under private ownership.

We believe that under any condition amalgamation could not be practical or honest. The powers of private ownership permit its president and directors to stump the country and publish speeches of propaganda which if delivered by the president or board of management of the publicly owned railway would immediately bring charges in parliament that they were playing politics, and as honorable men, doing their duty, they would be threatened with dismissal by the opponent of public ownership.

Obligations Exceeded

We believe the government has far exceeded its obligations to the privately owned railway by the many subsidies and gifts of land for the good they may have supplied to the country.

The railway history of private ownership is well exemplified in the defunct Grand Trunk Railway's transfer to the C.N.R. with a legacy of debt to burden the Canadian National Railway at its very outset.

In proposing amalgamation the privately owned railway is attempting again to place a heavy burden on the shoulders of the Canadian people by having them purchase from the private owners that unprofitable section that is the rolling stock and permanent way. They desire to retain that part such as hotels, steamships and commercial telegraphs which produced a profit of more than eleven million dollars in one year.

At the close of the meeting the chairman said the new hall was to be used for meetings, and as it would be open at all times the labor man could feel free to use it for the discussion of his problems. This week a series of meetings of special interest to the textile workers is being held.

FIVE MILLION FRY PLACED IN TRENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2.—Again this year the Department of Game and Fisheries has taken steps to assure a supply of fish in this part of the Trent River. On Saturday morning five million pickerel fry were placed in the water at Crowe Bay under the supervision of R. H. Cole who received the fry from the picton hatchery. Arrangements have been made to further replenish the stream with the shipment of one hundred thousand lunge on May 10th and two hundred thousand bass early in June.

One More Wedding

CHAPTER 25

The woman was engaged at the moment that Barbara arrived, and an assistant asked if she would wait for a few minutes in one of the dressing rooms. Sitting in a small silver chair, near a vast blue dressing table, Barbara was watching a dozen reflections of herself in the tall cheval mirrors that lined the room when the outer door opened. A model, in a white tulle evening gown splashed with silver sequins, was entering, calling to someone as she came through the door. She turned her head and noticed there was someone in the room.

"Oh, I didn't know the room was occupied," she began in a well-modulated voice. Then, surprise broke its serenity. "Babbs!"

Barbara looked up into her cousin Julia's blue eyes.

JULIA KINGSLEY, Barbara's cousin, gathered the folds of her dancing skirt away from the floor as she dropped down on a blue satin sofa that was opposite Barbara's slim silver chair.

"Whatever brings you here?" the model asked.

Briefly Barbara explained. Then she added: "I thought you had gone home. What are you doing, Julia? Modeling? Where are you living?"

Julia gave an address, a good hotel. "Remember Jimmy Minton, the gold-plated playboy who hired Bruce Kemper to advertise him? Some of his money is in this concern so I lose five more pounds and he got me a job. I hardly thought you wanted to see me any more."

The night when Julia had held a gay Bohemian party in Barbara's rooms was far away now. Between that night and this, Garry had told Barbara that he loved her and had taken it back. She wondered if all her life she would be reckoning time from that evening.

"You know about Bruce Kemper, don't you?" Barbara asked.

"I heard that he was ill and in a hospital. When Jimmy liked me, Bruce became angry and threw up his job. After all I never wanted to marry him! Men are so ridiculous!"

"He's still in the hospital. Peter Baxter is in town, and he goes to see him often."

"Peter Did he come on to comfort you when you lost Garry?"

Barbara knew that her face flushed. "He's busy with his publisher but his leave of absence ends soon and he's going back to Martinsville."

"You'll miss him." Julia said it tauntingly.

"I've hardly seen him lately." She wondered why he hadn't called more often. Did he think he would bore her? She couldn't love him but she did like him.

"Do you see Jimmy Minton often?" Barbara asked, more to prevent other embarrassing comments from Julia than because she wanted to know.

"Enough. He knows other people, too, of course. But that's all right. I don't want to marry him for a while—I don't think I do. I may. You never know. He has a new divorce, you know."

"Come to see me, Julia," Barbara said impulsively when she was called away.

"I may surprise you. Goodby, Barabara. Take a cue from me, forget Garry."

Julia was to come to see her very soon . . . come to see her about Wenda Ayer. At the moment, though, Barbara did not believe that she would see Julia again unless their paths unexpectedly caught up at some cross-roads somewhere. She had several errands to do, so she was late in going home. A note thrust into her bax, asked her to call Peter at a certain number. She waited until she slipped into her lounging pajamas and pulled the blinds against the foggy night before she did. For some reason she was strangely lonely.

When Peter's voice came over the wire, it was oddly restraioned, yet joy notes kept creeping out. "Barbara, remember you once wanted to see a bride who carried an alligator bag?"

"Yes—when I was so sick of writing up weddings. I don't know, Peter—I'd kind of like to write up a good wedding again."

"I can give you the assignment."

"To write one, Peter, not to participate in the ceremony," she answered, laughing as she did so.

"Put on your hat, then. You're going to Greenwich!"

"Peter! What—? You mean..."

Theres was a little scuffle a though someone was taking the telephone away from Peter. Then Ruth spoke: "Babbs darling, it's Peter and me. We're getting married and I'm going back with him."

"But Ruth—"

"We'll pick you up at once!"

Words of an old nursery rhyme began to sing their way through Barbara's mind. "The animals went in two by two, the elephant and the kangaroo."

Peter and Ruth, Garry and Wenda, Natalie and Basil—! Life seemed to be a wedding march and she alone couldn't keep in tune with the music. She was glad for Peter and Ruth, but she had a sense that something which she had treasured was leaving. She had been first so glad with Peter. She had thought that it would always be that way. Whenever she was too tired she could find him, there at his shabby desk, the green eye-shade over his eyes, and tell him anything.

Now Peter had written a book and he was marrying an heiress. Peter—

She caught her breath in a sob. She would be alone, so alone now! No one to whom to turn. No one but Ray. Bless his heart, he was a dear. If she could be a little gayer, they could have fun together. She would have to be livelier and merrier. After all, she was going to have a career. Men, even the best of them, were not to be trusted. Not that they meant to be dishonest. They were variable and they couldn't help it. A wise woman didn't put her faith in words a man caid. She made her own life from good, helpful work. And love—oh, that was only the frosting on the cake, and you could learn to be glad when the cake was frosted, not to mind when it was a plain sponge loaf.

That ride through the night to the Connecticut town; the granting of the license and the minister who came down from a study upstairs somewhere to perform a ceremony in his living room; the lilies of the valley and the orchids that Peter insisted Ruth carry instead of the smart green suede bag that matched the suit under her mink coat—all of these were a jumble to Barbara when the car started back to town. She knew that she talked a great deal, laughed not quite so much wished them happiness again and again. If Peter must marry someone, she was glad that it was Ruth. After all, a girl couldn't put a sign on a man and claim him when she didn't want him.

The next day, when Natalie came into her office about three o'clock, Barbara looked up, eyes filled with swift tears, because she was so glad to see her. But Natalie misunderstood, or understood too well.

"Barbara, it's Garry! You've got to be cured or get him back."

"Then I'll take being cured."

"Sometimes it's easier to work it the other way."

"I don't want him. Peter and Ruth were married last night. That's why I'm being silly. Natalie, maybe you're right. Maybe it's better just to carry so you won't go around expecting miracles. Besides Gary is devotion itself. Everybody says so."

"I guess you're right. The wedding will be a finality. You'll wake up after that."

"The wedding?" The room grew dark and she sat down.

"Next month. Haven't you read the papers today?"

"No—I've been frightfully busy. I'm doing a whole book of children's stories—we're running them in the magazine and then there is to be a book. I work on it in odd moments and nights and whole mornings—whenever I can."

"Then I'll leave you to your elves and goblins in a minute, Barbara. I was passing and wanted to borrow you for a cup of tea. Could you come downstairs for 10 minutes?"

When they were settled in a booth in a tea room on the avenue, Natalie said: "Darling, are you free for the week-end of Washington's birthday?"

Barbara nodded. She even laughed. "Very. I lost my best beau and haven't replaced him."

"Basil and I are having a house party at his lodge up in the mountains. It's a palatial affair with an indoor heated swimming pool, and only about three hours run from the city. I can count on you, can't I Babbs?"

The thought of still, cold air undoubled by anything but snowflakes and sheets of moving wind was suddenly bracing and desirable. "It's the nicest suggestion anybody has made for weeks. Of course I'll come. Who else will be there?"

"Several people you don't know—a few you do. Jimmy Minton is a partner of Basil's in one or two companies and he feels he has to ask him along with a couple of other officials. I don't like him, either, Barbara, but we can avoid him. And I'm asking Garry and his stage love to drive up after the Saturday performance and stay until Monday evening. They've accepted—and they know you're coming. You are, aren't you, Babbs?"

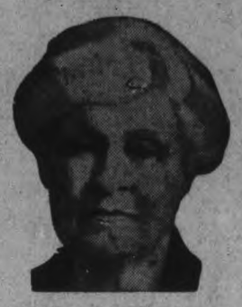
Try Having Brothers and Sisters, Husbands and Wives Exchange Places for an Entire Week and Each Will Have a Greater Appreciation for the Other

One of our prominent colleges has just been observing what it calls "gander week," which is based on the old aphorism that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."



During this celebration the roles of the coeds are reversed. The girls make all the dates, pay all the bills, escort the boy friends to all places of amusement and form the stag lines at parties. The boys are strictly chaperoned, have to be in their dormitories by 10.30 at night, and have a chance to find out how it feels to have to wait to be asked to step out and to pray heaven that somebody will cut in on their dances.

This is a grand idea, and if it could only be transferred from the campus to the world in general, and especially if it could be domesticated in the home circle, it would do more than any other one thing to promote harmony between the sexes and to stop husband and wife spats. For the adage that "half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives" is absolutely true so far as men and women are concerned, and the belief that each sex entertains that it has got the hot end of the bargain in life is at the bottom of the strife between them.

Hence, if we could now and then have an official "gander week" in which men and women would swap jobs and each have a chance to find out about how heavy was the burden the other one carried, how exacting and nerve-wearing the work the other one performed, what cares and anxieties tortured the soul of each, it would give them a mutual understanding, a sympathy and a patience with each other that they now lack.

You can begin with the youngsters. Boys and girls are brutally selfish in dealing with each other. They think only of their own pleasure and are ruthlessly inconsiderate of the feelings of others. Boys, for instance, want only to go with the prettiest, the best dressed, the peppiest, the most popular girls. They entirely overlook the plain-faced ones with no spectacular qualities, and a hostess has to use strong-arm methods to induce one to dance with a wallflower at a party.

But surely any youth who had been through the experience of sitting at home with Mamma and Papa and sucking his thumb, while he prayed that some girl would ask him to go to the frat dance with her, and who had sat up in agony on the sidelines at a ball while other boys were being besieged by partners, would know how a lonesome Jane felt and would at least in compassion give her a whirl or two.

And would any girl who had to go hungry and do without a fresh finger wave and wear old slippers because she had spent all of her allowance on taking Johnny to the theatre in a taxi and letting him wangle her into buying him an expensive supper afterward, be so glib about hinting for flowers and suggecting supper afterward as a suitable birthday present? I trow not. She would have mercy on his pocketbook. Nothing makes us kinder than having been there ourselves.

Probably there isn't a woman in the world who hasn't felt like taking the carving knife to her husband when he told her that he wished HE didn't have anything to do but just stay at home, do the housework and take care of the children. But no woman would ever have to listen to that again if just for one, single solitary week she could make him pinch-hit for her and do the cooking, washing, baby-tending, sewing, patching and mending that she does every day.

When he got out of the sanatorium from having nervous prostration he wouldn't wonder why she wasn't always dressed up in pink chiffon and why she craved some other amusement beside walking the domestic treadmill and answering the call for m-o-t-h-e-r.

When a woman goes downtown it is a sort of a spree, dolling herself up, meeting friends, going to lunch, seeing pretty things, and that is the way she pictures her husband's business day and it makes her green with envy.

But far otherwise would it be if she could exchange places with him and know the strain which the modern man works; the anxieties that tear at his soul; the fears that turn him sick when he thinks that he alone stands between the wife and children he loves and hunger and want. Any woman who had tried that would not reproach her husband for not making more money, nor drag him away from his easy chair of an evening to night clubs. A grand thing, this idea of a "gander week." Let's push it along.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MAY FLOWERS

Baby Bunty, her little brown dress of fur rumpled in the wind, came hopping home from the Hollow Tree School one day just in time to see Uncle Wiggily hopping from the back gate of his Hollow Stump Bungalow.

"Hi, Unkie Wig!" shouted the little orphan rabbit. "Please wait for me, Unkie Wig!"

Bunty was the only little rabbit allowed to use "baby talk," and that was because she was an orphan. None of the other bunnies of Uncle Wiggily were allowed to use baby talk.

"All right, Bunty," said Mr. Longears, stopping long enough so the sunshine could make the pink coloring inside his long ears seem even more gay. "I'm waiting for you."

"Thank you, Unkie Wig," said Bunty as she hopped over to the jolly old rabbit gentleman. "Where are you going?"

"To gather some May flowers," said Mr. Longears.

Nature Student

"Oh, I know!" joyfully laughed

Baby Bunty. "April showers bring May flowers. And this is May and last month was April and we had lots of showers and now there should be flowers and may I come with you?"

"My! What a big sentence for such a little girl rabbit!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "You are all out of breath!"

"I hopped home from school very fast," said Bunty. "I rather thought you might be going adventuring and I wanted to go with you. May I, please, Unkie Wig?"

"Yes, Bunty. But what about your homework.

"Oh, I can do that after we come back. Anyhow it's about nature study. I must write a composition on nature and May flowers are nature, aren't they?"

"Very much so," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "So hop along with me, Baby Bunty. We shall go to the woods. Only the very earliest flowers of May will be in blossom now, up here. But we shall get some, I hope."

"Is there some place where there are now more May flowers than we can find here?" asked Baby Bunty.

"Oh, yes," answered Uncle Wiggily. "In the Southland."

"What makes them have more flowers in the Southland than we have up here near the Orange Ice Mountains?" asked the orphan rabbit.

"Because the sun shines warmer and longer in the Southland than it does here," explained Mr. Longears as he and Bunty hopped along.

"Doesn't the sun shine the same all over?" asked Bunty.

Tells Why

"No," her uncle told her "It shines warmer and longer at the equator or middle of our earth than it does at each end, which are the North and South poles. It is cold much of the time in those places with a great deal of ice. The sun doesn't shine long and hot enough to melt all the ice."

"Tell me more about that some other time, if you please," said Baby Buty. "Just now I want to gather some May flowers with you."

Hop along faster!" invited Uncle Wiggily. So he and Baby Bunty hopped along faster and soon they were at the woods.

"What kind of flowers shall we find first?" asked Baby Bunty peering around with her bright eyes.

"We ought first to find some Spring violets, white, blue or yellow," said Mr. Longears. "We may also find some other May Flowers. Let's see who will find the first ones."

Suddenly Baby Bunty gave a joyful cry.

"I see some blue May violets, she shouted and sprang to gather them. But, as she did, she slipped and fell and a moment later she yelled: "Oh, Uncle Wig! I'm all wet! I fell in a spring!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "You are wet but you only fell in some queer flowers. Let me show you!"

And in the next story I'll tell you what they were. It will be about Uncle Wiggily getting a drink. But please don't let the pussy cat tickle the face of the wrist watch with the end of her tail.

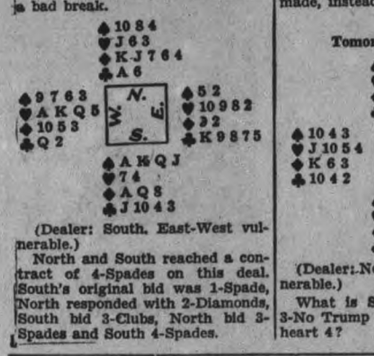
"The Authority on Authorities"

AN IMPORTANT PLAY

ONE OF THE simplest, yet most valuable, safety plays of the experts—whoever they are—has for its purpose the protection of a four-trump holding when there are three or less in the dummy. It consists of refusing to ruff some early lead with the four-trump holding and instead waiting for a further lead which can be trumped in the other hand. In this way the declarer preserves his ability to run four rounds of trumps and therefore protect himself against a bad break.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 4-Spades on this deal. South's original bid was 1-Spade, North responded with 2-Diamonds, South bid 3-Clubs, North bid 3-Spades and South 4-Spades.

The hearts K and Q were cashed by West, who continued with the heart A. South made the mistake of ruffing this with the heart 3. If the trumps had been split three-three in the opponents' hands, the play would not have mattered, but South should not have banked on that.

Instead of ruffing the third heart, he should have discarded a club, as it was a loser in any event. The diamonds provided for only two discards. Played in that manner, the contract would have been made, instead of being set one.

From Cass Lake in Minnesota — From Your Special Correspondent,
Come these tiding, new and stirring.
Not of Chippewa uprising
(Such tactics are now outmoded)
Nay — these Chippewas are modern!
Thus they stage a true sit-downing;
Sit just like their paleface brothers.
Thus they take the white man's weapons
For their use in prostrate protest,
In protest against removal
To Duluth of tribe's front office.
Squatting by the tranquil waters.
Resting 'neath the silent shade trees.
Noble red men, now recumbent,
Smoking ciggies — taking easement.
Sit the chiefs and all their warriors,
Sit the squaws with their papooses,
Sit the Chippewas' five hundred.
Some discuss baseball, recession;
Some give ear to radio programs;
Some peruse the Sunday funnise;
Some play bridge, or turn to poker.
Patient is the Great White Father,
But next day White Father Ickes,
From his mighty marble tepee,
On the shores of the Potomac
Issues statement: — A referendum
Of the tribe will settle question!
Stiff in limb arise the tribesmen,
Thankful to that paleface chieftain
Whose idea they had borrowed—
Thankful, they, to — John L. Lewis!

Branch Notes

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH.

"Barbara Makes a Splash" is to be presented on May 10, and the branch is looking forward to a good attendance. This play is different in many ways than other plays the branch has put on in the past.

The Hurons, captained by Miss Long, won the A.Y.P.A. Bowling League championship, while the Cherokees lost out for second place to the Wyandottes. Our congratulations to both of them for their splendid finish.

The dance and presentation of prizes of the Bowling League will take place on Friday, May 13, in the Paragon. This is open to all members of the A.Y.P.A. and their friends. Tickets can be procured from your captains or Mrs. Curtis.

ODDFELLOWS HOLD CHURCH PARADE TO MURRAY STREET

Members of Otonabee Lodge No. 13 and Peterborough Lodge No. 111, Independent Order of Oddfellows and of Golden Link Lodge Rebekahs who held their annual church parade on Sunday night to Murray Street Baptist church were exhorted by the pastor Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe to have the courage of their convictions and to live up to the ideals of friendship, love and faith by which they were linked together.

The two I. O. O. F. lodges paraded from their hall, headed by the Salvation Army Band and at the church were joined by the Rebekahs, the three lodges marching in to the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers", played by the band, and taking seats reserved for them in the body of the church.

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe said that it was a privilege and an honor to welcome the I. O. O. F. members.

He announced his text as "Keep Up Your Courage". These words he said were not to be found in the St. James version where the 33rd verse of the 16th chapter of St. John contained the advice "Be of good cheer" but were the more modern translation.

The speaker emphasized the importance and value of courage, Jesus had shown himself to be the most courageous man in all history for when he set himself steadfastly to go to Jerusalem he knew what the end would be, that there could only be one end and that was the cross. He had had convictions and he had also had the courage of his convictions, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe emphasized as he reminded the Oddfellows and Rebekahs that Jesus had had convictions about the things that linked them together, friendship, love and truth. He urged them to cherish the ideals that were in their charter.

In regard to friendship Mr. Sutcliffe maintained that the only way to have a friend was to be one—the friendly man was the man who sought to be a friend. Too many people waited for others to seek them.

"The perpetual question before us as Christian people" said the pastor "is have we the courage to put these things that we say we believe in into operation".

Stressing the desirability of having the courage of one's convictions Mr. Sutcliffe said that many people were afraid to appear as good as they really were. "There are enough good people to make the world a better place than it is but they have not the courage of their convictions he declared as he concluded his sermon with an exhortation to the visiting fraternity members to keep up their courage.

A feature of the musical portion of the service was the singing as a duet of "Watchman, What of the Night." by Mrs Leslie Groombridge and Walter Farr, a most effective rendition by the two vocalists.

There was a large turnout of the members of the three lodges. J. H. Price of Otonabee Lodge was marshal of the parade.

American Mother

The honor of being named "the American mother of 1938" goes this year to Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell, ABOVE, of Dallas, Texas, it was announced in New York by the mothers' day committee of the Golden Rule Foundation. Mrs. Crowell, poet and songwriter, is the mother of three children: Dean H. Crowell, a bank clerk; Reid Crowell an artist, and Norton B. Crowell, instructor at Southern Methodist University.

ARE YOU WEAK, NERVOUS?

FOR young girls growing into womanhood, for women in middle life going through the "change," or those who suffer from headache, backache and nervousness associated with functional disturbances, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a reliable vegetable tonic. Read this: Mrs. J. E. Jones, 4 Antwerp St., St. Catharines, Ont., said: "I felt tired and weak and my nerves seemed to be all unstrung. But after I had used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a short while my appetite increased and I picked up strength and felt better in every way. 'Favorite Prescription,' in my opinion, is an excellent tonic for women." Buy of your druggist. New size tabs. 50c. liquid $1.00 & $1.35.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Happy Birthday

To Mary Starr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Starr, 631 Lock street, who reached her ninth year on Friday and gave a party for some of her young girl friends. They were just finishing a banquet that had all the appearance of having been an elaborate affair when the Examiner's photographer called. Seated around the table clockwise from the lower right corner, are Joyce Wilson, 202 King George street; Shirley Watkiss, 321 McGill street; Fay Johnson, 172 Antrim street; Nola Paquette, 1 Wilson avenue; 2-year-old June Rose, 622 Rogers street; Mary Starr, the little hostess; Gloria Wilson, 202 King George street; Pearl Johnson, 196 King George street; Betty McIlwain, 212 King George

MACKENZIE URGES EFFICIENT ARMY

MONTREAL, May 2 — (CP). — The "absolute" necessity for an efficient Canadian defence force was stress by Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie in an address here. He said direct risks facing the country included the possibility enemies of Great Britain might attempt to blockade Canada's ports or to destroy by sporadic raids docks, terminals and shipping.

The minister was speaking at a dinner sponsored by the Commanding Officer and officers of the Montreal Military District. Organized with a view to explaining the aims of the Canadian Militia, it was attended by 200 of the city's leading employers as well as 400 naval, military and air force officers.

Mr. Mackenzie said both direct and remote risks confronted Canada in the event of a European war. A remote risk was that a land-hungry, ambitious nation might attempt invasion and conquest. He felt, however, there was little reason to assume that risk as being remote if Canada chose to stand alone, relying solely upon her own capacity for defence.

"Canada's defence policy is based upon the risks apprehended," the Minister said, "and on consideration of the most effective means without resources of meeting them. The task of a defence policy in Canada is to decided on the broad, defensive requirement to give effective protection to national interests, our territory and our coasts, our foreign trade and our neutrality."

SHARE-PUSHERS CHASED

LONDON, May 2—(CP-Havas)—Three men said to have come to England from Canada were convicted of "share pushing" at the Old Bailey to-day and bound over on condition they leave the country within a month.

The men, Morris Naiman, Benjamin William Soskin, and Clifford Douglas Wilson, all described themselves as salesmen. They were accused of having gone from house to house offering shares for subscription and purchase, in violation of the Companies' Act.

Ghost Of Planter Who Evicted Widow Is Haunting Irish Drinking Pool

Dunsrim, County Monaghan, Ireland, May 2

GHOST OF A 17th century planter who evicted a poor widow and her eight children from their Dunsrim farm is haunting a drinking pool near here.

That's the story local residents tell, anyway, and they back it up with vivid descriptions.

The planter, says legend, was thrown from his horse and found one night after sunset with his neck broken, The ghost is said to appear after sunset near the spot where the evicted woman and her eight children were found dead in the snow.

John Francis Smith said he saw "The tall figure of a man, dressed in old-fashioned clothes," as he walked home. The figure knelt at the pool to quench his thirst. "As I watched, spell-bound," said Smith, "I could see the reflection of his eyes in the clear water: They were like two large red coals."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, May 3

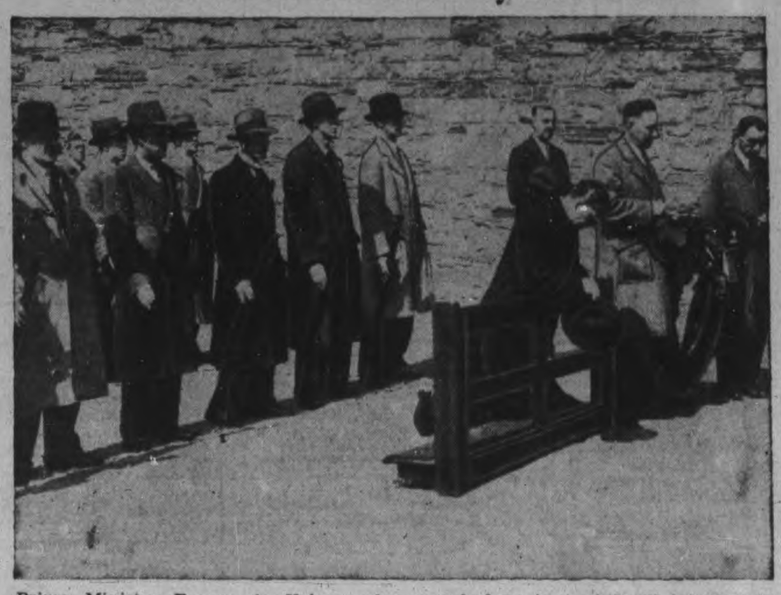
A VERY productive and promising day is presaged from the predominant planetary configurations. Excellent opportunities for promotion, honors, favors and fulfilled ambitions are shown. There may be surprising angles in the affairs, probably instigating swift moves or change of plans. Finance, trade, writings and publicity should flourish.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of expanding and productive opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes and increasing the possessions. Honors, favors, promotion and happiness are probable, with ambitions well on the road to fulfilment. A sudden change may be necessary, or a decisive reorganization of the life and its plans, in which romance and adventure may have part. Business, finance, writings and publicity should thrive.

A child born on this day may be efficient, versatile, dependable and ambitious. It may have much originality, with predispositions toward the unusual, revolutionary and romantic which may result in rather fluctuating fortunes but much adventure.

De Valera Marks Anniversary Of Rebellion



Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, of Eire is shown kneeling in the cemetery of Arbour Hill barracks at Dublin as he recited the rosary for comrades who died before British firing squads for their part in the rebellion of Easter week, 1916. Behind the prime minister is a firing squad composed of survivors of the ill-fated rebellion. De Valera was sentenced to death for his part, but his sentence was commuted. Now De Valera and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England have signed a new pact between their two countries which eliminate much of the traditional "hard feelings."

PROVINCE PLANS RANCHING FOXES

TORONTO, May 2 — (C.P.). — An offer to discuss market problems at any time with a committee from the Eastern Canada Live Stock Union was made at the Union's annual meeting here by W. L. Reek, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

The Deputy-Minister, in making the offer yesterday, told live stock breeders of Government work to aid the bacon industry, of a proposal to increase sows at Ridgetown Experimental Farm from 15 to 25, and declared his Department was considering a fox ranch for experimental purposes.

Mr. Reek told breeders no warble fly legislation had been introduced at the last session of Provincial Legislature as it was felt public opinion was not sufficiently advanced. In regard to the fox farm proposal, Mr. Reek said ranchers now pay the Government some $8,000 yearly in registration fees.

Harry Wilson of Chatham, considered one of Ontario's outstanding live stock breeders, told the Union cattle raising in Canada needs co-operation of processors "to put it over."

Canada Lagging.

He claimed New Zealand raised better lamb, England better beef, and Denmark better pork than Canada, and "it is all a matter of breeding, feeding and merchandising."

"It is our own fault if we don't have the market," Wilson said.

At the Union's banquet last night, A. M. Shaw, director of Marketing Service, Federal Department of Agriculture, said suitability of the enterprise to the area and the low cost of operation are two main things to be considered in Canadian farming.

The former Dean of the Faculty of Agriculture at the University of Alberta said certain parts of Canada have developed on an export basis and others on the domestic market. Mr. Shaw considered that part of Ontario's trouble in marketing beef was that there were no definite weights for a definite market.

Forcing Down Of Interest Rates Is Due For Big Fight In Committee

Ottawa, May 2.

COMMONS BANKING and commerce committee this week will report on whether parliament should take steps to force down interest rates charged by small loan companies. The question is bound to bring on a fight in the committee which probably will meet behind closed doors.

W. H. Moore (Lib Ontario) is chairman of the committee in which, it is understood, there is wide differences of opinion. So many persons make use of small loans that the outcome will be of concern throughout Canada.

Two private bills affecting small loan companies were introduced in the House early in the session and these were referred to the committee along with instructions to report on what action parliament should take to bring uniformity to this type of business.

Before the Easter recess the committee heard a long list of witnesses. Public hearings were completed.

Good Advice About Constipation!

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are you won't have to look very far, if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely, you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean just a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.
